Aldermen Are Jubilant; City's Private Bill Passed

Almost in Its Entirety by Private Bills Committee---Mr. G. W. Hatton Opposed the Request of the Water Commissioners --Fight Over City's Right to Go Into Power Business.

THE PEOPLE WILL VOTE ON THE COMMISSIONERS' REQUEST.

The city's deputation returned from Toronto last night, wreathed in smiles which have not yet worn off. The City's Private Bill came up before the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature yesterday and every clause of the lengthy bill was put through. Hence the satisfaction of the Aldermen. There were some amendments but they were not important and looking at it from Peterborough's standpoint the result is highly satisfactory.

The council was represented by Mayor McWilliams, Ald. Morrow, Bradburn, Stevenson, Phelan, Lemy, Wilson, City Solicitor Hull, City Clerk Armstrong and City Treasurer Adams, while other Peterborough gentlemen present were Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun and J. H. Larmonth, for the Peterborough Light and Power; G. W. Hatton, Ex-Mayor Best, Jas. Kendry, W. S. Davidson, G. L. Hay, Water Commissioners W. H. Moore, T. F. Matthews and W. H. Hill.

The clause giving the city the power to purchase the plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company was first taken up. Messrs. Carnegie and Kendry asked that they be given the same power as the Peterborough Light and Power Company, which was granted. Mr. Kendry strongly supported the clause which was carried.

Any bargain the city may make with the company will have to be submitted to the people and to the (Hydro-Electric Commission, to prevent any extravagant expenditure.

Clause three to give the city power to acquire, develop or lease power or purchase any existing business, was approved of by the people.

There was a long fight, however, over clause four, which gave the city the right to go into the power business without the restrictions of the Conmee Act. The Mayor and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, on behalf of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, had a long tilt. Mr. Dennistoun asked that the matter be submitted to the people. The clause was carried and thus ends a long drawn out contest between the city and the power companies. The city is now free to go into the power business without limitations and to enter into competition with existing companies.

A clause was added to the bill giving the Water Commissioners authority to expend $10,000 a year in extensions.

The clause giving authority to construct permanent cement crossings was passed without opposition.

Clauses 8 to 11 were in connection with the Water Commissioners legislation. They requested to be given power to tax vacant property fronting on water mains, and also to be made a body corporate. Mr. W. H. Moore spoke on behalf of the Commissioners, while Mr. G. W. Hatton and Ex-Mayor Best were present to object to the passing of the clauses. Mr. Hatton addressed the committee in opposition to the bill. The clause was passed but it will have to be submitted to the people.

Clause 12, confirming local improvement bylaws was passed.

There was a long argument over the next clause, which was to give a fixed assessment to the Canadian General Electric Company at $150,000 for twenty years. The Mayor in supporting the bill said that the Canadian General Electric Company would either extend their works in Peterborough or at Davenport in the township of York, where the Canada Foundry Company's works are situated. Peterborough asked to be put on the same footing as York township in regard to assessment. The Mayor this morning characterized the statement in the Star that the city was afraid of losing the industry as "moonshine."

A comparison was made with the manner of assessing the Westing House firm in Hamilton. The Barton annex added to Hamilton by a fake scheme gave that city advantages beyond anything that Peterborough has ever asked.

E. A. DuVernet, K.C., and John A. Patterson, K.C., were present on behalf of the company.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Mr. Downey that the Canadian General Company's assessment be placed at $150,000 for all purposes for ten years, but without exemption from school taxes.

This clause, which carried, places the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough on the same footing as the Canada Foundry Company in York township.

The clauses to fix the assessment of J. J. Turner & Sons and the Rapid Tool Company were passed without any difficulty.

Robbery Committed At East City Public School

About $40 Stolen From the Teachers' Desks--No Clue as to the Perpetrator of the Deed.

OTHER TEACHERS' WARNED

During the hours of last night someone broke into the East City Public School and, after ransacking the rooms, broke into the teachers' desks and stole between $35 and $40, which the teachers had collected from the pupils for school books and supplies. When the caretaker went to the school this morning to prepare for the day's work, he was surprised to find the place in a disorderly condition, and upon investigation he found that the desks had been opened, with the above result.

Later, an order was passed to the various teachers in the city's schools advising them to leave no money in their desks over night, since the fact that money is sometimes left has evidently been communicated to persons inclined to appropriate it to their own uses.

SERIAL STORY WILL COMMENCE SATURDAY

To-morrow, the opening chapters of the Examiner's new story, "The Hound of the Baskervilles," will be published. This is said to be the best story Conan Doyle ever wrote, and application for the publication rights for this city was made by the Examiner several months ago.

Norwood School Children Have A Narrow Escape

Fire Discovered Raging in the Hall With School Filled With Children—Presence of Mind Saved Them.

FIRE DRILL DECIDED ON.

Norwood, March 15.—That this town did not have a repetition of the Hochelaga disaster is a matter for extreme gratification, in view of the narrow escape which the public school here had from destruction by fire a few days ago.

Shortly before noon last Wednesday, Mr. Moore, the principal of the public school went out into the hall and found the stove pipes on fire and a couple of the children's coats which were handing near by in a blaze. The fire was promptly extinguished, but the teachers had some difficulty in maintaining decorum. This is where the advantage of fire drill is seen.

The loss of life in cases of fire is far greater through excitement and panic than by fire.

As a result of this narrow escape the suggestion has been made by the Chairman of the Board of Education that fire drill should be held regularly in the schools of the town, and it is considered probable that this suggestion will be acted upon by the Board.

HON. MR. HYMAN WILL RETURN TO CANADA SHORTLY

Is Sufficiently Recovered to Resume Public Life—He is Expected in the Capital Next Week.

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, March 15.—Hon. C. A. Hyman and Mrs. Hyman leave Coronado, Cal., on Saturday, and are expected in Ottawa next week. Mr. Hyman has spent three months at Coronado, leaving Canada at the end of November.

He is sufficiently recovered from nervous prostration to resume public and private duties. This is the tenor of private despatches to Ottawa.

PANIC OF YESTERDAY IS TURNED

Stocks on New York Exchange To-day Recovered and Bargain-Hunters Made Money on Market.

STOCKS AGAIN GOING UP

Special to J. E. Hoists & Co.

New York, March 15.—Stocks rose to-day as violently as they fell yesterday. Opening prices under the influence of a buoyant London market were from 5 to 12 points higher than yesterday's close, and after a great deal of irregularity advanced further in the afternoon, the recovery amounting to 15 points in Copper, Reading, 15; U. Pac., 17; St. Paul, 10; S. P., 12; Smelters, 15; Atchison, 8 and the others in proportion.

The best kind of support, which was absent yesterday, was strongly in evidence to-day. Overnight investment orders came in by the thousands from outsiders who had been holding aloof for months, and bargain hunters swarmed the brokers' offices. This materially helped the recovery, and the crazy movements of yesterday were replaced by orderly ones to-day.

A Big Jump

When, at 11.30, it was announced that the sheets had gone through the clearing house in fine shape, stocks jumped upward points at a time. It was regarded as phenomenal that a break of such enormous proportions should have come without a single failure. Two more failures were announced in London, but they amounted to nothing.

Money on call was easier at 10 to 12 per cent. closing at 4 1-2 per cent. The feeling in Wall Street was more hopeful, and the gloomy foreboding of yesterday gave way to more hopefulness to-day. London was a heavy buyer in this market to-day, and, with the settlement out of the way over there, a decided improvement is looked for. Mr. Harriman says that he has sold no stocks. Mr. Morgan is on the ocean, and people are wondering where all the stocks came from yesterday. That they passed into strong hands is generally believed, and brokers are of the unanimous opinion that the worst has been seen. The market closed furiously active, but under the high for the day.

CHEMONG INDIANS TEA AND CONCERT

An Enjoyable Event at Indian Village Last Night—Fortieth Annual Tea and Concert Under Auspices Of The Band.

A GOOD PROGRAMME GIVEN

The fortieth annual tea and concert in connection with the Chemong Band of Indians, was held last night in the council chamber of the Indian Village and proved to be a grand success.

The proceeds of the entertainment which amounted to some sixty-odd dollars, will be applied towards the purchase of a new bell for the handsome new church, which has just been erected on the Reserve.

The event of the winter season at the Chemong Indian Village is the annual tea and concert and the council chamber was packed to the very limits with the residents of the Reserve and their many pale-faced neighbours.

The tea, which commenced early in the afternoon, was held in the basement of the council chamber, and was very ably conducted by the young ladies of the Reserve.

At seven o'clock in the evening, the entertainment commenced, the programme proper being preceded by numerous selections on the gramaphone. Hon. Mr. Stratton, who had driven out early in the afternoon, presided. A very interesting programme of songs, speeches, instrumental selections and dialogues, followed. A large delegation from Lakefield arrived, and it contained some very excellent talent, which contributed largely to the success of the evening's entertainment. The Misses Hunter were very generous with their vocal selections, while the Lakefield orchestra proved to be very popular with the audience. Mr. Quinn of Lakefield, responded to repeated calls from the audience and gave several old time vocal selections.

Mr. Dan Whetung, jr., was heard to good advantage in several vocal selections, and Miss Whetung delighted the audience with her singing. Dialogues, duets, and instrumental numbers followed, to the delight of the audience. Brief speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Bedford, of Lakefield, Mr. John Delober, and Mr. E. S. Charry of Peterborough, and Mr. Johnston Pandash, of Hiawatha. It may be stated that Johnston is a good speaker, and was listened to with interest.

In bringing the meeting to a close, Hon. Mr. Stratton referred to the great progress that has been made in recent years in the building of churches throughout West Peterborough. He congratulated the Indians of Chemong upon the apparent prosperity they were enjoying, and the fact that they were determined to make the most of their opportunities. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King.

It may be stated that the new church will shortly be ready for occupation. It is a handsome red-brick structure. The contractor was Mr. Quinn of Lakefield.

A. O. F. Notice

A special meeting of Court Stanley No. 7,680, A.O.F., will be held in the S.O.E. Hall to-morrow night at eight o'clock sharp, to make arrangements regarding the funeral of their late brother, R. Foster. Funeral Sunday 3 o'clock p.m. T. Hendry, Chief Ranger.

PORT CHURCHILL

The Toronto Star prints the following:

In discussing the question of Hudson Bay navigation, Senator Lougheed said that Manitoba, Ontario and Saskatchewan were after the port of Churchill; that he thought none of them should get it, but that Churchill should be a national port, owned and administered by the Dominion. Surely all the ports in Canada are national ports, and are under the control of the Dominion Parliament, which, under the Confederation Act, has jurisdiction over trade and commerce, shipping and navigation. What reason is there for putting Port Churchill in a different position from Halifax. Halifax is as free to the merchants of Ontario as to those of Nova Scotia, and Port Churchill would be as free to the merchants of Ontario as to those of Manitoba, if Manitoba's request were granted. The matter is largely one of sentiment, and we see no reason why the sentiment of Manitoba should not be respected. Manitoba is the natural gateway from the Western prairies to Hudson Bay. It is a much smaller province than Ontario, much smaller than Saskatchewan, and to extend it northerly, so as to include Port Churchill, would be the reasonable and natural course. There is plenty of room for the extension of Ontario to Hudson Bay without conflicting with the reasonable claims of Manitoba.

The Star is, perhaps, not justified in assuming that the question as to the access of these Provinces to Port Churchill is a mere matter of sentiment. Is it not more a matter of business? Ontario has a vast territory, whose natural outlet is Hudson Bay. Saskatchewan is similarly situated. If it is a matter of sentiment for Manitoba to want a sea-washed shore, why not include the two other Provinces? Why not settle the matter by some sort of compromise—by making an area around the port neutral ground under Dominion jurisdiction, and give the three Provinces equal freight of access for introducing railway lines, etc.? If sentiment is to rule in the settlement, distribute the sentiment equally.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

All winter we have had gruesome stories of railway wrecks coming from the United States. Now, with the advance of spring, the stories of loss of life by floods begin to arrive.

The Toronto papers are surprised that cab fares are to be advanced. The Hamilton papers think this advance is characteristic of Toronto, which is much more mostly adapted to the holding of a Swine show than a Dairy show.

Hon. Premier Whitney is to be acting Minister of Mines during the absence in England of Hon. Frank Cochrane. Now the Opposition will have to learn to dodge the oratorical chunks of rock which will be hurled from the seat of the Premier.

The House of Commons Committee on Privileges and Elections have decided that the resignation of Hon. Mr. Hyman's seat for Lennox was not properly witnessed, and that, therefore, he is still the member for that city. It seems sometimes to become as difficult to be dis-elected as to get elected.

ARE YOU SUBJECT TO HEADACHE?

If you are, and have never tried Burdock Blood Bitters it will pay you to profit by the experience of others and give it a trial.

A healthy stomach, right acting liver and bowels that properly perform their important duties, will render anyone free from headache. If these organs are not in perfect condition, headache must follow. The proper course is obvious—restore the stomach, liver and bowels, to health, and headache cannot exist. For this purpose no medicine equals

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

It removes the cause of the headache by its splendid cleansing, strengthening and tonic properties, whereby the entire system is brought into healthy action. Miss Celina Dubal, Letellier, Man., writes: "I suffered for fifteen years from sick headache. To the advice of a friend I owe my complete cure, and it is with great pleasure that I testify to you that I have not suffered since using your wonderful remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters. I can recommend it as an efficacious remedy for sick headache, which caused me so much misery.

Price $1.00 per bottle or 6 bottles for $5.00 at all dealers."

A Sketch In Outline Of The Northwest Land Deal

Which Mr. W. H. Bennett Might Fill in From the View-Point of a Man on the Inside.

Mr. W. H. Bennett, the member for East Simcoe, the champion slur-slinger of the House, as well as Messrs. Fowler, Pope and Hon. Geo. E. Foster, has been very active in exploiting scandals in the House as against members or supporters of the Government. It seems, however, that they occupy glass houses as shown by the following suggestions of the history of a Northwest land deal from which these gentlemen come out with more cash than credit, as presented by the Ottawa Free Press:

In the meantime, however, we have only Mr. Bennett's oral review of the transaction, as given parliament on February 21st. Though less satisfactory than a detailed history of the adventure, this review covers the main points and is worthy of more attention than it appears to be receiving from the press.

Mr. Bennett, it appears, was a member of the Conservative party who toured the West in 1902, so also was Mr. Fowler, and Mr. Rufus Pope. Observing the signs of prosperity and the prevalence of land speculation, these gentlemen decided to invest some money in Canadian Pacific Railway lands for the laudable purpose of improving their worldly store.

Messrs. Fowler and Pope were authorized to select the land, and apparently also to arrange the terms of payment with the C.P.R. The party, seemingly four in number (including Mr. Lefugey) decided to secure 200,000 acres of land from the C.P.R. at $3.50 an acre, the total price being $700,000. According to Mr. Bennett, the first payment on this should have amounted to $11,000 per man, or $44,000 in all. Owing to some arrangement, apparently negotiated by Mr. Fowler, however, they got off with paying $5,000 each, or $23,000 in all—that is supposing all the gentlemen concerned were required to put up the same amount as Mr. Bennett. As to whether the others did so or not Mr. Bennett did not state, nor did he intimate that he had the information. Before the remainder of Mr. Bennett's "first payment" came due—a matter of a couple of weeks apparently—he was notified that the land had been sold at an advance of $1.00 per acre, and that no further payments would be necessary.

From this recital Mr. Bennett appears to have conducted a quite legitimate transaction — though some features of it are worth noting. According to the statement, it would appear that on a sale of 200,000 acres of land, amounting to $700,000 the C.P.R. were content to accept a down payment of $24,000, or about one-thirtieth of the complete purchase price. Are these the terms usually accorded by the C.P.R. to purchasers of land? It is the claim, and properly so of that company that their lands are sold to actual settlers on more favourable terms than to other purchasers. But does the company sell a quarter section to an actual settler on a down payment of one-thirtieth of its total price? On Mr. Bennett's own statement these gentlemen were accorded a favour in the matter of payment not accorded to the class of purchasers whom the C.P.R. claims to especially favour. Why was this done, or by what means and on what representation was the favour received?

Mr. Bennett has not contended that $3.50 was the current price of of C.P.R. land at the time. Indeed, he has given very good reason for supposing that the current price was more than this. According to his statement the land was sold a few weeks ago after being purchased at an advance of 30 per cent. There have been remarkably rapid advances in the price of western lands, but this, we fancy, takes the bun. And of all others, to represent the C.P.R. as not foreseeing the advance is certainly refreshing. There is no authority in Canada better acquainted than the C.P.R. with western land values, none in better position to judge how rapid will be the advance of those values, and none more scrupulously anxious to share in the benefits of such advances. Are we to suppose that the group of Conservative gentlemen who paid a flying visit to Western Can five years ago foresaw what the C.P.R. Land Commissioner did not see, and snatched this plum from the tree before the very eyes of that astute and experienced gentleman? And if so, are we to be asked to believe they did it without the knowledge and consent of the C.P.R.? And if with this knowledge and consent, why was the consent of the company given?

This land was turned over by Messrs. Fowler, Bennett, et al, to a syndicate composed of Mr. Foster, Mr. McGillivray, and Mr. Wilson at $4.50 an acre, and yet Mr. Bennett tells us that at this very time the Montague syndicate bought 20,000 acres from the C.P.R. at $3.50 per acre. Who comprised the Montague syndicate? From the evidence given before the Insurance Commission, the members were three in number, Messrs. Foster, Montague and Dr. Oronhyatekha. We have it, then, on the word of Mr. Bennett that, while Mr. Foster, as a member of one syndicate, was purchasing C.P.R. land at $3.50 per acre, as a member of another syndicate he was purchasing similar land at $4.50 per acre. Either as member of the Foster-Montague syndicate he was getting land at less than it was worth, or, as a member of the McGillivray syndicate, he was paying for land more than it was worth. If the Foster-Montague syndicate secured 20,000 acres of C.P.R. land at less than market price, what was the consideration given in return for this concession? And what was the significance of two separate parties of prominent Conservative gentlemen securing two separate tracts at this price? What was the understanding on which these transactions were assented to by the C.P.R.?

And, if, on the other hand, the Foster-McGillivray syndicate paid Mr. Bennett and his associates more than the market price, what was the significance of this unusual generosity towards a party of political friends? From the evidence before the Insurance Commission it appears that the money which discharged the debt of the Foster-McGillivray syndicate to Mr. Bennett and his friends came from the Union Trust Company. If the price paid by the syndicate was more than the market price of the land, what was the justification of the sale which involved the Trust Company for more than the land was worth? And what was the position of Mr. Foster, as the general manager of the Trust Company, when, as a member of the syndicate, he helped to engineer the sale which so involved the company? According to the reasoning of Mr. Bennett, the C. P. R. would more readily sell a block of 200,000 acres at $3.50 an acre than a block of 20,000 acres at this price. If, as a member of the Montague syndicate Mr. Foster has bought 20,000 acres at this price why should he not expect to be able to purchase for the Trust Company a block of 200,000 acres for at least as favourable a price? What then was his purpose in placing the additional $200,000 on the price of the land for which the Trust Company became liable? Why this "hand out" to a party of political associates at the expense of the widows and orphans whose funds were placed in his hands for investment to the best advantage?

Mr. Bennett should speak again — or better still — he should unfold the whole story in permanent black and white. Even the brief summary he has made public is wonderfully prolific of problems for solution at the hands of some of his political associates and gives inklings of what might be expected if the member for East Grey could be prevailed upon to unbosom fully.

BANQUET TENDERED TO DEPARTING HORSEMAN

Mr. Levi Bowles Who Leaves Shortly for the West Was Honoured Last Night.

An enjoyable evening was spent at the Cavanaugh House last evening where a banquet was tendered to Mr. Levi Bowles, the well known horseman who leaves in a shot time for Manitoba. About twenty guests sat down to supper about 10 o'clock and after all appetites had been satisfied, a number of toasts were proposed and heartily drunk.

The toast master was Mr. J. H. Gardiner, auctioneer, who acted in his usual capable manner. Mr. Monte Wilson, of Mount Pleasant, was among the guests and contributed a speech to the programme.

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive monthly periods accompanied by unusual pain extending from the abdomen through the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Read these strong letters from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First Letter.)

"In looking over your book I see that your medicine cures Tumors. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."—Fannie D. Fox, Bradford, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second Letter.)

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine.

"Eighteen months ago my periods stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor and would have to undergo an operation.

"I soon after read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined by the physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my periods around once more; and I am entirely well. I shall never be without a bottle of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the house."—Fannie D. Fox, Bradford, Pa.

Another Case of Tumor Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About three years ago I had intense pain in my stomach, with cramps and raging headaches. The doctor prescribed for me, but finding that I did not get any better he examined me and, to my surprise, declared I had a tumor.

"I felt sure that it meant my death warrant, and was very disheartened. I spent hundred of dollars in doctoring, but the tumor kept growing, till the doctor said that nothing but an operation would save me. Fortunately I corresponded with my aunt in the New England States, who advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before submitting to an operation, and I at once started taking a regular treatment, finding to my great relief that my general health began to improve, and after three months I noticed that the tumor had reduced in size. I kept on taking the Compound, and in ten months it had entirely disappeared without an operation, and using no medicine but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and words fail to express how grateful I am for the good it has done me."—Miss Luella Adams, Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all ailing women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Radical Change In Nervous System

STRENGTH OF NERVES AND VIGOR AND HEALTH OF BODY FULLY RESTORED

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The process of revitalizing a nervous system which is on the verge of collapse, must of necessity be slow, but the results are certain and highly satisfactory when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It took 24 boxes to cure Mr. Branton, but the cure is in many respects a most extraordinary one, as you will realize by the following description:

Mr. William Branton, Victoria street, Strathroy, Ont., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, my nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet cold, my digestion was poor, and I had jerking of the limbs. The first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helped me and I continued until I had taken 24 boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and strengthening the nerves. I would strongly recommend it to all suffering from nervousness."

Paralysis in some form is the natural result of neglected diseases of the nerves, but paralysis, instead of coming on suddenly, as is generally supposed is almost invariably preceded by months or years of warning symptoms.

Sleeplessness, headache, failing memory, loss of vigour and energy, stomach troubles, weakness in the mornings, dizziness, weak heart action and despondency are some of the indications of exhausted nerves, which gradually and certainly yield to the reconstructive influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, or, if neglected, lead to paralysis, locomotor ataxia or insanity.

New nerve force must be added to the body and this can best be accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food which is sold at 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 6

CROWDS ATTEND THE REVIVAL

Interesting and Successful Meeting in Park Street Baptist Church Last Night.

The attendance at the special services in the Park street Baptist church continues to be large, and increased interest is manifested. The success of the meetings during the first week is an encouraging sign, and greater results even are anticipated for the next week. The sermon last night was preached from the text, "I give unto My sheep eternal life, and they shall never perish."

OBITUARY.

MRS. WM. MILLER

After an illness of about a week, Mrs. William Miller passed away last night at her home, 124 Dublin street, from pneumonia, following an attack of lagrippe. The deceased lady was 70 years of age and had been a resident of Peterborough for about fifteen years, coming here with her husband from Omemee. She was born in Port Hope, her maiden name being Jane Elizabeth Lonsdale, and she was a daughter of the late Stephen Lonsdale. She was married about fifty years ago to her now bereaved husband, and leaves, in addition to him, four sons, Wm. L., of Bangor, Me.; G. M., Toronto; Stephen M., Arizona, and Walter F., Chicago. Two sisters, Mrs. Wallace, of Port Hope, and Mrs. Flintoff, of Onhawa, and one brother, John F. Lonsdale, New York, of the staff of the American Press Association, also survive.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at 10 o'clock, from the family residence to the G.T.R. station, the remains being conveyed to Port Hope for interment.

RICHARD FOSTER

The death of Mr. Richard Foster at two o'clock this afternoon, came as a sad shock to his many friends, although it was not entirely unexpected. The deceased has been ill since last October and at times a complete recovery was hoped for, but to no avail.

The late Mr. Foster was born in Port Hope 60 years ago. He was married 33 years ago to Agnes Telford, and the family has been residing in the city for twenty-five years. During that time Mr. Foster has made many friends who will sincerely regret his demise while still in his prime. He was employed for many years at the G.T.R. and C.P.R. freight sheds and latterly was engaged in the express business. Only one child, a son, John, of this city, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Foster. He is also survived by two sisters and one brother, Thomas Foster, of the Temperance House, Hunter street, and Mrs. Jas. R. Young of Toronto, and Mrs. George Stevens of Barrie, with the bereaved wife, remain to mourn his loss.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence, 250 Charlotte street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

LEONARD McDONOUGH

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonough, will regret to learn of the death of their infant son, Leonard, at the family residence 86 Gilmour street. The funeral took place this afternoon to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

SHADOWS OF THE PAST

"Shadows of the Past," which comes to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, March 16, matinee and night, is Lincoln J. Carter's latest effort in the field of artistic drama, and, from the flattering press comments and public approval, bids fair to eclipse all of his previous record-breaking plays. There is much to be said about this play that is good, and nothing too laudatory can be spoken of for its intrinsic value. A beautiful array of scenery, coupled with an exceptionally fine cast, leads us to believe that this will be one of the best attractions that will appear here this year.

SERGEANT KITTY

"Sergeant Kitty" held sway last night at the Grand Opera House and was given a cordial reception by a large audience. Miss Helen Byron as "Sergeant Kitty" was a winsome and sprightly "non-com." and marched straight into the affections of the audience. She is pretty and pleasing, sings and acts with taking effect. Her best numbers probably were "O King" and "Love." The comedy situations of the play are hilarious, and the echo of one laugh never had time to die away before a fresh outburst of mirthful appreciation filled the auditorium. James McElhern as Captain Jonquiere, of the 22nd Hussars, and Jack Hedaway as Celestin Brideaux, an orderly, were the principal "laughing stocks" of the production. The premier vocal treat of the evening was the rendition of "War," by Carrie Major, who portrayed General Dubois. This stirring military solo, was given in a splendid voice, enunciation and artistic finish, and was enthusiastically recognized by the audience. The cast generally was excellent and the costumes and scenic sittings appropriate. The military background gave rare colour and picturesqueness and the music was of a higher order than that generally heard in the ordinary run of musical plays. Sergeant Kitty proved one of the most satisfactory musical comedy offerings of the present season. Messrs. Turner and Sons deserve credit for their excellent management of the opera house in providing such satisfactory productions.

RUDENESS OF PLAY-GOERS AT CLOSE OF PERFORMANCE MILDLY COMMENTED UPON

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It's "up to" Peterborough play and concert-goers to mend their manners. Last night, while the "Sergeant Kitty" company were singing the National Anthem, great disrespect was exhibited. It seemed to be the game of rudeness while a company of foreign performers were singing "God Save the King," for an audience of British subjects to turn a deaf ear to the prayer and make mad dives into coats and cloaks, and mad rushes for the door. This strikes me to be as bad form as for the guests at a dinner party to rush pell-mell from the table before the mistress of the house gives the customary signal, or, as for a congregation to rush out of a church when the parson is giving the Benediction. It takes only about a minute to sing one stanza of the National Anthem, and surely nobody's time is so precious as to make the saving of a minute an object sufficiently important to justify the rudeness mentioned.

Yours truly,
PLAY-GOER.

THE ENGLISHMEN WERE ENTERTAINED

An Enjoyable Programme Presented at Young Conservative Club Rooms Last Night.

TWO GOOD ADDRESSES

There was a good attendance at the Young Conservative Club rooms last night, when an "Englishmen's night" was given, the programme being of a nature calculated to be of special interest to Englishmen.

The rooms were profusely decorated with flags and bunting. Everything was done up in real old English style.

The proceedings opened with a few words of welcome to the visitors by the chairman, Mr. Wm. Butler. Then followed the following excellent programme, every number of which was admirably rendered and liberally applauded:

Song—Mr. Chandler.
Reading—Mr. Gardiner.
Banjo Solo—Mr. Clark.
Song—Mr. Denham.
Address—Mr. Kenner.
Banjo Solo—Mr. Clark.
Reading—Mr. Burnham.
Song—Mr. Colemen.
Address, "The British Empire"—Rev. Dr. Crothers.
George Street Quartette.

The evening was brought to a close by three rousing cheers for the Mother Country and by the singing of the National Anthem.

The Young Conservative Club intend holding an Irishmen's and a Scotchmen's night before the season is over.

Women Suffer Agonies from Kidney Trouble

GIN PILLS CURE THEM

There is Mrs. Ripley, for instance. She suffered terribly with her back. It ached, ached, ached—all the time. Even in bed, it seemed as if she could not get easy. It finally became so bad that housework was impossible.

She certainly was a discouraged woman when she began to take GIN PILLS. And there isn't a happier, healthier woman in the Dominion than this same Mrs. Ripley to-day.

Williamsdale East, May 9th.

I cannot refrain from writing you the benefits I have received from Gin Pills. Before I had taken Gin Pills I suffered dreadfully with my back, and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried almost everything but got no relief until I got "Gin Pills."

I have taken six boxes and now I have not the sign of a pain or an ache in my back. I am now 43 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing can hold a place with Gin Pills for pains in the back to which women are subject. Yours truly,

MRS. MELLANCE F. RIPLEY.

Mrs. Ripley had serious Kidney Trouble. And the sick kidneys were making her back ache—were giving her those splitting headaches—were sapping her strength—and dragging her down. GIN PILLS really saved her life. GIN PILLS cured her kidneys. She has been well ever since. GIN PILLS are a grand medicine for women.

Try them at our expense. Mention this paper when writing and we will send you a free sample so you can see for yourself just what GIN PILLS will do for you. The Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

BRONCHITIS.

Everybody Knows What It Is—But Everybody Does Not Know What Will Cure It.

MR. McDERMID TELLS THE PEOPLE OF PETERBORO.

Asked one day in his store the question, "What is good for bronchitis?" Mr. McDermid, of the firm of McDermid & Jury, our well-known druggists, answered, "I hear such marvellous results from Vinol all the time that I believe it to be the greatest remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles that we have ever sold in our store. It never disappoints people, and I do like to sell a thing that gives satisfaction. Vinol is cod liver oil medicine without the oil, and wherever old-fashioned cod liver oil preparations will do good, Vinol will do more good, for it is delicious to taste and powerful as a curative agent.

"I wish every person in Peterborough who is overworked, run down, debilitated, every old person, every weak woman, every sufferer with fall colds, bronchitis, or incipient consumption, every nervous, irritable person, or anyone suffering with stomach troubles, would take advantage of my guarantee to refund the money if Vinol does not help them and restore them to health. Please call at our store and learn more about it." McDermid & Jury Vinol is also sold at the Market Drug Store (The Ormond & Walsh Walsh Old Stand).

ABOUT SNOW CLEANING BY-LAW

It Will be Thoroughly Enforced—The City's Position in the Matter.

The Mayor has a grievance these days, inasmuch as there is a good deal of complaint over the snow-cleaning bylaw. He explained the matter this morning, and stated that the bylaw would be enforced. Referring to the statement that the pavement in front of some of the city's property was not cleaned off, the Mayor said that there were only two places where any complaint could be made. The part in front of the fire hall had not been cleaned off because it would not be advisable to do so until the conveyances belonging to the fire department were placed on wheels. As soon as this was done the ice would be cleaned off the pavement in front of the hall. There had been some complaint about the sidewalk at Central Park, but the condition of affairs there would be remedied as soon as the pavements in the business section were clean. The intention in the first place was to have the George street pavement from Charlotte street to Brock cleared off, then to do the business section, and then the principal residential thoroughfares. The Chief of Police had been notified to bring before the Magistrate all who had neglected to clean off their sidewalks after a second warning and special instructions were given to see that the city officials did their part of the work.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, No. 20, Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states: — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what the doctors called varicose ulcers. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very start Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

Fifteen Bass In Old Coal Oil Barrel Made Lake Famous

How a Simple Act of Mr. H. L. Beal's Resulted in Stocking Loon Lake With Finest of Bass--He Owns a Farm on the Shores of Those Waters---Minerals On It---An Interesting Story.

Fifteen black bass taken from Peterborough in an old coal oil barrel eighteen years ago, to Loon Lake, by Mr. H. L. Beal, and deposited in that lake, and resulted in Loon Lake developing into one of the best bass fishing waters in the whole Kawartha chain.

Mr. Beal owns a farm on the shores of the lake, and a number of years ago he conceived the idea that Loon Lake would be a better fishing ground then it was then. There were millions of small fish in the lake, but no bass and on one of his trips north he took the fifteen bass, to which reference has already been made. The result was magical. The small fish gradually disappeared and the bass increased rapidly, until now, when Mr. Beal Beal goes to the lake for the annual fishing trip, he can throw his line out of his bedroom window and catch his breakfast while he is still in his pyjamas.

A story is told of a record catch last summer. An American tourist, who was staying at the lake, went out with a guide, and inside of an hour he had caught 31 fine bass. That number was of course more than the law allows, but there was no one there to peach on him.

Mr. Beal can well claim to have been the man who was instrumental in making Loon Lake the recognized Mecca of fishermen in the north, because prior to the time that he deposited the bass there it was given a wide berth by tourists, whereas at the present time there is perhaps no more popular fishing ground in these waters than that lake.

A summer hotel, for men only, has been built on a corner of Mr. Beal's farm, and it is being frequented each year by a number of Americans, the house being full all the time, and Mr. Kennedy, the proprietor, is, it is understood, making plans to accommodate a larger number of tourists this year than ever before. Inquiries have been received already for rooms from those who were there last year, or who have heard of the success which the men who stayed there have met with.

The farm which Mr. Beal owns on the shores of this lake, was left him by his uncle, who was one of the earliest settlers in that country, taking up land there in the early sixties, and he lived there until he died.

In those days Cavendish was a busy place, lumbering being carried on much more extensively than it is at present, and other lines of activity, made that township a somewhat lively place.

There is said to be considerable mineral deposits on the farm, too, iron having been discovered in many places, though up to the present, it has not been considered valuable, because of the fact that the presence of sulphur made it impossible of smelting but with the introduction of smelting by electricity this will not be considered a disadvantage.

Mr. Beal's farm may yet develop in a valuable possession.

A COPY OF THE SIDEWALK BY-LAW

Is Given Herewith for the Benefit of Those Merchants Who Profess to Be Ignorant Of It.

A bylaw of which the merchants profess to be ignorant, and which they want to be enlightened about, is that which pertains to the obstruction of the sidewalks by boxes, cases, crates, etc. For their benefit, Bylaw No. 1104, as it is known, is given herewith:

"Bylaw No. 1104—A bylaw to amend Bylaw No. 395 of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, passed on the 19th day of June, 1905.

"The Corporation of the city of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, enacts as follows:

"Section 12 of Bylaw No. 395 of the Corporation of the town of Peterborough, passed on the 22nd day of January, 1879, is hereby repealed, and the following substituted therefor:—

"No person shall place or expose any goods, wares or merchandise, or articles of any kind upon or over any street or sidewalk in the town of Peterborough, or place, or hang, or put up any goods, wares or merchandise, or articles of any kind outside of any building so that the same shall project over any portion of a street or sidewalk in the said town; nor shall any person open or allow his employees to open on any street or sidewalk in the said town any box, bale, crate, or other packages of wares, merchandise, or other goods or articles; or place, or allow to be placed, or to remain on any street or sidewalk in the said town any box, crate, bale, case or package of any kind; but this provision shall not be construed to interfere with any person using a portion of such street or sidewalk opposite his premises before the hour of 12 o'clock in the forenoon of any week-day other than Saturday, for opening, emptying or taking in the boxes, bales, crates, cases or other packages in which merchandise or other goods have been sent to him."

HENRY BEST, Mayor.
S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

AND NOW IT IS A CASE OF OBSTRUCTING WALKS

Three Merchants Fined $2 Each—They are Apparently Being Greatly Harassed.

Some of this city's prominent business men appeared at the police court this morning on the charge of obstructing the sidewalk with their packages, etc.

Mr. R. J. Soden was first called. He was charged with having left an express wagon in front of his store on the sidewalk. Chief Roszel said he had warned the boy the day before and the very next day the cart was again in the way of pedestrians.

William Lech was charged with having unpacked two large boxes of goods on the sidewalk in front of his store yesterday. Mr. Lech gave reasons claiming that he should not be punished, stating that the circumstances of opening them were unavoidable. A Peterborough Fuel and cartage dray had brought the goods to the store in the afternoon, and the box was emptied and put away within 45 minutes.

Grafton & Co. were arraigned on a similar charge. The latter store has no back entrance and the firm has to unpack a great deal on the sidewalk.

Magistrate Dumble stated that the town had drawn up the clauses of the bylaw and it was his duty to see that it was enforced. It was, impossible, he said that he should draw any nice distinctions. He fined each of the merchants $2.00, to be paid in ten days.

The other case with which the Magistrate had to deal was a fight which occurred between two employees of a local manufacturing concern. The charge was dismissed.

City Does Not Want To Lose The Big Industry

What the Toronto Star Says in Reference to the Visit of the Peterborough Deputation to the Private Bills Committee.

The Toronto Star, of last night had a somewhat highly coloured report of the Peterborough deputation's visit the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature. The Star says:—

Peterborough people are fearful that their pet industry, the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, may move to the Canadian Foundry Company district, just north of the City of Toronto. Both these industries are controlled by the same interests. As a string on the Canadian General Electric, the Peterborough bill, which was discussed at the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature this morning, provided that the assessment of the company should be fixed for twenty years from the first day of January, 1911, at $150,000. Until that date the company pays taxes on an assessment of only $100,000.

Hon. Mr. Beck: "What is the value of the premises? What would they be assessed at if they had no exemption?"

Mayor McWilliams didn't know exactly. Somebody suggested about a million dollars. The Mayor believed it was hardly that amount. He said that the Peterborough council were afraid that the attractive offers from York township, Windsor and other places, might induce them to consider the advisability of moving.

Mr. Beck said that it was a wrong principle to fix an assessment for such a long period as twenty years. In that period the company's plant, etc., might become worth millions of dollars and the city would still be accepting taxes on merely $150,000.

"The tax rate of Peterborough now may be less than 18 mills," said Mr. Beck; "but at the end of 20 years it may be a great deal more. We should not impose a burden on future generations."

Mr. Downey of North Wellington, moved that the assessment of the Canadian General Electric Company be fixed at $150,000 for ten years only, and pay school taxes on the full assessable value of the property. This was acceptable to the committee and passed on favourably.

"Wonder who does pay taxes in Peterborough, a byway!" queried a member of the committee.

Arrived on Wednesday and Thursday and are Just the Harbinger of What are Yet to Come

Added to the usual number of immigrants, who travel on almost every train going west, are two more train loads that passed through the city, one yesterday and one the day before. They came directly from Halifax, their destination being Toronto, where they will be distributed throughout the land. About twenty or thirty detrained at Peterborough, and will no doubt add to the prosperity that is being experienced in Canada. They were mostly young Englishmen who have come here with the expectation of making a fortune in the Dominion.

TRUANT OFFICER AFTER INDIFFERENT PUPILS

About Fifty Homes Already Visited—Looking for Negligent Children.

Truant officer George Cochrane was out on another expedition this morning and visited some families where the children have been neglecting to appear regularly at the educational institutions. A number of round ups were made and instructions given to have the children sent to school.

Mr. Cochrane has already visited fifty homes in the city in his official capacity since he accepted the office and a noticeable difference has been made in the number attending to their educational duties.

FIFTY DOLLARS IN HIS POCKET BUT THOUGHT BROTHER HAD IT

There are times when people blame others, without any evidence, of doing something against them, and even go to law over it, and afterwards when they discover their mistake they wish to rectify it, when it is too late.

A young man came into the police station some time ago, and said he wanted a warrant for the arrest of his brother, whom he said, had stolen $50 from him. The evidence against the brother was not the strongest, but the first mentioned wanted him arrested just the same.

In the meantime the second brother had made arrangements to go to a lumber camp to work, and, without knowing that his brother had laid the accusation, he started for the bush with a number of others.

Next the police endeavoured to intercept him, and wired to one of the northern villages to stop him. The message was received but when the constable went to arrest brother No. 2 he was just one half hour late. He did not take any further steps at the time and wired to Peterborough telling the chief that the man had passed. Shortly after before a new order was made the first brother returned to the station and asked the chief to drop the case. He had put on an old suit and in one of the pockets he had found the missing fifty dollars. The chief of course allowed the case to end, as it did, and, as the Magistrate advised, he threw the papers into the waste-paper basket.

It was fortunate that the second brother was not stopped, as he may never know now of his brother's weakness in desiring his arrest.

CONSERVATORY CONCERT ON EASTER MONDAY

Will be Given Under the Auspices of the Charlotte Street Young Men's Guild.

The Peterborough Conservatory of Music concert, which was to have been given in the Grand Opera House on Easter Monday night, will be given in the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School rooms, in view of the fact that the Opera House has a show booked for that night, which cannot be changed. The concert will be given under the auspices of the Young Men's Guild, and among those who will contribute to the programme are Miss Adamson and Mr. Henri Loutz.

Popular Cure For Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine constantly at hand for use in case of emergency.

MR. JOHN H. GARBUTT BUYS VERY FINE BULL

From the Stock Farm of Mr. Samuel Johnston Near Myrtle.

The farmers of the surrounding country are continually improving the quality of their cattle by importing breeders from the best stock farms. Mr. John Henry Garbutt has purchased a young short-horn bull from Mr. Samuel Johnston, of Myrtle. Mr. Johnston is the proprietor of an excellent stock farm, and the breed of this bull is of the best.

Mr. Garbutt lives in Smith, about four miles from this city. He purchased the bull two weeks ago, but did not receive it at his home until yesterday. It is for breeding purposes and will undoubtedly be appreciated by the lovers of premier quality cattle.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS,—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Mrs. Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

SURPRISE
A PURE HARD SOAP.

HOUSE WORK.

IT is easy to keep a hard-wood floor as clean and shiny as a mirror by using "SURPRISE" Soap. You can make a suds in a twinkling with half a bucket of hot water and a little "SURPRISE" Soap. Then just go over the floor with a scrubbing-brush, lightly.

Don't dig, or make your back and arms ache by rubbing. "SURPRISE" Soap will do the work quicker and easier and cheaper than you can. It gets between the dirt and the wood fibres and makes them separate. All you have to do is wash up the dirt with water.

"SURPRISE" Soap is just as good for laundry as for house cleaning. It's a pure, hard soap of the highest grade, and costs no more than common kinds.

GREAT FLOODS SWEEP SMOKY CITY

Rise of Rivers Does Serious Damage At Pittsburg.

FOURTEEN ARE DROWNED

Many Towns Are Threatened—Waters Are Swollen All Over Western Pennsylvania—Hundreds Driven From Their Homes—Telephone Service Destroyed—Ice Gorge Broken—Enormous Losses Reported.

Pittsburg, March 15.—The greatest flood in the history of Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio, was experienced last night. At 7 o'clock the water reached a stage of 34.6 feet at Herr's Island, and 34.3 feet at Market street. The waters continue to rise steadily about two-tenths of an inch an hour.

At the head waters, the rivers are stationary. This crest of the flood is expected here. About midnight 35 feet was recorded, 13 feet above the danger mark.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the 30 miles ice gorge at Parker, Pa., broke, and it is moving toward the city. The immense gorge in the Clarion River also had started down stream. Both gorges, however, are old and the ice is soft. On this account their arrival is not expected to cause much damage.

The whole lower down-town district is under skiffs.

At the depot were thousands of people, a chaotic mass of humanity shouting and pushing in their effort to board these trains for Allegheny or the many suburbs adjacent to the city. Patrolmen in large numbers endeavored to bring some kind of order out of the situation, but without avail.

Trolley, elevator and telephone service was demoralized in different sections. Electric light plants in many downtown buildings were out of commission and candles or gas light was being used.

Fourteen Dead Already.

Within the last 36 hours, fourteen fatalities, directly due to the flood, have occurred.

The damage to perishable goods and property in the Pittsburg district alone will amount to $1,000,000.

At Connellsville, Pa., the damage to the coke region is estimated last night at $2,000,000.

More than 100,000 persons are temporarily out of employment. The flood directly affects over 2,500,000 people.

All railroads entering Pittsburg are crippled.

In the suburbs of Aspinwall, Sharpsburg, Etna and Millvalle, more than 500 families are living in the second storeys of their homes.

Hundreds of persons are marooned in Pittsburg. Restaurants have been besieged all evening by persons unable to reach their homes, and every room in the hotels and boarding-houses have been engaged. There are not sufficient accommodations to take care of the people compelled to remain here.

VICTORY FOR CURZON.

Former Viceroy of India Elected Chancellor of Oxford University.

London, March 15.—Lord Curzon of Keddleston, former viceroy of India, was elected chancellor of Oxford University yesterday by 1,111 votes against 430 cast for Lord Rosebery.

Hitherto in the history of the university, chancellors had always been chosen without a contest. Although much influential pressure was exerted to persuade Lord Rosebery to accept the nomination, there was some adverse criticism of his acceptance in the face of the almost certain election of Lord Curzon, who is a Conservative, on the ground that it gave the contest a political aspect, Lord Rosebery being a Liberal.

The polling was held in the Sheldonian Theatre last evening, and a constant succession of trains brought eminent voters from all parts of the country, peers, members of the House of Commons, archbishops, bishops and other men who had attained prominence in all professions, the contest exciting the keenest interest.

YOUNG BRIDE SUICIDES.

Takes Poison Rather Than Continue to Bear Disgrace.

Fredericton, N.B., March 14.—Mrs. R. E. Black, of this city, a bride of a fortnight, committed suicide yesterday by drinking carbolic acid. Her husband is a drygoods merchant here, and she herself was prominent in social church circles.

This tragedy is the end of a sad and unfortunate love affair. For eight years Black and Miss Minnie Blackmer were betrothed, and a few months ago the engagement was broken by Black, after he had betrayed the young woman.

Miss Blackmer has brothers, and when they learned the state of affairs they forced Black to marry her. The ceremony was quietly performed a couple of weeks ago, but the disgrace has so preyed upon the young woman's mind that twice she tried to kill herself. Her body was found lying across that of her infant, which she apparently had tried to smother.

TRIBUTE TO DAVIS.

U. S. Admiral Is Cheered In British House of Commons.

London, March 15.—The incident involving Governor Swettenham of Jamaica and Rear-Admiral Davis, U. S. N., at the time of the Kingston earthquake, was brought up in the House of Commons yesterday in a hypothetical question by Jesse Collings, Liberal-Unionist, member for the Berdesley division of Birmingham, who was in Kingston at the time of the disaster.

The question brought out from Foreign Secretary Grey a hearty tribute to the American admiral.

Mr. Collings asked if it was in accordance with international law and international etiquette for an admiral of a foreign country to land an armed force in a British colony without the permission of the governor. The Foreign Secretary, in reply, said:

"No, and I may add that no such rights were claimed in the incident referred to. What I am convinced of is that while, in the presence of such a catastrophe, there was a certain amount of misunderstanding, the American admiral was inspired by single-minded motives and a desire to relieve suffering. Any other construction placed on his action is most unworthy and untrue."

Mr. Collings then asked if the fact did not demand that, in opposition to the governor, armed troops were landed when there was no cause or warrant for such action, but the Foreign Secretary said:

"According to my information, the questions conveys a statement, which is not borne out by facts."

The Foreign Secretary's tribute to Rear-Admiral Davis was heartily cheered.

Britain Being Robbed.

London, March 15.—(C. A. P.)—The Illustrated London News says that Canada's excellent land and enterprising advertisements will doubtless tend still further to diminish Great Britain's agricultural population, and after a time leave nothing at home but the very young, very old, or very stupid and unenterprising sections of the rural dwellers.

"Hello! Hello!! Oh! Yes!!!"

"I should say so! Everyone who tries it says there's nothing like St. George's."

"I know—but wouldn't you rather get a Baking-Powder you are sure is good?"

"St. George's is really less expensive—it goes farther and does better work—and never wastes flour in failures."

"No, indeed! There's not an atom of adulteration in St. George's Baking Powder—and the Cream of Tartar is 100% pure."

"Never! It makes the biscuits deliciously light."

"Yes, yes! Just try St. George's on my recommendation—if they're not good, I'll eat them all myself—at one sitting."

"Yes—the manufacturers guarantee it—and I guarantee it too."

"Certainly! Money back, if it's not just as I say it is."

"Thank you. I'll send it right away."

"One more customer for St. George's! Any one who tries it once always buys it afterward."

Press Team Tied For Second Time This Season

Examiner Held Lindsay Post Team Down to Draw Game on Lindsay Ice—Score Was 4 All at the Finish—Game Was Fast and Cleanly Fought.

The great Examiner team is still undefeated. Last night they played the return game with the Lindsay Post outfit on Lindsay ice, and the score was once more a tie, each team having four goals to their credit when the final gong sounded. The game here on Tuesday night was a tie, three goals each, so that honours were even on the round. Owing to the fact that some of the Examiner men had to catch the last train for Peterborough, it was impossible to play extra time, and so the question as to which is the better team will have to be left over until another season.

The result was a surprise to the Lindsay team. After holding the Examiner down to a tie on Peterborough ice, they figured on winning out by a comfortable margin. But it was not to be.

The game was very similar to the contest between the two team here and was warmly but cleanly fought out. The best of good feeling was in evidence, both on and off the ice. Penalties were few and far between and Referee Artie Parkins had an easy time in preserving law and order.

There was little to choose between the teams. The Examiner had a little the better of the argument in the first half, leading at the turn by two goals to one. The Post team, however, waded in and scored two in a row, putting them in the lead. The Examiner came back with two more, and with two minutes to play were one goal to the good. The Lindsay forward line got away nicely, however, and landed another counter, tieing up the two teams for this second time this season.

About two hundred people saw the game, which was a good exhibition, considering the condition of the ice. The players went at it with a will, and the play was of the see-saw variety, with neither team having much on the other. Both goals were never long out of danger, and the play was always exciting, as neither team was ever more than one goal ahead at any time. The hockey was considerably faster than the game here, both teams going at top speed throughout.

The Lindsay forward line showed more combination and shot better than the Examiner's advance guard, but this was more than neutralized by their checking and the great work of Glover and Clarke on the defence. Glover was easily the star of the game, and was invaluable to the Examiner team both on the defence and on the attack. He scored two of the goals, and the Lindsay forwards found him a stone wall at cover point. Clarke was a stumbling block to many a well-meant attack and relieved on numerous occasions. All the forwards played well, checking back splendidly and rushing in great fashion. Hutchinson did great work at rover, making some fast rushes, while Theobald and Henry were always prominent and effective. Huston's checking was a feature, and there was no one getting away from him much. Craig, in goal, was unpolitely indifferent to the desires of the opposing team to place the puck in his nets. "You can't play in my back yard" was his motto, with four exceptions.

The Post team, the majority of whom are city league men, played great hockey but the checking of the Examiner kept them from getting away with the game, although they worked hard. Nesbitt at rover, and "Slats" Reilly at right, were the pick of the forwards, but the others were not far behind them. The four united well and shot splendidly. The defence, especially Johnston, checked in effective fashion.

Artie Parkins, the well-known Lindsay hockey man refereed the game and gave every satisfaction, being strict and impartial. The penalties were very few, Clarke and Hutchinson being off for the Examiner, while Irwin decorated the boards for the Post.

The teams lined up as follows:

Lindsay. Post.		Peterborough Examiner.
Bergenaw.	Goal.	Craig.
McDonald.	Point.	Clarke.
Johnston.	Cover.	Glover.
Nesbitt.	Point.	Hutchinson.
Irwin.	Centre.	Henry.
Reilly.	Right wing.	Huston.

Summary:

1 Examiner, Glover.
2 Post, Reilly.
3 Examiner, Theobald.
Half time.
4 Post, Reilly.
5 Post, Nesbitt.
6 Examiner, Theobald.
7 Examiner, Glover.
8 Post, Reilly.

Too much cannot be said of the manner in which the Examiner team was treated by the Post seven, and the citizens of Lindsay generally. Every score made by the Examiner was as heartily cheered as if made by the home team. The Post team and supporters are a fine bunch of fellows and the visiting team were never better used in their lives, and their visit to Lindsay was an event which will long be remembered.

A very enjoyable banquet was tendered the visitors by the Post team in the Royal Hotel, and a very pleasant time was spent. Mine Host McConnell had prepared a very tempting repast and full justice was done to the appetizing viands provided. The prevalent note of the gathering was good fellowship. Many speeches were made and a toast list honoured. Speeches were made by Messrs. Nesbitt and Reilly of the Post team, Referee Parkins and Messrs. Clarke, Theobald, Cranfield, Huston and other members of the Examiner staff.

HOCKEY

Apropos of the hockey games with the Lindsay press team, the Examiner hockey seven have an unique claim to the title "invincible." The Review team can't beat them, and the Lindsay team can't beat them, and, by the way, they can't beat the Lindsay team. Two tie games are a precedent. How to break the tie? Death is the usual means to break the marriage tie, and it seems that one of the press teams will have to be killed to decide the winner. This could easily be done by playing a game with the Victorias of Ottawa.

* * * *

The game between the Midgets and the Strathconas called for tonight is off. The Lindsay bunch found it impossible to get a team together, so that people who were anxious to see the renowned juniors in action will be deprived of the opportunity.

* * * *

The Bridgenorth team will likely play one of the local manufacturing or business teams here on Tuesday night. The Chemong Lake boys are desirous of having a game on the Brock street rink before the season closes.

BASKETBALL

Those who intend to participate in the basketball games now being arranged for the spring season at the Y.M.C.A., are reminded that the list will be open at the association rooms until to-morrow, and they are asked to sign their names.

SUFFERED EIGHT YEARS FROM KIDNEYS

Doctor's said Female Trouble.

Mrs. Charles Lewis, Collingwood, Ont., writes: "For eight years I suffered from Kidney Complaint, and until twelve months ago doctors' said I was suffering from 'Female Trouble.' Last November (1905), I was seriously ill, resulting I believe from kidney trouble. Finding doctor's medicine doing me no good, I persuaded my husband to purchase a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, after having read of a case somewhat resembling mine. I commenced taking them according to directions (not taking the doctor's medicine), and on second day a swelling commenced in my feet, legs and body. The following day I was so changed and swollen my husband, in alarm, hastened to Mr. Johnson's drug store, who told him to tell me he thought the pills were drawing something out of the blood, and to keep on taking them. I did so and after taking them a week, the swelling disappeared leaving me with a complexion free from pimples, tired, weary feeling gone, constipation, from which I suffered for years, gone, pain in the back, gone, and a general feeling of joy and light heartedness, I have not felt since a child, took place in me.

My sister-in-law (Mrs. Bryan), seeing the action of Doan's Kidney Pills, and the change for good they accomplished in me, sent for a box and they completely cured her. When there is an opportunity of telling people what Doan's Kidney Pills did for us, we always take advantage of it, and tell them to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

GOOD ADDRESSES AT THE INSTITUTE

Interesting Evening Session of Sunday School Institute Last Night in St. Andrew's Church—The Addresses

A PROFITABLE EVENING.

The evening session of the Presbyterian Teacher's Institute, held in St. Andrew's church yesterday was most profitable and encouraging, in every way. Although the roads outside the city were very bad, there were representatives from Lakefield, Keene, Warsaw and Monaghan. The city schools were well represented, some fifty being in attendance last night. The Institute work is of a more practical character than the ordinary Sunday School Convention, inasmuch as all are free at any time to take part by offering suggestions from actual teaching experience.

After devotional exercises the following topics were discussed:—

1 Memorization of Scripture and Catechism.
2 The attendance of scolars at the services of the church.
3 The value of the Home Department, or Bible study extension.
4 The importance of the cradle roll department.
5 The value of the Teacher Training Course.
6 The many encouragements in Sunday School work make discouragements impossible.

These subjects were dealt with in a very lucid and helpful manner by the Rev. J. C. Robertson, B.D., and the Rev. Alexander MacGillivray, M. A., alternately. An opportunity was given at the close of each outline for discussion, so that there was not one dull moment.

At the conclusion of the conference the Rev. Dr. Torrance moved a resolution of thanks to the visitors. This was seconded by Mr. Wm. Fowler, and carried by a very hearty vote.

The Rev. Messrs. Robertson and MacGillivray left this morning for Campbellford where the third of the series of institutes will be held this afternoon and night.

GAVE LECTURE TO COLLEGE STUDENTS

Mr. D. W. Dumble Talks to Students in Business College on Contracts, Promissory Notes and Leases.

A feature of the session of the Peterborough Business College yesterday afternoon was a lecture given by Mr. D. Dumble, who gave the class of about one hundred pupils a most interesting talk on general topicsm dealing especially with contracts, promissory notes and leases, and gave the class a great deal of very useful information.

At the conclusion of his lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Dumble, moved by Mr. R. McKee and seconded by Mr. Melville McCarroll.

SUMMER RESIDENTS GOING TO THE WEST

Within the next two weeks Dummer township will have sent a large number of its inhabitants to the Canadian West. On Monday Messrs. Melville Hunter, Allan Crowe, Jack Moore, J. A. Carreth, W. J. Many Emmigrant Trains Pass Through Havelock

C. P. R. Carrying Numbers of New Settlers to the West—Revival Services Still Continue to Interest the People—Peterboro' Preacher Conducted Lenten Service.

Examiner Special.

Havelock, March 15.—Mrs. Stanley Barlow, who has been in town for the last week, returned to her home in Guelph.

Mrs. Alex Rose, and daughter, Bessie, left on Tuesday afternoon for Toronto where they intend to spend the next two weeks.

Mr. Wm. Culligan returned home Wednesday, after a holiday trip to Toronto and other points.

Mrs Brean and Miss Louise Smith, of Norwood, were in town on Tuesday.

We are sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. Dr. Holdcroft.

Emmigrant trains pass through here daily, loaded with passengers bound for Toronto and other points west.

Miss Barrett left on Monday for Toronto, where she will remain for an undimited time.

Miss Jennie Weese, of Toronto, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. H. Weese.

H. T. Andrews, auctioneer, sold Robt. Buchanan's farm stock and implements by auction yesterday.

On one of the immigrant trains which passed through here on Thursday morning, three of the passengers thinking the place looked pretty good to them, gathered up their baggage and decided to remain in the town.

Lenten service was held in St. John's church on Wednesday night, March 13th. Rev. Mr. Caplan was assisted by Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, of Peterborough, who preached a very interesting sermon, being based on "The Judgment Day."

Mr. Robt. Fairburn left Tuesday night with a carload of horses for Weyburn, N.W.T., where he intends to remain for the summer.

Mr. Frost, who has been running an open air skating rink this winter has decided to close for the season.

The millinery are all busy preparing for their spring and summer millinery openings. Miss Eva O'Brien has been engaged by the Misses McWilliams for the season.

Mr. and Miss Devlin, of Egansville, are in town for a few days, guests of their sister, Mrs. Steve O'Hara.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. John's church met at the Rectory on Wednesday afternoon for their weekly meeting.

Meetings are still being held at the old school house, and large crowds gather to hear these men speak. They seem to be an ecular sort of being, as they will not accept any money from the people. They work all day and hold service in the evenings. It is not money they are seeking, but their one effort seems to be to bring people into closer relationship with God.

St. John's church has again secured Mr. David Hogg as caretaker for the church.

Rev. Mr. Burns, of Hastings, and Rev. Mr. Caplan, of town, will exchange services on Sunday next.

Mrs. Elias Lytle, of Belmont, died on Saturday last. She was only 32 years of age, death resulting from an attack of pneumonia. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon to Maple Grove Cemetery.

Mr. J. Cole, who is employed on the C.P.R. at Kenora is visiting his family.

Mr. Fred Milne, of Toronto, formerly of town, is the guest of Mr. Leonard Bennett.

On Monday of next week Messrs. Justus and Harry A. Alley, of Rush Point, leave for Ashville, Man., where they have purchased improved homesteads, and where they will reside in future. They have disposed of their property in Belmont, Chandos, and Methuen with the exception of the homestead and another small tract of land, which have been rented by Mr. Allen Copperwaithe. The many friends of Messrs. Alley, wish them every success in their new home in the West.

Canadian Honoured By Czar Of All The Russias

Mr. J. A. L. Waddell, a Native of Cobourg and Well Known in Peterborough, Decorated in Recognition of His Services in Alaska--Siberian Railway Project--Joins the Royal Society Founded by Grand Duchess Olga.

The following article from the Kansas City Times, refers to a gentleman well known to many in Peterborough, where he has realtives and friends. The Mr. Waddell mentioned, who is a Canadian, and is another instance of the way in which Canadians forge to the front by virtue of abillty and qualities of character, is a son of the late Sheriff Waddell, of Cobourg. The article reads:

The Czar of Russia is a pretty busy man these days; and if reports are true about the way things are going to the bad in his country he's a pretty much worried man, too. Nevertheless, he found time the other day to send a little note to J. A. L. Waddell, the bridge engineer of Kansas City. Nicholas had his sister, Her Imperial Highness, the Grand Duchess Olga, put in a few lines, too, just by way of additional honour for the Kansas City man. And the Count Loicq de Lobel sent a few remarks. The whole thing was stamped with the seal of the Russian Government. Mr. Waddell received it yesterday.

The letters are in French. In the language of diplomacy, and French diplomacy, too, they are very polite, of course and say a lot of nice things about Mr. Waddell. Chiefly, however, they told him he had been elected a member of the Society of Benefices, because of his services in connection with preparing the plans for the Trans-Alaska-Siberian Railway. The society is a royal organization, the Grand Duchess Olga founded it, and the count, who is the chief promoter of the new railway, is a member.

Thank You, Says the Duchess

The count's communication said he had been given the privilege of sending the decoration of the society to Mr. Waddell and it would follow the notification. He also said the special note of appreciation from the Grand Duchess in her own writing, had been given to none other of the 25 members of the society. It was a special signification of friendship, he said, between Russia and the United States.

"Please accept, sir, the expression of my thankful sentiments," was the brief note of the Grand Duchess.

"I had known they intended to make me a member of the society," said Mr. Waddell yesterday, "but I hadn't any immediate knowledge of the plans. It is a great privilege to be a member of that society. I saw the decoration worn by Count Locq de Lobal last autumn in New York city and it's a handsome one. I'll prize mine very much."

A Decoration By Japan, Too

Eighteen years ago, following Mr. Waddell's four years of teaching in the Imperial University of Tokio, in Japan, the Japanese Government, through the Mikado, created him a "Knight Commander of the Rising Sun." A beautiful decoration, studded with jewels, was given to him on account of his services as a teacher and because he introduced the American system of bridge-building that aided Japan in the war with China. The title of knight made him one of the Japanese nobility.

Two years ago Mr. Waddell was made vice-president and principal engineer of the Trans-Alaska-Siberian Railway, which proposed to build a Railway from Cape Prince of Wales through Alaska, tunnel under Bering strait to Siberia and connect with the Trans-Siberian Railway at Kansk. Count Loicq de Lobel has furnished most of the funds.

Following the war between Russia and Japan the Grand Duchess Olga organized a royal society whose members are chosen because of their works benefitting Russia and the Russians.

MARRIED

RUTHERFORD — PARCELS — In Belmont, on Monday, March 6, 1907, by the Rev. J. H. Locke, Miss Sarah Jane Parcels, daughter of Mr. Rice Parcels, of Belmont, to Mr. James Rutherford, of Allen's Creek, Man.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich, and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

WEDDING RECEPTION AT PIPESTONE, MAN.

Young Couple, Former Residents of Peterborough County, Honoured by Their Friends After Marriage.

The Pipestone, Manitoba Sittings, in a recent issue, contained the following item, which will be read with interest by the many friends of the persons referred to, in this county:

A very pretty wedding reception was a scene at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Robertson, of Belsa's district, given in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Robertson. After many congratulations and best wishes, a large number of friends sat down to a sumptuous repast, and after supper, games and music formed the programme of the evening, closing with a speech by Rev. Mr. Bowman.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson received many beautiful and costly presents. They will make their home in the Hudson district.

This week the Port Hope Knitting Works will place on sale two cases of extra quality Men's Black Cashmere Socks, regular price 35c., for 25c. See them early.

ONE ANIMAL WEIGHED OVER 2000 POUNDS

Three Select Bulls on the Market This Morning—Much Admired by the Bystanders.

Market frequenters saw this morning three of the finest bulls that have ever been weighed on the city scales. The lightest of the three was fed by Mr. Harry Brown, of North Monaghan, and weighed 1,780 lbs. The second, fed by Mr. Robert Deyell, of Otonabee, weighed 1,810 lbs., but these were both eclipsed by a stawart animal and the weightiest of the three which tipped the scales at 50 lbs over the ton mark.

It was raised by Mr. John Buckham, of South Monaghan, and was certainly one of the finest looking and one of the largest bulls that ever stepped upon the market scales.

The three animals were purchased by Morris & Brown and will be shipped to Montreal.

SPRING ERUPTIONS

3 CHILDREN WHO WERE COVERED WITH SORES

Wonderful Zam-Buk Triumph!

Every mother knows with what rapidity sores, ringworm, ulcers, etc., spread from child to child. In Montreal recently most of the public schools were visited by an epidemic of itch in this way. A child is afflicted with scalp sores, itch or ringworm. In the course of play, one child puts on another's hat. In this way, or in a hundred and one more which children make possible, the infection spreads and sometimes a whole family is affected. Mr. J. C. Bates, of Burk's Falls says:—"My three children were all broken out with sores on face, hands and feet. Their condition was pitiable; and although I tried various ointments and salves the sores continued to spread.

"One day I saw a report telling how beneficial Zam-Buk was for skin diseases, ulcers, etc. I got a supply of the balm and applied it to the children's sores. Almost immediately they got relief, and the sores began to heal. Although the skin disease had defied all the salves I had previously tried, in one week Zam-Buk overcame the trouble, and to-day the children have not a pimple or spot or mark of disease on their skin. For this grand result I have Zam-Buk to thank."

READ WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES

Zam-Buk heal all skin diseases—eczema, scaly sores, ulcers, ringworm, poisoned wounds, barbers' rash, pustules, face blemishes due to blood poison, good also for rheumatism and neuralgia. It heals cuts and lacerations, stops bleeding, cures piles, cures fistula, reduces enlarged veins. It cures burns and scalds, and it is an excellent "first aid" remedy. It is highly antiseptic. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or from ZAM-BUK CO., TORONTO, for price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE WITH CHIEF

Staff Capt. Wiggins Returns After Spending a Week in Toronto With General Booth.

Staff-Capt. Wiggins in command of the local Salvation Army corps in Peterborough, returned Friday from a three days' visit to Toronto, whither he went to assist in the welcome to General Booth, and participate in the conferences held in the city. He reports the occasion as very successful in bringing the work and objects of the Army into prominence and eliciting more general public sympathy with the great work it is doing and aims to do. General Booth was not exclusive nor restricted in his relations with various influences. From an interview with the Provincial Government he would go to an interview with 400 inmates of the Central Prison and from there invade the intellectual atmosphere of the Canadian Club.

General Booth leaves Toronto for Montreal to-night and his send-off will be as hearty as his reception. A procession of 2,000 torches will escort him to the Union Station.

From Montreal he will go to Ottawa, where he will, in the interests of the Army, have an interview with the Dominion Government.

On leaving Ottawa he will go west via Winnipeg to British Columbia. From there he will cross the Pacific to Japan and China. He will come home by way of India and on his return, though he will have circumnavigated the globe in an arduous mission, he will at once set out on an inspection and organization tour in Great Britain.

PRIESTS ROUT TWO ROBBERS

Pistol Duel Takes Place in Edifice of Immaculate Conception, N.J.

New York, March 15th. — A battle with revolvers between Rev. Father Atterbein and his assistants on one side, and two burglars on the other, occurred in the church of the Immaculate Conception in Melrose avenue, Bronx borough, before daylight this morning. Although several shots were fired no one was injured and the burglars escaped without booty.

The two burglars entered the church through a window and collected together several valuable crosses and crowns from the statues. They then attempted to open the door leading into the tabernacle. This rang an alarm in the rector's residence. Father Atterbein sent two of his priests to the rear of the church, and he with another entered by the front door.

The priests were armed with revolvers, and when the rector's assistants discovered one of the burglars in the dim light of the altar light he fired at him. The burglar returned the shot quickly and the shooting became general, the priests and burglars firing at the flashes of the revolvers of the other party.

At the first shot the two priests in the rear of the church sounded police whistles, which brought two policemen. They joined in the battle, while a crowd of belated pedestrians gathered outside. In the midst of the firing the burglars crawled out of the window by which they had gained entrance and slipped away having obtained nothing. The interior of the church was marked by many bullets.

WANT STORES CLOSED SATURDAY AT 10 P. M.

There is a movement in Millbrook instituted by the clergy to have the places of business closed at 10 p.m. on Saturday nights, instead of keeping open till midnight, and, too often, it is said, on into the day of rest. The petition was quite largely signed and will come before the council at an early date. We understand that there is a counter petition to remain as we were. Many who signed the first, on further consideration, we hear, are thinking 10 o'clock too early.

Sympathy Is Expressed For Peterboro' Bachelors

London Advertiser Points Out That Bachelors Are Not Such Selfish Class as They Are Sometimes Represented —Some Pertinent Facts.

The proposal to institute a tax on the bachelor section of the community, as outlined by Ald. Tovey seems to have created a deep interest in a subject that is not altogether new, in other parts of the province. The London Advertiser, in a recent issue dealt with it editorially as follows:—

A Peterborough alderman has acquired fame by suggesting a novel proposition as a means of relieving that city from a financial position that is declared to be quite alarming. His scheme, briefly stated, is that a tax be imposed upon bachelors. Arguing, possibly, on the principle that luxuries cannot be too highly taxed, the alderman in question proposes that the impost be made a heavy one, ranging from $20 to $120 a year, the higher figure for bachelors between the ages of 30 and 35 years, and the lower one for hardened old chaps between 50 and 60. At the latter age, when the victim must be considered as beyond all hope of redemption, the tax would cease.

The idea is one that will no doubt find favour amongst all classes of society except the bachelors themselves; indeed, it would not be difficult to find those who would be in favour of the bachelors paying all the taxes or for that matter, even liquidating the national debt. The result of the adoption of such a policy is not hard to foresee, however. It would have the effect of causing a stampede amongst the celebates, driving some out of the country, and those whose affairs compelled them to remain in the land of martyrdom into the ranks of the benedicts. There is reason to suspect that it is really this latter the Peterborough alderman aims at, for his scheme makes the tax a monthly one, evidently to enable the bachelor to change his state at short notice.

Peterborough, however, is not the only place in which persecution of the bachelor is being attempted. In New York a crusade along different lines, but evidently with the same object in view, has been started by certain women's clubs, with the assistance of no less a personage than ex-President Grover Cleveland. These crusaders evidently regard matrimony as a one-sided affair, in which men can do as they please and women are merely acquiescent. Mr. Cleveland proposes to solve the women suffrage problem by denying bachelors the right to vote, possibly on the theory that married men's votes are dictated by their wives, and that with bachelors disfranchised there would be practically woman suffrage, the men acting only as proxies. The main thing necessary now-a-days to qualify a man for matrimony, after he has satisfied himself that, like Barkis, he is "willin'," seems to be that either he must have a sufficient income which he has not earned and enough sense to keep hold of it, or he must be competent at something which brings him in a sufficient surplus over his own living expenses. Of course, many men get married without these necessary qualifications. Some of them pull through all right and get as much enjoyment out of life as could be expected; but how many make a mess of it? It is the experience of these latter that makes many a bachelor shirk from taking what he calls "the plunge." On the other hand, there are bachelors who possess the aforesaid qualifications, yet appear to be satisfied to remain as they are. The problem, "Why do so many men remain single?" has ever a problem and will, no doubt, remain so till the end of time. It is certain that neither the wisdom of the Peterborough sage nor the crusades of New York social reformers will solve it.

Sherbrooke And This City Look Like Twins

Mr. I. S. Knapman Tells of Some Incidents of His Trip to Eastern Canada---Ottawa Needs More Hotels.

GUESTS SLEEPING ON COTS

Examiner Special

"Sherbrooke looks more like Peterborough than any other city I have ever been in," remarked Mr. Knapman this morning. He spent a few hours in the city on his way back from the East, where he went on Monday morning. Mr. Knapman was several hundred miles east of Sherbrooke buying poles for the Bell Telephone Co., and stopped off a day in that city, which impressed him very favourably. It has a population of about 14,000, and gives one the impression that it is a live, progressive city, which it undoubtedly is.

For a small city, the hotels in Sherbrooke are particularly good, four large, well-conducted hotels catering to the travelling public.

In this respect, this city compares with Ottawa, very much to the discredit of the latter. Mr. Knapman spent a day in Ottawa, and stated that every night scores of travelers apply at the hotels for accommodation in vain. The new G.T.R. hotel will no doubt relieve matters to a certain extent, but in the meantime the public has to suffer.

Stolen Goods From The Havelock Store Recovered

Slippery Youth Suspected of the Theft of Goods From F. C. McMaster's Store Eluded the Constable and Left Town---Detective Engaged.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED.

Havelock, March 15.—On Monday afternoon Mr. F. C. McMaster recovered the greater portion of the goods stolen from his store on the morning of the 2nd inst. The goods were found in a corner of a stump fence at the northeast end of the town by Mr. Flood, an employee of Mr. McMaster, through information secured from some party as yet unknown to the authorities. Two arrests were made on Monday, but the youth upon whom suspicion rested the strongest, eluded Constable Graham by escaping from the back door as the officer entered the front door. Shortly afterward he was seen to leave town in company with another lad, and the whereabouts of the two is as yet unknown, although there is no apparent reason why the latter should run away. One of the youths arrested knew nothing of the robbery, and was released shortly afterward, and the other was held until Tuesday morning, when he also was released, no evidence being forthcoming to connect him with the case. The services of a detective have been engaged on the case, and interesting developments will probably take place in a few days.

AFTERMATH OF THE FIRE IN IROQUOIS THEATRE

Judge Kimbrough Knocks Out Prosecution for Iroquois Theatre Fire

Danville, Ill., March 15. — Judge Kimbrough this afternoon decided that the Chicago ordinance on which was based the trial of Will J. Davis charged with manslaughter on account of the burning of the Iroquois Theatre in Chicago, in 1903, of which Davis was manager at the time, is invalid, in so far as the prosecution of the case is concerned. The decision puts an end to the trial.

Following the decision the court called to the jury, which had not been allowed to hear the arguments and directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. This was done and the court ordered the sheriff to release Davis. This terminates any criminal action against Davis. Davis and the party of attorneys, friends and agents, returned to Chicago at once.

The Iroquois theatre was burned on the afternoon of December 30th, 1903, during a matinee performance of Mr. Bluebeard, the opening performance in the house. About 600 lives were lost, and it was declared that the fire exits were closed in violation of a city ordinance. Davis was born on a farm in Washtenaw county, Mich., Feb. 8th, 1869.

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

The Hound of the Baskervilles

Another Adventure of Sherlock Holmes.

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Author of "The Green Flag" and "The Great Boer War"

Copyright (1902) by A. Conan Doyle.

CHAPTER I.

Mr. Sherlock Holmes, who was usually very late in the mornings, save upon those not infrequent occasions when he was up all night, was seated at the breakfast table. I stood upon the hearth-rug and picked up the stick which our visitor had left behind him the night before. It was a fine, thick piece of wood, bulbous-headed, of the sort which is known as a "Penang lawyer." Just under the head was a broad silver band, nearly an inch across. "To James Mortimer, M.R.C.S., from his friends of the C.C.H.," was engraved upon it, with the date "1884." It was just such a stick as the old-fashioned family practitioner used to carry—dignified, solid, and reassuring.

"Well, Watson, what do you make of it?"

Holmes was sitting with his back to me, and I had given him no sign of my occupation.

"How did you know what I was doing? I believe you have eyes in the back of your head."

"I have, at least, a well-polished silver-plated coffee-pot in front of me," said he. "But, tell me, Watson, what do you make of our visitor's stick? Since we have been so unfortunate as to miss him and have no notion of his errand, this accidental souvenir becomes of importance. Let me hear you reconstruct the man by an examination of it."

"I think," said I, following as far as I could the methods of my companion, "that Dr. Mortimer is a successful elderly medical man, well-esteemed, since those who know him give him this mark of their appreciation."

"Good!" said Holmes. "Excellent!"

"I think also that the probability is in favor of his being a country practitioner who does a great deal of his visiting on foot."

"Why so?"

"Because this stick, though originally a very handsome one, has been so knocked about that I can hardly imagine a town practitioner carrying it. The thick iron ferrule is worn down, so it is evident that he has done a great amount of walking with it."

"Perfectly sound!" said Holmes.

"And then again, there is the 'friends of the C.C.H.' I should guess that to be the Something Hunt, the local hunt to whose members he has possibly given some surgical assistance, and which has made him a small presentation in return."

"Really, Watson, you excel yourself," said Holmes, pushing back his chair and lighting a cigarette. "I am bound to say that in all the accounts which you have been so good as to give of my own small achievements you have habitually underrated your own abilities. It may be that you are not yourself luminous, but you are a conductor of light. Some people without possessing genius have a remarkable power of stimulating it. I confess, my dear fellow, that I am very much in your debt."

He had never said as much before, and I must admit that his words gave me keen pleasure, for I had often been piqued by his indifference to my admiration and to the attempts which I had made to give publicity to his methods. I was proud too to think that I had so far mastered his system as to apply it in a way which earned his approval. He now took the stick from my hands and examined it for a few minutes with his naked eyes. Then with an expression of interest he laid down his cigarette and, carrying the cane to the window, he looked over it again with a convex lens.

"Interesting, though elementary," said he, as he returned to his favorite corner of the settee. "There are certainly one or two indications upon the stick. It gives us the basis for several deductions."

"Has anything escaped me?" I asked, with some self-importance. "I trust that there is nothing of consequence which I have overlooked?"

"I am afraid, my dear Watson, that most of your conclusions were erroneous. When I said that you stimulated me I meant, to be frank, that in noting your fallacies I was occasionally guided towards the truth. Not that you are entirely wrong in this instance. The man is certainly a country practitioner. And he walks a good deal."

"Then I was right."

"To that extent."

"But that was all."

"No, no, my dear Watson, not all—by no means all. I would suggest, for example, that a presentation to a doctor is more likely to come from a hospital than from a hunt, and that when the initials 'C.C.' are placed before that hospital the words 'Charing Cross' very naturally suggest themselves."

"You may be right."

"The probability lies in that direction. And if we take this as a working hypothesis we have a fresh basis from which to start our construction of this unknown visitor."

"Well, then, supposing that 'C.C.H.' does stand for 'Charing Cross Hospital,' what further inferences may we draw?"

"Do none suggest themselves? You know my methods. Apply them!"

"I can only think of the obvious conclusion that the man has practised in town before going to the country."

"I think that we might venture a little farther than this. Look at it in this light. On what occasion would it be most probable that such a presentation would be made? When would his friends unite to give a pledge of their good will? Obviously at the moment when Dr. Mortimer withdrew from the service of the hospital in order to start in practice for himself. We know there has been a presentation. We believe there has been a change from a town hospital to a country practice. Is it, then, stretching our inference too far to say that the presentation was on the occasion of the change?"

"It certainly seems probable."

"Now, you will observe that he could not have been on the staff of the hospital, since only a man well-established in a London practice could hold such a position, and such a one would not drift into the country. What was he, then? If he was in the hospital and yet not on the staff he could only have been a house-surgeon or a house-physician—little more than a senior student. And he left five years ago—the date is on the stick. So your grave, middle-aged family practitioner vanishes into thin air, my dear Watson, and there emerges a young fellow under thirty, amiable, unambitious, absent-minded, and the possessor of a favorite dog, which I should describe roughly as being larger than a terrier and smaller than a mastiff."

I laughed incredulously as Sherlock Holmes leaned back in his settee and blew little wavering rings of smoke up to the ceiling.

"As to the latter part, I have no means of checking you," said I, "but at least it is not difficult to find out a few particulars about the man's age and professional career." From my small medical shelf I took down the Medical Directory and turned up the name. There were several Mortimers, but only one who could be our visitor. I read his record aloud.

"Mortimer, James, M.R.C.S., 1882, Grimpen, Dartmoor, Devon. House surgeon from 1882 to 1884, at Charing Cross Hospital. Winner of the Jackson prize for Comparative Pathology, with essay entitled 'Is Disease a Reversion?' Corresponding member of the Swedish Pathological Society. Author of 'Some Freaks of Atavism' (Lancet, 1882). Do We Progress?' (Journal of Psychology, March, 1883). Medical Officer for the parishes of Grimpen, Thorsley, and High Barrow."

"No mention of that local hunt, Watson," said Holmes, with a mischievous smile, "but a country doctor, as you very astutely observed. I think that I am fairly justified in my inferences. As to the adjectives, I said, if I remember right, amiable, unambitious and absent-minded. It is my experience that it is only an amiable man in this world who receives testimonials, only an unambitious one who abandons a London career for the country, and only an absent-minded one who leaves his stick and not his visiting-card after waiting an hour in your room."

"Has been in the habit of carrying this stick behind his master. Being a heavy stick the dog has held it tightly by the middle, and the marks of his teeth are very plainly visible. The dog's jaw, as shown in the space between these marks, is too broad in my opinion for a terrier and not broad enough for a mastiff. It may have been—yes, by Jove, it is a curly-haired spaniel."

He had risen and paced the room as he spoke. Now he halted in the recess of the window. There was such a ring of conviction in his voice that I glanced up in surprise.

"My dear fellow, how can you possibly be so sure of that?"

"For the very simple reason that I see the dog himself on our door-step, and there is the ring of its owner. Don't move, I beg you, Watson. He is a professional brother of yours, and your presence may be of assistance to me. Now is the dramatic moment of fate, Watson, when you hear a step upon the stair which is walking into your life, and you know not whether for good or ill. What does Dr. James Mortimer, the man of science, ask of Sherlock Holmes, the specialist in crime? Come in!"

The appearance of our visitor was a surprise to me, since I had expected a typical country practitioner. He was a very tall, thin man, with a long nose like a beak, which jutted out between two keen, grey eyes, set closely together and sparkling brightly from behind a pair of gold-rimmed glasses. He was clad in a professional but rather slovenly fashion, for his frock-coat was dingy and his trousers frayed. Though young, his long back was already bowed, and he walked with a forward thrust of his head and a general air of peering benevolence. As he entered his eyes fell upon the stick in Holmes's hand, and he ran towards it with an exclamation of joy. "I am so very glad," said he. "I was not sure whether I had left it here or in the Shipping Office. I would not lose that stick for the world."

"A presentation, I see," said Holmes.

"Yes, sir."

"From Charing Cross Hospital?"

"From one or two friends there on the occasion of my marriage."

"Dear, dear, that's bad!" said Holmes, shaking his head.

Dr. Mortimer blinked through his glasses in mild astonishment.

"Why was it bad?"

"Only that you have disarranged our little deductions. Your marriage, you say?"

"Yes, sir. I married, and so left the hospital, and with it all hopes of a consulting practice. It was necessary to make a home of my own."

"Come, come, we are not so far wrong after all," said Holmes. "And now, Dr. James Mortimer——"

"Mister, sir, Mister—a humble M.R.C.S."

"And a man of precise mind, evidently."

"A dabbler in science, Mr. Holmes, a picker up of shells on the shores of the great unknown ocean. I presume that it is Mr. Sherlock Holmes whom I am addressing and not——"

"No, this is my friend Dr. Watson."

"Glad to meet you, sir. I have heard your name mentioned in connection with that of your friend. You interest me very much, Mr. Holmes. I had hardly expected so dolichocephalic a skull or such well-marked supra-orbital development. Would you have any objection to my running my finger along your parietal fissure? A cast of your skull, sir, until the original is available, would be an ornament to any anthropological museum. It is not my intention to be fulsome, but I confess that I covet your skull."

Sherlock Holmes waved our strange visitor into a chair. "You are an enthusiast in your line of thought, I perceive, sir, as I am in mine," said he. "I observe from your forefinger that you make your own cigarettes. Have no hesitation in lighting one."

The man drew out paper and tobacco and twirled the one up in the other with surprising dexterity. He had long quivering fingers as agile and restless as the antennae of an insect.

Holmes was silent, but his little darting glances showed me the interest which he took in our curious companion.

"I presume, sir," said he at last, "that it was not merely for the purpose of examining my skull that you have done me the honor to call here last night and again to-day?"

"No, sir, no; though I am happy to have had the opportunity of doing that as well. I came to you, Mr. Holmes, because I recognised that I am myself an unpractical man, and because I am suddenly confronted with a most serious and extraordinary problem. Recognising, as I do, that you are the second highest expert in Europe——"

"Indeed, sir! May I inquire who has the honor to be the first?" asked Holmes, with some asperity.

"To the man of precisely scientific mind the work of Monsieur Bertillon must always appeal strongly."

"Then had you not better consult him?"

"I said, sir, to the precisely scientific mind. But as a practical man of affairs it is acknowledged that you stand alone. I trust, sir, that I have not inadvertently——"

"Just a little," said Holmes. "I think, Dr. Mortimer, you would do wisely if

There ran behind him such a hound of hell without more ado you would kindly tell me plainly what the exact nature of the problem is in which you demand my assistance."

CHAPTER II.

"I have in my pocket a manuscript," said Dr. James Mortimer.

"I observed it as you entered the room," said Holmes.

"It is an old manuscript."

"Early eighteenth century, unless it is a forgery."

"How can you say that, sir?"

"You have presented an inch or two of it to my examination all the time that you have been talking. It would be a poor expert who could not give the date of a document within a decade or so. You may possibly have read my little monograph upon the subject. I put that at 1730."

"The exact date is 1742." Dr. Mortimer drew it from his breast-pocket. "This family paper was committed to my care by Sir Charles Baskerville, whose sudden and tragic death some three months ago created so much excitement in Devonshire. I may say that I was his personal friend as well as his medical attendant. He was a strong-minded man, sir, shrewd, practical, and as unimaginative as I am myself. Yet he took this document very seriously, and his mind was prepared for just such an end as did eventually overtake him."

Holmes stretched out his hand for the manuscript and flattened it upon his knee.

"You will observe, Watson, the alternative use of the long 's' and the short. It is one of several indications which enabled me to fix the date."

He looked over his shoulder at the yellow paper and the faded script. At the head was written: "Baskerville Hall," and below, in large, scrawling figures: "1742."

"It appears to be a statement of some sort."

"Yes, it is a statement of a certain legend which runs in the Baskerville family."

"But I understand that it is something more modern and practical upon which you wish to consult me?"

"Most modern. A most practical, pressing matter, which must be decided within twenty-four hours. But the manuscript is short and is intimately connected with the affair. With your permission I will read it to you."

Holmes leaned back in his chair, placed his finger-tips together, and closed his eyes, with an air of resignation. Dr. Mortimer turned the manuscript to the light and read in a high, crackling voice the following curious, old-world narrative:—

"Of the origin of the Hound of the Baskervilles there have been many statements, yet as I come in a direct line from Hugo Baskerville, and as I had the story from my father, who also had it from his, I have set it down with all belief that it occurred even as is here set forth. And I would have you believe, my sons, that the same Justice which punishes sin may also most graciously forgive it, and that no ban is so heavy but that by prayer and repentance it may be removed. Learn then from this story not to fear the fruits of the past, but rather to be circumspect in the future, that those foul passions whereby our family has suffered so grievously may not again be loosed to our undoing.

"Know then that in the time of the Great Rebellion (the history of which by the learned Lord Clarendon I most earnestly commend to your attention) this Manor of Baskerville was held by Hugo of that name, nor can it be gainsaid that he was a most wild, profane, and godless man. This, in truth, his neighbors might have pardoned, seeing that saints have never flourished in those parts, but there was in him a certain wanton and cruel humor which made his name a byword through the West. It chanced that this Hugo came to love (if, indeed, so dark a passion may be known under so bright a name) the daughter of a yeoman who held lands near the Baskerville estate. But the young maiden, being discreet and of good repute, would ever avoid him, for she feared his evil name. So it came to pass that one Michaelmas this Hugo, with five or six of his idle and wicked companions, stole down upon the farm and carried off the maiden, her father and brothers being from home, as he well knew. When they had brought her to the Hall the maiden was placed in an upper chamber, while Hugo and his friends sat down to a long carouse, as was their nightly custom. Now, the poor lass upstairs was like to have her wits turned at the singing and shouting and terrible oaths which came up to her from below, for they say that the words used by Hugo Baskerville, when he was in wine, were such as might blast the man who said them. At last in the stress of her fear she did that which might have daunted the bravest or most active man, for by the aid of the growth of ivy which covered (and still covers) the south wall she came down from under the eaves, and so homeward across the moor, there being three leagues betwixt the Hall and her father's farm.

"It chanced that some little time later Hugo left his guests to carry food and drink—with other worse things, perchance—to his captive, and so found the cage empty and the bird escaped. Then, as it would seem, he became as one that hath a devil, for, rushing down the stairs into the dining-hall, he sprang upon the great table, flagons and trenchers flying before him, and he cried aloud before all the company that he would that very night render his body and soul to the Powers of Evil if he might but overtake the wench. And while the revellers stood aghast at the fury of the man, one more wicked or, it may be, more drunken than the rest, cried out that they should put the hounds upon her. Whereat Hugo ran from the house, crying to his grooms that they should saddle his mare and unkennel the pack, and giving the hounds a kerchief of the maid's, he swung them to the line, and so off full cry in the moonlight over the moor.

"Now, for some space the revellers stood agape, unable to understand all that had been done in such haste. But anon their bemused wits awoke to the nature of the deed which was like to be done upon the moorlands. Everything was now in an uproar, some calling for their pistols, some for their horses, and some for another flask of wine. But at length some sense came back to their crazed minds, and the whole of them, thirteen in number, took horse and started in pursuit. The moon shone clear above them, and they rode swiftly abreast, taking that course which the maid must needs have taken if she were to reach her own home.

"They had gone a mile or two when they passed one of the night shepherds upon the moorlands, and they cried to him to know if he had seen the hunt. And the man, as the story goes, was so crazed with fear that he could scarce speak, but at last he said that he had indeed seen the unhappy maiden, with the hounds upon her track. 'But I have seen more than that,' said he, 'for Hugo Baskerville passed me upon his black mare, and there ran mute behind him such a hound of hell as God forbid should ever be at my heels.' So the drunken squires cursed the shepherd and rode onwards. But soon their skins turned cold, for there came a galloping across the moor, and the black mare, dabbled with white froth, went past with trailing bridle and empty saddle. Then the revellers rode close together, for a great fear was on them, but they still followed over the moor, though each, had he been alone, would have been right glad to have turned his horse's head. Riding slowly in this fashion they came at last upon the hounds. These, though known for their valor and their breed, were whimpering in a cluster at the head of a deep dip or goyal, as we call it, upon the moor, some slinking away and some, with starting hackles and staring eyes, gazing down the narrow valley before them.

"The company had come to a halt, more sober men, as you may guess, than when they started. The most of them would by no means advance, but three of them, the boldest, or it may be the most drunken, rode forward down the goyal. Now, it opened into a broad space in which stood two of

COMMISSIONER KENT'S COMMENDATION

At the closing session of the investigation of the Sun Life of Canada by the Royal Commission on Life Insurance, Commissioner Kent stated, in connection with his suggestion that voting power might be given to policyholders, that—

"It seems to me that in the conduct of the Sun Life business there is nothing to be desired, as far as the present generation is concerned. If you were immortal I would not say anything further about it. If, by sound judgment, hard work and just discrimination, you have put the Sun Life on the pinnacle of a successful company, another management with other attributes might just as easily squander it. . . . . The directors have done their duty nobly; there is no complaint to be made against them, or any one of them. Who can say whether the future management will continue the present high standard of your Company?"

INCREASE RAILWAY TAX.

Mr. Bowyer Criticizes the Government Policy.

Toronto, March 15.—For nearly two hours yesterday afternoon the Government were under fire, Mr. Sam Clarke, member for Northumberland, leading the attack on the resumption of the debate on the budget. Under cover of his characteristically humorous style, flanking movements were executed, and at times the gentlemen on the Government benches were made uncomfortable. Particularly was this notable when Mr. Clarke recounted all that the late Government had done in the way of temperance legislation, and how, after years of struggle and agitation to advance their cause, the temperance people had suddenly taken from them the majority vote in local option, which in ten years would have placed the Province under total prohibition.

Railway Taxation Policy.

Another feature of the day was the criticism of the Government's railway taxation policy by Mr. Bowyer, East Kent (a Conservative member). He held that the Provincial Treasurer was entirely mistaken in the belief that new railroad construction would be discouraged by an increased tax. He took some assurance from a recent statement by the Premier that the Government's present stand on the matter was not final. Messrs. McCoig, Macdiarmid and Atkinson also made thoughtful contributions to the debate, which will be resumed by the latter on Tuesday afternoon.

For Colonization Roads.

Hon. Dr. Beaume introduced a bill "respecting colonization roads." It provides machinery whereby the municipal councils in the organised districts may, as under the good roads act applying to counties, initiate proceedings towards securing colonization roads. The idea is that the councils and the Government shall act in unity, the former contributing a portion of the cost of the roads in money or labor, the Government being authorized to pay not less than one-third and not more than two-thirds.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Matheson the name of Mr. Preston (Port Arthur and Rainy River) was added to the Committee on Public Accounts, Municipal Committee and Fish and Game Committee.

The Budget Debate.

Mr. Clarke (Northumberland) resumed the debate on the budget. The Provincial Treasurer was to be congratulated on the condition of the finances of the Province. He would have a more profound belief in the revenues of the Province in future. On the Opposition side of the House they knew of it years ago—it was nothing new to Liberal members of the Legislature. Mr. Clarke's speech was interrupted by the entrance of Gen. Booth and his party, and the ceremony which followed. On resumption and after a eulogistic reference to General Booth and the work of the Salvation Army, Mr. Clarke alluded to the bye-elections, particularly to that in West Middlesex, where Mr. Ross, son of the former Premier, was returned to succeed his father. The member for Centre Grey (Mr. Lucas) had in his contribution to the debate on the budget declared that Father Pull and Father Graft were both dead. The speaker, however, was of opinion that neither had been as lively at any time as they were to-day.

Some Grants Are Too Small.

Speaking in respect to education, Mr. Clarke expressed his disapproval of the disparity in the vote for public school education, which affected the people of the whole Province, and that to the university. The latter was getting between $350,000 to $500,000, while for public schools the whole vote was only $360,000. The schools should get a much larger vote.

Conservative Member's Criticism.

Mr. P. H. Bowyer (East Kent) launched at once into the question of railway taxation. He had been somewhat surprised to hear the Premier announce a few days ago that there would be no increase in railway taxation. He was pleased to learn that the Premier meant that there would be no increase this session, and that there was no finality to the statement. In the State of Michigan, despite the heavy tax, there had been recently spent $5,000,000 on 270 miles of road.

The Provincial Treasury was wrong, he declared, in stating that such a tax would discourage construction of new railways. The Government need not have the slightest hesitation in taxing the railways, and if they undertook to say that the corporations should pay their fair share of taxation he would be satisfied. They should pay their share of taxation as well as the individual.

The House adjourned at 9.45.

Throng at Dowie's Funeral.

Chicago, March 15.—John Alexander Dowie was buried yesterday in Lakemound Cemetery, Zion City.

A small portion of the magnificent choir that formerly officiated in Zion City Tabernacle sang several hymns.

The body of Dowie was arrayed in the white robe he had worn since he assumed the title of "first apostle of the Christian Catholic Church."

The funeral cortege was attended by hundreds of members of the church and, when the body was lying in state, a constant stream of visitors called.

Scores sought to be cured of disease by touching the hem of Dowie's robe.

Novelist Praises Canada.

London, March 15.—(C. A. P.)—Three hundred Salvation Army emigrants left Euston Station for Canada yesterday. Rider Haggard addressed them on their departure, and said, at any rate, they were going to a land where every man could rise who put his back into the work.

Villagers Save Homes In Fire.

Moorefield, March 15.—Householders formed bucket brigades and saved this village from destruction by fire yesterday when Schnider's grain elevator and cider mill was burned, cinders settling on the roofs of the houses.

Hyman Didn't Resign.

Ottawa, March 15.—The committee on privileges and elections yesterday morning declared that Hon. Mr. Hyman's resignation as member for London was not valid, in that it had not been properly witnessed. This makes a by-election unnecessary.

HARRY THAW WAS ANGERED

By Evelyn's Refusal to Incriminate Stanford White.

ABE HUMMEL'S EVIDENCE

Blurts Out Answer Before Delmas Can Object — Judge Upholds Defence's Protest—Alienist Answers Question of 15,000 Words—Declares Thaw Was Sane at Time of the Murder—Trial Telling on All.

New York, March 15.—When the Thaw trial opened yesterday morning Abraham Hummel was recalled to the stand.

Delphin M. Delmas immediately began his argument in reply to District Attorney Jerome as to the admissibility of the evidence Hummel has to offer regarding an affidavit Evelyn Nesbit is said to have made. In this affidavit, the district attorney stated Wednesday, Miss Nesbit asserted that Thaw had beaten her when she refused to sign papers charging White with her ruin, and swore that the charge against White was not true. In his argument Mr. Delmas said: "We still contend that this witness was acting as attorney to this girl. It is not for him, by his word, to deny that such a relation existed. However, we will reserve that objection."

Appeals to Jury.

Mr. Delmas then turned to the admissibility of evidence contradicting the statements of a witness made out of court. He said he had not objected to Mr. Jerome's address Wednesday, as he trusted "to the fair-mindedness of the jury, which is my only protection."

Mr. Delmas finally asked that the court rule out Hummel's testimony as improper and having no bearing on the case.

The judge upheld the contention of Mr. Delmas.

A Long Question.

After repeating to Dr. Flint the same question which Mr. Delmas put to the experts for the defence and having him say that Thaw was sane, on the basis of the facts therein, District Attorney Jerome had read to the witness the prosecution's hypothetical question, which contains some 15,000 words and which required one hour and eighteen minutes in the reading. Dr. Flint again said, without qualifications, that Thaw knew his act was wrong and is therefore liable for murder in the first degree under the statutes of the State of New York.

Jerome's statement that the taking of evidence would be concluded by to-night has been abandoned, and those concerned in the case again look to April 1 as the earliest date for closing the long drawn out trial.

Damaging Assertion.

Abraham Hummel was on the stand again yesterday. Before Delmas could object to a question put to him by Jerome, the witness got into the record the statement that Evelyn Nesbit told him that she had informed Harry Thaw in Paris in 1903 that Stanford White positively did not harm her.

Delmas at first moved to have the question and answer stricken out from the record, but, when the district attorney seemed about to consent, the chief counsel for the defence insisted that the answer stand.

Hummel's further testimony was halted until Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw can again take the stand to testify as to whether or not Hummel was acting as her attorney when she made the statements to him which were afterwards embodied in the affidavit.

Both Jerome and Delmas were irritable yesterday and had frequent clashes. The strain of the trial is palpably telling on everyone connected with it.

It was reported last night that Jerome himself may be called to the witness stand in sur-rebuttal by the defence. The purpose, it is said, is to question him as to certain actions lying against Abraham Hummel, who was a witness yesterday.

TWO MEN KILLED.

Man Killed by Falling Tree—Fractious Colt Causes Fatal Injuries.

Kingston, March 15.—Ezra Palmatier, of Harlowe, is dead from internal injuries caused by fractious colt. His leg was crushed between his sleigh and the barn.

At Halleford, James T. Babcock, sawmill owner, was struck by a falling tree he had cut, and died a few hours later from his injuries, leaving a wife and ten children.

Was Case of Suicide.

Toronto, March 15.—Coroner Cotton's jury returned a verdict yesterday afternoon that Margaret Wilson, the young girl found dying under the Huntley street bridge Wednesday morning, came to her death by poisoning by carbolic acid bought and administered by herself.

An interesting feature of the case was the sending of the stomach of deceased to the university to be photographed for the British museum.

"The case," said Dr. Johnson, who made the postmortem, "was a most peculiar one. This girl apparently had nothing to eat for at least ten hours. The acid she took—fifteen teaspoonfuls — absolutely burned the walls of the stomach, nothing but a white paste remaining."

Orange Lodge Officers.

Orangeville, March 15.—Wm. Emery, D.G.M., was last night elected grand master of the Grand Orange Lodge for Ontario West, and Harry Lovelock of Toronto was elected deputy grand master.

The other officers are: associate deputy Com., Fred Dane; chaplain, Rev. M. Rowe, London; treasurer, John Hewitt, Toronto; secretary, Wm. Lee, Toronto; assistant secretary, Wm. Fitzgerald, Toronto; lecturer, J. D. Banting, Cookstown; director of ceremonies, Jos. Thompson, Toronto; auditors, Henry Taylor, Aurora, and A. W. Wright, St. Catharines.

The next place of meeting will be Mount Forest, which defeated Barrie in a close vote.

TO STAMP OUT REVOLT.

Russian Government Takes Drastic Steps Against the Schools.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The Government has resolved to take drastic steps against the universities and other institution of high learning to put an end to the revolutionary activity that prevails within these establishments.

Prince Andrew G. Gagarin, director of the Polytechnic Institute of St. Petersburg, in which establishment a number of arms, ammunition and bombs were found by the police on March 3, has been dishonorably discharged.

Together with the governing board of the institute, he will be prosecuted for criminal negligence for permitting the sheltering of arms and ammunition for revolutionary purposes.

The faculty of the institution will hand in their resignations in a body as a protest against the degradation of Prince Gagarin.

Seven Slain by Robbers.

Yelisavetgrad, March 15.—An estate was attacked by robbers Wednesday, who bound and decapitated the proprietor, five laborers and a woman. Two witnesses of the slaughter, a soldier who hid in a haystack, and a child, lost their reason.

Troops Stop Attack on Jews.

Yelisavetgrad, March 15.—On the occasion of the funeral Wednesday of a prominent reactionary who was killed by revolutionists, rioters began beating Jews in the streets and sacking the bazaar and Jewish lodgings, but they were stopped by troops. A number of Jews were wounded, one of whom died in the hospital.

The local Rabbis have telegraphed complaints to the Lower House of Parliament and to Premier Stolypin.

Arsenal Paymasters Robbed.

Briansk, March 15.—Two paymasters from the arsenal were attacked in a street yesterday here by robbers, who opened fire on them with revolvers, seized their money bags containing $6,000 and decamped.

New York Fog Bound.

New York, March 15.—Shipping in the harbor and the bay was badly hampered yesterday by a dense fog. The ferry line to South Brooklyn was temporarily abandoned, and other ferries were badly delayed.

Traffic on many of the railroads, on which thousands of commuters travel to this city, was much delayed, and those arriving in Jersey City were subjected to further annoyance, while the pilots of the ferry boats crossing the river to New York groped about.

Ocean liners are hours overdue.

The skin rids the system of more urea than the kidneys?

Nearly one fifth of the waste products of the body is eliminated by the skin. Suppose there is some unsuspected, unseen skin trouble—the pores are closed—the skin is unable to rid the system of its share of the waste.

Then the blood carries this waste product to the kidneys—immediately they are overworked—they strain to throw off the extra load. What the kidneys can't possibly eliminate, the blood takes up again and deposits on the nerves.

Then come the dull aches in back, hips and head—the nerves unstrung and irritated—the urine charged with impurities and highly colored—and you fear you have "Kidney Trouble."

Nonsense. Your kidneys are overworked—not diseased. What you need is "FRUIT-A-TIVES" to act on the skin.

Fruit-a-tives
(or Fruit Liver Tablets)

open the clogged pores—start up healthy skin action—and let the skin perform its natural function. This instantly relieves the kidneys of overwork—the back-aches stop and the complexion is beautified. There is no excessive waste matter in the blood to bring dull headaches—the urine is cleared—the bowels are opened and regulated—and the kidneys strengthened.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" act directly on the three great eliminating organs—Skin, Kidneys and Bowels—make them well and keep them well. That is why "FRUIT-A-TIVES" cure so many cases of apparent kidney disease that are really skin troubles.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" are fruit juices—in which the natural medicinal action of fruit is many times increased by the secret process of making them. Valuable tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into tablets—the finest formula known to medicine.

Buy them—try them—and cure yourself at home. 50c. a box—6 boxes for $2.50. At all druggists or sent on receipt of price. 106

FRUIT-A-TIVES Limited, OTTAWA.

The recent strike on the adjoining property of two veins of cobalt and silver but a short distance (about 60 feet) from and running directly towards Silver Bird has, in our opinion, really doubled the value of this property.

SILVER BIRD
WILL POSITIVELY ADVANCE TO
ON MARCH 25TH.

Advice from Superintendent Gauthier states that the shaft is now 94 feet deep, that drifting will commence at the 100-foot level, and that he expects to soon be bagging ore for shipment. Supt. Gauthier has had many years of experience in mining, is thoroughly familiar with the formation and conditions, and his opinion and advice can be relied upon.

SILVER BIRD

NOW 15 CENTS PER SHARE.

SILVER BIRD is surrounded by the greatest producing mines in the Cobalt District.

SILVER BIRD is absolutely inside property, consisting of twenty acres (patented), being the west half of the northeast quarter of the north half of Lot 3, Concession 6, Coleman.

SILVER BIRD is a mine in full operation, with two 25 h.p. boilers, steam hoist, steam drills and all machinery and buildings necessary to complete an operating mine.

SILVER BIRD is working two shifts and is in full operation both day and night, sinking upon three veins and in the same formations identically as in the O'Brien, Timmins and Right of Way mines and lying immediately between these mines and the Green-Meehan, Red Rock, Cobalt Contact and Nipissing Extension. The veins are broadening out and are increasing in values with depth, now 94 feet in shaft.

SILVER BIRD has no indebtedness; there are no incumbrances against the property or stock of the company. The capitalization of The Silver Bird Cobalt Mines, Limited, is but $1,500,000.00, par value of the shares $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, and no personal liability, with 500,000 shares in the treasury. The first allotment is now offered to the public for subscription at 15 cents per share.

Considering the inside location of the property, development done, results obtained, low capitalization and the large amount of shares in the treasury, this is unquestionably one of the best bargains (if not the greatest bargain) that have been offered in Cobalt mining shares.

The Board agreed to make further efforts to increase the subscription list by calling a meeting of gentlemen in the project. The new technical school is estimated to cost £17,600.

An interesting personality has passed away, when Mrs. James Campbell, widow of the late Mr. James Campbell, of Tuftichewan, died at the age of eighty years in her residence, Bromley, Alexandria. The deceased lady took a great interest in the education of women, and was so prominently identified with the founding and endowing of the Queen Margaret College that she had conferred on her the degree of LL.D. She was married in 1846 to Mr. Campbell, who was a cousin of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and leaves a family of two sons and three daughters. She was the "Lady Bountiful" of the Vale of Leven, where she was greatly beloved for many acts of thoughtfulness to the people.

Mr Walter W. B. Rodger died at his residence, Bagatelle House, Greenock, a fortnight ago, after a brief illness. As a civil engineer, he was associated with several water-works undertakings in the west of Scotland, but retired from the active duties of his profession while yet a younger man. In 1882, he entered the Greenock Town Council, served a term as Provost from 1889, and during his term of office he presided for a year over the affairs of Lodge Kilwinning No. 12. Mr. Rodger was for several years commanding officer of the Clyde Division Submarine Miners. He is survived by a widow and family.

It has not yet been decided who will write the biography of the late Principal Rainy; but by Dr. Rainy's own arrangements before leaving for Australia his letters and papers were entrusted to Mr. A. Taylor Innes for examination. It is understood that all letters which are being sent to Mr. R. R. Simpson, W. S., agent for Dr. Rainy's executors, will also be sent to Mr. Taylor Innes for examination. Whether Mr. Taylor Innes will himself write the biography, or whether the work will be assigned to a younger man, is still undetermined; but the delicate task of sifting the papers and selecting what is suitable for the purposes of a biography is at present in the hands of Mr. Taylor Innes.

The death is reported of Mr. John Borthwick, of Crookston, who had been in failing health for the past two years. Mr. Brothwick, who entered his eighty-third year in October last, was a well known county gentleman and a landowner in at least four parishes, viz., Stow, Heriot, Borthwick, in Mid Lothian, and Charterhall, in Berwickshire. He was the eldest son of Mr. John Brothwick and Ann Dundas, daughter of the Lord Chief Baron of Scotland. He succeeded his father in 1846, and married Elizabeth Mason Pringle, daughter of Admiral Pringle of Torwoodlee. For a number of years Mr. Brothwick held a commission in the 91st Regiment and after he held commissions in the Militia and Yeomanry.

The Committee of the Glasgow Town Council, entrusted with the arrangements for the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales to Glasgow in April have decided to invite designs and estimates for the two caskets which will be required for the presentation of the freedom of the city. The minutes of the Magistrates Committee which have been approved by the Corporation, state that the freedom is offered to the Prince of Wales in testimony of appreciation of the visit which he has graciously consented to pay to the city; of the valuable services which he rendered to the Empire by his visit to the colonies; and of the powerful support given by him to many movements and institutions making for the moral, intellectual, and material upbuilding of the nation. To the Princess the Freedom of the city is offered in appreciation of her promised visit to the city, and of the high example manifested by her in an exalted position.

At a special court at Fethard, James Mara was charged with having obtained goods from a local undertaker by means of false pretences. Accused, it appears, ordered a coffin for his mother, who was subsequently discovered alive and in good health. He was also charged with having obtained a quantity of whisky on the same occasion and was sent for trial to the assizes.

A general meeting of the Blackrock College Union was held at University College, Blackrock, to consider Mr. Bryce's forecast of the Government's University proposals. Resolutions were passed approving of the Government scheme as a practical and satisfactory means of substantially removing the main grievance of the Catholics by securing for them equality with their Protestant fellow countrymen.

All hope has been abandoned of the safety of three men named Clements, Muirhead and Robinson, who on Saturday afternoon left Larne for Glenarm and Carnlough to dispose of a coatch of fish. The weather was very stormy and a man named Craig reported to the Ballygally coastguards that he heard cries of distress off Drumnagragh Head. It is also reported that a boat has been washed ashore midway between Larne and what is known as the Half Way House.

ARTIFICIAL WINTER FOODS FAIL TO SUPPLY NEEDS OF BLOOD.

Hence the Thin, Watery Blood of Spring, the Weakness, Languor and Fatigue, the Loss of Energy and Ambition.

During the summer time the blood obtains from fresh fruits and vegetables the elements from which it derives its richness and life-sustaining properties.

These blood-forming ingredients are largely lacking in the artificial foods of winter, and for this reason, together with the debilitating effects of indoor life, the blood is usually thin and watery in the spring, and the system in a more or less run-down condition.

Almost everybody needs some restorative assistance in the spring, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful blood-forming principles known to medical science it is the greatest of spring medicines.

There is nothing indefinite or uncertain about the action of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Every dose of it goes to the formation of a certain amount of pure, rich blood, and the building-up process is thus set in motion.

Through the medium of the circulation, the influence of this great food cure is felt in every organ and every part of the human body.

The nervous system is strengthened.

The heart beats stronger.

The stomach digests the food better and the appetite is improved.

New vigor and courage replace fatigue and languor.

New, firm flesh and tissue are added to the body, and the weight increases.

Weakness and disease everywhere give place to health and strength, and life is made worth living.

A SPRING NEED

Weak, Tired and Depressed People Need a Tonic to Put the Blood Right.

Spring blood is bad blood. Indoor life during the winter months is responsible for weak, watery, impure blood. You need a tonic to build up the blood in spring just as much as the trees need new sap to give them vitality for the summer. In the spring bad blood shows itself in many ways. In some it breeds pimples and eruptions. In others it may be through occasional headaches, a variable appetite, perhaps twinges of neuralgia or rheumatism, or a lazy feeling in the morning and a desire to avoid exertion. For these spring ailments it is a tonic you need, and the greatest blood-making, health-giving tonic in all the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red, health-giving blood, which reaches every nerve and every organ in the body, bringing health, strength and energy to weak, despondent, ailing men and women. Here is proof. Mrs. Geo. Merritt, Sandy Cove, N.S., says:—"I was weak, feeling miserable and terribly run down. The doctor whom I consulted said the trouble was anaemia, but he did not help me. A friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it is simply impossible for me to over-estimate the good they have done me. I shall always recommend them to ailing friends."

But if you want new health you must get the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, manufactured in Canada at Brockville, Ont. Other so-called pink pills are fraudulent imitations. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all reputable medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POPULAR ORGANIST WAS HONOURED

Members of Fraserville Congregation Make Presentation to Miss Ethel Waterman—The Address.

Fraserville, March 13th. —. The home of Mr. R. Waterman, of North Monaghan, was the scene of a pleasant event on Thursday evening, March 7th, when the friends of the Fraserville congregation gathered, and presented Miss Ethel Waterman with a jewl case, gold chain and music cabinet, and the following address:—

To Miss Waterman—

A number of those associated with you in church work and worship, have gathered to-night to spend a social evening with you and also to say how highly we value your efficient services as organist of this church.

By constant and faithful attendance we have done much towrds making our public worship both pleasant and profitable; while the genial and patient spirit manifested in all matters pertaining to our choir has been admired by the congregation.

As a slight token of respect please accept of this jewel case, gold chain and music cabinet, and may you long be spared to labour in the cause of our common Master, who will at last give a full reward to all who are faithful to His service on earth.

Signed on behalf off the friends,

J. MADILL,
Sunday school supt.
F. CLARKE,
Assistant Supt.

Miss Waterman, although taken by surprise, made a very suitable reply and expressed the pleasure and profit she had derived from her association with the choir. Afterwards a very pleasant evening was spent in social games and amusements and when all had done justice to the refreshments that the ladies had prepared for the occasion, the company dispersed.

SERMON ON NEW LORD'S DAY ACT

Special to The Examiner.

Havelock, March 12.—Mr. Wallie Rose, of Norwood spent Sunday under the parental roof.

Mr. Bronse and Miss Puffer, of Hastings were in town on Wednesday night last.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Armstrong attended the funeral of their cousin, Mr. Armstrong, (who was shot in Fort William,) in Hastings Sunday morning. He was buried under the auspices of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The Misses Williams, of Campbellford, were in town on Sunday.

Mr. Will Andrews spent Sunday in Campbellford.

The remains of Floyd Kniewasser was laid to rest on Thursday afternoon last. Private family service was held at the house, afterwards public service, being held at church, where the many friends gathered to pay their last respects to one who was so well known. The many floral tributes given showed the high esteem in which the young man was held. About twenty-five of the Brotherhood, from Toronto Junction attended the funeral. The hymns chosen for service were, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," and after a reading of Holy Scriptures by Rev. Mr. Clarke, the choir sang "Thy Will be Done," Miss Maude Graham taking the soprano solo. As the remains were borne from the church the organist played "In the Sweet Bye and Bye."

The Rev. Mr. Caplan gave a very interesting, as well as instructive sermon "On Lord's Day Law," taking as his text the fourth command ment: "Remember the Sabbath Day and keep it holy; six days shalt thou labour and do all thou hast to do but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt do no manner of work, etc. As God made the earth in six days, and on the seventh He rested from all His labours, likewise so are we to do, for God made this law. It does not mean that we are to go to church only, for we do not read that in the Holy Book, but we are to rest from all unnecessary work, and that Christian people, who love to hear God's word, might spend an hour in His holy house, at least once on Sunday. Mr. Caplan made his view of the Lord's Day Act very clear to the people.

Mrs. Harry Faulkner spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. Spilsbury, in Peterborough.

Mrs. D. L. Somerville, who has been spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Watson, has returned to her home in Lotus.

Mrs. Jas. Fowler, Peterborough, is spending a few days with her son, Mr. Jas. E. Fowler, in town.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL TO GO

Members of That Body Will Support Request for an Appropriation Towards Completion of Trent Canal.

THE COUNCIL HELD MEETING

The Township Council of North Monaghan met Monday afternoon in the County Council Chamber in Peterborough at 2 o'clock. All the members were present, the Reeve, Mr. J. Brown, presiding.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. J. Mitchell, representing the Sawyer-Massey Company, of Hamilton, addressed the council, asking them to purchase a rock crusher from his company.

Mr. Israel Payne was also present and applied for an increase of salary as collector of rates in 1907.

Mr. H. Phelan, alderman of the City of Peterborough, was present and representing the City Council, requested the Council of North Monaghan to send a deputation, along with others on the Trent Valley Route, to Ottawa, to impress the Dominion Government as to the importance of completing the Trent Valley Canal at once.

The following accounts were handed in:

J A Porter, clerk of South Monaghan, half amount of grading boundary road between South and North Monaghan, $12; F J Bell, clerk of Smith, half the amount of building railing on boundary between Smith and North Monaghan, $25.46; Davis, Thompson & Co., premium on insurance policy, $5.95.

It was moved by Messrs. May and Morrow, that the accounts as presented be passed and paid.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and May, that a committee consisting of the Reeve and Councillors Dobbin and Morrow are hereby appointed to look into the matter of purchasing a rock crusher and report to this council at next regular meeting.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Dobbin, that the salary of Mr. Israel Payne, as collector for 1907 be increased to $47.00 and, the clerk is instructed to prepare a by-law to that effect.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Morrow, that this council is hereby authorized to go to Ottawa on March 19th as part of a deputation to await upon the Minister of Railways and Canals in regard to the completion of the Trent Valley Canal, and the treasurer is hereby directed to issue an order for a sum not to exceed $30 towards payment of the expenses of the same. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Dobbin and Howden, that orders be issued for the sum of $5 each, in favour of R. Sanderson and R. Waterman, salary as auditors, 1906.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and Dobbin, that the clerk is hereby directed to arrange a meeting for a committee of this council with the Board of Works of the City of Peterborough, in connection to making better arrangements for the repairs to the boundary road between the city and township.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Howden and May, that the clerk is hereby directed to communicate with the road-master of the C. P. R. in regard to the dangerous condition existing at the railway crossings on the 11th concession, owing to the thick growth of underbrush, hiding the approach of trains from persons travelling along the public road.—Carried.

Mr. Howden, as chairman of the Special Committee appointed at the last meeting to interview the authorities of the Canadian Pacific Railway in regard to obtaining better transport and freight facilities for the public at Kendry Siding, reported that the committee, consisting of Messrs. J. Brown, May, Howden and Bennett, representing the council and Messrs. Wilson, T. Brown and Rev. Dr. Marsh, representing the ratepayers, met Mr. Nelson, the general superintendent, and Mr. Brown, the general freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in Peterborough on Tuesday evening, the 12th inst, and after very fully going over the conditions surrounding the proposition to erect a flag station at this point, had received a very favourable assurance from the superintendent, that the wishes of the committee would in a short time be carried out.—This report was received.

Mr. Brown as chairman of the Special Committee re alteration of School Section Nos. 2 and 3, reported having given consideration to the proposed taking of part of lot No. 9, in concession 11, from S. S. No. 3 and adding it to S. S. No. 2, and recommended that the clerk be directed to notify each public school trustee in both sections affected, by delivering them a copy of the bylaw, making such alteration as applied for, to be passed, at a meeting of this council to be held in the town hall at 2 p.m., on the 13th day of May, next and also to have a copy posted in each school house.

On motion of Messrs. Brown and Howden this report was received and adopted.

On motion bylaw No. 579, a bylaw to appoint Road Commissioners, Poundkeepers and Fenceviewers, was introduced, given the regular readings and finally passed.

The Road Commissioners for 1907 are as follows:—

Div. No. 1—Jas. Morrow.
Div. No. 2—R. Colin.
Div. No. 3—Geo. Mouerief.
Div. No. 4—F. Monerief.

The Poundkeepers are:—

BE BRIGHT—WELL—STRONG
BUILD UP WITH FERROZONE

Ferrozone Adds Vigor and Strength to the System, Purifies and Enriches the Blood, Vitalizes the Nerves and Assures Permanent Good Health.

Let your fight for health begin now, before you feel any warning of physical collapse.

Your whole system needs a thorough cleansing. Likewise, the blood should be purified, made rich and nutritious.

The one cure for that tired, drooping feeling is Ferrozone, the acknowledged king of all tonic medicines.

To restore your appetite you need Ferrozone, certainly you do.

You need it to restore your nerves and to enrich your depleted blood.

The strongest reason why you need Ferrozone is because it will build up your run-down system and make you well.

It's because we know Ferrozone is absolutely certain to cure that we urge everyone in poor health to use it. If depressed, tired, nervous, sleepless, Ferrozone will make you cheery, bright and happy, because it will make you well.

FERROZONE
A Good Appetizer.

MR. AUBREY E. TEMPLEMAN, of Mechias, writes: "I have found the greatest satisfaction in using Ferrozone, and consider it is the best tonic made. I was all run down a few months ago, and in a very miserable state of health. I took a few boxes of Ferrozone, and was surprised at the result. Ferrozone drove away that dull, heavy feeling, and put my system in splendid order. I am never nervous or sleepless, and have a hearty appetite. This is all due to Ferrozone, which I recommend in the strongest way possible."

FERROZONE
Gives Real Vigor.

MRS. NORMAN MACADAM, of Bridgeport, writes: "I am in good health to-day as the result of Ferrozone. Before using Ferrozone I was tired and miserable, lacked energy and ambition. But Ferrozone altered all that. It has built up my system, and given me more real vigor than I ever had before. Ferrozone is a good tonic."

Ferrozone Makes the Weak Strong—the Sick Well.

Ferrozone is sold only in 50c boxes, containing 50 Ferrozone Tablets. Six boxes for $2.50. At all dealers or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

EATON'S
SPRING and SUMMER
CATALOGUE No 80—1907

THE T. EATON Co LIMITED
TORONTO CANADA

A Book brimful of suggestions in illustrations, description and price—issued for the convenience of Mail Order Customers. On every page you will find something interesting and attractive, that is needful for some member of the household.

Especial pains have been taken with the illustrations to follow the original and to give a clear idea of just how the garments look on the person, and how the goods appear in their place, and in this you will surely agree the artists have succeeded when you compare the goods with the designs.

Notwithstanding the advance of prices on many lines, through the immense quantities we buy, the price to us has been kept down. Cutting out middle profits, buying direct from the producer, and selling by an economical method, we have pared a large slice off the ordinary amounts on first-class articles and give them to you at these small prices.

If you don't find the goods satisfactory in every respect return them to us in good condition within ten days and we will exchange for other goods (with a few exceptions) or refund the money, paying transportation charges both ways.

We thus bring the store right to your home, and you run no more risks than purchasing at the counter.

The Latest In Fashion's Realm; Items Of Interest To Ladies

THINGS MODISTIC.

Stiff Linen Collars With Dressy Shirt Waists—Bellows Boots.

It is now the fashion to wear with any style of shirt waist a stiff turned down collar of hand embroidered linen, even if the waist fastens down the back, as waists almost invariably do. This collar may be either pinned or buttoned to the collar band back and front, then held firmly together with a jeweled bar pin above the soft silk tie.

GIRL'S PETER PAN DRESS—5572.

With a severe tailor made jacket the bow in front is most attractive, as it fills in the flat openings.

Young women who tramp abroad in all kinds of weather are wearing what are called bellows boots. The tongues of the bellow boots are stitched to the tops all the way up, and the shoes are thoroughly impervious to water.

Among the prettiest of the new things seen at the jewelers are the chatelaine purses made of gold or silver and ornamented with the owner's monogram set in her birthstones for luck.

Glove purses of silver shaped like a bonbon box and tiny enough to fit in the palm of one's hand are very smart. Although so small, they cost as much as the larger purse.

Little polka dots of linen set on a plain white linen handkerchief and hemstitched all round are among the new things seen.

The illustration shows a new Peter Pan suit for a small girl to be made up in summer materials. The only trimming is a strip of embroidery down the front of the blouse and the neat turned back cuffs. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT IS WORN.

Short Sleeves For Blouse and Shirt Waist on the Wane.

The smart summer blouses have either long or three-quarter sleeves, but of course the short sleeve will appear on a number of the handsomest models.

Dotted swiss plaided in a wide pattern is one of the exclusive materials for shirt waists. It is thirty inches wide and sells for 75 cents up to several dollars a yard.

The new tailored blouse is tucked on the shoulders and has a narrow box plait down the front, edged with plaited lace. Bands of insertion edged on either side with quilled lace or muslin is to be bought all ready made, and a very pretty design can be purchased for 60 cents a yard. Cuffs and often cuffs and collars are made of this ready made trimming.

Very expensive and proportionately exclusive are the lingerie bows and jabots to be worn with hand embroidered stiff linen collars. With a few bits of lace and hand worked lawn or mull these neck pieces can be made for a song.

Among the new embroideries a carnation design is effective. Many black costumes in the handsomer materials are heavily braided and have just a glimpse of color introduced into them somewhere. A touch of blue is pretty.

One of the main points to be remembered about outer garments, whether they be the wrap proper or short tailored coats, is that the short sleeve is on the wane. The three-quarter and full length effects are growing more conspicuous daily, being finished with cuffs of their own or of a contrasting material.

The frocks seen in the cut are both summer models for gingham or chambray. The larger girl wears blue chambray, with yoke and cuffs of tucked white muslin edged with beading, while the younger girl's dress is of Scotch gingham, with yoke of all over embroidery and bands of plain linen. JUDIC CHOLLET.

BABY'S SMILE.

Baby's smile indicates that he is well and happy. It is only the sick child who is cross and restless. And the mother can depend upon it that when her baby cries he is not crying simply to be ugly—that is not his nature—he is crying because he is in pain. Most probably his little stomach is out of order. The mother will find Baby's Own Tablets a never failing cure for all the minor ailments of little ones. In the homes where the Tablets are used there are no cross crying babies — nothing but bright, happy and playful babies—the kind that are a joy to the home. Mr. Jos. LeGree, Caraquet, N.B., says: "At the time I sent for Baby's Own Tablets my little one was weak and failing. He would cry night and day and I did not seem able to get anything to help him. After giving him the Tablets there was a great change, and he has since thrived finely." The Tablets are sold by druggists or by mail at 25 cents a box, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

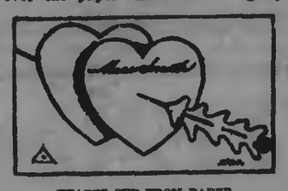
IN CUPID'S HONOR.

Dainty Place Cards For Valentine Dinners and Suppers.

Much of the daintiness of a valentine supper or dinner depends upon the place cards. These can be made at home at little expense.

Use for the place cards a heavy-weight gilt or red paper. If the flowers are red, better carry out the color scheme and match the paper to the color of the roses.

Cut the heart shaped pattern, lay it over the paper and mark it lightly.



HEARTS CUT FROM PAPER.

Do not cut until sure that the design is just right.

No. 1 shows two hearts cut from red paper pierced with a long pin made to represent an arrow by a paper design cut to represent an arrowhead. The name of the guest is written across the face of the upper heart.

No. 2 shows a photograph place card. This is used when the dinner is given in honor of a friend of the hostess. Three hearts are cut to fold together. On the inner heart is pasted a small photograph of the guest of honor; across the first heart is written the name of the guest; across the last is the date or a love motto.

No. 3 combines the place card and the bonbon box. The pattern is shown in the drawing. The dotted lines show where the edges are to be folded to form the box. The perforations are made for ribbons. Narrow red ribbons are run through and tied. The heart forms the cover of the box. The box is cut from one heavy piece. It should be of paper heavy enough to hold the little heart shaped motto candies or bonbons.

CHIC CONCEITS.

Leghorn a Coming Fancy—New Silk and Cotton Goods.

The soft Italian leghorns that droop lazily in any direction without plan or purpose are prominent among the spring hat models. The natural tendency of these hats to droop in any direction is encouraged by the way they are trimmed, the brims being ladened with heavy wreaths of large silk roses or other blossoms of goodly size. A beautiful one color effect is carried out in a hat of leghorn ornamented with yellow roses. The leaves are a dull reddish brown, but as they are pretty well hidden under the flowers they serve more as a background than as a trimming.

The new summer silks and the oriental silks generally are not as light in weight as they were. They are as heavy as taffeta and remind one of taffeta in their smoothness and sheen. They will not wrinkle, and there is no such thing as a crack about them.

The cotton stuffs for gowns are a revelation to the woman who has not examined them. They come so silky in texture that they can scarcely be told from summer silks. They come in all colors and are almost as high priced as the silks.

There is a new cotton material called "soisette," closely resembling mousseline. The white "soisette" shows spots as large as dimes of black, green or blue.

The shops would make us believe that winter is over, but there will be many cold days, when the boy of the family would be most comfortable in an elderdown bath robe like the one illustrated. JUDIC CHOLLET.

BREAKFAST.

Having the Morning Meal Served in One's Bedroom.

The china for a morning meal, when served in the bedroom, according to Dress, should be dainty in every particular. Coffee sipped from a delicate cup seems improved in flavor, and daintiness in all the breakfast appointments adds a charm to the delicacies that they contain and give an added delight to a comfortable breakfast.

The matter of the proper tray to use in the bedroom is an important item that should not be neglected in the consideration of this subject. Favor leans toward the one made of papier mache. When painted white with a gold band, it supplies a neutrally tinted background, which harmonizes with a setting of almost any style of china. It has the added advantage of lightness also, weighing less than a pound. China trays of the same proportions are heavy and cumbersome, sometimes weighing several pounds.

There is still another factor of this dainty service that demands thoughtful consideration. It is the means of serving the breakfast—the table or other receptacle that is used to hold the tray. Many women are adopting the hospital system, as it is distinctly the most convenient and expeditious way. The table is so made as to swing out over the bed when in use and to fold down against the metal standard when it has served its purpose. By this means of adjustment it may be put away when not in service, a feature that recommends it strongly, for it cannot be considered a sightly article of furniture. For this special purpose, however, there is nothing more strictly suitable, even though it be not beautiful, for it is compact, easily taken care of, and, on account of the little appliances that are used to adjust it, it forms the most comfortable sort of bed table.

HAIRDRESSING HINTS.

To Beautify an Ugly Forehead—To Keep Tortoise Shell Bright.

Don't hesitate to help an ugly forehead to beauty with a fluff of soft curls crowned by a half wreath for dressy occasions.

Tortoise shell combs when dull and dim may be restored to their original brightness by rubbing them with finely powdered rotten stone and oil. A clean piece of chamois skin should be used as a polisher.

Single flowers are still worn at the left side of the hair, arranged rather near the front, and this blossom is of a larger size than that used last season.

The coronet braid is a dignified and pretty arrangement for the hair. It broadens a thin face and gives height to a full countenance.

Parisians are wearing their hair well brushed and perfectly plain without the least suspicion of a wave. The marcel effect has become too common to be distinctive. In cases where the scalp is too dry and the hair brittle a little castor oil rubbed in nightly will not spoil the texture of the hair, but will, on the contrary, improve it.

The dressing sack illustrated is made of dotted chaille trimmed with lace insertion and tied with velvet ribbon. It is made in what is known as jumper style and is without an opening, drawn over the head and tied about the neck to keep it in place. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Mrs. Jas. Weaver, Bobcaygeon, is at present visiting with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Read.

Miss Mary McWilliams, Peterborough, is spending a few days with friends here.

Dancing parties are almost a thing of the past. But we are promised what is to be the largest one of the season, at the home of Mr. James Memilly, in the near future.

Mr. Henry Read has made himself a present of a fine, new Peerless incubator and intends raising many fine birds the coming summer.

A REMARKABLE FISH STORY FROM ITALY

Streets Literally Alive With Fish After Heavy Rain Storm.

London, March 15. — The Milan correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, sends the following report, which his paper prints without comment or apology:

"At the town of Otona, on the shores of the Adriatic, heavy rain has fallen, bringing with it a shower of fish of different sizes and sorts. The principal square and the neighbouring streets were literally alive with fish, and when the rain ceased the inhabitants rushed along the streets with baskets and jugs to gather them up. It is presumed that a waterspout passed from the sea and discharged itself over the town but the people interpret the curious occurrence as a special intervention of Providence on behalf of the poor."

LATEST NOVELTY IN THE CAB DRIVERS' ART

Six Ladies are Now Plying Vocation of Driving in Gay Paris.

Paris, March 14. — The Parisian Jehus may be pardoned if they refuse to take a roseate view of the future of their calling. There are indications that they will soon be subected to keen competition. The two women cab drivers who made their appearance in the streets have been joined by four more, Mmes. Feron, Moson, DeCourcelles and Lutgen.

The latter may be expected to do well, for she is the former Comtesse du Plada La Gueriverre. To be driven in a cab by a woman, who at one period of her life cut a figure in the fashionable world, should appeal to those Parisiens who are not accustomed to pay cab fares for getting about the city.

They should patronize a cab now, if only to be able to boast that they have been driven by a former countess. Mme. Lutgen failed in her previous examinations. Much sympathy was expressed for her, for she wanted to drive a cab in order to supply the needs of her husband, a musician, who is in ill-health.

An interesting story is told by Mme. Dufaut, the first cab woman. A family were about to enter her cab in the Rou Drouot when an anti-feminist cut the traces of her horse and ran off. Mme. Dufaut was stupefied for a moment, but she set to work with a will, repaired the damage and drove her cab in the direction of the boulevards.

SELWYN PREACHER OFF TO KITIMOT

The Latest News From Selwyn and North Smith—Rev. Chas. Reddick Going to the West.

Examiner Special.

Selwyn, March 13.—Mr. Fred Rosborough has moved to Peterborough, and Mr. Wall to Lakefield; Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle has rented his brother's farm and moved across, while Mr. Will McIlmoyle has moved on to the farm vacated by Nathan, and Mr. Erin Rosborough on to that vacated by Mr. Wall. Mr. Berland, cheesemaker, is expected into our midst in a few days.

Mrs. M. T. Graham returned home on Saturday, after spending the winter months with her mother in Belleville.

Rev. Mr. Reddick, Methodist minister, preached his farewell sermon at Chemong, Wesley and Lakehurst last Sunday. Mr. Reddick is to be married on Tuesday the 19th, to Miss Young, of Seagrave, a former teacher of Albert College, Belleville. The young couple will then proceed to Kitimat, B.C., one of the Grand Trunk Pacific ports, where there are many Indians to whom Mr. Reddick and his wife will carry the Gospel.

FALLING OFF IN NUMBER OF DWELLING HOUSES

Well Known Contractor Says That High Price of Material, Etc., Will Result in Less Houses Being Built This Year Than Last Season.

MANY CONTRACTS, THOUGH

That the number of private houses to be built in Petsborough during the season that is at hand will be far less than last year, is the opinion of a well known local contractor. The statement is not likely to cause much surprise. Last year was a phenomenal one in the building line, as far as Peterborough was concerned. The number of houses that went up was away in excess of the figures of other years. Particularly was this so of the southern and western parts of the city, where new blocks sprang into existence in a night, as it were.

Not So Many Private Houses

The building of private houses on a large scale will not be seen this summer, however, according to the views of the above-mentioned contractor, who is well qualified to speak on such a subject. Several reasons are given for the falling off in house building this season, chief among them being the high price of building material and labour. All kinds of material for building purposes is decidedly scarce. Brick is a scarce commodity and timber is even harder to get, so that the contractors will have troubles of their own in getting their work under way. It is said that labour will be at a premium, which will also have a retrograde effect upon building operations.

Less Demand

Not only has the price of material increased, but there has been a decrease in the demand for houses as well, which is another reason why there will not be so many erected. It is said that there will be no need for anything like the number of houses that were built last year. Of course there will be a considerable amount of building done this season and many private houses will go up, but contrasted with the figures of 1906, the number will be small.

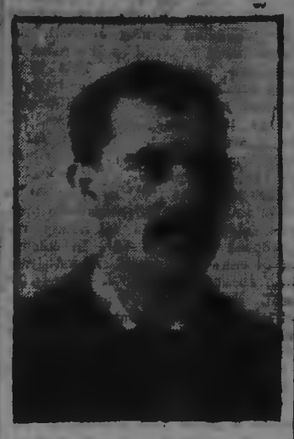
Many Big Contracts

While there will not be so many dwelling houses erected, it must not be taken to mean that the building trade will be slack, for the number of public buildings that will be started this year will be sufficient to give employment to all those connected with the building trades. The most important, of course, are the armouries, normal school and collegiate institute, all of which it is expected will be commenced this spring and will give employment to a large number of labourers. Then there will be the addition to the Canadian General Electric Company's building, which will be another big contract. The addition of six rooms to the North Ward school will also be done this summer, and with the large number of contracts such as these there will be no excuse for those connected with the building trades to be idle.

The Total Value

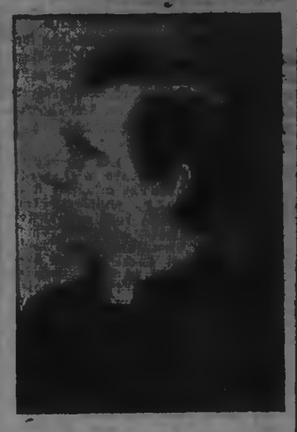
It is as yet too early in the season to make any estimate, even approximately, of the total value of the building that will be done in the city this year, but that it will be very large, even with the falling off in the number of private houses, is conceded by everyone.

CELEBRATION OF ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN PETERBOROUGH TO-MORROW AND MONDAY



Mr. James Drain, County President of A. O. H. under whose auspices the sermon will be preached by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick in St. Peter's Cathedral to-morrow night.

Mr. D. O'Connell, a prominent local Irishman, who will lecture on St. Patrick in Cobourg on Monday night.



Rev. Father Fitzpatrich, parish priest of Enfismore, who will preach special sermon to-morrow night in St. Peter's.

St. Patrick's day, March 17, will be celebrated to-morrow in Peterborough in a manner befitting the memory of the departed patron saint, of the Emerald Isle.

The feature of the celebration so far as to-morrow is concerned, will be the special sermon, which will be preached by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of St. Martin's, Ennismore, and in view of the character of the work which St. Patrick did in endeavouring to improve the moral condition of Ireland, it is appropriate that the celebration of this natal day should fall on Sunday.

This service will be under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and the offering, which will be a special one, will be devoted to the funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

On Monday, under the auspices of the T. A. S. of St. Peter's, the annual St. Patrick's day concert will be held, the Grand Opera House having been engaged for the occasion. The prospects are that the house will be filled to overflowing, as concerts under these auspices are always well attended.

Mr. D. O'Connell, one of the most eloquent of the Irishmen in Peterborough, will go to Cobourg on Monday and will deliver a lecture on St. Patrick at a celebration to be held there.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church, a St. Patrick's day concert will be given in the hall at that church Monday night, as well.

"I WANT YOUR MONEY"

Citizen Held Up on Railway Track in South End by Highwayman, Who Demanded His Money—Revolver Produced But Was Not Utilized.

HOW THE PEDESTRIAN'S NON-CHALANCE PROTECTED HIM

A mid-night hold-up savouring of the Jesse James and Harry Tracy variety is reported from the south end of the city, where a pedestrian was summoned the other night to halt and hand over his money to a highwayman. Mr. Jas. Jackson, a resident of the southern part of the city, is the authority for the above and states that while walking along the railway track from the Grand Trunk bridge to Lock street, he was suddenly accosted by a man who called for his cash.

The incident is certainly one foreign to Peterborough and the deed appears to have been committed by some non-resident of the city.

Reached For Revolver

"I want your money," was the laconic statement the would-be robber made to Mr. Jackson. The latter states that although it came as a surprise to him he still retained his nerve. He had $30.00 in his pockets, he says, but he has it yet. Mr. Jackson did not readily comply with the request and states that the intruder reached to his hip pocket for a revolver to press his claim. But before the shooter was shoved up into his face he had the bandit guessing some. He refused him the money and dared him to attempt his villainous intentions.

The Robber Receded

His non-chalance in bluffing the intruder, had the effect of unnerving the latter, and with a few 'I didn't mean anything," remarks, he hurriedly disappeared down the railway bank and vanished over the fence.

Mr. Jackson hasn't the least idea who the mysterious man is but he evidently is one not any too much accustomed to the work he follows to obtain a livelihood. As far as can be learned no suspicious looking characters have since been seen around the south end, and it is probable the would-be robber or perhaps worse, has left the city for parts unknown, fearing he might fall into the hands of the police.

Happened About Midnight.

The incident occurred about twelve o'clock as Mr. Jackson was returning to his home from visiting his brother who resides near the Locks Bridge. Had it not been for his nerve in bluffing the stranger, he would undoubtedly have been compelled to hand over the $30.00. The occurrence as told by Mr. Jackson is arousing considerable interest among the south end people who are somewhat wary about taking the journey along the track where the highwaymen was met.

The Rapid Recovery Of Wall Street Stocks

The Wheat Market Sold Up Again To-day and Feeling is Now More Optimistic—Margin is Strong.

BANK'S STATEMENT GOOD

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, March 15. — Stocks were very strong again to-day, and the rally begun yesterday, was carried 5 to 10 points further. There was an immense volume of trading in the two hours of the session to-day but investment buying was again a big factor and the demand so far exceeded the supply that purchases could only be made by advancing prices.

Stocks All Up

Union Pacific was the leader in strength and gained over 8 points the rise being very rapid with the price jumping up 5 points in a minute. Atchison rose 5, BRT 5, Reading 6, St. Paul, 5, the Hill stocks 5, Sloss Sheffield 10, and Twin City 5. London sent higher prices this morning especially for U P and Southern Ry, while the buying of the Eries and the Steel stocks, attracted notice. Steel common was heavily dealt in, advancing nearly four while the preferred jumped to 103. There was talk of an increased dividend for Steel common at the meeting in April accompanying the rise.

The Silver Lining

There was a complete reversal of front shown to-day, and those who saw nothing but gloom on Thursday were already talking increased dividends and favourable developments in general. Wall street forgets quickly.

The bank statement was better than had been looked for and a flood of buying orders came out on its appearance and stocks jumped to the high prices of the day, then settled back a little and closed strong.

Morgan Strong

The strength of the Morgan stocks to-day was a feature and the Morgan following abroad was said to be responsible and buying for investment. Now that the smoke has cleared away the Street is turning its attention to the wonderful report of the U S Steel Corporation for 1906. This report and the prospects of the steel trade for the future is having a reassuring effect on holders of securities and the stocks which were bought on the big break will, it is generally believed, not return to the Street until much higher levels are reached.

TWO CITIZENS HAVE NARROW ESCAPES

The Shunting Engine Struck The Cutter

Dr. Scott Had a Narrow Escape From Serious Injury by Engine Running Into His Vehicle.

IS A DANGEROUS CROSSING

On Thursday a narrow escape from injury, occurred at the Reid street crossing on the G. T. R., near the William Hamilton Company's works. Dr. Scott was driving across the track, when his cutter was struck by a freight car, attached to the shunting engine.

The buildings which are built close to the track, prevents one driving from the south from seeing when cars are moving on the track, and in this case the occupant of the cutter did not notice the cars until it was too late and the vehicle was struck, and Dr. Scott thrown out.

Fortunately, however, the cars were not moving very rapidly, and beyond the shock and a few bruises he was uninjured. The occurrence, however, calls attention to the necessity for a gateman being stationed at this crossing, which is, in many respects, one of the most dangerous in the city.

Fire Team Knocked The Spectator Down

Fred. Munn Was Waiting for Fire Brigade to Leave Hall and Was Injured.

HIS LEG BADLY INJURED.

As the second fire team was leaving the hall to attend the fire this afternoon, Fred Munn, one of a large crowd of spectators who had gathered around the fire hall was knocked down by the horses and had a narrow escape from serious injury.

The horses were travelling rapidly and Munn did not get out of the way in time to prevent being thrown down. His leg was injured and his trousers practically torn from one leg. Beyond this, however, he escaped unhurt, but it was almost miraculous.

CAMBRIDGE WON FROM THE OXFORD CREW

Annual Boat Race Took Place at Putney To-day and Was Witnessed by Immense Crowd.

Examiner Special

Putney, Eng., March 16. — Cambridge won the annual boat race over Oxford to-day by 4 1-2 lengths. The time was slow.

There was an immense crowd at the course and the winning crew was heartily cheered, though the win was not as popular as it would have been had the honours gone to the Oxford crew.

PRESENTED WITH A PAST MASTERS' JEWEL

Very Wor. Bro. R. M. Dennistoun Honoured by Brethren of Corinthian Lodge.

FOR MANY YEARS A MEMBER

At the regular meeting of Corinthian Lodge No. 101, A.F. and A.M., last night, the brethren took advantage of the opportunity to honour Very Worshipful Brother R. M. Dennistoun, who is leaving shortly for the West. Mr. Dennistoun has been connected with Corinthian Lodge for many years and has been most popular with his fellow members. He is a past master of the lodge, and it is a singular fact that for three generations there has been a past master in his family, his father and grandfather having also held a similar honour.

Last night Very Wor. Bro. Dennistoun was presented with a past master jewel, with the square and compass as a pendant, and the inscription, "Presented to Very Wor. Bro. Dennistoun by the Brethren of Corinthian Lodge, March 15, 1907." The presentation was made by Very Wor. Bro. H. C. Winch, the oldest past master in the lodge, on behalf of the brethren.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a very enjoyable banquet was held at which many references were made to Mr. Dennistoun's connection with Corinthian Lodge, and regret was expressed on all sides at his departure from the city. Solos by Mr. Dennistoun and Mr. Mellroy were enjoyable features.

The Lakefield Saw Mill To Run Day And Night

Report That Cavendish Lumber Company Will Operate Its Lakefield Mills Twenty-four Hours a Day This Summer.

EXTENDING ITS BUILDINGS

The Cavendish Lumber Company, it is reported, intend to carry on more extensive operations in their mills at Lakefield during the coming season, than they have done in any year in the past.

A gentleman who was in Lakefield yesterday stated to the Examiner that new stables were under course of construction, and the intention of the company is to run the mill night and day, the enlargement of the stables being made in order to provide additional accommodation for the extra horses which would be required by reason of the double shift of men working.

The favourable winter has resulted in a more than usually large cut, and the reported intention of the company, ever since it acquired the business of the Dickson Company has been to cut the timber in the limits into logs, and reap the benefits as quickly as possible.

If the mill is to run at night, as now seems to be the intention, it will mean that twice the usual number of men will be employed.

Site Is Selected For The New Buckhorn Church

Active Steps are Being Taken by Presbyterian Congregation to Erect New House of Worship in Near Future.

$560 ALREADY SUBSCRIBED

At a largely attended meeting of the recently formed Presbyterian congregation at Buckhorn, held in the True Blue Hall, 12th March, it was unanimously decided to purchase a lot south of the school house and facing Mr. John Jones' house and store for the erection of a Presbyterian church. The site, which is in a commanding position, affords accommodation for the erection of the necessary sheds. The Board of Management was elected members of the Building Fund Committee with power to add to their number. The amount subscribed for the erection of a Presbyterian church amounts to $560.00, and the movement was only inaugurated in January of this year.

GOOD RESULTS OF FIRST WEEK'S SERVICES

The first week in the revival services being held in Park Street Baptist Church, closed last night, and the verdict is that the week has been a most successful one, from the standpoint of attendance as well as from that of results and religious fervor. Mr. Torrie will preach both morning and evening to-morrow, and in the afternoon will address the Sunday School. Special music is being provided for the day, and a special feature will be the presence of the Y.M.C.A. male quartette, which will render several numbers. Those in charge of the services are well satisfied with the results of the first week's meetings, and anticipations are for greater success next week.

POLLS MAY BE OPEN UNTIL 8 O'CLOCK

Peterboro's Recommendation to That Effect Favourably Considered.

The recommendation from the city council that all cities be given the right to keep open the polls until eight o'clock on election night, to enable the workingmen to poll their votes, was passed by the Municipal Committee of the Ontario Committee of the Ontario Legislature when it was introduced by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., yesterday morning. It will be remembered that the local council discussed this question some time ago and arrived at the above method as the best arrangement that could be secured whereby workingmen would have a chance to poll their votes. The suggestion was made to have municipal election day on New Year's day every year, but this was not feasible and the other system was decided upon. That it will become law now is certain, as it will be without doubt passed by the Legislature after having been favourably considered by the Municipal Committee.

LOCAL ENTERTAINERS WERE WELL RECEIVED

Mr. and Mrs. Kyle, the well-known entertainers, were present at an entertainment at Millbrook on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the public library, and the Mirror says that "they proved conclusively their ability to delight an audience and deserved the hearty applause given to them." Mr. and Mrs. Kyle have many engagements in the district, including concerts at Ennismore on Monday night under the auspices of the T.A.B., at Keene, Hastings and at Havelock.

Season Route For The Northern Canal Outlet

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, March 15.—The report of E. J. Walsh, C.E., engineer in charge of the surveys on the Trent Canal from Lake Simcoe to the Georgian Bay, was presented to Parliament to-day. The conclusion reached by Mr. Walsh is that the route should be the natural one, namely, by way of the Severn River, from Lake Couchiching to the Georgian Bay. The cost of six feet navigation is estimated at $1,219,818; of eight feet navigation, that is eight feet four inches on the mitre sill and nine feet in the reaches, is $1,457,244.

The Deluge Of Railway Accidents Still Continues

Examiner Special

Detroit, Mich., March 16.—The Chicago flyer on the Grand Trunk due here at 7.45 a.m., ran into an open switch about 7 o'clock at Bancroft and twenty persons are reported to have been injured. The engineer and fireman are said to be fatally scalded. The train was running two hours late when the accident happened.

MAINTENANCE OF BOUNDARY ROADS

The Board of Works Committee of the City Council is meeting the North Monaghan Council this afternoon in reference to the maintenance of the boundary roads between the city and the township. The arrangement hitherto has been that each municipality should maintain a part the road but the township council desire a revision of the method and the Board of Works will deal with the matter this afternoon.

Omemee Favourable To Completion Of Canal

At Largely Attended Meeting of Citizens Last Night Question of Dredging of Pigeon Creek Was Discussed.

A DEPUTATION IS NAMED

Examiner Special.

Omemee, March 16.—Last night one of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in this village considered the now all-important question of the deepening of the Pigeon Creek, to this village, making it navigable, and a part of the Trent Canal. The meeting was called by Mr. J. D. Thornton, who has taken a deep interest in this movement, and that the citizens appreciate the importance of the project was evidenced by the large number who turned out last night to the meeting.

A petition setting forth the request of the citizens had already been prepared, and will be sent to the Cabinet at Ottawa by Mr. McLaughlin, of Lindsay, and the meeting last night considered the advisability of sending a deputation to Ottawa on Tuesday, with that in connection with the completion of the south end of the canal. A delegation consisting of a number of the most influential men of the village and community was named last night, but, on communicating with Mr. Thornton this morning, it was decided to defer their visit to the capital until a later date, in view of the fact that the petition has not yet been considered by the Minister of Railways and Canals.

The people of this village, however, are anxious for the early completion of the southern outlet of the canal, and will give all the support possible to secure an appropriation at this session.

POLITICAL PREACHERS

The Canadian Churchman the organ of the Anglican Church in Canada, presumably independent of political affiliations, but if not, presumably Tory in sympathies, has the following remarks on "Political Sermons":—

An evil which has greatly grown in recent years is that of ministers and clergy of many denominations taking political sides and turning what they call their pulpit into a party platform. This is not only dreadfully sinful and degrading, but these persons expose themselves to legal consequences of misrepresentation. It was long since laid down that "no clergyman is entitled to make his pulpit the vehicle of slanderous expressions or to screen himself under any plea of his office as a clergyman, and that to make a slanderous charge from the pulpit is the mode of giving the most rapid diffusion to the slander throughout the parish, and tantamount to a statement of it to each parishioner."

No other where than in Peterborough is the spirit of the object of the Churchman's unequivocal reproof, more in evidence. Though directly partizan sermons may not have been preached, attitudes have been assumed practically tantamount. It is given to preachers to deal with matters appertaining to morals, political and other. The pulpit, however, is no place to preach partizanship, nor is the role of the preacher indicated as justifying a violently party attitude. It is permitted to preachers to endeavour to bring their flock to a moral condition, that will lead them to be influenced by moral considerations in exercising their franchise. It is, however, obviously not the preacher's duty to take a partizan attitude and to endeavour to impress moral considerations upon his congregation as a reason for following the partizan injunctions, to which he may give expression. In no flock are all the members of the same political faith; and, while a partizan appeal may be accepted on one side by complaisant acceptance of a position already assumed, another moiety of his congregation will be placed in antagonism, and resent an invasion of their right to independent opinion in matters not necessarily involving moral obligations towards parson or church. From a layman's point of view, the right of his minister to hold political convictions and act upon them, is not to be denied; but it is obviously improper, if not as the Churchman puts it, "sinful and degrading" for ministers to "turn, what they call their pulpit, into a party platform." If St. Paul took the position that it must madden his brother to offend, he would refrain from its use. certainly parsons have no warrant for creating the heart-burnings and discord following ex-cathedra partizan utterances as well as extra-cathedra attitudes and actions of a partizan character. Ministers fomenting discord in their congregations by too great political activity and partizan sympathy very often themselves feel the pinch of the upper and nether millstone.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The T. Eaton estate, Toronto, amounts to $2,699,612.94. Here is an instance of a man accumulating over two and on half millions of dollars by simple means, organization, system and advertising.

There are 87 school banks in operation under the Nottingham Education Committee, and 13,611 or nearly 50 per cent. of the pupils in the schools are depositors, the average amount standing to their credit being 3s 8 1-2d.

Rider Haggard, the novelist, deals in no fiction when, yesterday, in addressing three hundred Salvation Army emigrants leaving Euston Station for Canada, he said they were going to a land where every man could rise who put his back into the work. That's the real condition. Old Countrymen who come to Canada and put into practice an honest intention to work industriously, live thriftily and soberly, can become freeholders and valuable citizens.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

To-morrow is St. Patrick's Day—dear as the light of day to every mother's son of the Emerald Isle. It is only natural that Irishmen should recognize the day, but it is a splendid sign of the unity and amity of Canadian citizenship to note that Irishmen are not alone in their recognition of the day. Meeting a man on the streets on St. Patrick's Day with a sprig of shamrock in his coat is not necessarily an indication that an Irish heart beats beneath it, but it's always a sign that there is a heart there that beats in sympathy with the Irish fellow-Canadian—common natives of land, which has given Irishmen what Ireland, with all its dower of moral, intellectual and martial greatness, never gave but to few, a happy freehold home and the widest opportunities for comfort and competence. In no other country in the world than Canada can Irishmen look back from as bright a vantage ground to the old land of dear memories, with a more contented and happy spirit. Here they find all, outside national and home associations, that they failed to find at home, for here, no matter what the national origin, all are Canadians and brethren, citizens of the brightest, freest, happiest land on earth. The animosities that burn so bitterly in the home land are for such perfect harmony. Nowhere else in world besides, can be found the "thistle, shamrock, rose, entwined," with such perfect harmony. Nowhere else in the world are the conditions for the highest and happiest living so richly presented.

A GRAND SUNDAY SACRED CONCERT

We hear much from time to time of church union, between religious bodies of different communions. It would seem, however, that this movement, or impulse to movement, is to a certain extent, premature. We can see in almost every urban community of any size, two or more church centres of the same denominational name, existing, in greater or less degree, at daggers drawn—envious of each other's "success," and, in many way, showing a spirit of unbrotherly stand-offness, if not distrust, which seldom exists so overtly between church communions separated by ditches of dogma and bearing different names. We thus have churches of the same communion mutually failing to show the spirit which makes harmony and unity of brotherly regard possible. What then can be expected from organic union of churches of different beliefs and opinions originally incompatible and only made provisionally compatible by mutual sacrifice of creed and sentiment, and, it may be said, self respect?

The Anglican churches of Peterborough have shown an example of the beginnings of communal co-operation, the obvious condition of a broader church union. The recent joint activities of the St. Andrew's Brotherhoods of the churches of St. John's, St. Luke's and All Saints', constitute one evidence of closer inter-family union. This is something, but it is as nothing to the marvel of the harmonious co-operation of church choirs. The spell that can lay the spirit of jealously proverbially, and, it is to be feared, practically, inherent, in church choirs, must be a potent one. There is therefore, something encouragingly significant in the fact that the choirs of St. John's and All Saints' have combined their forces to produce Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion" successively in both churches. This is a spirit which should be encouraged. If these two choirs have thus established a precedent for union of congregational co-operation on broader fields, why not regard as possible the union of other choirs, in larger and more ambitious musical effort? What might not be done in promoting unity of sentiment and real brotherhood among the different denominations of the city, by the union of all the choirs of the city in the study of good sacred choral works, with a view to their free production, on Sunday afternoons at, say, monthly intervals, in the Opera House? Would not this tend to produce a spirit of, not only musical, but of inter-denominational harmony and help to make straight the path to the closer religious relationship of the several church denominations? Besides an opportunity would be afforded and an incentive created, to hundreds who never hear choirs in the churches, to listen to uplifting and possibly, regenerative sacred song.

The Whitney Government is getting high prices for timber limits; but they have one block of Pyne on their hands that won't bring a bid.

Mrs. Russell Sage has set apart ten million dollars to discover the cause of adverse social conditions. That's easy—robbery in the making of millionaires is one great cause.

St. John's Y. P. A.

Mr. F. D. Kerr will deliver his lecture entitled "Europe as I Saw it," at St. John's schoolroom Monday at 8 p.m. The Young People's Association remember Mr. Kerr's entertaining style of former lectures and extend an invitation to all their friends to be with them Monday evening. Some musical numbers will complete the programme.

OUR MINING INTERESTS

Canada has, compared with other countries established no very considerable record in standard literature. But in the domain of current literature — journalistic—she has made a very creditable record. Especially in class journalism, has conspicuous progress has been made. In finance and various departments of trade, engineering, mechanics, etc., in agriculture, horticulture, etc., the journals of Canada specifically devoted to these several interests, are most creditable. Nothing, however, in this line has appeared quite so good as the splendid combination resulting from the amalgamation of the "Canadian Mining Review," and the "Canadian Mining Journal," the latter being retained as the name of the new publication. This is a well-edited, well-written and well-printed journal, admirably illustrated by first-rate photogravures, intelligently selected. Nothing for a long time has been so well printed as the cover picture, which now lies before us, on the front cover of No. 1, Vol. I., of the "Canadian Mining Journal." It is a splendidly reproduced piebald picture in colours of a chunk of cobalt, nickel-silver ore, about as big as — a lump of coal. It shows the peachy pink of the cobalt bloom, intermingled and blended with the delicate green of the nickel bloom, and the starlight sheen of native silver. The Journal has a good excuse for the excellence of its initial number, for it represents a great and growingly important element of our national wealth of resources. The mining interests of Canada are already respectably large and, moreover, full of promise. Some idea of this may be got from the fact that the mineral output of Canada last year was eighty millions of dollars. This is an increase of ten million dollars in our subterranean harvest over the crop of last year, and eighty times in excess of the output twenty years ago. We can now boast of not only the largest and richest deposits of nickel in the world, but we can also claim to have the greatest silver field on the continent. Our iron deposits are also of great extent and value. Add to these, great stores of miscellaneous economic minerals on deposit in nature's vaults in Canada, and the sum total of our mineral riches is not to be despised. They are well worthy of the services of promotion of their interests the Canadian Mining Journal is so well-equipped to give. It has an able staff of contributors, each specially qualified to treat the topics of the department to which he is assigned.

Back So Lame Could Not Walk

DOCTOR'S EFFORTS WERE IN VAIN BUT CURE CAME WITH THE USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

It is not always the doctor's fault when he tries to give temporary relief instead of lasting cure. Sometimes patients demand it.

The thorough, far-reaching and lasting effects of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are well illustrated in this case, in contrast with the doctor's failure to even bring relief:

Mr. Geo. Tryon, Westport, Leeds Co., Ont., writes:—"For two years I was completely laid up with lame back, and could neither walk nor ride. I tried many treatments and the doctor put on a fly blister, which only increased the suffering and did not do me the slightest good.

"A friend told me about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I had not finished the first box before I was completely cured. I have never had a lame back or kidney trouble since, and it has been the means of selling dozens of boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. We are never without them in the house and thank there is no medicine like them."

The urea, uric acid and other poisonous waste substances which are left in the blood after the process of digestion has taken place are eliminated from the system by the action of the kidneys. Failure of the kidneys to perform this important work of filtration means a poisoning of the whole system and consequently the most painful of diseases, such as Bright's disease, lumbago, backache and rheumatism.

The cause of such ailments are most promptly removed by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This great family medicine has a combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels which is not possessed by any similar preparation. The whole system is quickly and thoroughly cleansed and the vital organs invigorated by this treatment. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

ANOTHER SKATE IN THE CHARLOTTE STREET RINK

Mr. McIntosh Proposes to Allow the Former Patrons of the Rink This Privilege.

Before the ice at the curling rink disappears Mr. Angus McIntosh proposes to allow the former patrons of the Charlotte street rink to have an evening's skate. It has always been Mr. McIntosh's custom to each year, throw open the doors to those who were frequenters of the rink before the new one was erected.

The centre ice is in splendid condition for skating and if arrangements are made there will no doubt be a large number avail themselves of the opportunity.

MORE SKILL IN TRADE

One Man Working at One Thing Develops Both Facility and Skill

The president of the Semi-ready Company promises to present to the readers of this paper before Good Friday an exact reproduction of the new Frock Coat for the spring of 1907. This gentleman has been the creator and designer of Semi-ready styles for nine years and to his genius much of the distinctive grace of these garments is attributed.

With the possible exception of the dress suit, most custom tailors dread the making of a frock coat. The correct shape and the draping call for more skill than is usually available in the ranks of the journeyman tailor. The Semi-ready Company have so perfected the making of frock coats that each one of the 100 coats made each week is a model of artistic tailoring. And what interests a gentleman more closely is that for $30.00 he can get a silk-faced vienna frock coat, with vest and trousers, the same class of garments for which a custom tailor would ask from $40. to $50.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

STAINER'S CRUCIFIXION

The announcement that Stainer's sacred Oratoria, "The Crucifixion," is to be solemnly sung at All Saints' church, on Thursday, March 21st, and at St. John's on Good Friday, March 20th, brings a flood of recollections of the early eighties, when, under the inspired work of Dean Stanley, Canon Liddan and Sir John Stainer, St. Paul's cathedral, services took their place in London church life, as the embodiment of the noblest traditions of English Church choral services. Although these great men have long since passed to rest, their works live on, and when Sir John Stainer wrote the "Crucifixion" music and inscribed it to his old friend and pupil, William Hodge, organist of the historic parish church of Marylebone, he gave to parish choirs generally a work that has been sung more than any of his famous works. During the next two weeks, thousands of choirs throughout the world will be preparing it, to lead our thoughts, step by step, along the road of our Blessed Lord's sufferings, until it seems that the mob shouting "Crucify" is actually with us, until, in the softly blended men's chorus "It is finished," we realize that once more the world's greatest tragedy has been pictured before us, and the resurrection is indeed at hand.

Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion," was first sung in Peterborough on Good Friday of last year at St. John's, after Mr. R. J. Devey, as organist and choirmaster, took charge of the music. He will also conduct on its next presentation in All Saints' church, on Thursday, March 21st, by the united choirs of St. John's and All Saints, which have joined forces for the occasion and rehearsed "The Crucifixion," under the baton of Mr. Devey. On Good Friday it will be repeated in St. John's.

WRIST BROKEN IN FALL ON THE ICE

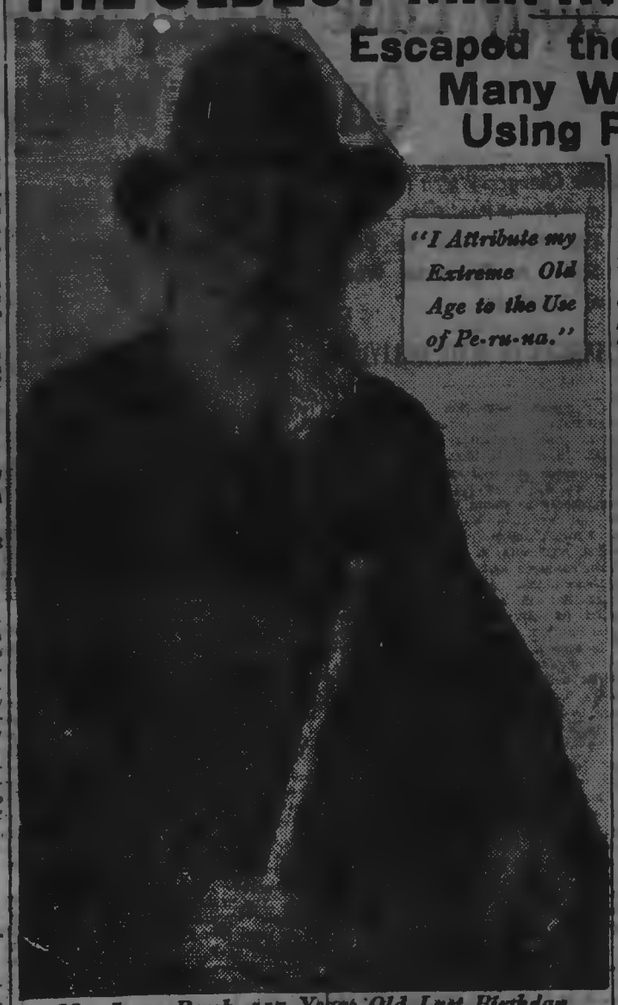
Painful Accident to Mrs H. R. Patterson of Stewart Street.

An unfortunate accident occurred to Mrs. H. R. Paterson, 183 Stewart street, this morning, in which she sustained a colles fracture in her right arm. She was crossing the street at the corner of Stewart and King streets, when she slipped on the ice and broke her arm at the wrist.

Dr. Gray was summoned and set the fracture, which is yet causing Mrs. Paterson severe pain.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.



"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 117 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 117 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 117 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 23 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in this world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 117 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes, it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. The only thing that bothers me is my sight. If I could see better I could walk all over the farm, and it would do me good. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

When old age comes, it brings with it catarrhal diseases. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people. This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to many old people.

CITY COUNCIL TO MEET ON MONDAY

Several Matters of Importance are to Come Up Then.

The City Council will hold its usual weekly meeting on Monday night when several matters will be taken up. Representatives of the Otonabee Power Company will wait upon the council in an effort to have the negotiations between the two satisfactorily cleared up. The building bylaw, if it is to come in force this season, will also have to be passed soon, and the council will discuss it also on Monday night. Another matter is the proposed changes in the wards as was suggested by the Mayor at the meeting last week. The fire alarm boxes must be numbered almost at once so that if the wards are to be changed as proposed it must be done at once if at all.

A NEW AUTOMOBILE BOUGHT BY LOCAL MAN

Large Touring Car for Use Between Peterborough and Lakefield This Summer.

The people about town this afternoon, no doubt, saw the new automobile or rather touring car as it is correctly named. It was a fine large car with top and front, and had every appearance of possessing the most desirable machine qualities. It is the property of Mr. Fred Darcy. It was brought from Toronto and unloaded at the C. P. R. yards to-day. It has seats front and back and is painted a bright red. The upholstering is elegant and comfortable and the new machine is a decided addition to the number already in the city.

Mr. Darcy announces that he will run it between Lakefield and Peterborough during the summer season, that is at hand. It was in good condition when it arrived here, and was made ready for the road in a few hours.

OBITUARY.

AGNES ANDERSON

The death occurred this morning in Otonabee, at the residence of her brother, Mr. John Anderson, of Miss Agnes Anderson, after an illness extending over a period of about six months. Latterly, however, the deceased improved in health considerably, and was doing well until she was taken ill with la grippe, which was the direct cause of her death. Deceased was 62 years of age and was born in Otonabee, where she had resided until her death. She leaves two brothers, Mr. Wm. Anderson, M. P. P., and Mr. John Anderson, Otonabee, and from the residence of the latter the funeral will take place on Monday next at 2 o'clock, and proceed to Keene Cemetery for interment.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, No. 20, Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states: — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what the doctors called varicose ulcers. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very start Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

BRONCHITIS CAN BE CURED

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Will Do It.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by inclement weather or exposure to wet, and is a very dangerous inflamatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color.

Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of consumption, so cure it at once by the use of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Mrs. S. Fiddler, Linton's, N.B., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of my experience with Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. My little girl was very low with Bronchitis and our doctor did all in his power for her, but could only give her relief for a short time. My husband saw your medicine advertised, and immediately procured three bottles. I never saw anything give so much relief in so short a time. It stopped the annoying cough at night and she is now perfectly cured. I am so glad I can hardly express my gratitude for what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has done for me."

Price 25 cents at all dealers.

Stony Lake Transportation Question Widely Discussed

Some Changes Which the Summer Resort Public are Asking For--Grand Trunk to Build Siding to Steamboat Wharf at Lakefield.

CHANGES IN MAIL DELIVERY

The annual migration to Peterborough County's most prominent summer resort--Stony Lake--is again close at hand. In a little more than a couple of months the cottage owners and campers will have begun to make arrangements to spend their spare hours on the beautiful waters and islands of Kawarthadom. But the problem which confronts a great many cottagers, campers and tourists is that of transportation. It is generally conceded that the system which has prevailed for the past number of seasons has not been a satisfactory one. It is also a well known fact that on many occasions individuals have pointed out defects and suggested improvements but it is only recently that an organized effort has been made to effect a better transportation system.

The travelling public believe that transportation to and from Stony Lake can be simplified to lessen the time it takes to complete a journey from Toronto and also from Peterborough to points on the upper lakes. They have invested the right to attempt improvements in the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association, and active steps have already been taken this year by that body.

What The People Want

There are two important changes asked for by way of the Grand Trunk Railway through Peterborough to Lakefield. Great difficulty has been experienced in the past in getting the baggage from the trains at Lakefield station to the steamboats at the wharf, and vice versa. The worry over parcels, baggage, etc., which so often go astray, is sometimes distracting to owners. They have to keep an eye on their belongings as they come off the train and also as they are placed on the boats. Often, too, in rainy weather it is almost impossible for pedestrians to reach the wharf without soiling or spoiling footwear and clothing.

The other defect which has been brought up for consideration is the delay of the afternoon boat in leaving the Lakefield wharf. The cause is directly due to the fact that it is the mail steamer and that all Stony Lake mail must go through the Lakefield post office.

Improvements Suggested

To alleviate these nuisances--which the tourists consider them to be--two radical changes have been proposed. The Cottagers Association, of which Mr. Jas. Acton of Toronto, is president, have interviewed the Grand Trunk Railway with respect to the first named and have received a very encouraging reply.

The proposed scheme is to construct a siding from the Grand Trunk track which runs to the Lillicrap saw mill down to the steamboat wharf. This can be accomplished at little expense as the track now runs to the water's edge, and only a few rods of siding would have to be laid. As can be easily seen the baggage difficulty would be eliminated. time would be gained and the lengthy trip from the station to the wharf, over none too perfect a road, would be a thing of the past.

The association have received assurance that the matter would be seriously considered and they hope that in the near future this will be accomplished.

The Mail Service

As stated above, the delay of the afternoon boat in beginning its voyage up the lakes is greatly due to the wait for the mail, which is assorted at Lakefield post office. As far as can be learned nothing definite has been arranged regarding a change in this respect. The association believes the only remedy would be to have the mail for the Stony Lake post offices assorted in Peterborough and placed in separate bags from that which goes to Lakefield. The government, however, will have to be approached for such a change and it is probable it will be.

Should the proposition be carried out, or a similar one, it would enable passengers to reach their destinations on the lake an hour or more before the customary time of the past.

C. P. R. Change

The Cottagers Association have also approached the C. P. R. with regard to a better service from Toronto to Bobcaygeon via Buckhorn. The Trent Valley Navigation Company have also been interviewed for a faster service to Burleigh. An hour at least is lost in calling at Chemong Park in the trip between Bobcaygeon and Burleigh. The association ask to have the Chemong trip eliminated from the route of at least one steamer. The C. P. R. have promised to do their part providing the navigation company make some changes.

Less Calls Proposed

A great trouble, which the steamers on the upper lakes are experiencing is the numerous calls. It is no doubt exasperating to the captains to have to call for a single passenger without baggage at an island near a regular stopping place, and, as the steamer moves away to see a person from that island row over to a spot which is always an objective point to again bid good-bye to the departing guest. Yet this circumstance is met with every day in the summer season and does not appear to improve. Often the boats are rushed to catch the trains and such delays hamper their efforts considerably.

Earlier Boat Proposed

There is also a feeling among a great many of the younger population of Peterborough that an earlier morning boat, especially on Mondays and after holidays, is necessary. There undoubtedly would be many more spend Sunday at the lakes if arrangements could be made to get down to the city earlier on the following morning. There are many who carry keys for offices which have to be opened by nine or ten o'clock, who can not arrive by train until a few minutes after and have, therefore, to either remain at home over Sunday or paddle down to the city on Monday mornings.

There are even some who propose an earlier boat every morning, and one which would bring Toronto passengers here in time to leave for their homes on the early morning trains. However, this is a question which rests wholly with the Stony Lake and Trent Valley Navigation Companies to consider and it is probable that, if a definite proposition was submitted to them by a large number of frequenters of Kawarthadom, they would give the matter serious consideration.

A Joint Meeting

The transportation problem is certainly a momentuous one and a change is on the wing. It is proposed that a joint meeting be held in the near future in Toronto, consisting of representatives from the Grand Trunk, C. P. R., Stony Lake and Trent Valley Navigation Companies and the Cottagers Association, to talk the matter over and if possible come to an agreement whereby some of the above-mentioned defects may be improved and thus give to the population who visit Stony Lake and the transportation companies every opportunity to make that popular resort more popular in the near future.

COMMENCE SUGAR MAKING OPERATIONS IN DUMMER

Examiner Special.

Hall's Glen, March 15.--Mr. Wm. Carveth and sons are making preparations for the sugar-making season. As soon as the sap begins to run they will repair to their excellent bush in the eighth concession of Dummer, where they will remain gathering some of the sweets of life until the season closes.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Alex. Darling intends enlarging his already extensive sugar bush. Mr. Darling has every preparation made for a good season's run, and has every modern convenience to lighten labour and to assist in making first-class syrup, and should the season prove favourable and the prices of syrup remain good, Mr. Darling's resources will be almost unlimited. He will, at least, be able to supply the neighbouring towns with their supply of syrup.

THE CHEMONG LAKE ICE IS THIRTY INCHES THICK NOW

Bobcaygeon people do not know to what thickness the ice on Chemong Lake forms, and yesterday, when a man from that village wanted to cross the lake with a team of horses he was a little timid about risking it, and expressed some doubt as to the ability of the ice to support his team and himself, but, upon being told that there was still thirty inches of ice on the lake, he was satisfied, and made a dash on to the ice, which was, of course, strong enough to carry him and his heavy draught team.

EGGS NOW SELL AT 20 CENTS PER DOZ.

Common Commodities Were Appreciably Decreased in Price at the Market To-day.

The feature of to-day's market was the drop in the price of eggs from 25 cents last Saturday to 20 cents to-day. The market was largely attended, in spite of the poor condition of the roads in the city and throughout the country. Especially in the market building there was an excellent display of butter and eggs which were shown in abundance. There was an over supply of eggs, which may account for the reduced price. Almost every woman had a large basket of eggs for sale, and the fair buyers were just as anxious to reduce the 20 cents to 18, as they were last Saturday to reduce it from 25 to 24 cents. There was plenty of butter, and its gradually decreasing price should continue to run down the scale, as the spring slowly, but surely, improves the fields and the farmers' cattle.

There was a large supply of potatoes to-day, selling at 90 cents per bag. Beef and pork remained at the same prices to-day. Hay has soared from the customary price, and many were asking $15 a ton. It should not be long before maple sugar is offered on the market.

The following prices were quoted for the various products:

Potatoes, per bag	90	to
Apples, per bag	1 00	to	1 15
Onions, per peck	25
Beets, per peck	15
Cabbage, per head	5

TELEPHONE TO JUNIPER ISLAND STORE

Proposed for This Summer--Also Direct Line to Mr. A. L. Davis' Island.

Stony Lake in a few years will probably be connected with the city by telephones and thus enable business men to sit in their cottages on the lake and transact their business in the city. During the coming summer it is reported that two important lines will be instituted. Mr. T. W. Robinson the proprietor of the Juniper Island store is making arrangements to have a line connecting this store with the outside world.

It is proposed that a cable be laid under Stony Lake from McCracken's Landing to the southern end of Juniper Island and by poles extend the line to the store. Although a definite decision has not been reached, telephone connection with Juniper Island this year is practically assured.

Another line is proposed direct from Lakefield to the island of Mr. A. L. Davis with only the one subscriber. The object of this, it is understood, is to obtain direct communication with Peterborough and Toronto and thus enable the Hon. Geo. A. Cox, who is a frequent visitor at the island in summer, to spend a great deal more of his time there.

KIRKFIELD LOCK IS READY FOR OPERATION

Mr. W. Jobe, in Charge of the Lock, Expects a Busy Season for the Staff--Lock All Ready.

Mr. W. Jobe of Kirkfield, was in the city to-day. Mr. Jobe was formerly connected with the Lift Lock on the Trent Canal at Peterborough, and at the present time is in charge of the Kirkfield Lock, for the Dominion Bridge Company.

As soon as navigation opens in the spring the Kirkfield Lock will be ready to operate and Mr. Jobe expects that the coming season will be a busy one for the staff of the canal on that section.

THE FUNERAL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Remains of Late Mrs. James Dolan Laid to Rest This Morning--Relatives From a Distance Here.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jas. Dolan, which took place this morning from the residence of Mr. H. LeBrun, Simcoe street, at 8 o'clock, was very largely attended, a great many of the friends of the deceased lady, both from the city and outside gathering to pay their respects to her memory.

The requiem high mass was sung at the cathedral by Rev. Father McColl, while at the cemetery the service was conducted by Rev. Father O'Leary. The pall-bearers were Messrs. B. Monrow, J. Moloney, H. LeBrun, N. T. Laplante, John Corkery and M. Connors.

Among those who attended the funeral from out of the city were her four sons, Messrs. Bert, Kear and Herman, of Chicago, and James, of Columbus, O. Misses Sadie and Marguerite Dolan, of Chicago, daughters, were also in attendance, while Miss Lemay and Mr. Leopold Lemay, of Bracebridge, sister and brother, respectively, of the deceased, came to attend the funeral.

"THE BEST PLACE TO BUY YOUR LIQUORS"

HAIL TO ST. PATRICK

He died at Saul, the spot which Dichu had given him on his first arrival, and was buried at Downpatrick, where his relics were preserved down to the period of the Reformation. This place is still venerated by the people. The date of his death is much disputed; some place it at 460, but others favour the year 493. This would leave St. Patrick at his death to be 120 years old.

Happy isle!
Be true; for God hath graved on thee His name.
God, with a wondrous ring, hath wedded thee;
God, on a throne divine, hath stablished thee.
Light of a darkling world! Lamp of the North!
My race, my realm, my great inheritance,
To lesser nations leave inferior crowns;
Speak ye the thing that is; be just be kind;
Live ye God's truth, and in His strength be free!

Results Of His Efforts

The mission of St. Patrick was eminently successful. He adopted the expedient of addressing himself first to the chiefs, and of improving, as far, as possible, the spirit of clanship and other interesting usages of the Irish for the furtherance of his preaching; nor can it be doubted that he had great success in Christianizing the ancient Irish system of belief and of practice. According to the accounts of Irish biographers he founded 365 churches, and baptized with his own hand 12,000 persons. He is also said to have consecrated 450 bishops, ordained a great number of priests and to have blessed very many monks and nuns.

Character Of Early Irish

In the main, the institutions and traditions of Ireland were favourable to Christianity. She had preserved in a large measure, the patriarchal system of the East. Her clans were families, and her chiefs were patriarchs, who led their household to battle and seized or recovered the spoil. To such a people the Christian church announced herself as a great family—the family of man. The Irish received the Gospel gladly. The great and the learned in other nations the last to believe, among them commonly set the example. With the natural disposition of the race an appropriate culture has concurred. That culture, without removing the barbaric, had blended it with the refined. It had created among the people an appreciation of the beautiful, the pathetic and the pure. The early Irish chronicles, as well as songs, show how strong among them that sentiment had ever been.

The rapid growth of learning as well as piety, in the three centuries succeeding the conversion of Ireland, prove that the country had not been till then without a preparation for the gift. It had not been the special skill of St. Patrick to build the good which was lacked, upon that which existed. Even the material arts of Ireland he had pressed into the service of the Faith, and Irish craftsmen had assisted him not only in the building of his churches, but in casting his church bells, and in the adornment of his chalices, crosiers and ecclesiastical vestments. Once elevated by Christianity, Ireland's early civilization was a memorable thing. It sheltered a high virtue at home, and evangelized a great part of northern Europe, and amidst many confusions it held its own till the true time of barbarism had set in—when the Danish invasion trod down the sanctuaries, dispersed the libraries, and laid waste the colleges to which distant kings had sent their sons.

Influence of His Character

Perhaps nothing human had so large an influence in the conversion of the Irish as the personal character of her apostle. Where others, as Palladius, had failed, he succeeded. By nature, by grace, and by providential training he had been specially fitted for his task. In him a great character had been built on the foundation of a devout childhood, and of a youth ennobled by adversity. Everywhere we trace the might and the sweetness which belonged to it, the versatile mind, yet the simple heart, the varying mind, yet the fixed resolve, the large design taking counsel for all, and yet the minute solicitude for each; the fiery zeal yet the genial temper, the skill in using means, yet the reliance on God alone; the readiness in action, with the willingness to wait; the habitual self-possession yet the outburst of an inspiration, which raised him above himself; the abiding consciousness of authority, and yet the ever-present humility. Above all burned in him that boundless love, which seems the main constituent of the apostolic character. It was not for the spiritual weal alone of man that he thirsted. Wrong and injustice to the poor he resented as an injury to God. His vehement love for the poor is illustrated by his epistle to Corotious, reproaching him with his cruelty, as well as by his denunciations of slavery, which piracy had introduced into parts of Ireland. Now under that such a character should have exercised a talismanic power over the ardent and sensitive race among whom he laboured, a race "easy to be drawn, but impossible to be driven," and drawn more by sympathy than even by benefits.

Such is a short sketch of the character which his writings display and which the annals of the times relate of the Apostle of Ireland, whose memory is a guide for some of the Irish race, and should be for the whole Christian world.

St. Patrick's Day on the Veldt—1901

In gorgeous light the day did dawn,
In fairest hues 'twas glowing,
St. Patrick's sons the green had on,
The clarion's blast was blowing,

'Twas not for strife nor war's intent
Its silvery notes were ringing.
On peace—on union, all were bent;
Loyal hearts were closer clinging.

The shamrock and immortal green,
With rose and thistle blended,
Had gathered in a pleasing scene
Before the day had ended.

And Erin's sons in every land
Where e'er the day came beaming,
Did muster in a phalanx grand,
With badge and banner streaming.

With thoughts of friends and fatherland
Across the trackless ocean,
And groves, and loughs, and valleys grand
That rose with fond emotion,

Each sainted shrine, each holy well,
Each cascade, stream and fountain,
And haunt where beauty loves to dwell,
Amid the green clad mountain.

Then rose in vision bright and fair
All fresh with fancy's play,
When e'er the band struck up the air,
Known as "St. Patrick's Day."

SAINT PATRICK

By Rev. Fr. McColl.

It is certain that the Christian religion was known in Britain at a very early period; but the number of Christians in Ireland and Scotland before the fifth century, was not great. Pope Celestine consecrated Palladius bishop, (341), and sent him to Ireland, but he did not succeed in his mission. His place was soon taken by St. Patrick, the true apostle of Ireland, who, to a thorough knowledge of the country, united an extraordinary zeal, which eminently fitted him for the task of conversion. St. Patrick was born on the Clyde, Scotland. At the age of 16 he was taken captive, and brought to Ireland, where he spent six years as a shepherd. After recovering his freedom by divine interposition, he came again to Gaul, and received his education in knowledge and virtue in the monasteries of Marmoutier and Lerins. At the recommendation of St. Germanus, Bishop of Auxerre (448) who was for a time his spiritual father, he visited Rome in the year 431. Here he received from Pope Celestine his commission to Ireland — Erin, Hibernia—to implant the Christian religion among a people whose spiritual welfare he held of higher account than the natural wishes of his parents and relatives that he should remain with them. Having been consecrated bishop by Amator, Bishop of Evreux, in Gaul, he arrived with a few companions in Ireland, in 432.

The inhabitants of the island were principally addicted to star-worship and they venerated fountains. St. Patrick at first, met with serious difficulties on the part of the bards and druids, but his courage did not give way. With unremitting zeal, he traversed the country, promoting the monastic life, for which he won over young men and maidens of the noblest families, and providing for the education of the able and efficient clergy. He took up his residence at Armagh, which became the metropolis of Ireland.

Though our saint had experienced many hardships in his missionary life, he never allowed himself the pleasure of revisiting his beloved native country. He reached a great age and died in 493, in the monastery of Saul, which he had founded. At that time Ireland had already several bishops and numerous priests and monks. The cloisters St. Patrick had founded became asylums of science and seminaries of learning to bless and enlighten many nations who were at that time still in the darkness of paganism.

During the sixth and seventh centuries the Church of Ireland stood in the full beauty of its bloom. The spirit of the Gospel operated among the people with a vigorous and vivifying power; troops of holy men, from the highest to the lowest ranks of society, obeyed the counsel of Christ and forsook all things, that they might follow Him. There was not a country in the world, during this period, which could boast of pious foundations, or of religious communities, equal to those that adorned this far-distant island. Among the Irish the doctrines of the Christian religion were preserved pure and entire; the names of heresy or of schism were not known to them, and in the Bishop of Rome they acknowledged and venerated the Supreme Head of the Church on earth, and continued with him, and through him, with the whole Church, in a never-interrupted communion. The schools in the Irish Cloisters were at this time the most celebrated in all the West.

While almost the whole of Europe was desolated by war, peaceful Ireland, free from the invasions of external foes, opened to the lovers of learning and piety, a welcome asylum. The strangers who visited the Island, not only from the neighbouring shores of Britain, but also from the most remote nations of the continent, received from the Irish people that most hospitable reception, a gratuitous entertainment, free instruction, and even the books that were necessary for their studies. Thus in the year 536, in the time of St. Senanus, there arrived at Cork, from the Continent, fifteen monks, who were led thither by the desire to perfect themselves in the practice of an ascetic life, under Irish directors, and to study the Sacred Scriptures in the school established near that city. At a later period, after the year 650, the Anglo-Saxons in particular passed over to Ireland in great numbers for the same laudable purpose. On the other hand, many able and learned Irishmen left their own country to proclaim the faith, to establish monasteries in different lands, and thus to become the benefactors of almost every nation in Europe.

INTEMPERATE HABITS INCREASE THE LIABILITY TO CONSUMPTION

The susceptibility of people to tuberculosis is just about trebled by intemperate habits. This is the estimate of scientific men.

The disease is not caught as you catch scarlet fever or smallpox, but by germs from dried sputum getting into the lungs. If our bodies are strong and healthy the germs are resisted successfully by the operation of nature; if weakened and depleted, the germ will make headway, and death is inevitable, unless proper methods of cure are followed. Temperance lecturers could well make use of these facts.

Neglected colds are also a prolific source of consumption, as they leave the lungs in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germ. A simple remedy, which is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable, can be obtained from any good prescription druggist at small cost: Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

To avoid substitution it is best to purchase the ingredients and prepare the mixture yourself. The Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased in the original half-ounce vials, which are securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ontario—plainly printed thereon. There are many rank imitations of Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) which are put out under similar names and style of package. Never accept these as a substitute for the Pure Virgin Oil of Pine, as they will invariably produce nausea and never effect the desired result.

SPLENDID ICE AT THE BROCK STREET RINK

Good Attendance Last Night and Another Crowd Looked for To-night.

The ice at the Brock street rink last night was in splendid condition, in spite of the fact that there has been some mild weather which has not been conducive to ice-manufacture. There was a good crowd on the ice last night, and they enjoyed what may be one of the last skates of the season.

The rink will be open again to-night, and the ice will be in good condition. Mr. Thirnbeck has been saving the ice for the skating last night and to-night, and a record crowd is looked for.

WHAT CAUSES DANDRUFF?

Greatest European Authority on Skin Disease, Says It's a Germ

The old idea that dandruff is scales of skin thrown off, through a feverish condition of the scalp, is exploded. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says dandruff is a germ disease. The germ burrows under the scalp, throwing up little scales of cuticle, and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root. The only hair preparation that kills dandruff germs is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Not only cures dandruff, but stops falling hair and permits a luxuriant growth. Delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

STANDS FOR PEACE OF THE WORLD

Resolution Carried In Provincial Legislature.

ON ARMAMENT REDUCTION

Bill to Put Check On Dishonest Pawnbrokers—Will Give Police Control of This Business—Government Adopts the Measure—Heavy License Fees—Several Measures Finally Passed.

Toronto, March 16.—International arbitration and a reasonable reduction of armaments by concurrent international action was the twentieth century sentiment in the shape of a resolution that met with unanimous approval yesterday afternoon in the Provincial Legislature. The resolution was framed by the Canadian Peace and Arbitration Society. The only other feature of the session was the adoption by the Government of Mr. McNaught's bill to amend the act respecting pawnbrokers, which has been framed with a view to effectively regulating the business and safeguarding the public.

Mr. Richard Harcourt leaves for Washington and points in the south to-day, and will not again occupy his seat during the present session.

Some Government Bills.

Mr. Whitney introduced bills respecting the form and interpretation of the statutes, also respecting the printing and distribution of the statutes; respecting fines, penalties and forfeitures, and respecting the consolidated revenue fund. The bills are all of a formal character.

Act Respecting Pawnbrokers.

Mr. McNaught, in moving the second reading of his bill respecting pawnbrokers, said that there should be sufficient protection to the public and that the business should be as far as possible in the hands of honest men. In Toronto the business had not in all cases been conducted with due regard to the law. Pawnbrokers not licensed were more independent in the conduct of their business than second-hand dealers, who were under the supervision of the police. Their places could not be searched without a warrant, and privileges now extended to the officers by honest pawnbrokers would become compulsory in all cases. The act, he explained, provided for a license fee of not less than $250 and not more than $500, and, in addition, the pawnbroker must give satisfactory security in the sum of $1,000. They must make a daily report to the police, with particulars of all loans made during the previous 24 hours. No other business may be carried on in conjunction with the pawnbrokerage, and police shall have access to the premises at all times. In cities of over 100,000 population the authority under the proposed act shall be conferred in the Board of Police Commissioners. In all other cases the authority is conferred on the municipal Councils.

Government Adopts Bill.

The Premier said that, so far as the Government were concerned, the bill would be satisfactory and would be adopted. Mr. McNaught was complimented for the care he had devoted to it. In answer to Mr. Graham, he said that the various amendments would be made in committee.

Mr. Ferguson, in moving the second reading of his bill to amend the municipal drainage act, said his object was to protect drainage schemes which had already been carried out in the eastern part of the Province, in case a question should arise in future as to the regularity of the work. The bill was given its second reading and referred to the Municipal Committee.

For Peace of the World.

The Premier called the attention of the House to a resolution prepared by the Canadian Peace and Arbitration Society. Its sentiments, so well expressed, met with the approval of the Government as well as of the Opposition. The resolution is as follows:—

"Resolved, that the Legislature of Ontario heartily approves of and urges three main measures which will greatly conduce to the peace and welfare of the world, viz.:

"A plan by which The Hague conference may become a permanent and recognised Congress of the Nations.

"A general treaty of obligatory arbitration for the acceptance of all the nations.

"A plan for the reasonable reduction of armaments by concurrent international action."

Mr. Graham, the Opposition leader, in seconding the motion, said that his real opinions about war might not be considered orthodox, and he would not venture to express them for fear of offending his military friends on both sides of the House. It had been said that war would never be discontinued until the world was fully organized, and the world would not be fully organized until all nations were governed by representative government. In the coming peace conference some forty-six countries would be represented, and many different ideas would be presented, and perhaps they would be able to work out a solution of the problem. If the plan of reduction of armaments worked out on the basis of population the military power of Britain would have to be reduced. If on the basis of the merchant marine that had to be protected, the United States military power would have to be reduced to nil; a few gunboats would be sufficient. In days gone by the greatest monuments were erected to bloodshed and war; the time was arriving when the finest monuments would be erected to commemorate peace. He believed in having all disputes between nations settled by arbitration.

GREAT DAMAGE BY FIRE AND FLOODS

Loss In One County Alone Amounts to $9,337,000.

A CAR OF LIME IGNITED

Many Business Houses and Residences Destroyed — Dynamite Has to Be Used—Car Service, and Electric Lighting Stopped—City Plunged In Darkness—Flood Has Subsided to Some Extent.

Pittsburg, March 16.—With the rapid receding of the waters in the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers, conditions are fast assuming normal proportions and the greatest and most destructive flood in the history of the city is at an end. At nightfall the approaches to the bridges were clear of water and several hours later street car service was resumed.

Ten square miles were inundated. The loss in actual dollars probably will never be known, but an estimate thus far in Allegheny county may be summarized in the following tables:

Loss in output of steel mills	$3,000,000
Loss in output of other industries	2,000,000
Loss in wages of employes	1,837,000
Estimated damage to industrial plant	2,500,000
Total	$9,337,000

Four business houses and fifteen residences have been burned to the ground in the Mount Washington district across the Monongahela river. Two attempts were made to stop the flames by dynamiting adjacent buildings, but the wreckage caught fire. No water is available and the flames are being fought with chemicals and a bucket brigade. Several of the residences are tenements.

Water Caused Fire.

Fire yesterday destroyed the plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. in South 14th street, and slightly damaged the bolt works of the Oliver Iron and Steel Works adjoining. The loss to the Tin Plate firm was about $25,000 and to the Oliver Co., $1,000. The fire originated from a car of lime which was set on fire by the high water.

Entire Block In Flames.

Two alarms were sounded for a fire in the south side district of this city. The entire block on the north side of Carson street between 13th and 14th streets is burning. The immense Oliver steel plant is threatened. The fire burnt fiercely.

The fire practically burnt itself out at noon. Twenty-five business houses and dwellings were destroyed or badly damaged.

The loss from both fires will not exceed $225,000.

Conditions in Southern Ohio were worse yesterday. At Parkersburg, W. Va., the electric light plant was put out of commission, and the city is in darkness. Telegraph and telephone service is badly crippled.

The loss at Marietta, Ohio, will be enormous. Water has flooded the main street, and many residents have been forced to vacate their homes. The city was in darkness last night.

Much damage has been done in the oil fields, and there is considerable suffering in the surrounding country. Two men were drowned yesterday.

All danger has subsided in Maryland. The Potomac River has fallen about six feet.

Vancouver, March 16.—The Vancouver sailed with 800 Salvation Army emigrants. Quite a ritual marked the departure of the vessel.

Lord Tennyson has announced he will emigrate a party of deserving Y. M. C. A. members at his own expense.

Steamer Larchmont Found.

Providence, R. I., March 16.—After a search of over a month the wreck of the steamer Larchmont has been found by Capt. James Buddington, a fisherman, one quarter of a mile south of Watch Hill Light.

A WEALTHY MANITOBA FARMER

Tells How He Spent Three Thousand Dollars in Search of Health.

Physicians were entirely baffled by the case of Mr. Robert Squires, of Shoal Lake, Man. He owns a thousand acres of land in the west, and said he was willing to give it all to be restored to health. His trouble started with an ordinary cold that was neglected. Let Mr. Squires tell his own story:

"I have spent over three thousand dollars in my search for health; have travelled from place to place looking for suitable climates. I came to the conclusion that climate made no difference in curing throat or lung troubles. At the health resorts consumptives die there as at any place else. I determined to find a home remedy. I think I tried everyone of the so called cures for consumption. The only remedy that ever helped me was Psychine, and a significant fact about Psychine is that it is nott a cure-all, like the others, but specially for throat and lung diseases. Psychine was the last remedy I tried, and I wish it had been the first. My case was a very bad one and no hope was held out by any one of the eminent medical men that I would get well.

"A friend advised me to use Psychine. The first few bottles gave great relief from coughing and seemed to ease the pain in the lungs. Within a month the cough and night sweats had disappeared and I had greatly regained my strength. I used ten bottles, but my case was a serious one and I didn't begrudge the cost for I was completely cured. after medical men had pronounced my case hopeless. My lungs are now sound, and no sign of disease whatever is apparent.

"ROBERT SQUIRES.

"Shoal Lake, Man."

Thousands of others have borne similar testimony to the power of Psychine to not only cure coughs, colds, la grippe, catarrh, bronchitis, chills, night sweats, but also consumption and all wasting diseases. It strengthens the stomach, aids digestion and builds up the entire system, It is a never failing remedy.

Psychine, prnounced Si-keen, is for sale at all drug stores, at 50c and $1 per bottle, or at the Dr. T. A. Slocum, Limited, 179 Kings street west, Toronto.

REVIVAL OF CRICKET IN THE CITY

Peterborough Cricket Club Formed Last Night With Excellent Prospects For Successful Season.

Cricket will flourish in Peterborough this summer. At a largely attended meeting held last night in the Y.M.C.A. hall, the Peterborough Cricket Club was organized for the season. Officers were elected and arrangements made for playing the game this season.

Mr. Cyril H. Hill presided at the meeting, which was attended by a number of the older players in the city, including Dr. Burnham, Mr. Frank Wise and Mr. Walter Stocker, as well as many of the younger players, members of the Colts' Club of last year.

The Officers

Much enthusiasm was displayed, and the prospects for a prosperous season are bright, indeed. It was decided to form a club, and the active officers were elected as follows:

Praaident—Dr. Burnham.

First Vice-President — Mr. C. H. Hill.

Second Vice-President — Mr. C. Moore.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Ed. Wood.

Committee—Messrs. W. Stocker, R. Fisher, W. Sheffield, H. Hall, H. Conroy and H. Clarke.

The membership fee was fixed at $2.00, and it was decided to hold the next meeting on Friday night next, when the honorary officers will be elected and further arrangements for the season's work completed.

The games will be played on the Nicholls Oval, where there is a good ground, and, judging by the enthusiasm displayed at last night's meeting, the coming season will be a very successful one from every standpoint.

ATHLETIC PROGRAMME IS BEING ARRANGED

Under the Auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club—In Old Opera House.

On March 29th, at the old opera house here, there will be held under the patronage of the Peterborough Hockey Club, a great athletic entertainment, managed by Mr. "Billie" Breen, trainer for the Peterborough Hockey Team, when some of the best talent in wrestling and boxing in Peterborough and outside towns, will take part. This will be one of the best entertainments in athletic sports that has ever taken place in Peterborough. Keep your eyes on the talent. A list will appear in the Examiner later.

A SPRING BASKETBALL LEAGUE WAS FORMED

Messrs. Lang and Dingman Have Introduced a New Scheme Which Will Prove Popular.

A Spring Basketball League in Peterborough is the newest of the sporting organizations. Through the instrumentality of Messrs. Jno Lang and Dingman, of the Y.M.C.A., a league has been formed, with a novel device of selecting the teams, to play basketball for at least another month.

They have obtained a list of all basketball players who favour the scheme and who have agreed to get into the game again. To-morrow night these players will gather at the Y.M.C.A. and elect from their number four captains who will be at the head of four teams. Also tomorrow night the captains will "choose up" for their players so that the teams will be placed almost on a par with each other.

The games will begin next Wednesday night, each team playing the others, the winner being the one gaining the most victories.

It is easily seen that the idea, although novel, is a good one as the Y.M.C.A. boys will obtain a good training for sprinting, football, basketball, lacrosse or any game or games they intend to enter in the summer.

With Messrs. Lang and Dingman as leaders the scheme no doubt will prove successful and the lovers of basketball will yet be permitted to witness some good games before summer arrives.

ASSOCIATION OF CHECKER PLAYERS

Efforts are Being Made to Form Dominion Body—Annual Meeting to Be Held in Hamilton Shortly.

Examiner Special.

Hamilton, March 16.—The annual meeting of the Ontario Checker Association will be held here on April 1st (Easter Monday) and in the evening the annual banquet of the Hamilton Checker Association will be held. At this meeting an effort will be made to form a Dominion Association, and with that end in view, invitations are being sent out to prominent checker players in different parts of the Dominion, asking them to attend or write to Secretary Woolcott, Hamilton, expressing their views on the proposition.

On the afternoon of April 1st a match will take place between picked teams, representing Toronto and Hamilton, and some expert United States players are expected to play in a few friendly games.

HOCKEY

The Pill-pounders, accompanied by a number of their friends, spent a pleasant evening at the residence of Mr. Sandy Davidson, Smith, last night.

* * * *

The Examiner route boys wish to challenge the Review route boys to a game of hockey, to be played as soon as possible.

* * * *

The Bridgenorth team will play Best's Happy Thoughts on Tuesday night at Brock street rink and the game should be decidedly interesting. Bridgenorth have been winning some victories and want an opportunity to show their prowness on a big sheet of ice.

CURLING

The ice at the curling rink has seldom been much better than it is at present. Last night two games were played on rinks 1 and 6, and the players state that little improvement could be made. The following were the results:

R. Neill—10	C. N. Brown—11
R. Hicks—13	W. Lang—10

LACROSSE

Lacrosse prospects in Peterborough are bright in one way and in another they are decidedly discouraging. There is plenty of material available but there is no interest being taken in the sport except on the part of a few enthusiasts who are becoming discouraged. A meeting was called for Tuesday night but only a few responded and it was not possible to do any business. The lovers of the game should not let the project fall through as was done last year, when there were players enough to form a first class team, but lack of interest was responsible for there being no senior team. This should not be the case this year.

BASEBALL

The annual meeting of the Midland Baseball League will be held on Good Friday and it behooves the local enthusiasts to get the club under way before that time. There is plenty of material in the city for a fast team that would make them all travel some. A first class battery is available in the persons of Corney Burns and Harry Burridge, formerly of Toronto. Burns is a well known twirler with a great record and should be a source of great strength to the locals. All indications point to a very successful season in Midland League baseball this season.

Touching Scene In the House of Commons.

DR. STOCKTON'S DEATH

Members Break Down In Referring to Their Loss—Mr. Lavergne Quickly Dispels Emotional Mood — The London Election — To Discuss Insurance Report, and Fowler Charges—Labor Disputes Bill

Ottawa, March 16.—The House of Commons was moved to tears yesterday afternoon. Stalwart members with hearts hardened by debate actually sobbed aloud, and for a brief space the seat which Dr. Stockton was wont to occupy, draped in black cloth and surmounted with a beautiful floral wreath, was viewed by many through a mist. Some members of the Opposition were completely overcome during the Prime Minister's touching tribute to the departed member for St. John city and county, and it was with difficulty that the leader of the Opposition found expression for the feelings in which every member shared. Dr. Daniel's emotion was too deep for words, and the final touch to a most affecting scene was given by Mr. Foster, who vainly endeavored to speak, and was led from the House by Mr. Borden. Mr. Lavergne quickly shook the House from its emotional mood by raising the question of Mr. Hyman's resignation. Mr. Bourassa stirred up visions of a row by giving notice of his intention to discuss the conduct of Messrs. Fowler, Foster and company on Tuesday week, and then the House took up the labor disputes bill.

Mr. Hyman's Seat.

Mr. A. Lavergne called attention to the report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, invalidating the resignation of Hon. C. S. Hyman as a member. He quoted Bourinot and other authorities in support of the view that the House, and the House only, could declare a seat vacant, and that it was not necessary for a member who desired to resign to fulfill to the very letter the provisions of the statute. The intention of Mr. Hyman was, he declared, perfectly evident, and he moved that the report of the committee be not concurred in, and that Mr. Hyman's seat be declared vacant.

The Minister of Justice said the question seemed to be practically for lawyers to decide upon the interpretation of the statute, which pointed out the method in Canadian law whereby a member of Parliament might at his own will divest himself of the responsibility of his position. The only ground for asking the House to declare the seat vacant was that there had been an attempt at resignation. The fact that he expressed the intention to resign did not vacate the seat, and accordingly he submitted that the report should be received, concurred in, and adopted.

Mr. Bourassa regarded the whole proceedings before the committee as one of the greatest Parliamentary jokes that had ever been perpetrated. There was, he contended, no doubt whatever as to Mr. Hyman's intention, and it rested with the House to declare his seat vacant.

The motion was defeated.

To Discuss Fowler Charges.

Mr. Bourassa gave notice that on Tuesday week he will ask the House to consider more fully the accusations or insinuations or charges that had been exchanged between the members on both sides of the House. He added that he intended to bring under the notice of the House at the same time the conclusions of the Insurance Commission's report, in order to complete the documentary evidence in regard to the matter he desired to discuss. He had consulted the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition, and both agreed that Tuesday week would be a convenient date for the discussion.

Labor Disputes Bill.

The House then went into committee and resumed consideration of the labor disputes bill.

Mr. Lemieux submitted amendments to three clauses embodying the proposal to give railway companies and railway employes the option of taking advantage of either the act under consideration or the railway labor disputes act of 1903. One of the amendments was designed to meet the case of a party to a dispute seeking to come first under one act and then under the other, and gave the Minister power to direct the parties to proceed under the act first notified.

Mr. Claude Macdonell pleaded for further delay, but Mr. Pardee pointed out that every feature of the bill had been debated over and over again. Practically the railwaymen had expressed a willingness to accept the principles of the 1907 bill, if carried out under the procedure of the 1903 act. Surely Parliament should have some initiative and not refuse to enact legislation because, forsooth, a precedent was not given by the action of some other country.

Mr. Lemieux's amendment was carried.

The House adjourned at 11.45 p. m.

ANOTHER TRAIN WRECK.

Two Trainmen Killed and Others Hurt In Pennsylvania.

Meadville, Pa., March 16.—The second section of freight train No. 72 on the Erie Railroad went over an embankment at this place yesterday. Two trainmen were killed and a number fatally injured. Two engines and 21 cars were demolished. The dead are Engineer R. D. Logan and a brakeman. The train was running at a fast rate of speed when the crossbeam on the forward engine dropped to the track, derailing the train.

Brakeman Killed.

Toronto, March 16.—A brakeman on the G. T. R., William Kerr of Toronto, while passing between the tender of the engine and a box car to fix the knuckle, was killed yesterday afternoon.

LITTLE GIRL'S BRAVE ACT.

Throws Her Apron Over Woman's Head Who Was in Flames.

Quebec, March 16.—A young woman, Mrs. Philippe Gingras, residing in St. Lawrence ward, attempted several days ago to light a fire with petroleum. When the flames set fire to her clothing she made a desperate effort to tear off her burning clothing, but the fire reached her hair. The little five-year-old daughter of Mrs. Frechette, who resided upstairs, was attracted by the cries of the unfortunate woman. Without a moment's hesitation the child untide her apron and wrapped it around the head of the victim, thus stifling the flames and saving the woman's life.

SOME CRITICISMS ON THE SNOW CLEANING BY-LAW

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The public of Peterborough are realizing these last few days the foolishness of electing a man mayor of the town who issues such instructions as the mayor and council have issued in connection with the "street" cleaning at the present time. In our climate everybody knows that in the early spring it thaws in the daytime and freezes at night, and it is known that it is absolutely impossible, at this season of the year, where the street in many places is higher than the sidewalk, to prevent the ice from forming and it is foolishly unreasonable to expect a man to clean off his sidewalk every morning, when the sun does the necessary work during the day and at no inconvenience to pedestrians. At the present time you will see axes, shovels and spades and pickaxes being used by some of the town officials on our pavements and there are being holes cut into them and holes knocked into them because it is absolutely impossible to get the ice off the sidewalk without the help of axes. If the town had last fall taken upon themselves to exact that the snow must be shovelled off the sidewalk, or if the town had taken the precaution to see that the snow-ploughing was done with any degree of decency there would not have been the necessity in many places of town in having the extra labour and annoyance created at the present time. It is all very well for the mayor to issue instructions when he himself has no lots to clear off, when he can walk out on the street and say, "I am monarch of all I survey," so far as clearing his pavement is concerned and see ratepayers bending their backs over twelve feet of pavement, when he has only about ten feet in front of his office to attend to, which is divided with another tenant. We suppose the magistrate has his duty to perform and must convict under the by-law, but this by-law, like the "sign" by-law, is a piece of petty tyranny of no real advantage to the city at large. "Old Sol" would have loosened the ice on the sidewalk as speedily and as early. There was no necessity of any action being taken and without any damage or destruction. There is only one way to keep the snow off our streets and that is to see that it is taken off after every snowstorm and before it forms into ice.

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

Nearly a Disaster.

Dover, Eng., March 16.—The British armored cruiser Duke of Edinburgh grounded yesterday as she was leaving the harbor here, but subsequently was towed off without having sustained any damage. She was caught by a strong tide, which drove her rapidly towards the Prince of Wales pier, and the prompt dropping of her anchors alone saved the warship from crashing into the pier.

Warship In Trouble.

Brest, March 16.—There was another accident to a French warship off this port Thursday. During torpedo exercises the coast defence ship Fulminant was struck and seriously damaged on the water line by a torpedo. Collision mats were at once applied to the hole in the vessel's side, and she was towed into port in a sinking condition.

58 Toulon Dead Identified.

Toulon, March 16.—Only fifty-eight bodies have been identified of the 107 found in or about the hulk of the battleship Iena. The state funeral will be attended to-day by President Fallieres. All the dead have been posthumously promoted so that their survivors will receive higher pensions.

Manitoba Cabinet Grows.

Winnipeg, March 16.—An important Cabinet change was announced last night when the Provincial Government made known that it had created a new portfolio, that of Minister of Telephones and Railways. J. H. Howden, M.P.P., member for Beautiful Plains, is the new Minister.

It also is announced that active work on the entire system of Government and municipal telephones will be started in sixty days.

Asks $25,000, Gets Half a Cent.

Limerick, Ireland, March 16.—In the action for libel brought by William Emerson, member of Parliament for Cork, against The Freeman's Journal, in which he claimed $25,000 damages, the jury yesterday rendered a verdict for the plaintiff, awarding him one farthing (half a cent) damages on each of the six counts.

"ALL HAIL TO ST. PATRICK"

The Prospects of Ireland

The following article upon Ireland and its hopes, in connection with St. Patrick's day, was contributed by the veteran, Wm. Halley, to the Catholic Register, to which the Examiner is indebted for it and the accompanying illustrations:

"Into that land where he, wet with his tears,
Had seven years eaten of the bitter bread
Of slavery and exile, came the Saint
Whose day we celebrate throughout the earth!
Before whose mighty words false gods fell down,
And prostrate pagans, rising from the plain,
Knew the true God, and, knowing, were baptized,
Praise to His name, the ransomed slave who broke
All other chains and set the bondsman free!
Praise to His name, the Husbandman who sowed
The good seed over all that fertile isle!
Praise to the Herdsman, who into the fold
Of the one Shepherd led our Father's flock,
Whose voice still calls us wheresoe'er we hide."

—T. D. McGee.

The glorious anniversary of St. Patrick's day is once more with us, and it is a promising one. Religion flourishes, notwithstanding all past persecutions and present hindrances. Morality permeates the masses of the Irish people at home and abroad, and set at naught the paganism of other peoples. The conditions now existing in the Old Land are the most encouraging we have ever known, and the anniversary should be celebrated with more joy and enthusiasm than at any other time within the writer's recollection.

• • • •

Be it regarding religion, race or recovery, the signs were never more promising. So join, you sons of Erin, everywhere, and speed your exultation.

"Morn on the hills of Innisfail!
The enclouded mists make sudden sail,
The sun has kiss'd the mountains gray,
For ancient friends and fond are they!"

There is no backsliding. Erin has ever been true to the preaching of the immortal St. Patrick. Dr. Douglas Hyde, president of the Gaelic League, and himself a Protestant, has written:

"A pious race is the Gaelic race. The Irish Gael is pious by nature. There is not an Irishman in a hundred in whom is the making of an unbeliever. The spirit and the things of the spirit affect him more powerfully than the body and the things of the body. What is invisible for other people is visible for him. He feels invisible power before him, and by his side and at his back, throughout the day and throughout the night. His mind on the subject may be summed up in two sayings, that of the early Church, 'Let ancient things prevail,' and that of St. Augustine, 'Credo quia impossible.' Nature did not form him to be an unbeliever; unbelief is alien to his mind and contrary to his feelings."

• • • •

Near the Slemish mountain where St. Patrick, then a captive of the rich cattle-owner, Miloho, herded his sheep and swine. There, when his flocks were sleeping, he poured forth his prayers, a Christian voice in pagan darkness. It was the memory of that darkness that brought him back, years after, to convert Miloho. He converted not alone Miloho, but a whole nation; and that nation is destined to convert another nation, aye, a whole continent, then known to mankind. St. Patrick's day now in Canada is a public holiday by an Act of Parliament, and in the United States by an act of courtesy.

• • • •

At the present time I have glad tidings from Ireland herself; tidings both social and political and climatic. During the present winter the rain ceased and the sun stone out, and the country was warm, while on the Continent and in England the weather was cold and disagreeable.

Sydney Brooks, a Chicago newspaper man, writing to the Chronicle of that city, tells a cheerful story:

"All over Ireland," he says, "sounds the hum of practical endeavour, with an undertone of almost feverish poignancy. There is something in it of the passion of a religious revival expressing itself in the dry terms of industrial economics. Nowhere have I met so many men and women so consumed with an ambition to do something for their country. I dare not say that their activities are always working along the soundest lines or that many of them do not confuse benevolence with beneficence. But the spirit behind them is admirable, and time and experience will assuredly, in the end, guide it along in the right paths.

"We think in England that Ireland has passed the crisis of her life. On the contrary, she is just entering it. We talk of the Land Act as having solved the land question. It did nothing of the kind. What it did was to solve, or rather, to point the way toward the solution of the land tenure question, a very different thing. The practical value and the sentimental value of Mr. Wyndham's act has been immense. But in the nature of things it could do no more than help to clear the ground. It could and it did lay, however, the foundations of a new social order; but the superstructure to be erected on these foundations depends on the efforts of the Irish themselves. It could and did bring comparative peace; it neither could bring nor has it brought prosperity.

"We have to face the fact that not only are the permanent problems of an agricultural existence untouched by the Act of 1903, but the necessity of grappling with them has been increased ten-fold. On the well-being of the peasant proprietary, now is being slowly evolved, all depends, and to ensure that well-being another land act—a compulsory one this time—will have to be passed and every agency of co-operation, of migration and resettlement, of technical education and of state aid supplementing, but not supplanting, voluntary effort, will have to be pressed into service.

"And even then only a beginning will have been made. Without industry and manufactures, without the extension of handicrafts subsidiary to agriculture, without a leveling up of the whole standard of rural life, Ireland can never be as prosperous as she deserves. The problem of Irish progress has lost something of its old bitterness, only to take on a yet more stringent economical acuteness. The appalling drain of emigration still goes on. The lunacy commissioners tell a tale of more sinister omen. The 200,000 uneconomical holdings remain as they were. The crushed industrial instinct has yet to be revived. Capital still seeks the savings banks. The burden of taxation, direct and indirect, still awaits readjustment. The high natural capacities of the people their keen intelligence, their industry—never was a calumny more stupid than that which has written down the Irish as lazy—have still to be made effective. In spite of everything men feel that Ireland is in peril of sinking into a stupor worse than death. With the intentness of doctors around a bed of sickness, they are striving and wrestling for a desperate recovery."

"I wish I could" (says the writer) "pass their heroic efforts under microscopic review. The whole machinery of the Irish Government has been thrown into the melting pot. There are commissions, some of them royal, and some vice regal, inquiring into the Irish railways with a view, it is to be hoped, to their consolidation under state control; others into the workings of the congested district board; into the department of agriculture, and into the administration of the poor laws. Every crank and shaft in the mechanism of Dublin Castle is being tested and overhauled, and the result will be an administrative system not merely more compact, better ordered and less expensive, but associated with, if not directed by, the daily efforts of the people themselves.

"But the official fermentation is as nothing to the unofficial. Go where you will, even into the heart of desolate Mayo, you do not get beyond its scope. Every town or county seems to have its Industrial Development Association, every paper seems to be urging upon the public the duty of preferring Irish manufactures. Openings for new industries and the revival of old ones, are zealously canvassed. The resources of the country are being brought one by one under fresh and open-minded examination. You find a priest there who has raised £6,000 to start a woollen mill. You find a duchess there who has founded a co-operative creamery, and an earl's wife somewhere else who has revived in her neighbourhood the homespun tweed industry. The vast extension of Irish lace making owes more to Lady Aberdeen than to anyone else. Mr. Bryce could hardly stir outside the Secretary's lodge in Phoenix Park without somebody trying to pick his official pocket for a new railway or a pier or government aid to this enterprise and to that."

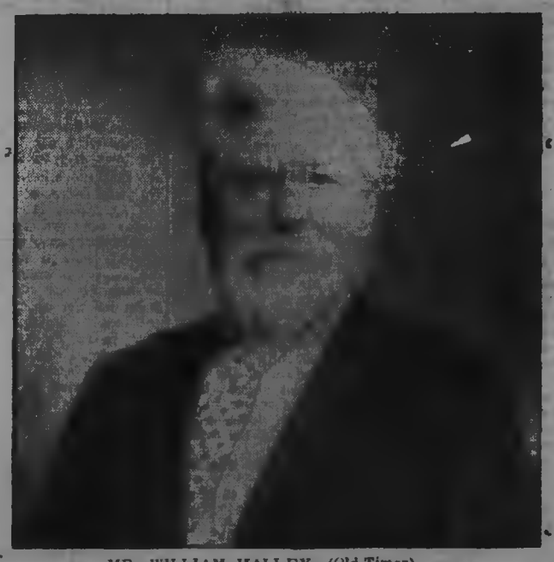
All this shows how much alike are the people in their wants and necessities. And when I have authority for saying that the Government of Campbell-Bannerman has given every assurance that they are determined to pass such parliamentary measures as will associate the Irish people with the granting of such measures of Irish reform that will meet the expectations of the Irish people, I think that I am warranted in claiming that no more observeful outlook for a St. Patrick's Day has occurred during our lifetimes. The programme of the Government has not yet been given us, but we are assured that it is such that the hostile House of Lords cannot reject it.

There are many other things that I might mention to make the Irish people and their descendants happy at this anniversary, but what I here bring in now has to do, as my space in the Register is more than filled already. Let us rejoice!

WILLIAM HALLEY.

Once more the feast day of St. Patrick, the apostle of Ireland, is here, and once more every loyal son of Erin bends his head in prayer and praise to the memory of that venerable missionary who found the country and its inhabitants a barbarous and pagan nation, but who, when he departed this life, left it one of the strongholds of Christianity and possessing a civilization that was not surpassed by any people of that age.

HON. HUGH O'NEILL, M.A., B.L., LL.B., L.L.M., Chicago, Ill.



MR. WILLIAM HALLEY (Old-Timer).

Times and the general conditions of the country have suffered many vast changes, and to-day a second Erin may be found in the new world, where, away from home, her sons have proved that they are masters and not groveliers at the feet of a people who robbed them of their birth rights. But wherever these scattered sections of the Irish race are found, there is, at least, one class among them which observes the memory and feast of St. Patrick as the dearest recollection of their native country.

The early history of Ireland is decidedly vague, but the time of St. Patrick, as described in his legends, and the three centuries succeeding it were her golden days. These legends are songs of gratitude and hope, as befits the story of a nation's conversion to Christianity, and in them the bird and the brook blend their carols with those of angels and men.

His Birthplace

Regarding the birth of St. Patrick, there are not many facts known. One writer assigns his birth to the year 372, and another sets it at 405, but the former one seems to be more favourably received. Of the place, it is only known for certain, from his own confession, that his father had a small farm near Bannaven Tabarniae; and, in one of the ancient lives he is said to have been born at Nemthur. However, be it as it may, it is generally conceded that he was born in France. His baptismal name was Succoth, Patricius being his Latin designation. His parents were of gentle birth. His father, as he himself tells, was a deacon named Colpurnius, and his grandfather, Potitus, a priest; his mother, according to ancient biographers, was named Conchea, or Conchessa, and was a sister of St. Martin, of Tours.

In Ireland, A Slave

When he was sixteen years of age, with two of his sisters, he was seized by a band of Irish pirates and carried off to slavery. His sisters were taken to another part of the island, and he was sold to a petty chief, Miloho MacCuboin, in the north. He lived in the valley of the Braid, in the centre of County Antrim, where a town called Ballyligg-Patrick (the town of Patrick's follow) still preserves the memory of his residence.

At the age of twenty-two, after six long years of captivity, he fled to a vessel, of which the master at first refused, and finally consented to take him on board. He and the sailors were cast by a storm upon a desert coast of Britain, and he afterwards succeeded in making his way to France. Here he entered a monastery and became a monk. In the year 432 he started on his life work, namely, spreading the gospel in Ireland. To this country he went as a missionary when sixty years of age, after he had been ordained by a Gallic bishop named Matorin, and after Palladius, who had been appointed to Ireland by Pope Celestine, had died.

Work in Ireland

The leading facts of Patrick's life in Ireland, as they are collected out of the various documents, are these: He sailed from France to Wales or Ireland. The Welsh claim that he landed in Wales before he went to Ireland. He first landed as a missionary in Ireland at the town of Wicklow, near the mouth of the River Vartry; thence he sailed north to convert his old master, Miloho, who destroyed himself at his approach. In the County Down he converted another chief named Dichu, who bestowed upon him the first Christian Church that St. Patrick possessed. It was called Sabbath (Saul), or "the barn," and it is still a church called by exactly the same name.

Life Of St. Patrick

Work Of Conversion

St. Patrick then set out to Tara, in the County Meath, which was at that period the central point of meeting for all the tribes of Ireland. There he preached to the King of Tara, Laygnaire, or Leary, where St. Patrick is said to have used the shamrock to illustrate the doctrine of the Trinity. Of course, this is a mere modern legend. Thence he proceeded to Connaught, as far as Croagh-Patrick, in Mayo, to Ulster, and as far as Cashel, in the south. His footsteps can be traced in all these directions by the topography of the country, as well as by the documents which are extant.

After he had been some twenty years engaged in his missionary enterprise, he is said to have fixed his see at Armagh about the year 454.

Board Of Health Held Busy Session This Morning

Report Was Read From Sanitary Inspector---Dr. Amyot's Report in Regard to Samples of Milk Sent---The Condition of the River.

INSPECTION OF THE BAKESHOPS HAS ALREADY TAKEN PLACE

An important meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning at which considerable business was taken up.

The sanitary inspector made his first report as to the condition of the city and also as to the river at Lakefield and from the water works pump house to that village. A report was read from Dr. Amyot, provincial bacterialogist, in reference to samples of milk sent to him. These were found to contain no adulteration.

There were present Messrs. W. Eyres, chairman; the Mayor, Robert Neill, G. Schneider, and A. Parker, Dr. McNulty and Dr. Burnham.

A letter was read from the city clerk, enclosing a letter from the Dickson Company, Company, asking how their property on Waterford, Harvey and Dublin streets can be provided with sewer connection.

The matter was referred to the city engineer to report on as to what method the property can be given sewer connection.

Sewer Connections

The city solicitor wrote as follows in regard to sewer connections:

In reference to your communication enclosing a report of the Board of Health I beg to point out that a bylaw providing for the sewers referred to, must specify the areas of the city in which these connections are to be made. I do not understand from the report, whether it is intended that all the property east of Water street, between Hunter and King street, as far east as the river, is intended to be covered by the bylaw. The same applies to the property west of George street, between King and Dalhousie streets. Is it intended that this territory should extend to the western boundary of the city? And as to the terraces and the houses mentioned, the bylaw cannot refer to these as terraces and houses, but must define the area which is to be sewered.

E. H. D. HALL.

The matter was referred to the chairman, and Messrs. Neill and Parker to look into and report to the Board.

Milk Supply

The following report from Dr. Amyot, Provincial Bacterialogist, was read:

Dr. Bingham, M. H. O.,
Peterborough:

Your specimen of milk reached here on March 12, 1907. None of them show any formaldehyde, salicylalic acid or borates.

The butter fat in No 4 is 4 per cent.

In No. 6, 3.5 per cent.

In No. 7, 3.5 per cent.

The secretary was instructed to write to Dr. Amyot and ask him how many samples of milk he will receive for examination, each week, and what days he would prefer to have them sent.

Sanitary Inspector's Report

Mr. George Ball, Sanitary Inspector, made a verbal report in regard to the condition of the city, which he said was good, although until the snow disappeared and the spring house-cleaning was done, it was difficult to make a complete report. He stated that he had inspected the bakeshops and the confectioneries and had found them in good sanitary condition, with the exception of a few details which the proprietors had promised to remedy.

The sanitary inspector also made the following report in regard to the river:

"At the request of the chairman of the water commissioners I visited Lakefield on March 12th. On my way there I saw one nuisance on the east side of the river which should be removed. Saw drinking place for cattle also on east side of the river. Mill at north end of the village should be compelled to keep bark and sawdust out of the river. Hotel is connected with river. Surface water of village drained into the river. Mills not in operation. No dumping of refuse allowed on banks of river.

GEORGE BALL,
Sanitary Inspector.

At the request of the Sanitary Inspector it was decided to have notices printed showing the rules and regulations in regard to bakeshops.

The meeting discussed the scavenging system briefly before adjourning to meet again on March 25th.

AN APPROPRIATION FOR THE SOUTHERN OUTLET

Ottawa, March 8.—A considerable sum has been placed in the supplementary estimates to provide for going ahead this year with the completion of the southern portion of the canal from Rice Lake to Trenton. A deputation from Northumberland county and adjacent districts will wait on Hon. Mr. Emmerson this week to ask that this canal be carried through to completion as soon as possible.

DEEP INTEREST IN THE PARK STREET REVIVAL

Meetings Yesterday Were Well Attended and Much Good is Resulting From Them.

CONTINUES ALL THIS WEEK

The special services in the Park Street Baptist Church yesterday were very largely attended, and success is attending the efforts of those in charge of the revival. In the evening the church was filled to overflowing, and a splendid meeting was the result. A number of persons at each of the services signified a desire to lead a better life. Mr. Torrie gave an address to the children in the Sunday school in the afternoon, in which he gave an object lesson of interest to the children.

Much credit is due the choir for the excellent service being rendered by that organization, a duet, quartette and several choruses being given at the evening service.

The meetings will be continued every night this week, and to-night the Y.M.C.A. quartette will be present and give three selections. On Tuesday and Friday, at 4.20 p.m., services for children will be held.

Evangelist Torrie, conducting the special services at the Park Street Church.

OBITUARY

FRANCIS GRADY

The death occurred yesterday of Mr. Francis Grady at the age of 42 years. The deceased has been ill for the past two years and his death was not unexpected. He returned to Peterborough two years ago from San Francisco where he had been for two years. Prior to that he lived in North Monaghan with his parents.

His mother is still living at the old homestead in North Monaghan. His brothers are John, James, Patrick and Peter, and one sister, Mary, at home. The deceased was unmarried.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Jas. Grady, North Monaghan, to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

DELIVERY WAGGON WENT OVER DRIVER'S BODY

The horse attached to the grocery delivery wagon of Mr. George Goheen, Dalhousie street, ran away on Friday, causing considerable damage. It frightened at a shunting engine at the corner of Bethune and Hunter street and made a dash for freedom. The wagon passed over the body of the driver but did not injure him. The shafts were broken off and taken along by the horse to the door of the grocery store, where it stopped of its own accord.

JOSEPH SHEARER SENT TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Has Been at the Police Court Three Times This Winter and as Many Previously

At the police court this morning Joseph Shearer, aged 14 years, was again before Magistrate Dumble and very likely for the last time for at least a few years. He pleaded guilty to having broken into Mr. Edgecombe's grocery store and having stolen some candies and salmon. Mr. Gordon appeared for him and asked that he be given another chance, but His Worship considered that the boy had come to the end of his tether. His sentence was that the boy be placed in the St. John's Industrial School for a term not exceeding four years. He also stated that the boy might have been cured some years ago if the law permitted the judicious use of the birch.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. WM. MILLER TO-DAY

Interment Took Place in Port Hope—Funeral to the G. T. R. Station

The funeral of the late Mrs. William Miller was held to-day from the family residence, corner of Dublin and Water streets. Rev. Dr. Grothers conducted the services at the house. The remains were conveyed to the G. T.R. station and to Port Hope by way of the 11.45 G.T.R. express. The pall bearers were, Mr. Flake and Messrs. Walter, Gordon, William, George and Col. J. W. Miller.

Many beautiful floral expressions of condolence were received from friends and acquaintances.

LARGE FORTUNE FOR LOCAL LADY

Discovery Made by a Mere Accident by Her Son---Matter is Being Investigated

By the simplest of circumstances brought about by the merest chance, Mrs. Harriet Gosselin, wife of Francois Gosselin, George street, has fallen heir to many thousands of dollars. Although this is not altogether definitely known yet, it is practically assured that she is the person whose name is registered on the list in possession of almost every lawyer containing the names of those to whom unclaimed money is due.

The matter was first discovered by Mr Jas. Gosselin, butcher, and son of Mrs. Harriet Gosselin who happened to be in a local barrister's office the other day and on casually glancing over the list above mentioned discovered his mother's name. The book was accidently opened at the page which gave the first knowledge of the unclaimed money.

Mr. Gosselin who made the discovery intends following up the clue. So far the exact amount of the legacy, and where the money rests is unknown but Mr. Gosselin hopes to have these cleared up in a short time.

GARMENT SHOW FOR MEN

An Early Easter Means a Men's Easter—In Town and City.

The milliners and habit makers cannot have it all their own way this Easter. An early Easter usually means a men's Easter.

In the Semi-ready Tailoring this season the display of Spring styles is more than ordinarily interesting by reason of the very handsome fabrics which the British worsted mills devised for the Semi-ready. The new cloths have all a distinctive touch. The sack coats share in the change of styles with daintily rounded corners on the lapels. The Spring overcoats have the quiet, graceful expression appealing to a man of cultured tastes.

The Frock coats are of course the chief attraction, just before Easter and one does not wonder that the Semi-ready stores have absorbed the whole of the trade in this important creation of the tailor. Everyone is invited to the garment show at the Semi-ready store.

CALM FOLLOWS THE STORM

J. R. Heintz Special

New York, March 18. — The calm has followed the storm and stocks were quiet and steady to-day. Opening prices were from 1 to 4 points lower than Saturday's close, being influenced by lower prices from London and a large quantity of profit-taking offerings. U P, C P R, Ed. and Copper were the principal sufferers in this respect while the Morgan stocks, including Erie, L & N and South Ry were comparatively firm. The reaction was regarded as entirely normal and had been looked for after the big bulge on Saturday.

Call money was easy, opening at 6 per cent. and declining to 3, and this had a beneficial effect on sentiment. There was no news of importance affecting values. It was reported that considerable outside buying was going on again to-day on the reaction, and that Clark Dodge interests were good buying of Nor. Pac., without disturbing the price materially. The general list turned weak in the last half hour after a sudden bulge in Colo. Fuel, and closed weak at the low, for the day.

WORK THAT COUNTS

The work of the Christian Church, with its multiplied agencies and complicated machinery, seems to be inadequate and ineffective, seems to fall far short of the regenerative influence it is supposed to exercise. Our blessed Lord said that He came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance. The work of the Church seems to be to keep the righteous in line, to merely hold together the respectable righteous. Like mining on a cheap scale, it seems to operate on the surface, and to neglect sinking shafts to reach the submerged tenth, to reach the lower and more degraded strata of society, and dig up the pure gold that exists in the lowest nature. The Salvation Army has changed all that, and, under that great apostle of the poor, General Booth, it has, in the past forty-one years, done more of what seems to be the real and proper work of Christianity than any one, or possibly, all church agencies combined. The churches have done something towards keeping religious people religious, but comparatively little creative work has been done in the direction the Salvation Army has operated in—the saving of the unsaved, the regeneration of the fallen, preaching the gospel in power to the poor. Not mere word preaching, but the preaching of the Saviour of mankind, who cared for the bodies, as well as the souls of his hearers. Forty-one years ago General Booth came out from the church with which he was associated—frozen out by lack of sympathy with its evangelistic methods. Practically, the doors of the churches were closed to him. But what seemed at that time persecution, was a tremendous blessing in disguise. Driving him out of the churches drove him to the slums of London, and this was the beginning of one of the greatest religious movements of modern times. To fight sin and its brood he needed soldiers; he mobilized his raw recruits, and organized the fighting army, which is doing a work that the churches have not done, will not do, and, possibly, cannot do, doing the work of our blessed Lord—feeding the hungry body with bread and the hungry soul with the spiritual manna. Like every great movement of its kind, the Army had humble beginnings — in dirty East London streets — where General Booth and his soldiers were mobbed and pelted. From this modest beginning, the Army has grown into a great organization, recognized by all good men as one of the mightiest existing moral organizations, recognized by kings and principalities and powers. General Booth, for his work's sake and what his work means, has been welcomed in the court of King Edward, and Governments are glad to court the favour and aid of the Army. Recently, in Toronto, General Booth was an honoured guest of the Government of the Province and a guest of the Canadian Club, where the best minds of the Provincial metropolis honoured him and his work. He will also gain similar honours in Ottawa, where he will be received by the Government. This recognition has been achieved, not only because he and the Army preached the gospel as Christ preached it, but practised it as Christ practised it—amply fulfilling the signs of Messiahship—"the poor have the gospel preached to them." Not only for this reason has the work of the Salvation Army thrived, but because it preached the gospel of humanity. Nihil humanum alienum me puto, is the motto of General Booth and his Army. Whatever appeal comes from the moral, physical, social or material needs of the poor and the degraded is recognized and met with splendidly organized and enthusiastically operated effort. The Salvation Army works for the man, the mere man, without regard to social distinction or any other consideration than its need to help. That is why its work succeeds; that is why its scheme of activity is so widespread—from a "knee drill" in the mind of a reeking slum—to the organization of a movement to colonize a continent.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Frontenac County is still in the mediaeval age. It has a relic of antiquity in the shape of toll roads.

Hon. Mr. Whitney, premier of Ontario, seems to think that his acceptance of the office has sufficiently dignified it to make "Premier" too modest a title. He insists on being called Prime Minister—like Laurier, or Campbell-Bannerman. To hear Mr. Whitney slaughtering the Opposition in one of his Bombastes Furioso, "colossal steak," oratorical "breaks" one would be inclined to call him a primed minister.

INTEMPERANCE WAS THE SUBJECT

Of Interesting Sermon at St. Luke's Church Last Night—Ideal Condition is to be Temperate in all Things

Large congregations were present at St. Luke's at both services yesterday. At the evening service Rev E. A. Langfledt preached on "Intemperance." To some people it meant only abstinence from spirituous liquor; to them it was their gospel. According to their ideas, "total abstinence" was the guarantee of being a good man. He knew a man who boasted of his "total abstinence," but he was also a "total abstainer," as far as church going was concerned, and dishonest and foul-mouthed, in the bargain. There is a great danger of hindering the work of Christ by the narrowness and pharisaism of these zealous temperance advocates who can see no good in any man unless he can see eye-to-eye with them. The Apostle's definition of "intemperance" is far-reaching. He says, "Be temperate in all things." There is intemperance in drinking, in eating, in language, in temper, in sleep, in fact in all the details of daily life. Let a man take heed so that he will not merely boast of keeping the law in one thing, while giving away to his desires and tastes in others. "He that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

The Ancient Order of Hibernians Attended Morning and Evening Services

At St. Peter's cathedral yesterday, the Feast of St. Patrick was celebrated by the local branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. In the morning they attended Holy Communion in a body and at night again occupied the centre of the church on the occasion of an address by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. The average number of members of the society in attendance was 115.

A special collection was taken at the evening service and the money given by the A.O.H. to the St. Vincent de Paul Society. About one hundred and sixty-five dollars were received and the society will use this for charitable purposes. The action of the A.O.H. is highly commendable and deserving of great praise.

The singing last night was of a character, the choir acquitting themselves in a praiseworthy manner. Miss Annie Simons sang the hymn to St. Patrick in a splendid manner at the end of the sermon.

Popular Cure For Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realise the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine constantly at hand for use in case of emergency.

MR. KERR TOLD OF HIS TRIP AT "POP"

A Delightful Programme Presented on Saturday Night at the Y. M. C. A.—Other Feafures.

There was a good attendance at the seventh—and last—Y.M.C.A. pop held in the Y.M.C.A. hall on Saturday night. Mr. Richard Lees, M. A., presided in a capable manner.

Miss Clara Belleghem delighted the audience with a solo sung in her usual fine voice; she was obliged to respond with an encore number. Miss Clarry very gracefully presided at the piano.

The main feature of the evening was the lecture by Mr. F. D. Kerr, B.A., on "Seeing England, Ireland and Scotland," in which in a very interesting and graphic manner Mr. Kerr gave an account of his recent trip in the Old Country.

Though the lecture was an hour and a half in length yet it was so brimful of good humour and entertainment that he held the undivided attention of the audience from start to finish.

He was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by the chairman.

Mr. Kerr's lecture was illustrated with fifty beautiful views from slides secured from Charles Potter, Toronto. The lantern was operated by Mr. E. C. Scrigley, and this feature added materially to the pleasure of the evening.

WEAK, SICKLY, PLAYED OUT?

You are ailing—robbed of desire to work—find it difficult to think clearly. Life is dull and unhappy.

There is a remedy—FERROZONE—that quickly braces and tones. Gracious! but Ferrozone makes you feel good; it makes you sleep, makes you eat, sharpens the appetite like a razor.

BLOOD? Ferrozone makes lots of it—the rich, red kind that vitalizes the whole body.

FERROZONE

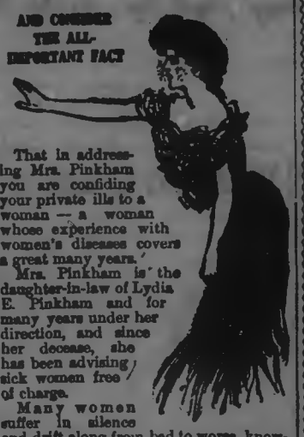
STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman — a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it "I do not believe it will help me."

ENNISMORE MAN'S WOOD-CUTTING FEAT

Mr. Wm. Curtin Recently Cut 40 Cords of Cedar in 5 Hours—A Record That Will be Hard to Beat.

Mr. Wm. Curtin, of Enniamore, is the owner of a wood-sawing outfit, and knows how to operate it, too. William has been following Greely's advice, and since early winter has been moving westward, leaving a trail of wood piles behind him in every farm yard where they happened to be short of fuel. He reserved his best effort for the occasion of his visit to Mr. Cecil Reeds, near Maple Leaf cheese factory, Emily, a few days ago, when he raced through 40 cords of cedar in five hours. If anyone can approach this feat, Mr. Curtin is prepared to buckle to his work and go a cord or two better.—Lindsay Post.

A SAN FRANCISCO PHYSICIAN

Uses Herpicide Successfully in Treating Sycosis of the Head

He says: "I recently treated a case of sycosis (similar to 'barber's itch') of the lower lip, with Newbro's Herpicide. There was an extensive loss of beard, with inflammation extending well down on the chin. The result of the application of Herpicide was most gratifying. The loss of beard ceased, and a new growth of hair is now taking place over the once inflamed area.

Services will be held in All Saints church this week on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 5 o'clock, and on Friday at the same hour there will be a children's service. On Wednesday at 8 o'clock there will be a cottage meeting at the residence of Mrs. Morrison, Landsdowne street.

Epworth League Service

To-night there will be a social evening in the school room of the Charlotte street Methodist church, under the auspices of the Epworth league. A good programme will be presented, and refreshments will be served. There will be no admission fee and strangers are said to be specially welcomed.

Council Meeting

There will be a meeting of the council to-night when several matters of importance will be taken up, including the resolution in regard to the Otonabee Power Company. The officials of the company will be present to-night and an effort will be made to have the matter satisfactorily settled. The proposed changing of the wards will also be discussed to-night.

Thank-Offering Service

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Charlotte street Methodist church, will hold their annual Easter Thankoffering Service on Tuesday at three o'clock, in the Charlotte street parsonage. A good literary and musical programme has been arranged. Miss Clara Belleghem and Mrs. Collier will sing. A cordial invitation is extended to all women interested in missions to be present.

Spring Is Sprucing Up Time

You can't wish for anything in wall papers, window blinds, cornice poles, pictures, or picture framing, that the Peterborough Bookstore can't supply. In anticipation of house-cleaning and re-decorating time, why not come in and inspect the newest spring styles and novelties. You are welcome to look all you like. A. H. Stratton & Co.

The Killarney of America

Nestling in a frame of beautifully wooded shores, lies a series of beautiful lakes, 145 miles of the city of Toronto, Ontario, and known as the "Duke of Bays Region." A chain of seven lakes studded with lovely islands, with hotels throughout the district, and a good steamboat service to all points, attracts the tourist, angler and sportsman. Just the out-of-the-day sort of a place to visit during the summer months. For all particulars and free illustrated publications apply to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Failing Eyesight and Torpid Liver

GOOD SIGHT AND GOOD HEALTH RETURNED WHEN THE LIVER WAS SET RIGHT BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

To persons who have not considered the relationship of eyesight to general health this latter will prove especially interesting.

Mr. A. R. Price, Nose Creek Calgary, Alta., writes:—"I write to tell you how highly we think of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, for they are unsurpassed for torpid liver, constipation and kidney troubles. My husband derived great benefit from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills a couple of years ago when he was feeling depressed and regularly out of sorts. His eyesight was failing and the lamplight hurt his eyes so he could not read at all and had made up his mind to see an oculist.

"I advised him to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, thinking he was suffering from torpid liver. He did so and after using less than two boxes his eyesight entirely returned and he felt quite well again. We would never be without these pills in the house and I cannot speak too highly of them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are marvellously prompt and certain as a cure for sluggish action of the liver. While awakening the liver they also regulate the bowels and invigorate the kidney action.

In this way the filtering and excretory systems are thoroughly cleansed of all poisonous impurities and the cause of pain, sickness and suffering removed.

In every family there is need of just such a medicine as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to cure constipation, backache, biliousness, indigestion and prevent dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

SHADOWS OF THE PAST

Two fair sized houses greeted Miss Julia Gray at the Grand Opera House on Saturday in the presentation of the melodrama "Shadows of the Past." The play is of the usual kind of melodrama and met the savour of the audience. It was a four act play, and the caste a well balanced one. The comedy was refined and the show throughout a very clean one.

MODERN MEN'S STORE AND "FASHION CRAFT" WARDROBE

Messrs. Laidlaw and Oles Open Thoroughly Modern Exclusively Men's Furnishing Store---"Fashion Craft" the Clothing of the Future---Some Distinctive Features of City's Largest and Best Store of Its Kind.

After the first week's business in "Fashion Craft" clothing, Messrs. Laidlaw and Oles, the popular proprietors of the Peterborough wardrobe, express entire satisfaction with the manner in which that clothing has been received by the best dressers in the city, and are confident as they have reason to be, that the business in this new men's furnishing store will fully justify their expectations.

The store, which is the largest exclusively men's store in the city, is fitted up in the most modern manner, and those who were accustomed to the store before the remodelling process took place will find it hard to believe it the same building. A new double front has been put in, with quarter cut oak framework and oxydized brass fittings and bevel plate glass door, trimmed with leaded glass. Above the window the Luxfer prisms insure an evenly-distributed light.

In the interior the store has been equipped with the most modern fittings known, and in this respect it is a model. Wide windows at both front and rear give ample light, an essential factor in a store of this kind, while in the selection of the fixtures good taste has been evidenced, and the store at once gives one the impression of what it really is, a store for men, handling nothing but the finest goods.

Along the east side of the store the "Fashion Craft" wardrobes are located, twenty-three, each with accommodation for twenty suits, having been installed. As to the quality of the clothing, Fashion Craft has been in existence about a year and a half, and in that time it has made a reputation for fit, style, and general dependability which speaks well for the business ability of the originators of the system. Nothing but the best of domestic and imported woollens are used in the manufacture of Fashion Craft clothing, and the suits range in price from $15 to $40. Suits can be finished in two hours after the measure has been taken. Mr. Peter Zettler, one of the best cutmakers in the city in the last fifteen years, will have charge of the tailor shop, where the finishing will be done.

In addition to the clothing, the firm will keep a thoroughly first-class stock of men's furnishings of all kinds, the intention being to cater to the best men's trade in the city, and both the personnel of the firm and the stock already in the store indicate that this aim will be reached.

Both Mr. Laidlaw and Mr. Oles are well known in this city. The former for a number of years conducted a custom tailor shop here, and is known as a thoroughly first-class tailor in every respect. Mr. Oles has been living here for about seven years, during the greater part of which he was with A. W. Chapman, and is well acquainted with the men's furnishing business, with which he has been associated for a number of years.

In the fitting up of the store, which is one of the prettiest in the city, local tradesmen have been patronized, so far as possible. Mr. F. Bartlett was the architect in charge and the carpenter work was performed by Mr. Jas. Graham. A new furnishing fixture, the only one of its kind in Ontario, outside of one in Toronto, was made by Mr. D. Belleghem. The doors were made by Mr. E. H. Mann, while the electric fixtures, which were made especially to the firm's order, were supplied by Messrs. Alexander and Miller. The metallic art ceiling was supplied and put up by the Peat Hardware Company. The four silent salesmen were manufactured by Jones Brothers, of Toronto, and the twenty-three wardrobes were made by the Weir Wardrobe Company, Mount Forest.

Mr. Ralph Carton did the interior decorating.

The floor is covered with cork linoleum, in keeping with the other store fittings.

For some time the best dressers among the men of Peterborough have felt the necessity for an exclusively men's store, and now that such an establishment has been opened there is every reason to believe that it will be most successful.

REV. FATHER FITZPATRICK IN AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS

Appealed for the Preservation of the Old Custom of Honouring St. Patrick---The Cathedral Was Filled With Large Gathering at the Service Last Night---Hibernian's Night

"To defend Irishmen against slanderous statements made by the unthinking world regarding the commercial stagnation, the discontent, and the unprogressiveness that has marked the Irish people in their native land;

"To preserve in the memory of mankind the greatness of Irishmen in foreign countries; and, out of respect for their achievements which have benefited the civilized world.

"To show an appreciation of the purity of the Irish women, and the other good qualities of the race, that greatly surmount their few weaknesses."

In concluding his sermon at St. Peter's Cathedral last evening, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick advanced these motives for the propagation of the celebration of the feast of St. Patrick by all true Irishmen. The speaker said that the statement has often been made to "Let the dead past bury its dead." In connection with this, he gave the above reasons for the retention of the past, that the Irish people may be able to satisfactorily explain those conditions which have left her as she is to-day and as she has been for the past three or four centuries.

The Sermon

The cathedral was taxed to its utmost seating capacity last night by the large concourse which attended the service especially to hear Rev. Father Fitzpatrick deliver a sermon on St. Patrick, his life and work among the Irish people. It was given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who attended in a body, occupying the central aisle of the church. A special collection was taken up, and the money given by the Hibernians to the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick's well-known oratorical ability was again demonstrated last night by the eloquence, the skill, the clear delivery and the consciousness that signalized his address. Always listened to with marked appreciation and attention by congregations at the cathedral, the manner in which he presented the history of Ireland in his sermon last night indelibly impressed his words on the minds of the people.

Love For Native Land

The speaker said that the sentiment which was uppermost in the minds of Irishmen on St. Patrick's day, no matter in what clime they may be, is one of intense love for the land of their birth. They do not unite to celebrate some great victory, nor the supremacy of one race over another, nor for any reasons such as these, but to do honour to that saint who implanted the first seeds of Christianity among the Irish people. This feeling is not expressed among the people in the Old Country alone, but to those places where fate and circumstances may have led their footsteps; where, under an alien sky in a foreign country, their true worth is being fostered, where they do not rust unburnished, but shine in use. This great love of country, the speaker continued, seems to be an instinct, implanted by God in the hearts of Irishmen so firmly that neither time, nor trouble, nor success ever efface it. To him it is the land of his childhood, where, in the green valleys, on the sunny hills, by the sparkling rivers, and in close contact with warm Irish natures, he grew to manhood. To him it is the land of the minstrel, the harp, the scholar, the land of the shamrock, and especially of St. Patrick, whose faith he has been daily taught ever to preserve.

Life of the Apostle

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick then gave a brief account of the early life of St. Patrick. His birthplace was on the north coast of Gaul. When young, he spent six years as a serf in Ireland. Here was it that his faith was engendered by meditation while tending his master's flocks. In rain or sunshine, winter or summer, his mind steadily became firm in its purpose of a life work for God. Later, he returned to his parents in France, and spent many years in acquiring the necessary education to fit him for missionary work. The work of converting the pagan Irish was assigned to him, after a year's unsuccessful attempt on the part of Paladius.

The speaker said that the conversion of the Irish people by St. Patrick is recorded as the only case in which an entire nation was converted to Christianity by one man, and in a few short years. Other nations have been Christianized, but in all cases it has taken a large number of missionaries to accomplish the work, and the time has generally been extended.

The Hand of God

The speaker said that the hand of God was plainly shown in the work. St. Patrick Christianized a proud, self-willed nation in a few years, meeting with but slight opposition. The speaker said that statements have been made assigning the reason that his teachings were simple, and not similar to those of the Catholic Church of to-day. This, he said, was untrue and unfounded. According to records that have been found, the religion taught by St. Patrick was the same as that of the Catholic Church, to which the Irish people have remained staunch, and in the belief of, and for which, they have suffered years of privation, prosecution and opposition.

Results To Europe

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick then told of the result of the work of Christianizing Ireland upon all Europe. For two centuries, her monks, bishops and priests were spread abroad throughout Europe teaching the new faith in every country. The speaker related that the are succeeding almost obliterated the good work done. He treated the history of the Empire in a rather brief manner, stating that the facts were well known, being found in any common English history.

Beginning of Persecution

The speaker graphically described the result of the harsh laws imposed on Ireland by the English Government about the time of the Reformation. The indignities heaped upon them were not to be borne by the proud race of men, and, accordingly, many, like Sanfield, left for foreign shores. Thirty thousand served with honour in France, winning many a battle; twenty thousand more were found among the armies of Austria and Spain. Their great desire was to return to revenge the wrong that had been done them, but they never saw that day. In many battles, such as Fontenoy, they made the English commanders regret that the Irish laws had forced them to leave their native land.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick then recounted the ravages that succeeded one another. True to the history of the time to described, the butcheries of the "saintly" Oliver Cromwell in his holocausts at Drogheda, after the battle of the Boyne, and at Wexford. The picture of that unfortunate country, that people hunted and hounded, in the grip of starvation, persecuted for a faith for which they preferred death in any form rather than renounce it.

Condition To-day

And yet, the speaker said, the race is a strong one to-day. In spite of all its trials and troubles, the most of which are now merely cicatrices, the Irish are as strong as ever they were. They are discontented to-day, but they have just rights for complaint. The reverend speaker said that Canadians are happy because the money they earn is theirs, but at present in Ireland, seventy-five out of every one hundred cents earned by the Irish tenants is claimed by the absentee landlord. This was only one of many substantial reasons given for the apparent unrest.

Then the speaker gave the reasons above mentioned for keeping fresh in the memory the life of St. Patrick. The people at home are looked down upon as idlers and unthrifty, and yet there are Irishmen enough in New York to control it. What is the reason? he asked. He then mentioned great men who claimed the little green isle as the land of their birth, who had done illustrious deeds on the battlefield, in the chemical laboratory, in inventions, and otherwise. Archbishop Ireland, of New York, once said, "Reason in Ireland is Treason," according to the absentee landlord's idea. The Irish as a race should have been one of the strongest, and wherein had they failed? Primarily, their petty jealousy was the cause, but harsh laws, persecution and oppression had dealt the blow which left Irishmen valueless in their own land. This was the chief reason, the speaker mentioned, for maintaining the custom of celebrating the 17th of March.

The conclusion was an appeal to the people, Irish and all, but particularly the former, to forget petty jealousies, to live abstemious lives, and remain true to the faith for which their ancestors had died.

SPECIAL SERVICES TO BE CONTINUED

Pastor of George Street Church Will be Assisted by Pastors of Other City Methodist Churches

The special evangelistic sermons in the George Street Methodist Church will be continued this week, when the pastor will be assisted by the pastors of the Charlotte Street and Mark Street Churches. Each evening there will be a song service preceding the regular service.

Last night the service was of an evangelistic nature and the sermon was preached with this in view. A very large number remained to the after meeting, which was of an unusually impressive character.

EVERYONE INVITED TO BIRTHDAY PARTY

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. wish to explain, in connection with the birthday party to be given in the Association parlours to-morrow night, that the fact of one not receiving an invitation should not be taken as an indication that they will not be welcome. One who thinks will appreciate that it is impossible to send invitations to every one, but the ladies are very desirous of having as large an attendance as possible, and they wish it stated that every one, whether they received an invitation or not, is cordially invited.

MUSIC AT CHARLOTTE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

At the evening service in Charlotte Street Church yesterday, Mr. Freeland, late of Hamilton, delighted the audience with his rendering of Holden's "Nearer, My God, to Thee," sung after the sermon. After the lesson Miss Bellegham sang, "Lead, Kindly Light," by Hawley. In the morning, Mr. James Browne was heard in "Heaven Is My Home."

Your Summer Outing

If you are fond of fishing, canoeing, camping or the study of wild animals, look up the Algonquin National Park of Ontario for your summer outing. A fish and game preserve of 2,000,000 acres interspersed with 1200 lakes and rivers is waiting you, offering all the attractions that Nature can bestow. Magnificent canoe trips. Altitude 2000 fee above the sea level. Pure and exhilirating atmosphere. Just the place for a young man to put in his summer holidays. An interesting and profusely illustrated descriptive publication, telling you all about it, sent free on application to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Annual Roll Call

The annual roll call of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Wednesday night. The ladies of the congregation will serve tea from 6.30 to 8 o'clock, and, following this, the roll of the church will be called, and the members are expected to be present and respond to their names. A very large gathering is expected.

Peterborough Scientist To Remove Mammoth

Prof. Kincaid, of University of Washington, Formerly of Peterborough, Given Important Commission in Alaska.

FOR SEATTLE EXPOSITION

Another former Peterborough boy has won distinction in the United States, in the field of science. The following despatch refers to a young man well known to many in this city, who will learn with pleasure of the success which has come to him in a line of work in which he was deeply interested and in which he gave evidence of more than usual skill while he was in Peterborough. Prof. Kincaid, who is referred to below is a son of Dr. Kincaid, and was born and lived his early life in Peterborough. The despatch is as follows:—

The reconstructed remains of a prehistoric monster will be shown at the Seattle Exposition in 1909. Late last summer W. E. Thomas found a mamoth encased in ice in Alaska, and early the coming season Prof. Trevor Kincaid, zoologist at University of Washington, will go to Alaska and direct the removal of the mammoth from there. It is an almost perfect specimen. The frame, flesh and hide are intact, except in one small spot where the ice melted and some animal ate away a bit of the flesh. For many thousands of years the huge body has been perfectly preserved in the solid block of ice, from which all moisture ages ago had frozen out. Some scientists claim that the mamoth lived and became extinct before man became an inhabitant of the earth. The elephant of to-day is said to be but a degenerate and puny offspring of the mammoth. Zoologists and scientists are awaiting with interest the removal to Seattle of this well preserved specimen of prehistoric animal.

G. T. R. Double Header Was Derailed Near Belleville

A double-header G. T. R. freight train ran into two cows 12 miles this side of Belleville yesterday, and as a result, the engines and their tenders went off the track, taking three cars along with them. The accident occurred yesterday some time after noon at a little station called Holloway. It was at the first crossing east of this station that the double-header collided with the two cows. Instead of being hurled from the track the first engine ran over them, and, as has often happened, before the engine was derailed, and ran into the ditch. The second collided with the first, and the cars telescoped with the last engine. Mr. Harry Dalby was in charge of the leading engine, and Mr. Ed. Elgar engineer of the other.

Fortunately, no one was hurt, according to the report, but that both crews escaped as they did is a matter of wonder, as the train was speeding down a long grade, and travelling at a fast rate.

Customs Receipts For This Month Will Be A Record

With the month of March little more than half over the receipts at the Peterborough custom house this month give promise of being considerably in excess of those for the corresponding month of last year. It is pointed out that this year the bulk of the imported goods dutiable are coming in in March, whereas last year they were received in February, the result of which was that February of this year did not show up as well as the same month in 1906, while March will probably show up correspondingly better.

Some big shipments have been received this month so far and the officials express their belief that March of this year will in all probability exceed in the value of goods passed through the customs any corresponding month.

Garbage Disposal Should Engage Aldermen's Attention

"Progress" Points Out That This is a Matter Which Concerns the Health of the Citizens.

IT'S UP TO THE ALDERMEN

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As spring is revealing the unsightly things of winter accumulation what steps are our aldermen taking in regard to garbage disposal? Thus far our council does not appear to be in advance of last year's in some of these most essential details of health and cleanliness. If some of our aldermen would give this matter as much consideration as a dairy show it would be of much greater value to the citizens. Even a ludicrous tax proposal or an unused worthless street end claims more time and attention than this matter that affects the health, comfort and convenience of the public.

Peterbrough needs an alderman competent to cope intelligently and successfully with these so-called minor and local matters that are of far greater importance than the bubbles they are either blowing or chasing so frequently.

The necessity for this was brought to the aldermen's notice in the press during the "hot air" episode last year. Ald. Elliott made a start in the matter and its "up to him" to finish his job. A nickel-plate sign on a Sanitary Inspector is all right for a start, but it won't keep vegetable refuse from putrifying in the garbage pail in hot weather.

Peterborough is too large and public health too important for the garbage gathering to be left in the hands of a few hog raisers, who are under no obligation to remove kitchen refuse, etc., in hot weather. In fact that is the time they are in least need of it and most irregular.

We will excuse our aldermen for an occasional bubble chase if they attend to necessary matters first.

Our Mayor is to be commended for the enforcement of the snow by-law but it should cover a much large area. Peterborough citizens are woefully lacking in good taste so far as the condition of our sidewalks is concerned. The worst offenders in this respect are our professional men and corner residents. Look at the sidewalks during the slush period at our M.D. corners for instance.

It is strange that a man who boasts on having a nice lawn in summer is content to wade through slush and filth in front of his own door and thereby compel his neighbours to do so too.

The Examiner has often been the champion of civic culture and regard for cleanliness and beauty but it is evident many of our citizens can only be made aware of the fact that they owe a duty to the community by the stern application of law. Let us have one more bylaw on this line and and have it enforced.

Yours truly,
"PROGRESS."

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. R. FOSTER

One of the Largest Ever Seen in This City—Large Concourse of People Witnessed it on the Streets Yesterday

The funeral of the late Richard Foster, whose death occurred Friday afternoon last, was held from the family residence, 250 Charlotte street, yesterday. That the deceased was esteemed by all the citizens who knew him was evidenced by the large attendance at his funeral. During his many years of faithful service as an expressman, and previous to that in other capacities, his genial disposition and kindly nature won him a host of friends.

The obsequies were carried out under the auspices of the A.O.F., and the Woodmen of the World also attended in a body. In all, about 125 men of these two lodges took a place in the cortege. Mr. J. W. Edwards acted as marshal for both societies.

The expressmen and delivery men of the city also walked in a body.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Wm. Major, after which the remains were conveyed to the hearse, and thence to Little Lake Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. R. Jones, R. Waram, T. Duncan, representing the Woodmen of the World, and Messrs. Geo. Lacheur, Seth Adam and R. J. McWilliams, of Court Stanley, A.O.F.

The floral offerings were very beautiful, and many handsome, designs were given. The following is a list of those who remembered the family with flowers: Sherwood Forest Camp, wreath; Mrs. Melville, bouquet; A.O.F., Court Stanley, anchor; Mr. and Mrs. Haskill, basket; Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, bouquet; Rev. Canon Davidson, bouquet; Becky and Jennie (sisters), wreath; Minnie and Dick (nieces), wreath; Dr. King and family, wreath; Mr. Mitchell, Lindsay, bouquet; Express Baggagemen and Porters, heart; Miss Haycock, Y.W.C.A., bouquet; Mr. and Mrs. Ford, Toronto, wreath; Robt. Telford, bouquet; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Roy, cycle; Foster Family, "Gates Ajar"; Mrs. Brewer, pot hyacinth; Mr. and Mrs. R. Baker, bouquet; Mr. and Mrs. Record, bouquet.

ST. MARTIN'S T. A. S. NEW OFFICERS

Progressive Society in Flourishing Condition—Officers Were Elected for the Ensuing Year

The election of officers last week of St. Martin's Total Abstinence Society was one of the most exciting in its history. The result of the contest for manning the society for the ensuing year was as follows:—

President—Michael S. Crough.
Vice-President—James Killen.
Secretary—Peter Galvin.
Treasurer—Thomas Flood.
Committee—Messrs. W. Crough, Sr., John Mahoney, Samuel Killen, Reeve; William Killen, Cornelius O'Reilly, John Geary and Joseph Costello.

The retiring officers, who served last year and were not eligible for re-election were: Messrs. Peter Flood, President; Daniel Crough, Vice-President; Jas. Mahoney, Secretary; P. J. Scollard, Treasurer, and Committee—Eugene Murphy, M. Crough, Sr., Eugene Moloney, John O'Reilly, John Scollard, John Flood and Joseph Carroll.

The prospects of the society were never better than at the present time. After mass on Sunday, St. Patrick's Day, over 150, mostly heads o families, renewed their pledge for the coming year, which in addition the seventy-five already enlisted, makes a total of 225 members, which during the year will be considerably increased. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick is very proud of his new committee and he has implicit confidence in every man comcosing it from the president down.

CLASS OF IMMIGRANTS NOT DESIRED

"Canadian" Writes to the Examiner Pointing Out Some of the Undesirable Qualities of New Comers

To the Editor of the Examiner:

I want to compliment you on your recent editorial regarding English immigration, and on the fair way in which you disposed of the misunderstanding regarding what has been said in several letters about the desirability or undesirability of Englishmen coming to this country. The class of Englishmen we do not want is that class which is typified by the following letter clipped from the Toronto News:—

"Mr W. A. Bailey, Peterborough, writes:—Permit me to thank you for your remarks on Friday last. You say, however, that you do not want those who are unemployed because they are unemployable. By whom? Are you Canadians qualified to decide? Your chewing, beer-drinking filthy people are not fit to clean the boots of an Englishman. Did you ever refuse the money of one of the poor wretches brought to your dirty, brutal country? You don't know what England is."

This letter does not need any comment. It speaks for itself as well as for the class of Englishmen to which the writer belongs.

"CANADIAN."

The Peterborough Show Case Company's factory on Dublin street, is now running at full blast and the orders that have accumulated during the time that the factory has been in course of construction, are being filled as speedily as possible.

Mr. W. Dunslow has a partner in the business now in the person of Mr. W. Theobald, formerly of Berlin, who is familiar with all the details of the business. Mr. J. J. Cottingham secured the first output of the new factory having installed several very handsome silent salesmen show cases.

TURKISH BATH PLANT FOR PETERBOROUGH

Stated That One Will be Established in This City

Peterborough is taking on all the signs of a modern city, and the latest evidence of this is the fact that a Turkish bath establishment is very shortly to be started in this city. It is stated that a local firm of barbers have decided to instal a complete plant in connection with their business on George street. The details of the plan are not complete yet but it is said that the project is an assured thing.

CITY COUNCIL'S NEGLECT TO CLEAN CROSSINGS

Fail to Practice What They Preach—Lady Severely Injured on Saturday Night

On Saturday evening, a lady, while walking down George street, received some painful injuries in a fall at the corner of George and Hunter streets. She slipped on the icy crossing and struck her foot against the hard ground. For a short time she was unconscious, but was revived again at Madill's drug store. Although her head was not cut, she was considerably shaken up and went away with some reminiscenses of the fall.

This is but another example of the inconsistency of the Council which compels merchants to keep the sidewalks clean, and neglect, themselves, to protect the people by making safe the crossings. There is scarcely a crossing in the city which has received the necessary attention to protect the public, and yet the private citizens are arraigned in the Police Court every other day to answer similar charges and pay fines.

The crossings on George street, at least, should be attended to along with the walks, and should not be allowed to remain a menace to pedestrians who pay out their hard-earned cash to keep the streets in a passable condition.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS.—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result, my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Pike, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

EIGHTEEN DROWNED IN A FLOOD

Leap Into the Water to Escape From Being Burnt.

FIREMEN'S HEROIC WORK

Had to Use Boats to Fight Flames—Fire Caused by An Explosion—Heavy Losses — Many Thousands Homeless—Railway Tracks Damaged—Ice Threatens Pittsburg—Surrounded By Water.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 18.—Eighteen persons are known to have lost their lives in the fire that occurred at the plant of the Warwick Pottery Co., in the flooded district, yesterday.

Because of the water surrounding the burned district, it was impossible for the fire apparatus to reach the scene. The firemen pressed into service all the boats that could be secured and carried the lines of hose to the burning buildings by this means.

They did heroic work, and not only fought the fire, but assisted in rescuing many persons.

All the police that could be spared were rushed to the scene to assist in the work of rescue. The crew of a boat that was moored across the river from the building manned a yawl and rescued about 100 persons.

The men were offered all kinds of rewards for the work they had done, but they refused to accept them.

Screams for help from those in the buildings could be heard a mile north, where thousands of persons, unable to lend any assistance, watched the blaze.

Had the victims remained in their homes none of them would have met death.

No sooner had the explosion that started the fire occurred than people commenced leaping from the windows into the water. Five of them were drowned by the upsetting of a boat.

Cincinnati Losses Heavy.

Cincinnati, O., March 18.—A stage of sixty-one feet was reached by the flooded Ohio River last evening. Forecaster Bassler has placed the probable crest at sixty-three feet some time to-day. Losses cannot be given, although they are heavy and extensive.

Many thousands have been driven from their homes and the sufferings of the homeless and unemployed will last several days. The Cincinnati administration has asked for authority to issue bonds for $1 .00 for the relief of flood sufferers.

The city suffered a loss of about $150,000 yesterday in the collapse of the Eighth street viaduct over the railroads of the Mill Creek quarter. Three fifty-foot spans went down.

500 Homes Surrounded.

Huntington, W. V., March 18.—The Ohio River reached its highest point yesterday afternoon with fifty-eight feet three inches. After remaining stationary two hours, it began to recede slowly. The stage exceeded by six-tenths of a foot the January flood.

Some five hundred homes in Huntington and Central City are surrounded with water. Cattlesburg, Ceredo and Porterville are flooded. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has not run a train into Huntington since Wednesday.

Boatrides In Main Street.

Portsmouth, Ohio, March 18.—One-third of the city is submerged. Thousands of people put in the day boat-riding through the principal streets.

There have been no fatalities and subsequently little actual suffering. The railroads have been the chief sufferers, and dozens of floodbound passengers are quartered at hotels.

Twenty-Two Miners Killed.

Saarlouis, Rhenish Prussia, March 18.—Twenty-two miners were killed yesterday morning at the Gerhard coal mine. They were descending one of the shafts in a cage when the cable broke near the top and the miners plunged down several hundred feet. They all met with instant death.

The mine belongs to the Prussian Government, which has already begun an official inquiry into the accident.

Masson Out On Bail.

Cornwall, March 18.—Charlie Masson of Ottawa, the hockey player, who is charged with causing the death of "Bud" McCourt in a match here on March 6, has been released on $16,000 bail, $8,000 by himself, $4,000 by his father, D. T. Masson, and $4,000 by J. H. Dewar of Ottawa.

The bail was granted by County Judge O'Reilly.

A WOMAN'S BACK WAS NOT MADE TO ACHE

Thousands of Women suffer Untold Misery Every Day with Aching Backs That Really have no Business to Ache.

Under ordinary conditions it ought to be strong and ready to bear the burdens of life.

It is hard to do housework with an aching back. Backache comes from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered that they get out of order.

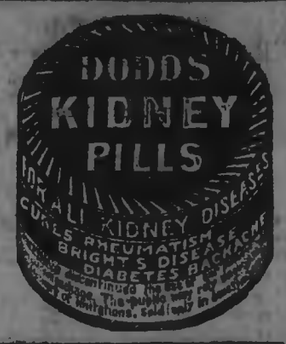
Backache is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from Kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills

will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

Mrs. Thos. Craig, Almonte, Ont., writes: "I was declaring for six months for kidney trouble and my back was so lame I had to lie to bed. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so and in one week I was able to walk with very little pain, and in five months my back was as strong as ever.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.



SINCLAIR SHUT IN BY THE FLAMES

Author of the Jungle Has a Narrow Escape.

HELICON HALL BURNT OUT

Socialist's Colony Broken Up—Explosion Tears Away Front of Building—People Jump From Windows—One Workman Missing—Threw Children Into Blankets—Several Women Were Hurt.

Englewood, N. J., March 18.—Helicon Hall, the home of Upton Sinclair's Socialistic colony, was burned to the ground, following an explosion on Saturday, which tore the front part of the building away, and sent flames to every corner of the structure. The 55 persons who comprised the settlement, including the author of "The Jungle" and his wife, were shut in by the flames, and jumped from windows on the second and third floors. Children were tossed from the windows in their night clothes, and caught in the arms of men and women or in blankets held by them. A number of women in the colony received sprains, bruises, and cuts. A workman named Briggs was said to be missing.

The explosion seemed to have occurred in the ball-room, and was of such force as to be heard a mile away. As it was not caused by the boilers of the heating plant, suspicion was aroused that it was the deliberate work of some malicious persons.

Fire followed the explosion almost at once, and quickly spread through the lower part of the building, shutting off the escape of the occupants, who at first rushed for the stairways, but were turned back by the flames. As there were no fire-escapes, the members of the colony began to jump from the second and third storey windows. The men then threw out blankets first, and then used them to break the fall of the women and children, who were dropped into them.

Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair, who occupied a room in the front of the building, were thrown from their bed by the explosion, and jumped out of the window.

The Sinclair Co-operative Colony was established last October, and included a number of educators, men and women, engaged in literary pursuits. The co-operative servant plan was adopted, the meals being served in common in a large dining-room.

BIG BLAGE IN FINSBURY.

Three Warehouses Burned In Finsbury District—Loss, $1,000,000.

London, March 18.—Three big warehouses in the Finsbury district, London's busiest industrial centre, were destroyed by fire yesterday morning, causing damage to the amount of about $1,000,000.

Starting in Featerstone street, in the premises of Cox & Co., hat manufacturers, the flames, fanned by a strong wind, jumped the street and enveloped the establishment of the Maxime Co., wood turners, and spread to the adjoining warehouse of Green & Co., shoe manufacturers. Owing to the strength of the wind, it appeared for a time as though the whole block of adjoining property would be devastated, but after three hours' hard work the firemen gained control of the situation.

$10,000 Fire In St. John.

St. John, N. B., March 18.—Fire Saturday night in the centre of a Prince William street block caused damage estimated at $10,000. It broke out in the four-storey brick building owned by George E. Fairweather, and occupied by A. B. Smalley, jeweller and watchmaker. The building was gutted and considerable stock damaged. The adjoining building, the Dearborn Co.'s spice factory, suffered several thousands of dollars loss, and Bowman and Cole, wholesalers and tea merchants, suffered by smoke and water. All the losses are covered by insurance.

Hotel Burns at Falls.

Niagara Falls, March 18.—Victoria Hall, the summer tourist temperance house, at Niagara Fall Centre, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday. It is believed the fire started from crossed electric wires in the section closed for the winter.

The occupants escaped in their night clothing. Dr. Gibson, was partially overcome by smoke, while the daughter of the proprietor, Miss Young, and a friend, Miss Inez Sinclair, had to be taken out with assistance of a ladder.

Walkerville Church Burns.

Walkerville, March 18.—The eastern part of the town was visited by a disastrous fire Saturday afternoon, the McGregor-Banwell Fence Co. going first.

The Walkerville fire brigade kept the fire from spreading in the immediate vicinity, but the wind carried some cinders to the roof of the Roman Catholic Church, Our Lady of Lake St. Clair, over 200 yards distant, and the whole roof was in flames. The Detroit fire tug soon had the fire under control, but not until the church was a total loss.

Kingston Prosecuter Named.

Kingston, March 18.—H. A. Stewart of Brockville has been appointed crown prosecutor for the assizes, which open here to-day.

Affidavit of Evelyn Nesbit to Be Read In Court—Rumor That Thaw Will Re-Marry Her if Released—Endurance Stretched to Breaking Point Says Counsel for Defence—Evidence All In Tuesday.

New York, March 18.—"Thank God, the end is in sight!"

This was the fervent whisper of District Attorney Jerome at the Thaw trial Saturday, uttered loud enough for the reporters to hear, following a favorable decision by Justice Fitzgerald regarding the Hummel affidavit.

The strain on those attending the trial has been severe. Justice Fitzgerald has shown the effects of it, as have the lawyers, the defence and the district attorney. When Mr. Jerome asked for an additional 15 minutes Friday at the usual hour for adjournment, Mr. Delmas protested, declaring that his endurance had been stretched to the breaking point. He would not consent to another minute of extra session.

Not To Be Drawn.

Mr. Jerome did his best to get from Mr. Delmas an estimate on the length of time that would be required to complete the sur-rebuttal, but Thaw's lawyer declined to give any suggestion on this line.

It is generally believed, however, that Monday and Tuesday will see the close of evidence and Wednesday and Thursday will be used in summing up. There is every reason to believe that Friday will put the fate of Harry K. Thaw in the hands of the jury, unless some unexpected development occurs.

Story of Her Wanderings.

The sensational affidavit which Mr. Jerome fought so hard to get into the evidence, gives Evelyn Nesbit's story of the wanderings of herself and Thaw on the continent, during which time, according to the affidavit, Thaw beat her several times in an effort to make her swear to a document charging White with having drugged, and attacked her when she was a girl of 15. The affidavit also declares that Evelyn Nesbit submitted to the lashings, declaring that White had never wronged her—a sworn statement in direct contradiction to her story on the stand of what she told Thaw in Paris. This may be read in court to-day.

Will Re-Marry Evelyn.

An interesting report was circulated to the effect that Thaw, overjoyed at the prospects of an early ending to the trial, is already making arrangements as to what he shall do upon his expected release, for the prisoner is absolutely sure he will be free.

Among other things it is said he will at once investigate whether his marriage is strictly legal under the laws of Pennsylvania, as it has been testified that he was insane at the time he made his will and when he was wed.

To insure legality of his marriage with Evelyn Nesbit, the prisoner, it is said, has decided to go through a second ceremony with her if any possibility presents itself as to annulment of the marriage. Thaw's move would prevent his relatives from forcing an annulment of the ceremony, and it is one of the prisoner's cleverest plans promulgated so far, to make the bonds between him and Evelyn fast.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, No. 20, Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states: — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what the doctors called varicose ulcers. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very start Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

Explosion on a Destroyer.

Corfu, March 18.—The British destroyers Dragon, Boxer, Desperate and Foam went out at noon Saturday on a steam trial. At five o'clock a tube in the Dragon's boiler exploded, injuring severely Stokers Dawe, Parks and Brown, and slightly injuring Chief Stoker Gough and two men named Moyle and Wilton.

The Dragon was towed into harbor and the men were landed and taken to the military hospital.

LACROSSE IN CITY WILL FLOURISH

Annual Meeting of the Peterborough Club Was Held on Saturday Afternoon.

PROSPECTS ARE VERY BRIGHT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club was held on Saturday afternoon at the National Hotel, and, judging by the enthusiasm displayed, the game will boom in the city this year. There was a large attendance of lovers of lacrosse present and much interest was manifested. It is certain that the people of Peterborough will be given an opportunity of seeing some first-class lacrosse this summer as there is any amount of material out of which could be chosen a team that would make the best of them travel some to beat.

Just what series the team will be found in this year has not yet been decided upon. The prospects are that, if a convenient senior schedule can be arranged, the Peterborough club will be found represented therein. However, if this is not possible an intermediate team will be placed in the field that will be the strongest that has represented the city in many years. The prospects are decidedly bright, and, with the energetic officers elected at Saturday's meeting, the success of the club seems assured.

HARRY MORGAN

Member of Executive Committee

The following officers were elected:—

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs H. Neill, Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., and Mrs. Hall, Mayor and Mrs. McWilliams, and Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P..

Hon. Pres.—J. J. McCabe.

President—W. S. Davidson.

First Vice-President—Dr. Wightman.

Second Vice-President — Fred. A. Clarke.

Secretary-Treasurer—A. M. Regan.

Executive Committee—Harry Morgan, R. M. Glover, Fred McGrath, Geo. Lynch, W. F. Crowley and J. J. McCabe.

The club decided to nominate the secretary-treasurer for a position on the C. L. A. Council. Mr. Regan is a very well-known lacrosse man and is very popular with those interested in the pastime. He is in every way qualified for the position for which he will be nominated, and his election to the council will no doubt be favourably considered. Messrs. Regan and Davidson were appointed the delegates of the club to the annual meeting of the C. L. A., which will be held in Toronto on Good Friday.

THE MIDLAND LEAGUE FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Annual Meeting on Saturday—Local Club Re-organized Two Days Before

With the advent of Spring the local football enthusiasts are getting restless to again get into the Association game. On Thursday evening at 7.30 of this week, there will be a meeting to reorganize a Peterborough club at the Y.M.C.A. and all interested in the game are requested to be present.

On Saturday, also, of this week, at 1 o'clock, the annual meeting of the Midland League will be held, at which representatives from the various clubs intending to enter the League, will be present, when the election of officers will take place.

Among other questions to be considered will be the advisability of having an intermediate and senior series in the League this year, replacing the junior and intermediate of last year.

As far as can be learned the league this year will again be prosperous. Most of the clubs entered last year will again be in harness with a few others. It is understood however that Harwood will be an absentee, but that Gore's Landing will have a team to take their place. Among the others likely to enter are Oshawa, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Bridgenorth, Lakehurst, Lakefield, Fenelon Falls, Omemee, Warsaw, Norwood and, perhaps, Havelock and Campbellford. Communications addressed to the secretary of the League here, Mr. J. E. Sullivan, will receive careful attention.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

With Good Prospects for a Successful Series of Games—The Schedule Arranged

At a well-attended meeting of the Y.M.C.A. senior gymnasium members, held in the association rooms on Saturday night, a new basketball league, to be known as the Spring League, was organized. Four teams comprise the league, and the games will be played on Wednesday nights, beginning Wednesday night of this week. The teams, on paper, look to be even better balanced than the teams comprising the league last fall. The four captains appointed were S. Laing, R. Best, R. Dobbin and W. Richardson. A list had previously been signed by those wishing to play, and the teams were chosen from the list. It was decided at the meeting that after the games had been finished the players would hold a banquet. The league promises to be a great success, and fast ball will undoubtedly be served up.

The teams captained by S. Laing and R. Best meet in the first game at 8 o'clock on Wednesday night, and those captained by R. Dobbin and W. Richardson meet at 9.

Everybody is welcome to see the games, no admission fee being charged. The schedule, as arranged is as follows:

March 20—S Laing v. R Best; R Dobbin v. W. Richardson.

March 27—R Best v. W. Richardson; S Laing v. R Dobbin.

April 3—S Laing v. W Richardson; R Best v. R Dobbin.

HOCKEY

Fred Whitcroft figured largely in the victory of Kenora over Portage last week scoring two goals and two others being scored on passes from him. A despatch from Kenora says: "The Thistles presented the best line-up that has ever worn the local uniform and it would be hard to find seven such able exponents of the game anywhere. Alf Smith and Harry Westwick, of the Ottawas, wore the Thistle uniform and they rounded out a team that has no weakness anywhere. Phillips and Whitcroft both fitted in with Smith and Westwick like fingers upon a glove."

* * * *

In the first of the final games for the championship of the Manitoba League Kenora trimmed Brandon in Winnipeg on Saturday night by 8 goals to 6. Whitcroft scored the first two goals for the Thistles, both in one minute. Griffis was off the Kenora line up, his place at cover being taken by Beaudro. The Thistles led at half time by 5 goals to 3.

* * * *

A fast game of hockey was played Saturday night, when the pen-pushers of the C. G. E. staff defeated the members of the Quaker Oats Co. office. The half time score was 1-0 in favour of the "pure food" people, but when the final gong sounded the "Electrics" had the upper hand, the score being 6-2.

* * * *

The following games will be played at the Brook street rink to-night:—

All Saints vs. Tigers, from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Grafton's vs. Rich. Hall's, from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Knockers vs. Pill Pounders from 9 till 10 o'clock.

The ice is in good shape and fast games should result.

CURLING

A couple of games were played at the Curling rink on Saturday night on good ice. One of these was a thirteen point game between T. Bightman and J. E. A. Fitzgerald, the latter winning by a margin of 8 points. In the other Skip Geo. Fitzgerald defeated Skip Gen. Morrow by 19 points to 10.

DOWNIE STREET CREEK ON RAMPAGE

Flooded the Street for Half a Block Yesterday—Damage Slight.

The Downie street creek, in the northwest section of the city, is at its old pranks again, and yesterday the annual spring freshet took place, fortunately, however, without so much damage as usual. The water rose rapidly yesterday, and the creek swelled by the melting snow and the miniature rivers that flowed into it from all sides, grew in volume until, at Downie street, south of Smith, it burst over the sidewalk and road, cutting off all traffic at that point. The water was a foot deep on the road, and even deeper than the sidewalk, which is lower. For half a block this condition of affairs existed, and the sidewalk was completely out of sight. To-day, however, the water is considerably lower, and the sidewalk, with the exception of a small section, is once more above water. Nearby yards were flooded, and in some cases water reached the cellars of houses, but beyond this the damage done was slight.

White's creek has not yet began its annual rampage, although the water is considerably higher than usual.

THE FIRST FLOCK OF ROBINS THIS MORNING

Mr. Frank Wise, superintendent of the Little Lake cemetery, reported this morning that he had noticed the first flock of robins to-day. An occasional robin has been seen before this spring but this morning was the first time that they put in an appearance in any numbers. A few song sparrows have also been noticed to-day.

STOMACH TROUBLES

To wrong action of the stomach and impaired digestion a host of diseases owe their origin.

When the food is imperfectly digested the full benefit is not derived from it by the body, and then stomach troubles start to appear.

Thus you become thin, weak, nervous and debilitated, energy is lacking, brightness, snap and vigor are lost and in their place come dullness, dizziness, loss of appetite, depression and langour. The great point is to get the stomach back into good shape again so it can properly digest the food, and the easiest, quickest and best way to do it is by the use of

Miss Lizzie Furlotte, Jacquet River, N.B., writes: "I was very much troubled with my stomach and did not know what to do. I consulted several doctors, got medicine from them, but all to no purpose, and was constantly growing worse. One day I had the good luck to meet with a friend who had been troubled in the same way as myself. My friend told me of the wonderful cure Burdock Blood Bitters had made with her and advised me to try a bottle. I did so, and what a happy change the first bottle made. I took two more and am completely cured, and I shall ever sing the praises of B.B.B."

Price $1.00 per bottle or 6 bottles for $5.00.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has the permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

Pedestrians Take Big Risks on Railway Crossings

A Railway Man Says Only Special Vigilance and Care on Part of Employees of Company Prevents Serious Accidents.

PRECAUTIONS DISREGARDED

"It is not due to the care they take of themselves that persons are not killed every day at the railway crossings in the city," was the remark passed to the Examiner by a member of the shunting engine crew of the G.T.R., on Saturday night, and in the conversation which followed this observation he explained that persons crossing the railway tracks in the city, and pedestrians especially, are every day taking risks which they should not take, and that only for the special care exercised by the engineer and other members of the crew there would be a great many more accidents than are at present recorded. He stated that the gates even seem to be barrier to those who are apparently in too great a rush to wait until an engine and a few cars pull across the street, and regardless of the fact that the gates are down they rush into danger and try to cross ahead of the approaching engine or cars.

The result of this apparent disregard for personal safety is that the crew has to exercise special care and even then it often seems that a serious, if not fatal accident cannot be avoided.

It is a case of familiarity breeding contempt, and frequent crossing the tracks ahead of an engine, if it is only beaten by a hairsbreadth makes the reckless one still more reckless. The gentlemen referred to express the opinion that in spite of all the precautions used to prevent accidents there was bound to be one some of these days if those who have occasion to cross the tracks were not more careful.

His advice seems to be good, and it is given with the hope that it will be heeded.

HAPPENINGS AT HALL'S GLEN

What Has Transpired in That Interesting Section During the Week Personal Items of Interest.

Special to The Examiner.

Mr. Robt. Little, Lakefield, passed through here on Saturday.

Mr. N. Stephens is contemplating a trip to the west in the near future.

It is reported that Mr. John Little is married. Mr. Dave Madill was groomsman.

Mr. A. C. Carveth and Miss Murphy of Lakefield, spent Sunday at the former's home.

We were pleased to have Mr. Nickel of Madoc, brother of our esteemed pastor, to worship with us on Sunday.

Mr. William Crowe, who has been spending the winter with his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Crowe, returned to the west last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walden Hales, Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Northey, Selwyn, were guests at the home of Mr. William Carveth, veth, Sunday.

Several of the girls in this community are keeping their spirits up by singing "Where is my wandering boy to-night?" The answer comes—"He has wandered to the far west."

Miss Katie Baskin, Cottesloe, spent last Saturday with her friend, Mrs. G. Crowe. Mrs. Crowe and Miss Baskin visited Miss Violet Carveth on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. David Little had several men in his employ on Saturday and stood out in the sun so long that his moustache became bleached, so that it was found necessary to remove it.

HAD HIGHEST SKILL

And Yet This Workman Starved to Death

A pathetic story of hardship and misfortune was told a reporter yesterday. It seems a man not far from this city was exceedingly skilful in a certain line of work, but he was so unclean in his habits that his hands were always soiled. Whenever he did a fine piece of work he would be likely to spoil it by getting it spotted and greasy. So at last no one would hire him, and he grew so poor he finally died from insufficient nourishment.

"Now," said Mr. McDermid, of the firm of McDermid and Jury, our well known pharmacists, "there is a parallel case to that one in the field of medicine. It is cod liver oil, which contains medicinal and curative properties to do such splendid work as a body building, healing and strength-creating tonic medicine and yet fails because its greasy, indigestible oil upsets the stomach and hinders these excellent curatives from doing their healing work.

"Like the workman, old-fashioned cod liver oil has 'lost its job,' and few people nowadays have any use for it or emulsions since Vinol is rapidly taking its place. Vinol is delicious and digested with perfect ease and at the same time contains all the genuine medicinal curatives taken direct from fresh cods' livers. Vinol will do more than was ever claimed for old-fashioned cod liver oil, yet it is entirely free from oil, and agreeable to the weakest stomach. It is guaranteed to give strength to the weak, vitalize the old and cure stubborn colds and hacking coughs or money will be paid back. McDermid & Jury, Vinol is also sold at the Market Drug Store, the Ormond & Walsh old stand.

THE DAIRYMEN TO GIVE ADDRESSES

G. G. Potter and Alex. Hume Will Speak on Dairying Subjects in This City on March 26th.

The dairymen of Eastern Ontario, are all aware of the action of the association last fall in having the eastern portion of the province divided into sections, and representatives of the Board of Directors, elected by the dairymen of each section. In Order that this instruction work for the coming season and dairy matters generally may be discussed thoroughly and the season started with enthusiasm and a definite object in view, arrangements are being made for one meeting in each district. The meetings in this part of the district will be held as follows:

Madoc, Hastings county, March 25th.

Peterborough, Peterborough county, March 26th.

Lindsay, Victoria county, March 27th.

The meetings will be held at 1.30 and 7.30 p.m., and will be addressed by Mr. G. G. Publow, Kingston, and Mr. Alex. Hume, Menie.

Mr. G. G. Publow, Chief Instructor for Eastern Ontario, needs no introduction to the dairymen of this section. He will be prepared to give both proprietors, makers and patrons much valuable information and it is to be hoped that all will take advantage of hearing him. Mr. A. Hume, of Menie, will give addresses upon the selection, care and management of dairy cattle, and also upon the rearing of bacon hogs.

The Department of Agriculture has this year appropriated an additional sum for dairy instruction, work and is making arrangements to give free instruction to all factories and creameries within the province.

YOUNG MEN WHO WILL CONDUCT A DEBATE

Interesting Subject to be Taken Up at St. Andrew's Hall To-morrow Night —Young Ladies Will Assist.

To-morrow night an interesting meeting is promised in St. Andrew's Lecture Hall, when a challenge debate will take place between teams representing the Young Men's Guild, of St. Andrew's church and the Debating Club of the Y.M.C.A., upon the subject, "Resolved that labour receives from Capital an equitable share of the wealth it produces." Young men generally are invited, and a pleasant and profitable evening is in prospect. The young ladies of the Daughters of Erin Society will provide refreshments.

The Meter Company Will Erect A Large Building

To Provide for Growing Business Two Story Substantial Factory Building Will be Erected During the Summer.

A PROSPEROUS CONCERN

One of the large buildings to be erected in the city during the coming summer will be the new factory of the Pre-payment Meter Company, reference to the decision to erect which has already been made in these columns. The new arrangement entered into between the company and the Allis - Chalmers - Bullock Company, of Montreal, means means that there will be a growing demand for the meters manufactured by this company, that made after the meter invented by Mr. Collier having been received with great favour by electric companies to whom it has been shown.

The site upon which the new factory will be erected, has not been definitely decided upon yet, but it is understood that the company has a number of sites in view and that a decision will be reached in the near future, and that work will be commenced as soon as the plans and specifications can be prepared and tenders received for the work.

The building will probably be a two story structure, built of brick or concrete and will be large enough to provide for the expansion which the directors of the company have reason to expect will follow.

It will be seen that this concern, which has been gradually growing from a small beginning, is destined to become one of the city's most prosperous industries. That after having been in operation for less than a year, it should be found necessary to erect such a building, as is now proposed, speaks well for not only the enterprise of the company but as well for the merit of the product manufactured by it.

WEEK'S INTELLIGENCE FROM STEWARTS

An Interesting Budget of Personal and Other News From That Section of Otonabee.

Examiner Special

Stewart's, Otonabee, March 15.—The Young People's meeting was not so largely attended this week, owing to the poor condition of the roads. It was Bible study again, and Miss M. Stewart took the topic. Miss Lizzie Stewart gave a very interesting paper on the life of Luther. The committee had arranged for a social to be given next week, but have decided to postpone it for an indefinite time on account of the uncertainty of the roads.

Mr. Brooks, a missionary from Constantinople, gave an address on "The peoples and religions of Turkey," in the union hall on Tuesday evening. The attendance was fairly good but the bad roads prevented many from going, and, we venture to say, they missed an intellectual treat.

A number of our young people crossed the river last Sunday evening and attended the Springville church service.

We fear that our long enjoyed sleighing is nearly at a finish, and the rattle of the wheels will soon be heard once more.

Mr. Creighton Matchett, who has been renewing old acquaintances for the past three months, left for Lethbridge, Alberta, on Tuesday. He has made his home there for a number of years but claims that new friends fail to equal the old ones.

Miss Mildred Doyell and a friend spent Friday evening at Mr. W. B. Stewart's.

We are glad to notice that our Cold Springs friends have commenced operations on their new Sunday School Hall. From appearances so far it promises to be a good one.

Danger in Farming.

"Dollar Wheat" is fine for farmers, but they take long chances with their health in getting the wheat. Bad weather, lifting, straining, wrenched backs, lay the foundation for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble. There is a farmer, out Markham way, who was so busy making money that he did not realize he was making ill-health at the same time. He had headaches; often his back hurt so badly he could hardly stand, often the urine was highly colored and scalding. But he thought he was only "working too hard." One day he caught cold. The next day he had Rheumatism. This Markham farmer suffered 7 years with Rheumatism until chance brought a friend who told him about Bu-Ju. They relieved the excruciating pain, and cured him in three months.

MARKHAM, ONT.

"I had suffered almost continually for seven years with Kidney Trouble; could scarcely walk and was unable to attend to my farm duties. After taking the first few pills I felt much relieved, and after taking half a box was able to do a full day's work. I know one box of Bu-Ju saved me $40.00 Doctor's bill, and think they are the finest Pill made." JAMES ABBOTT.

THE SPRING OVERCOAT

Because a man can go without a Spring Overcoat at a pinch, sweltering in his Winter Overcoat, or shivering without any overgarment at all through the weeks that span the interval from real winter to real summer, this garment has become a sort of badge of prosperity.

THE COAT

that has the most admirers this season is the three-quarter length Overcoat in black or Oxford gray. The long Swagger Raincoats in Coverts, and the swellest of the swell coats, the Paddock, with long handsome skirts in plain gray and black Thibets.

Black Vicuna, three-quarter length, at.....$13.00
Gray Thibet, " " at.....$15.00
Covert Raincoats, long swagger, at $10 and $12.00
Vicuna and Covert, Paddock style, $16, $18, $20.00

Our Coats have hand-padded shoulders, hand-made collars, with the best of haircloth fronts; some are handsomely silk-lined and very luxurious garments. We don't know where better Spring Overcoats than ours can be found. They're simply perfection.

Cleared A Million Dollar Fortune In Wall Street

J. Brandt Walker, a Chicago Broker, Who Made a Big Haul From Railway and Steel Stocks.

HALF MILLION IN ONE DEAL

The Newest "Napoleon of Finance" Explains His Method—Tells How He Beat the Big Financiers at Their Own Game.

Examiner Special.

New York, March 18. — Without moving from an easy chair in the suite at the Lakewood (N.J.) Hotel, J. Brandt Walker, a Chicago broker, yesterday closed up its masterly raid on Wall Street and dragged a million-dollar fortune from the Stock Exchange.

The tale of the westerner's Napoleonic bear campaign of six months reads like a chapter from "The Pit."

Walker is the son of Edwin Walker, one of the foremost corporation lawyers of the country. Out in Chicago six months ago the young man tired of the daily routine of a prosaic stock brokerage office and decided to make a whirlwind dash into the high finance of Wall Street all by himself, with the Wall Street magnates as his victims. He knew that stocks were advancing, while the bond market declined. The railways were putting out new securities and increasing dividends at the same time. Walker shrewdly figured that this combination, sooner or later, must end in only one way. So he planned his bear campaign.

In February, quietly and without any boasts, Walker went from Chicago to Lakewood and took a suite of rooms in the Lakewood Hotel. A stock quotation board and a ticker were the first things he installed. Private telephones and telegraph wires followed. In a week Walker's suite looked the perfect replica of a Wall Street broker's office, but, so quietly had he furnished it, that his friends of the New York Stock Exchange thought he was in Lakewood only for a rest.

Immured in his room, watching and working from the depths of a big Morris chair, the plunger began his operations. He sold Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Copper and Canadian Pacific until he was short 200,000 shares of these stocks on the New York Exchange and abroad.

The Chicago operator suddenly began to cover. The wires buzzed and sputtered faster than ever as he executed the final move. Up to the instant that the market closed he was buying right and left. Then, at the stroke of 3, Walker sat back in his easy-chair, lit a fresh cigar, and said:

"Well, I have cleared up a clean million since 10 o'clock this morning. That's good enough. I guess I've had enough fun with Wall Street for a while. I'll go back to Chicago tomorrow."

Later, the newest "Napoleon of Finance" explained something of his methods.

"It doesn't take such a tremendous amount of sagacity as you'd think to make a fortune out of Wall Street," he said. "In one transaction alone to-day I cleared up a half-million profit on United States Steel. That is but one item of my fling in the East."

PLENTY OF WATER ON THE ICE ON RICE LAKE

Mr. N. E. Merriam, of Harwood, was in the city yesterday and reports that there is now about 6 or 8 inches of water on Rice Lake. He crossed the lake in the morning, and states that the ice is still very thick, which causes such a large quantity of water floating on it.

GET YOUR SHARE OF THE INCREASE

New industries, new enterprises, and all that sort of thing are bringing hundreds of young men to the city who are looking dor desirable boarding and lodging houses. It is a certainty that one of the first things these newcomers sees is a copy of the Peterborough Examiner. If your house is mentioned in the "Board and Rooms" column on the classified pages of the Examiner you will doubtless get your share of this new business. It's worth having, and an Examiner classified advertisement will get it for you.

COURT SHAMROCK WAS INSTITUTED

New Branch of the Canadian Order of Foresters Formed at Youngs Point —The New Officers Elected.

Court Shamrock, the newest court of the Canadian Order of Foresters, was instituted at Young's Point last week and the officers elected. The new Court commences with a good list of members and the brightest prospects for success. For some weeks Organizer Keys has been working in the neighbourhood and the result of his work was evidenced on the occasion of the institution of the new Court, when a large number of candidates gathered to be initiated into the mysteries of Forestry.

The members of Court Selwyn had charge of the initiation ceremonies, Mr. G. W. Preston, Chief Ranger, and other members of that Court taking the dramatic work. The organizer, in the institution of the Court, was assisted by Mr. J. A. Jobs and Mr. Thos. Black, both of Court Bridgenorth. Mr. Keys was in the chair, and Mr. F. Smith acted as secretary for the meeting.

The new Court starts out with a splendid list of officers who will preside over its destinies for the first term. Those elected on the night of the institution were:

C.R.—J. W. McNaughton.
V.C.R.—R. J. Pummett.
Rec.-Sec.—Arthur Smith.
Fin. Sec.—E. F. Smith.
Chaplain—John Kidd.
S.W.—Fred Hookaday.
J.W.—Wellington McNaughton.
S.B.—George Ayotte.
J.B.—Robt. Dever.
Physician—Dr. Brown.

It was decided to leave the election of the treasurer and Past Chief Ranger until the next meeting.

EPWORTH LEAGUE GAVE SOCIAL

Enjoyable Programme Presented Under Auspices of the Literary Committee of the Charlotte Street Society.

The Literary Committee of the Charlotte Street Epworth League last night provided a novel evening's entertainment for about two hundred young persons, in the form of a "peanut social," held in the Sunday school room of the church. A programme of merit was presented, and this feature was by no means the least enjoyable in an evening in which there were very many pleasing features.

Mr. S. A. Clarke, the third vice-president of the society, occupied the chair, and announced the following programme:

Selection—Sunday School Orchestra.
Male Quartette — Messrs. Clarke, Prest, Harmer and LeBar.
Piano Solo—Mrs. Tremeer.
Vocal Solo—Miss Lee.
Selection—Orchestra.
Piano Duet—Misses Elliott and Giles.

Following the programme refreshments were served, and an hour spent in delightful social intercourse.

MRS. H. G. WALKER STILL IMPROVING

Lady Injured in the Railway Wreck at Guelph is Getting Better—Acknowledgements of Sympathy Expressed by Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Walker desire, through the columns of The Examiner, to express their gratitude to the many friends who sent kind letters of sympathy were deeply appreciated and were a source of comfort in a time of sore bereavement in the death of their dearly beloved little daughter, and the affliction of Mrs. Walker in the railway disaster near Guelph. Mrs. Walker continues to improve.

BRANCH OF LAKEFIELD CEMENT COMPANY

To Be Established in Montreal—Canadian General Machinery Gives Good Satisfaction

Attention has again been directed to the rapid extension of the cement industry in Canada by the announcement that the Lakefield Portland Cement Company had perfected arrangements for the erection of a branch factory in Montreal. The company has placed an order for its electrical equipment with the Canadian General Electric Co., comprising three 1300 h.p. transformers, two 2000 h.p. transformers, one 20 h.p. motor, twelve 100 h.p. motors, eleven 75 h.p. motors, three 50 h.p. motors and three 10 h.p. motors, all complete with the necessary switchboard and speed controllers.

The works of the Lakefield Portland Cement Co. at Lakefield, to which reference has been made, were equipped by the Canadian General Electric Co., and now the order has been placed with this company for the equipment of the new branch at Montreal, which is an evidence that the appliances supplied by the Canadian General Electric are of a character that gives satisfaction.

A POPULAR YOUNG MAN HONOURED

Mr. Hector Might Made Presentation by Members of Choir of Fraserville Methodist Church

On Thursday night last the Methodist Church choir of Fraserville met at the residence of Mr. Robt. Lewers for their weekly practice, and after spending a short time in practice, the gathering developed into one of a social nature, and Mr. Hector Might, a son of Mr. Samuel Might, Cavan, who is leaving in a short time for the Northwest, was made the recipient of a pair of solid gold cuff links, suitably engraved and accompanied with the following address:

Mr. Hector Might,

Respected Friend,—On the eve of your departure from our community for the Northwest, we, as a choir, take this opportunity of expressing our sorrow at your removal. You have manifested a deep interest in matters relating to choir practice and work, and your gentlemanly bearing and your fine social spirit have added much to the pleasure of our weekly gatherings. We shall miss your help and presence very much, and hope a Divine Providence will watch over and help you in the future years of life, and that at last we may all join in the music of the skies. As a slight remembrance of our associations and friendship, please accept these cuff links from the choir.

Signed on behalf of the choir:
Mrs. Kidd, Ethel Waterman, Mrs. T. H. Ruth, Edythe Lewers, Lois Finlay, Mrs. Fred Clarke, Thos. H. Ruth, John D. Waterman, and Arthur Wood.

THE GREAT NORTH COUNTRY

Nimrod was a mighty hunter, but had he hunted in the "Temagami" district he would have been a mightier one. Nimrod hunted for glory, but Temagamians hunt for game. Those Indians who made the first canoe of birch bark long ago were our greatest benefactors. The children of these Indians know the canoe and they know how to use it, and if you go to Temagami this summer they will paddle your canoe in their own superb way. They will be the best guides you ever had. Students who camp in summer along the Temagami Lakes are able to do two years work in one. Finest of fishing and hunting. Easy of access by the Grand Trunk Railway System. For information and beautiful descriptive publication sent free, apply to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

IMPROVEMENTS SUGGESTED

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—By disposition, I am not a fault-finder, and never meddle with the private affairs of other people, but I cannot help noticing that some local play-goers have a very strong predisposition for the night air, between acts, and, on returning come pounding down the aisles, very often after the curtain has risen on a new scene or act, very much to the discomfort and annoyance of those who are seated. Other persons, not nearly so stalwart in appearance, manage to stand the confinement until the conclusion of the play. But, then, the cool, outer air of the night has, I believe, a stimulating effect upon some constitutions. This effect is particularly marked between acts. Another class of offenders is the late-comers, who awish into their seats with the greatest confusion at a time when peace and quietness are most desirable. Remember, I am not blaming the management, who seem to be doing all in their power in the best interests of their patrons, and who would, I am sure, if it were in their power, put a stop to the undesirable conditions I have mentioned. Can no one suggest a remedy? How would it do to have a number of back seats set aside exclusively for tardy theatre-goers and ozone-seekers? Then the troublesome ones would, at least, be in a class by themselves. Some may imagine they are attracting attention by coming in late or going out often. That is true, but it is by no means welcome attention from those who are disturbed. Once I saw a man standing in the aisle at different times to let a procession of six late arrivals crush into their seats in the row he occupied, after the play had begun. He ran his hand through his hair and his lips moved. What was he saying? Similar disturbance is created by those who have to seek fresh air between acts, and less excusably, for often, persons have legitimate excuses for being late.

Yours truly,
PEACEFUL HENRY.

DAINTY BREAKFAST BY THE CHILDREN

Closing of the Y. W. C. A. Class Marked by Pleasant Event.

The closing of the children's cooking class at the Y.W.C.A. last night was marked by a dainty six o'clock breakfast, which was served to six ladies, members of the Board of Directors. The children have been taking a course of ten lessons under the direction of Miss Bawden, the clever domestic science teacher at the Y.W.C.A. The arrangements of the table, the cooking of the viands, and all preparations, were carried out by the twelve girl members of the class, Miss Helen Macdonald and Miss Pearl Sheridan cleverly doing the serving.

The menu cards were of an unique design, with shamrock decorations. The menu was as follows:

Oranges, cream, Finnan haddie, potatoes on the half shell, toast, tea biscuits, stewed prunes tea, coffee, and cocoa.

A dinner course of five lessons will now be taken up and at its conclusion the children will serve a dinner.

Good skating at Brock Street Rink to-night.

OPPOSE CHANNEL TUNNEL.

But May Become Necessary For the Successful Defence of England.

The revived Channel tunnel proposal appears to have been received with disapproval by Lord Roberts and sundry other prominent soldiers, even as the idea was universally received when originally advanced in 1882. At the National Defence Association's dinner, recently held to consider the question, the opposition of some prominent soldiers to the scheme constituted the most salient feature of the evening's debate. Though all soldiers are agreed that the Channel is our natural line of defence, it is probable that the exigencies of policy, combined with a sound consideration of modern tactical methods, will cause those who have now opposed the scheme to reconsider their opinions from a purely defence point of view. The fact that France and England are undoubtedly bound together, not only in the interests of both nations, but in those of Europe also, would seem to have altered the entire situation of 1882. Whatever the economic aspect of this proposal may prove, it is clear that, in accordance with advanced tactical theories, the construction of the tunnel is, strictly speaking, a military necessity—an essential to our successful defence. One of the chief objectors to the original scheme, Gen. Sir Lintern Simmons, said that "England may be regarded as an island fortress, unassailable so long as the integrity of the silver streak—its moat—is maintained." The Channel, as the late Napoleon III. remarked, saves us the burden of a large army raised by conscription, such as Continental Powers are compelled to maintain. But in modern warfare the defensive alone can never lead to decisive results. The Continental situation demands that Britain shall, if attacked, be in the position, as allied with France, to speedily exercise the effective force of counter-attack—the very essence of all defence. Only a Channel tunnel would provide for this condition.

CASTLE IN THE AIR.

Wembley Tower, Which Was to Have Reached 1,150 Feet, Demolished.

The most prominent landmark in Middlesex—Wembley Tower — is now being demolished, and will be cleared entirely away in about a year.

It was intended to be the tallest tower in the world, the full height being planned 1,150 feet, as against the 985 of the Paris Eiffel tower. The promoter of the scheme was Sir Edward Watkin, who hoped to make a more attractive pleasure resort at Wembley than either Earl's Court or Crystal Palace. A premium was offered for designs, and 500 guineas was awarded to three architects jointly.

The base of the tower covers 90,000 feet of ground, and the size of the first platform—which was as far skywards as the tower ever reached — may be judged from the fact that it was to accommodate a theatre to seat 1,500 persons!

The erection of the tower was begun in 1893, and stopped in August, 1894, the main reason being that there was a lack of funds, although a remark of Lord Rosebery's, to the effect that the building was a "new Tower of Babel," is supposed to have given offence to Sir Edward Watkin, and to have had something to do with the abandonment.

Lincoln's Honesty.

"The lawyer whose honesty is proved has the confidence of the judge and jury," asserts Mr. Justice Brewer in The Atlantic Monthly. To illustrate his meaning he tells this story of Abraham Lincoln:

He was appointed to defend one charged with murder. The crime was a brutal one; the evidence entirely circumstantial; the accused a stranger. Feeling was high and against the friendless defendant. On the trial Lincoln drew from the witnesses full statements of what they saw and knew. There was no effort to confuse; no attempt to place before the jury the facts other than they were. In the argument, after calling attention to the fact that there was no direct testimony, Lincoln reviewed the circumstances, and after conceding that this and that seemed to point to defendant's guilt, closed by saying that he had reflected much on the case, and while it seemed probable that defendant was guilty he was not sure, and, looking the jury straight in the face, said, "Are you?" The defendant was acquitted, and afterward the real criminal was detected and punished How different would have been the conduct of many lawyers! Some would have striven to lead the judge into technical errors with a view to an appeal to a higher court. Others would have become hoarse in denunciation of witnesses, decrying the lack of positive testimony and the marvelous virtue of a reasonable doubt. The simple, straightforward way of Lincoln, backed by the confidence of the jury, won.

Japan Is Getting On.

According to Japanese papers, a syndicate, headed by Oshiro Manyu, has made arrangements to float a joint stock company, with a capital of 300,000 yen, to construct a floating pleasure hall and hotel for location in the most picturesque portion, of Tokio bay. It is proposed to build great seven decked vessel, about 400 feet in length and thirty-two feet in breadth, with provision for restaurants, hotel accommodation, dining halls, conservatories, an aquarium, sea bathing, etc. It is intended that the vessel shall be connected with the land by a long pier, visitors being thus able to go direct on board from their jinrikisha.

A Crimean Incident.

Many are the deeds of heroism recorded in Sir Evelyn Wood's story of his rise "From Midshipman to Field Marshal," but none more thrilling than an incident of the fighting in the Crimea.

"Look out! 'Whistling Dick!'" was the warning that was shouted one day, and at the call, which referred to a certain huge mortar which had been shelling them, every one in hearing rushed for shelter. All succeeded in gaining the trenches except young Blewitt of H. M. S. Queen. Him the spent shell caught under the knees and pinned to the ground.

"Stephen, Stephen," he called to Stephen Welch, "do not leave me to die!"

The fuse of the thirteen inch shell was hissing, but Welch did not hesitate a second.

"Come on, lads! Let's try!" he shouted and, leaping from the trench, began tugging with all his strength at the big mass of iron. At that instant it burst, and of neither man was a fragment seen again.

Street Cars In Brazil.

"There are first and second class street cars," writes a tourist, describing his South American travels, "and I, with a package in my arms, had taken a first class bond, as a street car is called in Rio de Janeiro. Scarcely had I done so when the conductor requested me to transfer to a second class car whenever it might come along, because no one is allowed to carry anything greater than a lap satchel first class. So I humbly descended and had either to mix with market women and sweaty laborers or to take a tilbury. A person without a necktie is no more allowed first class on the street cars than was I with my parcel. They are decidedly particular in Brazil and inherit many fastidious ways from the time of the empire, when dress and manners were the mark separating the aristocracy from the working classes."

Forgiveness.

Nothing is more moving to man than the spectacle of reconciliation. Our weaknesses are thus indemnified and are not too costly, being the price we pay for the hour of forgiveness, and the archangel, who has never felt anger, has reason to envy the man who subdues it. When thou forgivest, the man who has pierced thy heart stands to thee in the relation of the sea worm that perforates the shell of the mussel, which straightway closes the wound with a pearl.—Jean Paul Richter.

Ears of Animals.

The ears of tigers, foxes, wolves, cats and other beasts of prey bend forward, while the ears of animals of flight, such as hares, rabbits, deer, etc., bend backward. This is because the ears of beasts of prey are designed for the purpose of collecting sounds in the direction taken by the animal in pursuit of its prey. The ears of an animal of flight, by turning backward, enable it to hear the sounds made by a pursuer.

MILITIA'S COMMANDER

IS A THOROUGH CANADIAN THOUGH OF IRISH ANCESTRY.

Colonel Lord Aylmer's Record of Honorable Service—Is a Strict Believer in Discipline Though Not Wedded to Red Tape—Detests Snobbery and Arrogance—Is New Inspector-General of Canada's Forces.

The most popular officer in the Canadian militia to-day is undoubtedly Colonel Lord Aylmer, Inspector-General. Not without reason is his Lordship held in affectionate esteem by officers and men alike. Although the eighth Baron Aylmer and descended from Sir Gerald Aylmer, Kt., who in Queen Elizabeth's reign was Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, he is in every sense of the word a true democrat. A Peer and a Baronet of Ireland, he might well be pardoned entertaining a justifiable sentiment of pride in his birth, yet there does not live a more modest or more unaffected man. He is the very embodiment of geniality, and in this respect has never changed. Elevation to high rank makes many men less approachable and less willing to mix with their fellows. Not so with Lord Aylmer. He is as frank, unaffected and cordial as when he started out in life as a subaltern in the old 7th Royals. And with it all there is no loss of dignity.

To-day Lord Aylmer virtually commands the Canadian militia, and everybody loves and trusts him. The reason is simple. He is a thorough Canadian, looks at things from the Canadian point of view, is in sympathetic touch with our militia force, is not a martinet or wedded to red tape, and is a strict believer in discipline, and yet thinks that the private soldier has rights, and detests anything in the shape of snobbery or arrogance.

No one could mistake the profession to which Lord Aylmer belongs. The tall, well-built figure and the erect military carriage unmistakably bespeak the soldier. His face is bronzed by much exposure, and the iron-grey of the closely-clipped hair and moustache heightens the effect of distinction which his whole appearance produces.

Lord Aylmer was born at Melbourne, one of the loveliest spots in the Province of Quebec, on March 23, 1842. He received his education at the Montreal High School and St. Francis College. Entering the Imperial army, he joined the 7th Royal Fusiliers, and served with that regiment for some six years. With the Fusiliers he saw service during the first Fenian raid on the Eastern Townships frontier, and was present at St. Armand and Pigeon Hill. In 1870 he retired from the Imperial army, and during the second Fenian raid in that year acted as Adjutant of the 54th Richmond Battalion of volunteer militia, which was raised and commanded by his father. About twelve months later he joined the staff of the Canadian militia. From 1881 to 1893 he was Brigade Major at London, Ont. In the latter year he was appointed Assistant Adjutant-General at Ottawa and commanding officer of No. 4 district. On the retirement of Colonel Walker Powell he became Adjutant-General, with the rank of Colonel. Lord Aylmer commanded the detachment which represented Canada at Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897, and was second in command of the colonial contingent which participated in the celebration. He succeeded his father as eighth Baron on November 29, 1901. Two or three years ago, on the abolition of the office of Major-General Commanding, he was promoted to be Inspector-General.

A thorough soldier from head to foot, he is endowed with great discernment, and a strong sense of justice. Lord Aylmer is a man of simple tastes, and, in common with his wife, who was the second daughter of the Hon. John Young of Montreal, is passionately fond of gardening. This admirable trait they are able to gratify at their lovely home at Rockliffe.

Algol, the Mystery of the Skies.

Algol, "the variable star of the constellation of Perseus," is regarded among astronomers as the greatest mystery of the heavens. Its light usually remains contant and uniform for a period of from 48 to 60 hours. It then commences to gradually fade from view and in less than four hours diminishes to an insignificant point of light. After remaining in a state of semiobscuration for a period of time, varying from 15 to 30 minutes, it again regains its former brilliancy. Astronomers believe that some large dead and dark world revolves between us and Algol, but this is the disputed point, a mystery which will in all probability never be satisfactorily explained.

Champion Jumper of the Ocean.

The most stupendous of all leapers of the sea is the whale, but the whale is not a fish. I have seen a monster weighing hundreds of tons, possibly eighty feet in length, rise slowly and deliberately out of the water until it appeared to be dancing on the surface, entirely clear of it, then sink slowly back. Such a leap is on record in the annals of the British navy. A large whale cleared a boat, going completely over it, an estimated leap of twenty feet in air—how many in a lateral direction was not known.—Charles F. Holder in Outing Magazine.

"And Father thinks Mother is a good cook, now? Well, ST. GEORGE'S is doing good in more ways than one."

POLISHED SPEAR HEAD.

Lord Roberts On Universal Military Training.

Lord Roberts presided recently at the Mansion House over a meeting held in the interests of the National Service League, at which Dr. Emil Reich lectured on war. Emphasizing the importance of national training, he referred to the great part England had played in the world's history, and said this role could only be kept up by maintaining the strength of the Empire on land and sea.

In expressing his appreciation of Dr. Reich's lecture, Lord Roberts said they fully recognized that voluntary service was the only possible system for the Regular Forces, but this highly efficient army, this keen and polished spear-head, must in times of great national emergency have behind it the stout shaft represented by the trained manhood of the nation.

Lord Roberts concurred with Mr. Haldane in the view that a nation in arms was the only safeguard of public interests should war break out, and that could only be secured by the adoption of universal military training as part and parcel of the equipment of citizenship.

New Zealand Trout.

Forty years ago, says The County Gentleman, there was not a single trout in all the length and breadth of New Zealand. To-day New Zealand trout are famous all over the world for their size and numbers, and thousands of fishermen come every year simply and solely to fish—to fish all the time and do nothing but fish. There is no doubt at all about New Zealand being the angler's paradise. Everything possible is done to help him and encourage him and make him comfortable. Hotels in some parts exist solely for him, hotel managers are always ready to give advice, and in every town and village fishing tackle shops abound, where polite proprietors are ready with rods, flies, baits and information of all kinds about the state of the rivers, the fish in them, the sort of fly to be used and everything else that the would-be fisherman may want to know.

A Little Indefinite.

A prominent New York lawyer says that in his earlier professional days he was glad to expand his slender income by bill collecting. On one occasion he had a bill against a man who incidentally has since achieved a success which puts him beyond the necessity of such an indefinite statement as he made on that occasion. The young lawyer found him with his feet propped upon his desk, while he gazed dreamily at the ceiling through a cloud of tobacco smoke.

"But, really, sir, I must insist that you give me some definite idea as to when you will settle," the lawyer said after having been gently rebuffed.

The author consented to lower his eyes and to wave his pipe languidly.

"Why, certainly, sir, though there seems to me to be a rather unnecessary commotion about this trifle," he drawled. "I will pay the bill as soon as I think of it after receiving the money which a publisher will pay me in case he accepts the novel which I will write and send him just as soon as I feel in an energetic mood after a really good idea for a plot has occurred to me."—Harper's Weekly.

PROPHET WAS VINDICTIVE.

Promised to Return With Ruthless Hands to Destroy.

Chicago, March 18.—Although the sermon prepared by Dowie was not used in the funeral rites, it was issued for publication. It makes plain that Dowie did not forgive his enemies before he died, as he says of those who ousted him from control:—"I shall return, and with ruthless hand shall I exterminate the vipers and the dogs of hell that now hold high places in the City of Zion. They dreamed... and in the greatness of their d... they thought they had prevailed over the first apostle. And now, priests and elders of Zion, I shall return in another form, brighter and more beautiful and ten thousand times more terrible, to cut ye off in the midst of your sins, and to win back Zion for the truth and for them that held to the word and did no evil."

There was a small-sized panic during the funeral ceremonies because of the announcement that another of Voliva's followers was dying. In the past week three of his lieutenants who held similar positions under Dowie have died suddenly, and when it was said that a fourth was likely to die before morning several of the mourners ran from the tabernacle, shouting that Zion was accursed by God. This excited the rest of the 3,000 mourners, and before the cooler-headed leaders could get among the people to counsel quietness fully five hundred had left the building.

MAGISTRATE KILLED.

Goderich Man Falls Downstairs and Fractures His Skull.

Goderich, March 18.—A distressing accident occurred Saturday evening, resulting in the death of Charles A. Humber, one of Goderich's most estimable citizens.

In carrying a heavy article down a flight of stairs Mr. Humber accidentally fell headlong to the bottom, fracturing his skull and causing concussion of the brain. As the deceased was working alone in the house it was not till some time after the accident occurred that his delayed return home caused anxiety, when on search being made he was found unconscious on the cellar floor.

For years he served as councillor and latterly discharged the duties of police magistrate. He stood high in Masonic circles, filling high offices in Maitland Lodge No. 33, Huron Chapter No. 30, St. Elmo Preceptory No. 22, and with several degrees in the Scottish Rite.

RAN INTO A SWITCH.

Five Persons Severely Injured, Two Perhaps Fatally.

Durand, Mich., March 18.—The Atlantic express, on the Grand Trunk Railway, due here at 5.55 a. m., from Chicago, en route to Port Huron and the east, and running late, ran into an open switch at Bancroft, five miles from here, Saturday, and struck a freight train.

Five persons were severely injured, two of them perhaps fatally. Engineer A. F. Schram and Fireman Frank Cowan, both of Battle Creek, Mich., suffered broken limbs and severe scalds, and may die. I. F. Smith of Dowagiac and Mrs. D. Shook and Miss Ruth Shook of Lansing, her daughter, were severely scalded, but are not thought to be fatally hurt. A number of other passengers received minor injuries, but were able to proceed east on a later train.

Gem Smugglers Caught.

New York, March 18.—Arthur Preston Green and Charles Rehrer, passengers on the North German Lloyd steamer America, were arrested when the vessel arrived from Hamburg and Southampton yesterday, charged with attempting smuggling.

Diamonds and jewelry to the appraised value of nearly $25,000, which the custom officials allege, the prisoners had failed to declare, was taken from them. The valuable were confiscated and the men were held for extradiction.

Though only the charge of smuggling was preferred against the prisoners here, they are wanted abroad in connection with a theft of some $25,000 worth of jewelry and precious stones in London.

Decrease In Grain Trade.

Winnipeg, March 18.—The total grain receipts to date this year have amounted to 47,985,000 bushels of wheat and 4,920,000 bushels of other grain. In the corresponding period of last year the receipts amounted to 50,273,000 bushels of wheat and 3,883,000 bushels of other grains.

Paralytic Cremated.

Victoria, B. C., March 18.—A pathetic tragedy is reported from the Dell Ranch, midway between Chemainus and Ladysmith, Mrs. Oslar, an octogenarian resident, being burned to death. The old lady, a paralytic, living with her son, was sitting by the open fire, sparks from which ignited her clothing. Unable to move, the unfortunate lady burned to death.

Victims of Explosion Buried.

Toulon, France, March 18.—The victims of the explosion on board the battleship Iena, March 12, were given an imposing national funeral yesterday. All business was suspended, the public and many private buildings were draped with black, and the lighted street lamps were covered with crepe.

Two Killed In Warship Crash.

Ajaccio, Corsica, March 18.—During the manoeuvres Saturday night without lights, the torpedo boat destroyer Epee rammed torpedo boat No. 263. A steampipe burst, killing two men and fatally injuring another.

Edmonton Bulletin Burned Out.

Edmonton, Alta., March 18.—The plant of The Edmonton Bulletin, a paper owned and started by Hon. Frank Oliver, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday night, entailing a loss of $50,000, upon which there is insurance of $34,000.

Australia's Sympathy.

London, March 18.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Northcote, Governor-General, has telegraphed the French Government, through Lord Elgin, an expression of sympathy from the Australian Government on the Iena disaster.

Town Lot For Baby.

Saskatoon, Sask., March 18.—A baby boy was born at Aylesbury to an emigrant couple on the north-bound train that got here late Friday night. The mother was given the smoking department in the first-class coach. Services volunteered by lady passengers were availed of, but the couple refused the assistance of medical men. The parents and child are now comfortably located at the emigrant hall in this city.

The Reeve of Aylesbury has offered the father of the child a town lot if he would locate there, as the boy was the first male child born in that village.

The parents are from Russia, and came to Saskatchewan to settle. Passengers on board the train raised a purse of money for the infant.

Finds Husband Self-Slain.

Kaladar, March 18.—Returning to her home Saturday, Mrs. W. P. Berry found her husband's pipe, knife and tobacco, which he always carried, on the dining table, his watch and chain hanging on the wall, and his vest on the back of a chair. His oft-repeated threats to commit suicide recurred to her, and she got William Bongard to investigate.

He found Berry sitting in a room with a rifle in front of him, the muzzle placed at his throat. A bullet had torn through his head.

What Provinces Get.

Ottawa, March 18.—Under the provisions of the new act governing the granting of provincial subsidies by the Dominion, of which notice has been given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the increases to the various provinces, on the basis of the last census returns, will be as follows: Ontario, $789,485; Quebec, $599,866; Nova Scotia, $177,659; New Brunswick, $130,000; Manitoba $142,530; British Columbia, $215,600; Prince Edward Island, $65,345; Alberta, $48,329; Saskatchewan, $136,210.

Gas Kills Couple.

Philadelphia, March 18.—Lying side by side on a bed in their home here, Thomas Sherlow, 68 years of age, and his wife, Annie, 62 years old, were found dead Saturday. They had been asphyxiated.

A fox terrier lay dead beside them. A deputy sheriff who had gone to the house to serve a summons for debt made the discovery.

Bites Blasting Cap; Killed.

Tucson, Arizona, March 18.—L. L. Walden, superintendent of the Purcell mines in the Socita mountains, was killed Saturday by the explosion of a blasting cap which he was crimping between the teath.

Cut Off Prince's Ear.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—A shooting affray took place last night in the dining hall of the Grand Hotel de Europe between Prince Nikarize, a marshal of the nobility from Kutais, and Capt. Kostoff of the East Siberian Sharpshooters.

In the midst of a spirited argument concerning the autonomy of the Caucasus, Prince Nikarize made a disparaging remark about Russian military prestige.

Capt. Kostoff drew his sabre and cut off the prince's ear.

The prince pulled a revolver and fired twice, the bullets penetrating the neck and breast of the captain.

A surgeon sewed on the prince's severed ear. Capt. Kostoff's wounds are dangerous.

Revolution In Venzuela.

Willemstad, Curacoa, March 18.—A despatch received here from Cuenta, Columbia, announces that a powerful revolution has started in the State of Tachira, Venezuela, with Gen. Juan Pablo Penaloza as its leader.

How to Start Off the Day

Students of Hygiene All Agree That the Right Kind of a Breakfast Is Essential.

Thinking people are giving more and more earnest thought as to how to start off each new day so as to put themselves in the best possible physical and mental condition for the work of the day. It is an interesting subject, so interesting indeed that it has attracted the attention of a host of the world's leading scholars and authors on hygiene and many different opinions have been written for the guidance of the people. On one point, at least, all are agreed. This is that the right kind of a breakfast is essential.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, that delicious, crisp, vitalizing, whole-wheat food.

In making Malta-Vita the whole of the wheat, after being cleaned, is thoroughly steamed and cooked in absolute purity and then mixed with malt extract, a powerful digestive agent, which converts the starch of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar. Maltose is great food and the weakest stomach digests and assimilates it without effort. After being rolled into thin, wafer-like flakes the malted wheat is baked under such intense heat that it comes from the ovens crisp and brown—positively the most delicious, most healthful food in the world. Always ready to eat. All grocers, now 10 cents.

NEW CLASS WARSHIP.

Her Armament Almost Equals Main Battery of Dreadnought.

London, March 18.—The Indomitable, the first of the new class of armored cruisers, was successfully launched in the Clyde on Saturday. She is 17,250 tons, is 530 feet long, exceeding the older armored-cruisers by 50 feet, has turbine engines, and is expected to attain a speed of 25 knots per hour.

Her armament includes eight 12-inch guns, almost equalling the main battery of the Dreadnought.

By special order of the admiralty, the greatest secrecy is being maintained concerning the details of the construction of this, the largest cruiser in the world. The cost of the Indomitable is approximately $8,725,000. While ostensibly a cruiser her actual status has not been definitely set forth, and it is believed she approaches nearer to a battleship in armor and armament.

Sir William Pearce, the chairman of the Fairfield Co., the builders of the warship, presided at a luncheon after the launching. He said he was not permitted to give any information regarding the cruiser, and that she must remain a mystery until the official trials or until the admiralty saw fit to take the public into its confidence. Rear Admiral Bearcroft also spoke at the luncheon. He said he was confident that the Indomitable, if occasion arises would carve out a record for herself that would live in the annals of naval history.

The two sister ships will be launched within a fortnight.

AGREE TO DIE TOGETHER.

School Girl Commits Suicide After Playing Truant.

St. Louis, March 18.—It has developed through testimony yesterday at the coroner's inquest into the suicide Saturday night of Liebling Slocum, aged 10 years, that she had entered into a suicide pact with Gertrude Harper, also 10 years old.

Gertrude Harper testified that Friday she had told her mother that she was going to take her life and was prevented.

The two girls were school children and chums. Liebling had been reproved for playing truant and became melancholy. The two girls brooded over the matter and agreed to die together. Friday Liebling swallowed carbolic acid and died last night.

J. P. Slinger, the drug clerk who sold the carbolic acid to Liebling Slocum, was arrested yesterday and is held on a warrant charging the sale of a poisonous drug to a minor. He asserts one bore a note purporting to be from her mother, asking for five cents' worth of carbolic acid, to be used for household purposes.

TOO MEN SHOT.

Police Arrest Twenty-One Others After Severe Struggle.

Hammond, Ind., March 18.—In a strike riot yesterday at the East Chicago mill of the Republic Iron and Steel Co., several men were shot, two probably fatally.

The trouble started when 50 laborers struck for higher wages. Twenty went back to work, and the remaining 30 broke through the gates of the steel plant to get at their companions.

A riot followed, in which Nesho Zecevich, a foreman, was shot through the shoulders. The wound will probably cause his death. John Kalini, a laborer, was shot and beaten, probably fatally.

Several others were injured by knife thrusts and bullets.

The East Chicago police, after an hours' work, arrested 21 men and ended the riot.

St. Kitts Man Acquitted.

Buffalo, March 18.—The federal jury in the case of Maurice Morris of St. Catharines, Ont., who was indicted upon charges of making a false invoice through the custom house at Niagara Falls, reported to Judge Hazel Saturday a verdict of not guilty.

Jacob Sklorsky, who was jointly indicted with Morris, was discharged by Judge Hazel Friday afternoon on the ground that there was no evidence that he had anything to do with the offences alleged in the indictment.

Jonasson Carries Gimli.

Winnipeg, March 18.—The result of the elections in Gimli are not all in, but with five polls to hear from Jonasson, Liberal, has a majority of 160 over Baldwinson, Conservative, the present member. There was some dissension in the Conservative ranks, and little attempt was made to carry the seat.

The line-up of the House is: Conservatives 26, Liberals 13. The recount in Morris, where Hon. Colin Campbell has only a majority of 2, takes place to-day.

Spectator Killed In French Riot.

Nantes, France, March 18.—The strike of the stevedores of this port resulted yesterday in violent rioting, in the course of which a spectator was shot dead.

A mob stoned the gendarmes and police, who were forced to disperse the crowd with drawn sabres.

Negro Wins Scholarship.

Philadelphia, March 18.—A bright-looking little colored man, with the impressive name of Alain Le Roy Locke, is the first negro to win a Rhodes scholarship. Locke is a senior in Harvard University. He won the honor that entitles him to study at Oxford at a competitive examination held at Boston and was one of seven aspirants who passed.

The conditions under which the scholarship was given included a provision that neither race nor color should bar a candidate that merit alone should count.

Lost In Blizzard.

Prince Albert, Sask., March 18.—While driving from Kinistino with a coffin for Patrick McGovern, formerly of Orillia, who hanged himself at the home of Charles Brady, twelve miles from the town, Patrick Murphy was thrown from his sleigh, his horses running away.

He got lost in a blizzard, and was found by two commercial travelers Saturday. Both his feet were frozen and may have to be amputated.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

A PLAY TO THE GALLERY.

By Cecilia A. Loizeaux.

Copyright, 1906, by May McKeon.

It had just dawned upon Philip Smart that Kate Hampton was the girl he wanted. He wondered how he could ever have hesitated or ever have had a doubt. Why, she was simply cut out for him, he thought, as he dressed with care and precision to go and tell her so.

"I should have told her months ago," he mentally argued. "She must think I'm an awful duffer," and he wondered anew that he had been such a blind fool as not to know what had been the matter with him all these months. He believed now that he had been in love with her ever since they had gone to the kindergarten and had not known it.

His heart was very light, and he was singing at the top of a lusty baritone voice, "Oh, but I love you, dear!" when there was a thump at his door and his best friend, Fred Bart, dropped in. Fred was also dressed with care and precision and accosted Philip with his customary bellow.

"Going up to the Hamptons'? Well, hurry up! You must have been dressing for an hour. What makes you so happy—got your salary raised?"

"No!" said Philip shortly. He suddenly felt anything but cheerful. As he knotted his cravat he said many things under his breath, ostensibly at the stubborn tie. The thermometer of his feelings was dropping. He wondered what in thunder Fred had to go up there tonight for. Couldn't he see when he wasn't wanted? The last time Kate had been not much more than civil.

He finally turned from the glass and wriggled into his coat, with a flushed face. "Well, come on!" he said.

As they strolled up the shady suburban streets Fred did not seem to notice the drop in Phil's spirits, but talked away, with his hand on his companion's shoulder, until Phil began to hate him.

However, when they reached the Hampton house and found two white clad figures on the porch his heart began to bound again. It was quite likely that Fred was going to see Kate's sister, Rose, who was much more his style, and doubtless in the course of the evening he could get Kate off by herself.

So the four sat on the steps and made merry, and when Phil proposed a walk Fred cordially seconded the idea, and they all got as far as the gate together. Phil thought there couldn't be a better time for telling a girl you loved her than the quiet moonlit night nor a better place than the deserted streets of a quiet suburb. But when they reached the gate Rose decided she wanted a wrap, and instead of waiting for her, as he should have done, Fred strolled on up the street with Kate, and Phil had to wait.

It wasn't a hilarious walk. Rose seemed as out of sorts as Phil, and they were both glad when they reached the gate again and could get away from each other. Phil would not accept Rose's invitation to wait on the porch until Fred and Kate came home. He didn't want to see Fred at all. But he consoled himself with the thought that very likely Kate was as disappointed as he himself, and the very next day he telephoned for permission to come up that evening. It was graciously granted, and he went downtown and bought a ring, being an old fashioned lover.

The next afternoon he chanced to meet Kate on the street, and she stopped him. "By the way, bring over your banjo tonight," she said. "We'll have a little porch party, and your banjo is always so much in demand." And then he began to wonder whether it could be possible that she might not care for him. If she did, why on earth was she always getting a lot of people around when he came? Then his brow cleared. "The dear girl!" he thought. "She is afraid I will see that she cares, and it is her way of defending herself."

The porch party was jolly, and there was a good time, but Phil saw next to nothing of Kate. She was here and there and everywhere, the moving spirit of fun. Nevertheless he felt that he gained a little, for when he said good night he held her hand decidedly longer than he would have wanted another fellow to hold it, and she did not draw it back, as of course she would have done had it been another fellow.

On Saturday when he asked to take her driving she assented with a proper show of reluctance. "She knows!" he thought. When he called for her in the twilight her mother explained that she was not quite ready yet and said that a girl friend had come to town quite unexpectedly and that she and Kate had forgotten time in their chattering.

Of course the least he could do was to offer to exchange the stanhope for a surrey and ask the guest and Rose to go too.

The guest stayed two weeks, and during that time, though he tried numberless times, Phil did not get to see Kate alone. He waited as patiently as he could—there seemed to be nothing else for him to do—and hoped she would see the self sacrificing depth of his affection.

He had always known all the Hamptons and had been a frequent caller at the home. The judge liked him and his politics, which he talked to the poor fellow at all seasons. The mother admitted him to the family sitting room and darned the family stockings in his presence. The small brother, Jimmy, admitted that Phil was his equal. Advantageous as was this family friendship in some ways, it was as disadvantageous in others. If by any accident he called and found Kate apparently alone something always happened. The telephone rang and some one wanted to come over for a few minutes, or some presumptuous fool stopped in to see Rose and stayed to talk to Kate.

Phil grew sick at heart, and Kate began to seem a little cool and dignified. He felt that he must speak soon or forfeit the girl's love. She was too proud to help him a bit. One evening he rang her up and asked if he might see her alone. He had something very particular to tell her, he explained. Having gone so far, he swore by all that was holy that he would not leave the girl that night until he had proposed and had had an answer. "If the whole family comes in and stands around in a circle they can't stop me this time," he said. "I'll propose to Kate, and if they don't like it they can move. I won't."

Kate met him at the door and ushered him into the big library, where a great fire was burning on the hearth. It was warm and pleasant after the walk in the frosty air, and he settled himself in the judge's big armchair with a sigh of relief. Kate explained nervously that her father was out of town and then seemed to wait for something. Phil cleared his throat.

"Kate," he began and wondered just what he should say next. Why was it so hard when a fellow had thought of nothing else for weeks?

"Yes?" said Kate encouragingly, and then the front door slammed and in a moment more the judge entered the library. He greeted the young man cordially, sat down on the opposite side of the hearth and began to talk politics. And then Mrs. Hampton came in to see what was the matter. She had heard the front door slam and had thought the judge out of town for the night. In half an hour Rose ran in from making a call in the neighborhood and sat down to toast her toes at the fire.

They all talked comfortably, and no one seemed to notice that Philip's laugh was strained or that the flush on Kate's cheek was more than the usual healthy glow. Then the door was pushed open cautiously, and little Jim appeared in his pajamas.

"What are you all having such a good time about?" he whined as he climbed into his father's lap. "You always leave me out."

Phil's endurance reached its limit right there. He rose, with his square jaw set.

"We won't leave you out this time, Jimmy," he said. "We won't leave anybody out. Call in the kitten, please!" And then he turned to Kate, who seemed paralyzed as she realised what he was going to do.

"Kate," he said, "for weeks and weeks I've been trying every day to get you where I could tell you that I love you and ask you to be my wife. I haven't succeeded for various reasons, so I'll have to do it right here, with applause from the gallery. Will you, Kate?" He was standing over her now, and they held the tableau. The tears were running down her face, but she could not take her eyes from his. When he dropped on one knee beside the chair the family waked from its dream and departed on tiptoe, the judge dragging the reluctant Jimmy by the ear.

"Will you, Kate?" begged Philip.

And then they both burst into peals of laughter, which were heard in the dining room by the discomfited family.

But there is good reason to believe that she did, for the judge has been heard to say that he considers his son-in-law the bravest man in the world.

Quite Sordid.

There was a burglar in the room. The beautiful young lady sleeping there was awakened by the flash of his lantern.

"Let us come to an understanding," she said pleasantly. "Are you the sort of burglar I have met in fiction?"

"I am not, mum," replied the visitor; "I'm the real thing. I hope that silver on your dresser is tin."

"Wouldn't do any good to talk to you about your golden haired baby, then?"

"Nope."

"Got a sick wife at home?"

"Nope."

"Worthy man, driven to crime by hunger perhaps?"

"Nope. Just out from me last job."

"Well," concluded the young lady, "I'm disappointed. You're mean to disturb me, and I'm glad that's plated ware."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Distinguished Paper Hangers.

The paper hanger was not so much of a necessity in the old days as now, writes Miss Kate Sanborn in her book, "Old Time Wall Papers." The family often joined in the task of making the paste, cutting the paper and placing it on the walls. This was not beneath the dignity of George Washington, who, with the assistance of Lafayette, hung on the walls at Mount Vernon paper which he had purchased abroad. The story goes that the good Martha lamented in the presence of Lafayette that she would be unable to get the new paper hung in the banquet room in time for the morrow's ball in honor of the young marquis. There were no men to be found for such work. Lafayette at once pointed out to Mrs. Washington that she had three ablebodied men at her service—General Washington, Lafayette himself and his aid-de-camp—whereupon the company fell immediately to work, and the paper was hung in time for the ball.

Artful Autograph Fiend.

"One of the most interesting collections of autographs is owned by a man who cultivated the art of kicking in order to secure them," said an autograph expert. "Every signature in the collection was appended to a letter written by some prominent person in reply to a complaint made by the indefatigable kicker. He complained about everything under the sun, to railroad presidents about delays on the road, to public officials about abuses in their systems of managing public interests, to literary men and artists about shortcomings in their work, to actors and singers about some defects in a favorite role, and always his complaints were couched in such virile language as to win consideration and a reply, not from some secretary, but from the celebrity whose autograph he coveted."

Napoleon and the Letter M.

Marboeuf was the first to recognize the genius of Napoleon at the Ecole Militaire. Marengo was the greatest battle gained by Bonaparte, and Melas opened to him the way to Italy. Mortier was one of his first generals, Moreau betrayed him, and Murat was the first martyr to his cause. Maria Louise partook of his highest destinies, Moscow was the abyss in which he was engulfed, Metternich conquered him on the field of diplomacy. Six marshals—Massena, Mortier, Marmount, MacDonald, Murat and Moncey—and twenty-six of his generals of divisions had names beginning with the letter M. M. Murat, duke of Bassino, was the counselor in whom he placed the greatest confidence. His first great battle was that of Montenotte; his last was that of Mount St. Jean. He gained the battles of Moscow, Montmirail and Monterean. Then came the assault of Montmartre. Milan was the first enemies' capital and Moscow the last in which he entered. He lost Egypt through the blunders of Menou and employed Miollis to make Pius VIII. prisoner. Malet conspired against him; afterward Marmont. His ministers were Maret, Montalivet and Mollien. His first chamberlain was Montesquieu, his last sojourn Malmaison. He gave himself up to Captain Maitland. He had for his companion at St. Helena Montholon and for valet Marchand.

A Perfect Hanging Skirt.

To insure a perfect hanging skirt finish the top of the skirt and put it on the one who is to wear it. Now put on a stiff belt directly over the band. Have it tight enough so it cannot sag. Take a strip of cloth or stiff paper longer than you want your skirt, loop it over the belt and fasten. Have loose enough so it will slip on the belt. Now make the strip the desired length of the skirt, slip this around on the belt, putting pins in the skirt at the end of the strip, not more than six inches apart. Take the skirt off, turn the hem by your pins and baste. Now take a piece of pasteboard the desired width of the hem, measuring every few inches. Baste again and stitch. Your skirt will be the same length all around.

Use a Tray.

It saves many steps if when putting dishes away you carry them to the china closet in a tray, as it accommodates so many more dishes than one can carry in the hands. A tray should be used also when removing them from the table. This is so frequently neglected and so many extra steps have to be taken that it is worthy of being mentioned.

For Cut Flowers.

Pretty receptacles for flowers that are inexpensive are goldfish bowls. A small one costs but 10 cents and will be found most artistic. The nasturtium, rose, mignonette or any dainty flower with pretty stem is at its best in the clear glass bowl.

SOME NEW YORK "FIRSTS."

The first street used for building purposes was Pearl.

The first manor house was erected by Killian Van Rensselaer in 1630.

The first man sentenced to be hanged for murder was a negro known as "the giant" (1641).

The first record of marine signaling was a small redoubt erected in 1641 upon the eastern headland of the island, where a flag was raised whenever a vessel arrived.

The first building on the site of New York city was erected by the Dutch in the spring of 1615. It was a tiny structure of logs, answering the double purpose of storehouse and fort.

The first ferry to Long Island was established in 1637. It was in the vicinity of Peck slip. Cornelis Dirckssen, who had a farm near by, came to ferry passengers at the sound of a horn which he hung against a tree near his skiff.

Kissing the Feet.

The custom of kissing the feet of persons whom it was desired to honor originated with the ancients. The people of oriental nations used to kiss the hands and feet or hems of the clothes of the persons they wished to show respect for. The ancient Egyptians got this custom from the Assyrians, and later the Greeks adopted the habit from the Egyptians. The Romans followed the Greeks, and then Pontifex Maximus had his great toe kissed by celebrities. The toe of the sultan of Turkey is kissed by subjects of high rank. Those of more lowly position are merely allowed to touch the fringe of his garment to their lips, and the poorest classes must be content to make a low obeisance in his presence.

Lengthening the Time.

"Here is an account of a man who lived 200 years."

"But the paper said he only lived to be 107."

"Yes; but he quit smoking on his one hundredth birthday and it seemed like 200."

Didn't Betray Any.

"What is that you are smoking?"

"A good ten cent cigar."

"Huh!" said the doubter, taking another sniff. "Seems like they might have put some tobacco in it for that price."

Picturesque Railroading.

He traced up box cars far and near,
And so of him 'twas said
He always did the best he could
To paint the landscape red.

Unpardonable.

"He's so selfish."

"Is he?"

"Yes; always tells a new joke before his wife gets a chance."

Peculiar.

"There's just one thing that I am afraid of."

"Indeed! What is that?"

"Consequence."

That Kind.

The wild waves overturned his boat,
And he was forced to swim.
And, though they had been salted,
They seemed too fresh to him.

Dear Sirs: As I am one of the thousands that have been benefited by your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I thought it my duty to give you a description of my case. "I am 19 years of age and was always in the best of health until last spring when I caught a severe cold by going about with wet feet. It settled in my chest and all the remedies I tried would not stir it. My friends began to fear it had turned to consumption and were advising me to go east and see a specialist. One day my father brought home a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I laughed at the idea of it being any good and refused to take it, and only as a last resource would I. When I had finished one bottle I had only a slight cold left and before I had taken a quarter of the next I was as well as ever I was, if not better, so you can see what a God-send this medicine was to me. I never fail to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to my friends and they all use it. To show my full appreciation of this remedy I will gladly answer any letters in reference to it. Believe me. Sincerely yours,

Miss Winnifred D. Smith.

AN EMPIRE STATESMAN

SIR SANDFORD FLEMING, WHO IS EIGHTY YEARS OLD.

One of the Earliest Pioneers and Canada's Greatest Engineer—Constructed Many Railways — Advocates State-Owned Telegraph System—Secured Adoption of Standard Instead of Sun Time.

Sir Sandford Fleming, one of Canada's grand old men, has celebrated his eightieth birthday. It is given to few men to so fully and so unselfishly serve his day and generation, and to reach a ripe old age still in the enjoyment of an Empire's respect and a nation's unalloyed gratitude. Though he never was elected to a public assembly of any description, Sir Sandford Fleming is one of the great statesmen of the Empire. One of the pioneers, and probably the greatest engineer Canada has possessed, he constructed the Intercolonial Railway. Later on he was engineer in charge of the survey of the Pacific Railway while 2,000 miles of its line were under construction. Then he was instrumental in securing the adoption of standard instead of sun time throughout the world, and as a crowning achievement his 23 years of agitation resulted in the completion in 1902 of the Pacific cable and the thin red electric line around the world. Now, as if that were not enough, this public-spirited citizen is devoting the closing years of his life to continuing the agitation for a state-owned telegraph system around the world in the hands of the various British Governments of the Empire, and for the establishment of an Imperial intelligence bureau for the circulation of news of the Empire by cable.

Before he left his native county of Fifeshire, Scotland, where he was born on Jan. 7, 1827, Sandford Fleming studied surveying and engineering. He came to Canada in 1845, settling in Toronto, and after a few years of "dark days" with little to do, he joined the surveying staff of the Northern Railway, which was then being built north from Toronto, and in 1857 he was appointed chief engineer of that road. As early as 1863 he was chosen by the people of the Red River Settlement, now part of Manitoba, to go to England to urge on the Imperial authorities the necessity of a railway between the western and the eastern portions of Canada. On his return he was appointed by the Governments of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, in conjunction with the Imperial Government, to conduct a survey for the first link of a railway from the Atlantic to the Pacific within British territory. This became the Intercolonial Railway and he was engineer during its construction.

Meanwhile, he had been appointed in 1871 engineer in chief to carry on the Pacific Railway surveys. In 1872 he conducted the expedition whose results are embodied in Principal Grant's book "From Ocean to Ocean," which proceeded for the most part along the general route of the projected railway. During the time of this work he carried on at his own expense the first survey of a railway across the island of Newfoundland. He continued his work in connection with the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway until 1880, when, owing to political exigencies, he retired, having witnessed its progress, until two thousand miles of railway were under construction.

Since that time Mr. Fleming has devoted himself to various branches of science and literature. Early papers contributed to the Canadian Institute in Toronto on the question of time reckoning, have been followed up until, mainly through his efforts, a time standard has been fixed for the whole world, reckoned from Greenwich. Having realized as engineer of the Pacific Railway, the advantages of a Pacific cable, as early as 1879 Mr. Fleming submitted a plan to the Canadian Government for such a project. That was the beginning of an agitation in which he led with a noble persistence for 23 years, until at last his efforts were crowned with success. His continued activity in behalf of movements for a closer unity of the Empire, his writings and speeches in various branches of science and literature, and his work as Chancellor of Queen's University since 1880, have given him a life of constant usefulness in his old age. In 1897 he was honored with Knighthood for his many eminent services

Quiet and modest with regard to his achievements, a man of wide travel, of the most catholic tastes in literature and science, a genial, pleasant man of the world, he fares through life with a bright prospect constantly before him. His companionship is valued by the best people on two continents, with whom he has come in contact, an interchange of ideas with him is sought by the most brilliant intellects, and when his family gather in his Ottawa home to congratulate him on reaching the venerable age of fourscore they may well feel that their congratulations are shared by a grateful nation of Canadians, and by thousands of lovers of the Empire the world over to whom his name is familiar.

A Fatal Omelet.

Ignorance of cooking is not often the direct cause of a man's death, but such an instance is related in "The Story of Two Salons." In the time of the French revolution one M. Condorcet, upon whose head as an aristocrat a price was set, sought refuge with a friend, M. Suard, who bade him return at nightfall, when means of escape would be provided. Unhappily Condorcet, being unable to exist without tobacco, went into a tavern to buy some. Still prostrate from fatigue, he thought he would take advantage of this opportunity to get some dinner and ordered an omelet.

"How many eggs do you wish to be used?" inquired the landlord, who had been eying him suspiciously. The innocent Condorcet was at his wits' end. He reflected on the size of the ordinary omelet.

"Twelve," he boldly replied.

His fate was sealed. None but an aristocrat could be so ignorant or so extravagant. He was arrested and led away to prison, from which he never emerged.

Mountains.

There used to be held in accordance with Murchison's well known geological views the general theory that mountains were mainly due to cracks which took place in the surface of the earth in remote periods, but this idea is no longer entertained by scientific men. As to the form of mountains, that which is known as table mountain finds the best example, curiously enough, at the Cape of Good Hope, a mountain, it is believed, due not to any action or phenomenon of upheaval, but to the sinking of the surrounding districts or territory. Why these peculiarly defined areas did not sink was owing, it is thought, to the probable fact that the ground under them cooled before the rest of the section, and thus the table mountain had the earlier foundation and has long retained its place. There would always be denudation, however, though proportionate with its surroundings, and therefore, owing to this fact of being higher at the start, it still keeps to its approximate elevation.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

she writes: "For the past fourteen months I was nervous all the time, and became so run down I was unable to walk across the house without getting dizzy. My friends told me I looked like a living ghost and advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got two boxes and within two weeks I had improved wonderfully and after finishing the fourth box I was completely cured. They are the greatest pills I ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills act directly on the disordered heart and nerves, and restore them to healthy action. They have no equal for reviving and strengthening the heart beat, invigorating the nervous system, and acting as a food for the blood, improving its quality, making it rich and red.

NO LONGER A FRINGE

CANADIANS PROUD OF THEIR HERITAGE AND INSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Charles Marcil Talks to New York Newspaper Men — Says There Can Never Be Political Union With the United States—Canada Is In Every Sense a Nation—Is Loyal to the Motherland.

Speaking recently at the annual banquet of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York, Mr. Charles Marcil, Deputy Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, after referring to the kindly feelings now existing between the people of the United States and those of Canada, and the peace which reigned between them for now almost a century, said:

A Great Celebration.

"I may state that we are organizing a gigantic celebration to be held in the historic city of Quebec on the occasion of the ter-centenary of its foundation, in which it is contemplated that Great Britain, the United States and France will participate, and will be represented by detachments of their navies and armies, in a grand gathering on the Plains of Abraham, on which, in the past, scenes so momentous in the history of the continent have been enacted.

An Altar of Peace.

"This will be another offering on the Altar of Peace. With peace assured through the interest and common-sense of the countries concerned, there may be relations between us of the most intimate kind. Let me say at once that we in Canada do not believe that there ever can be political union with the United States. We came to that conclusion when the British flag replaced the flag of France upon the citadel of Quebec.

Are One People.

"Canadians to-day—French, Anglo-Saxon, Celtic—regardless of their origin or their creed, are one people, faithful in their allegiance to their motherland, but loyal, first and above all, to their native country.

"Proud of their heritage, their free institutions and the stock from which they sprang, they are doing to-day for the northern part of the American continent what the people of the United States have done for their own country. They are building up a nation to share this continent with their cousins of this great republic. Canada is, indeed, to-day, in every sense of the word, a nation.

Bouquets.

"Canada is no longer a fringe of territory on the border of the United States. We are going towards the north, in the climate where strong nces live and prosper. We are building a new nation in the western hemisphere, prosperous, God-fearing, self-reliant, progressive.

"Canada extends to you the hand of fellowship in the great work of making of America, the whole of America, what God intended it should be, a land of liberty, freedom and civilization.

Foster Friendliness.

"Let us all, brethren alike in our common ideals and common aspirations, resolve, each in his own sphere, to do all that in him lies to foster friendly feelings, come what may, with the mother country, the greatest empire in the world's history, and the common mother of our North American nations. Let there be peace between the United States and the British Empire and Canada, her eldest daughter, and the peace of the western world, at least, is for all time assured, and a tremendous influence will be exercised for the good of the world at large."

ESKIMO CUSTOMS.

Suicide Not Considered Wrong But Very Rarely Resorted To.

Speaking before the members of the Royal Geographical Society recently Captain Amundsen dealt with his voyage in the Gjoa to the region round the earth's north magnetic pole.

Dealing with life amongst the Eskimo tribes, he said it was not unusual to find marriages where the wife had two husbands. Suicide was not considered wrong, but it was only resorted to in cases where the pain of illness was too great to be borne. Murder was not unknown.

On one occasion a boy, aged 12, accidentally shot another, aged seven. The father of the boy who was killed immediately took the other lad out of the hut and stabbed him to death.

Making It Pleasant.

"I am nineteen years old and go to parties a good deal. I want to make myself pleasant and agreeable, but am a poor conversationist. Could you suggest some topics of conversation that would take well in mixed company? MABEL."

Yes, Mabel. As soon as you enter the parlor shake your head and exclaim in a loud tone:

"Oh, dear! I washed my hair yesterday and can't do a thing with it!"

That makes a hit right away and puts every one at ease. This expression can be used whenever conversation lags. Music is a great help. Express yourself this way:

"Well, I don't know anything about music, but I do know what pleases me."

This will give the idea that you are a musician.

To discuss art all you have to do is look at the pictures on the wall and when you see one you like exclaim:

"Isn't that a beaut?"

This will divulge your artistic sense.

At the supper table reach for the olive dish and say:

"There was a time when I couldn't eat olives, but I can eat a whole bottle of them now."

Then take five in one grab, and people will like you for saying what you mean. With these few hints you'll find conversation comparatively easy.

Sugar in Coffee.

The average amount of sugar used in coffee is a study which has become so much of a fascination to a young man who frequents restaurants pretty constantly that he has taken to going to different places for each meal in order to enlarge the sphere of his observations among different classes of people, says the Philadelphia Record. "Poor people, as a rule," he says, "use more sugar than rich people, and it's also a pretty constant rule that men drink sweeter coffee than women and that old men have the sweetest tooth of all when it comes to coffee. It is noticeable, too, that drinkers of after dinner coffee make it very much sweeter than that which they take in the morning. I know a middle aged man who takes just two lumps to a cup in the morning, which is below the average, but into the little cup he takes after dinner he puts six full sized lumps. This makes a sort of sirup of the drink, which, I suppose, takes the place of after dinner bonbons."

Trained Too Well.

In Baltimore the rule of the transportation companies is that children over the age of five years must pay full fare, those under that age being carried free.

One afternoon not long ago there were among the passengers on a Charles street car a woman and her son, the latter a big boy of apparently seven years, but who was held in his mother's lap as if he were a baby.

Presently the lad grew restive. "Mommer, mommer," he murmured, "say, mommer!"

The mother, with a premonition of impending danger, tried to silence the youngster, but to no avail, for he continued to call upon his "mommer."

Finally the woman asked, "Well, what is it, son?"

"Mommer, when do I say I'm only five?" asked the irrepressible.

Blind Pupils.

An artist in Paris had much difficulty in getting his pupils to make use of the extremely "impressionistic" ideas of art. One evening at a large dinner party he asked an elderly gentleman next to him, who was very shortsighted, how the gentleman at the foot of the table appeared to him.

"Well," replied the nearsighted one, "I see a very white spot, which I take to be his shirt front, and a flesh colored spot, which I know to be his face."

"Ah," exclaimed the artist enthusiastically, "how I wish my pupils could see things as you do!"—Searchlight.

Feeling Heat and Cold.

The principal reasons that we feel objects that are cold when brought in contact with the skin quicker than those that are warm is that the skin, being a very poor conductor of heat, absorbs heat slowly from an object of a higher temperature than itself, while other objects which are cooler and which in nearly every instance are better conductors of heat than the skin absorb heat readily from the skin, and hence a sensation of cold is felt at once.

The Marsh Wren's Sagacity.

Birds often have more sagacity than is generally accredited them. The long billed marsh wren, which builds a substantial nest of rush leaves, swinging in the tall rushes of a marsh, invariably makes several nests, but only uses one. This is undoubtedly for the purpose of misleading its enemies. The nest used is always the best hidden, while those not used—the decoy nests—may be easily found by those who seek them.

Bad Penmanship.

Mr. Youngwed—This dessert is—pardon me—perfectly dreadful. Mrs. Youngwed—I'm sorry, dear, but the fact is the recipe was given me by a friend, and her handwriting is simply atrocious.

To Find the Horsepower.

A rule for finding horsepower of a pulley is to multiply the circumference of the pulley in feet by the revolutions per minute, and the product thus obtained by the width of the belt in inches, and divide the result by 600. The quotient will be the horsepower which the pulley is capable of transmitting. This rule is founded on the fact that good, ordinary single leather belting, with a tension of fifty-five pounds per inch wide, will require fifty square feet of belt surface passing over the pulley per minute for one horsepower. Fifty square feet per minute are equal to a belt one inch wide running 600 feet per minute.

A Prerogative of the Pulpit.

Dr. Bacon, a New England clergyman of long ago, was reproached by a friend with some pronunciation which was not "according to Webster." Webster lived in his parish, and the doughty old divine was not disposed to be snubbed with the dictionary. "What right has Webster to dictate my pronunciation?" he demanded haughtily. "He is one of my parishioners and ought to get his pronunciation from me and not I from him."

HOW TO IMPOSE THE ESTATE TAX

Bill to Amend Succession Duties Act Goes Through Committee.

FEW MEMBERS PRESENT

Canada Company's Land Sales Are Criticized—Discriminating Against Farmers—Action to Prevent Evasion of Succession Dues—Mr. Graham Would Exempt Fraternal Insurance From Tax.

Toronto, March 19.—The Legislature held the longest Monday session yesterday since the House opened, adjourning at nearly 6 o'clock. During most of the time there was hardly a quorum of members present, but those in attendance stayed loyally by their task. A number of bills, including a sprinkling of Government measures, were put through the committee stage. The absence of many members who have bills in various stages on the order paper, and the consequent necessity of holding over their measures, was again a noticeable feature. This antipathy among private members to the idea of working on Mondays and Fridays is becoming the chief factor in prolonging the session. Mr. MacKay was particularly prominent during the afternoon in his criticisms of legal points in several Government bills, and Mr. Graham, as usual, was quite alert. The new joint stock company's act is likely to be taken up in committee to-day.

Canada Company.

Mr. McCoig moved the second reading of a bill respecting sales of land by the Canada Company. In Kent and Essex, where oil is being discovered, he said, the farmers were being placed in an embarrassing position through a clause in their deeds secured from the Canada Company reserving the oil to the company. The object of the charter given to the Canada Company was that they should bring out settlers to western Ontario. They had never carried out their part of the agreement, and in consequence he thought some relief should be afforded the farmers affected. He argued that the company had no right to put the clause referred to in the deeds. Mr. McCoig suggested that the bill should go before a special committee which could hear both sides of the question. In reply to the argument that the bill was interfering with vested rights, he would say that the action of the company was itself an interference with vested rights when such clauses were inserted in the deeds of the land they sold.

The Premier said that the matter was clearly one for the Private Bills Committee of the House to consider. If there was anything illegal done by anybody the courts would remedy such improper action. In the meantime this bill provided for legislation in respect to certain classes of legal conveyances of lands. It affected private rights admittedly, and, therefore, should go before a committee of the House, where everybody interested could attend and thrash out their differences.

Succession Duties.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Matheson the resolutions exempting from the payment of succession duties property not exceeding $300 and passing to any one person, and providing a penalty of 25 per cent. of the duty chargeable for the nondisclosure of property, were carried.

The bill amending the succession duties act was put through committee stages after some discussion. Mr. Graham asked as to the taxing of property in other Provinces.

Hon. Mr. Matheson said that personal property outside of the Province and belonging to people dying in Ontario was taxed. In respect to real estate it was not taxed except when converted into cash and brought into the Province for distribution. To another question by Mr. Graham. Hon. Mr. Matheson said that there was a standing offer on the statute books for reciprocity with the other Provinces in the attempt to avoid double taxation. Thus if taxes were paid in Quebec on property owned in Ontario an allowance would be made providing that under reverse circumstances that Province made allowance. There is such an arrangement now with Britain, and the department is trying to reach an understanding with Quebec and Manitoba particularly, those Provinces being most closely related to Ontario in the matter. Mr. Graham, commenting on some clauses of the bill, took objection to the taxing of fraternal insurance as part of the estate. This class of insurance was intended for the protection of widows and orphans, and if such insurance could not be attacked for debt it should be exempt from the succession tax.

Mr. MacKay was anxious to know what protection there was against the penalty clauses for executors and administrators in cases where unwitting mistakes were made as to values of estates.

Hon. Mr. Matheson answered that the Government would exercise its discretion in such cases in instituting action.

OLD MAN'S CRIME.

Teased By Boys He Turns On Neighbor Who Interfered.

New York, March 19.—Some mischievous boys were indirectly responsible for the arrest early yesterday of David Stanhoff, jun., of Brooklyn, on a charge of having murdered his friend and next door neighbor, John Hoffman. According to Stanhoff's story, he was returning home just after midnight when he came upon Hoffman beating two boys in front of his house. Hoffman was in a fearful rage, he said, and when Stanhoff remonstrated the other man turned upon him. Stanhoff declares that he was forced to fight to defend himself. One of his blows knocked Hoffman down, and as he fell his head struck the stone curb, fracturing his skull. He died soon after being taken to a hospital. Stanhoff was immediately arrested.

It is said a crowd of boys have been annoying Hoffman for some time, and it is supposed the two he was beating when Stanhoff interfered were members of the gang, whom he had caught.

MASSACRE OF JEWS.

Rising In Roumania, and Whole Town Destroyed.

New York, March 19.—The cable despatch received Sunday night by the Jewish Morning Journal, of this city, reporting that terrible massacres have occurred at Podihilo, Roumania, has caused consternation among the Roumanian Jews in New York. They fear another Kishineff affair, in which so many Russian Jews perished. Podihilo is only about 30 miles from Kishineff, which is in Bessarabia, across the Russian frontier.

All of the Roumanian societies in New York, have been notified to attend a mass meeting to-night in the Manhattan Lyceum, in the heart of the East Side Ghetto. The best measures that can be taken to aid the afflicted at Podihilo are to be discussed and decided upon.

The cablegram received here announcing the massacre was signed, according to the recipient by three leading merchants of Podihilo. The cablegram follows:

"Terrible massacres since last Thursday. Town totally destroyed. All the Yiddish population are ruined and houses pillaged. We ask help."

CHARGED WITH MEAN FRAUD.

Medicine Hat Undertaker Puts Two Bodies In One Coffin.

Medicine Hat, March 19.—J. J. Moore, a local undertaker, is under arrest on a charge of disrespect for the dead and of obtaining money under false pretences.

He has a contract for burying the pauper dead. On Wednesday last the body of a Dane and of Ernest R. Minns, formerly of Toronto Junction, were turned over to him. He buried them both in the same rough box.

A short time after the interment H. H. Foster, on whose ranch Minns had been employed, arrived. He ordered and paid for a decent burial. It was the grave digger who made the discovery and he divulged only because he was refused remuneration for digging two graves. When found out Moore transferred the body to an expensive coffin and endeavored to make amends, but Foster refused to compromise and caused his arrest.

Killed Like Predecessor.

Elmira, N.Y., March 19.—A week ago, Walter Casterline, an Erie trackwalker, was waiting near Chemung to be relieved, when he was struck and killed by a fast train.

Last night, Lewis H. Sherman, who succeeded Casterline, had finished his work and sat down on the track in the same spot Casterline met his death.

Sherman was deaf and did not hear a fast train approaching. He was instantly killed.

New St. Lawrence Service.

Portland, Maine, March 19.—By the leasing of wharf property in this city for a long term of years, arrangements have been completed for a new line of steamers to run between this port and the St. Lawrence River.

The line will be used to bring down large quantities of pulpwood from the Canadian provinces.

Centenarian Dead.

Toronto, March 19.—Mrs. Featherstone Osler, one of the most distinguished and benevolent ladies that has graced the city's history, died yesterday at her residence, in her 101st year.

She was one of the very few centenarians in the Dominion, and was in every respect a remarkable woman. Her last birthday, Dec. 14, was the most memorable of her whole life, as it was on that day she reached a century of existence, and the occasion was made one of celebration and congratulation.

Aged Farmer Suicides.

Woodstock, March 19.—Suspended by a halter from the limb of a tree, William Slawson, 68 years of age, a farmer, was found by his wife in the woods on his farm north of here Saturday evening.

Slawson told his wife he intended going to Maycock's farm. Evidently he went to the stable, got a halter and walked to the woods.

Beat Evelyn With a Cowhide Whip.

SAYS FAMOUS AFFIDAVIT

Abe Hummel Gives Evidence—Is Mercilessly Exposed By Delmas—Prosecution's Case Closed—Verdict May Be Given On Friday—Evelyn Denies Truth of Statement As to Treatment.

New York, March 19.—When the Thaw trial was adjourned yesterday only four expert witnesses remained to be examined before the taking of evidence closes. Three experts were disposed of yesterday in a little more than an hour, so it is generally believed that the last word of evidence may be in to-day.

In that event the summing up by Mr. Delmas for the defence will begin Wednesday morning. District Attorney Jerome will reply on Thursday. Justice Fitzgerald may proceed immediately with his charge to the jury, or he may defer it until Friday. There should be a verdict by Friday night.

Delmas Changes Tactics.

After fighting for an hour and a half against the introduction in evidence of the famous affidavit drawn by Abraham Hummel at the request of Stanford White and with the alleged consent of Evelyn Nesbit, charging Harry K. Thaw with having cruelly beaten Miss Nesbit on several occasions during their trip through Europe in 1903, Attorney Delmas suddenly switched tactics yesterday and demanded that the whole of the alleged affidavit go into the record and be read to the jury. District Attorney Jerome had contemplated reading only certain portions of it, which he declared directly contradicted the testimony of young Mrs. Thaw.

Severe Whippings.

In the affidavit it appears that, though Evelyn Nesbit was in possession of a considerable sum of money, she remained with Thaw and endured frequent whippings.

With the reading of the affidavit Mr. Jerome announced that the people rested their case in rebuttal.

Mr. Delmas immediately offered in evidence the record of the trial of Abraham Hummel on the charge of conspiracy.

The district attorney did not object and the defendant's lawyer proceeded to read the entire record to the jury.

The Hummel affidavit had already been discounted by the statement of its contents by Mr. Jerome at various times during his arguments as to its admissibility.

Mrs. Thaw Denies It.

Mr. Jerome had also quoted quite freely from the affidavit during his cross-examination of young Mrs. Thaw.

During that cross-examination she denied emphatically having made any of the statements contained in the paper.

It was, to get Mr. Jerome's own words denouncing Hummel, that Mr. Delmas undertook to read the entire record of the trial.

Mr. Delmas began the introduction of testimony in sur-rebuttal, putting on the stand three policemen who saw Thaw the night of the tragedy or early on the morning after. They all declared that he either looked or acted irrationally.

Final Stages Reached.

Delmas then passed to the final stages of the trial by introducing the first of seven alienists employed by the defence, three of the experts being new to the case.

Dr. Graeme M. Hammond, Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, and Dr. W. A. White, superintendent of the Government for the insane, at Washington, D. C., were yesterday's witnesses, and all were interrogated on the 15,000 word hypothetical question framed by Jerome. All three declared Thaw was so mentally unbalanced at the time he killed Stanford White that he did not know the nature or quality of his act, and did not know that the act was wrong.

To-day the experts will be Drs. Evans, Wagner, Chas. W. Pilgrim of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., president of the New York State Lunacy Commission, and Dr. Minas Gregory, superintendent of the psychopatic pavilion at Bellevue Hospital.

CARLETON ELECTION.

R. H. McElroy Succeeds Late G. N. Kidd In Ontario Legislature.

Ottawa, March 19.—R. H. McElroy of Carp was elected to fill the vacancy in Carleton County for the Ontario Legislature caused by the death of G. N. Kidd. He was the official Conservative candidate against W. H. Hartin, Independent Conservative.

Five polls are to be heard from.

There was a bigger vote polled yesterday than at the general election, when the late G. N. Kidd won by 1,179 over J. Smith, Liberal. The figures now stand. R. H. McElroy, 1,477; W. H. Hartin, 860. Majority, 617.

Youth, Disappointed By Showman, Tries to Evade His Landlady.

Windsor, March 19.—Henry Stewart, 18 years of age, who came from Toronto three weeks ago, is under arrest on the complaint of his landlady, Mrs. Lee, who claims Stewart is in her debt to the extent of about $13, including board and money she says she advanced to him.

Sunday night, she caught him in the act of passing his clothes out of an upstairs window into the arms of a companion, who had climbed a convenient telegraph pole to receive them.

Stewart says he came to Windsor in response to an advertisement by one Kenneth Keith, who promised him a good position as a song and dance artist with a traveling show.

Petrolia Girl Missing.

Port Huron, Mich., March 19.—Flossie Golden, 17 years of age, a comely girl, whose home is in Petrolia, has disappeared.

She came here some time ago to work for a prominent family as nursemaid. More than a week ago she walked from the house, saying she would be gone only a few minutes.

Nothing has been heard of her since. She left her money and clothing in the house.

Knocked Down By Skater; Dies.

Winnipeg, March 19.—While skating Sunday afternoon Thomas Stoddard collided with another skater and was knocked down, becoming unconscious. He lingered until evening, when he died.

Elected By Returning Officer.

Winnipeg, March 19.—In the recount held in Morris yesterday the vote stood even, and Attorney-General Campbell was elected by the casting vote of the returning officer.

Because a man can go without a Spring Overcoat at a pinch, sweltering in his Winter Overcoat, or shivering without any overgarment at all through the weeks that span the interval from real winter to real summer, this garment has become a sort of badge of prosperity.

THE COAT

that has the most admirers this season is the three-quarter length Overcoat in black or Oxford gray. The long Swagger Raincoats in Coverts, and the swellest of the swell coats, the Paddock, with long handsome skirts in plain gray and black Thibets.

Black Vicuna, three-quarter length, at.....$13.00
Gray Thibet, " " at.....$15.00
Covert Raincoats, long swagger, at $10 and $12.00
Vicuna and Covert, Paddock style, $16, $18, $20.00

Our Coats have hand-padded shoulders, hand-made collars, with the best of haircloth fronts; some are handsomely silk-lined and very luxurious garments. We don't know where better Spring Overcoats than ours can be found. They're simply perfection.

PETERBOROUGH TUESDAY MARCH 19 1907

Mr. Sid. Mitchell's Narrow Escape From Being Dynamited

Was Thrown From Sleigh in Cobalt Region With Case of Explosives ---A Close Shave.

THE SOFT SNOW SAVED HIM

Great Rush of Prospectors to the Silver Mines Predicted for This Year---Still Winter There.

Mr. Sid Mitchell has just returned after a week in the silver mining district around Cobalt, and reports a week of experiences, not the least exciting of which was a narrow escape he had from being blown up by dynamite. He was driving from New Liskeard to Casey Mountain, over roads on which there was snow four feet deep, and in the bottom of the sleigh was a case of dynamite containing twenty-five sticks, enough explosives to blow the occupants into Lake Temiskaming. Passing over a particularly bad part of the road the sleigh upset throwing the occupants and the case of dynamite into a heap on the side of the road.

A Narrow Escape

After picking themselves from the the snow, into which they were hurled the men looked around to see where the dynamite was, fully expecting that with the jar of upsetting would have exploded it, and they began to wonder to what fortunate circumstances they owed their lives. Had the box fallen on ice or any place but in the soft snow there would undoubtedly been an explosion, the consequences of which would have been disastrous to the occupants of the sleigh.

In Winter's Grip

Mr. Mitchell was about 400 miles north of Toronto, and reports that in that country there are no signs of the spring thaw which is in evidence in the more southern parts of the province. In spite of the fact that there are three and four feet of snow on the level in all that country every train carries hundreds of men into it, and this spring will see the greatest rush of prospectors to the Cobalt region that has been experienced in Canada since the days of the Klondyke rush. All the land within many miles of Cobalt is staked, regardless of whether there is mineral there or not — prospectors put their stakes in on speculation—and the silver hunters are pushing farther north in their search for the white mineral.

It is by no means a life of ease and comfort, though, in the north. Hundreds of men are now sleeping in tents and have done so all winter. Indeed it's not so bad in winter to live in a tent, but with the approach of spring and the thaw it's a different matter.

Many Prospectors

Casey Mountain was Mr. Mitchell's objective point, and it is a day's drive from New Liskeard, and close to the boundary between Ontario and Quebec. Around the mountain a number of mineral claims have been staked and some are being operated. In one mine a shaft fifty-two feet has been sunk, and a quantity of ore piled waiting for the opening of navigation to ship it to a smelter.

The Larder Lake district is just now claiming the greatest attention in that section, and Mr. Mitchell met some Peterborough men who have located what they believe to be rich properties in that district.

HON. H. R. EMMERSON,

Minister of Railways and Canals, who will be waited on to-morrow, by a deputation to ask for the early completion of the southern end of the Trent Canal.

PETITION AGAINST THE SIGN BY-LAW

Eighty-eight Names Signed to It—The Council Will Reconsider the Matter.

At the meeting of the council last night evidence was shown by an extensively signed petition that the merchants and professional men of the city are not agreeable to the proprojecting sign bylaw. The council decided to instruct the city engineer not to enforce the bylaw until they met again on April 1st.

The following is the petition signed by 88 ratepayers:

To the mayor and council of the City of Peterborough:

Gentlemen, — The undersigned ratepayers hereby pray: That the existing bylaws relating to projecting overhanging signs be dealt with in council but that the question of overhanging signs be dealt with in a liberal spirit and a new bylaw be passed relating to the same permitting some official discretion to be exercised in regard to appearance and design. Your petitioners are in favour of a small license fee for every overhanging sign on a graded scale.

Five hundred rioters attacked the mission church of Chinkuei, near Suchow, telegraphs a Shanghai, China, correspondent. The authorities succeeded in repulsing the attack, but fearing a repetition of it, have applied to the government of Suchow for reinforcements.

Curate To Assist Rector Of St. Luke's Church Soon

Report That Rev. E. A. Langfeldt Will Shortly Have a Curate to Help Him in Rapidly Growing Work of Parish.

NEW CHURCHES, TOO.

It is stated to-day on good authority that Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., rector of St. Luke's, will in a short time have the assistance of a curate.

The rumoru has not been given official sanction but it is understood that in a very short time an announcement to this effect will be made. Nothing has been given out as to the identity of the appointee, but this, too, will be revealed in the near future.

Another important announcement in connection with St. Luke's church, is likely to be made soon. It is to the effect that at least one, and possibly two new churches, will be built in the parish. The work, under Mr. Langfeldt's rectorship, has made such progress that he finds it necessary to secure the assistance of a curate, particularly to help him in connection with his out of town work. The congregations in the churches of the parish are growing all the time, and with the erection of the new church the work, it will be understood, will be still further increased.

Broke Through Thin Ice On Rice Lake; A Close Call

Mr. Peter Thompson and His Sister, of Otonabee, Thrown Into Icy Waters of the Lake, Crossing the Ice.

A VALUABLE TEAM LOST.

Examiner Special

Keene, March 19. — Mr. Peter Thompson and Miss Nellie Thompson, of Hiawatha, visited friends in Rosenorth one day last week. When returning home, instead of following the beaten track, they attempted to drive up the lake between Rock Island and the Alnwick shore. This part of the lake is seldom, if ever, safe. They drove on to thin ice, and the horse and buggy, with the two occupants, broke through. Mr. Thompson pluckily drew his sister out of the water, and attempted to save the horse, but was unsuccessful. Mr. and Mrs. Knelles, of Rosenath, who were driving across the lake, saw them and took them ashore, and they are now little the worse for their experience. The buggy and harness have since been recovered. The horse was a valuable animal.

Mr. John Howie, Westwood, was in the village Monday.

Mr. Fred Taylor spent Sunday in Ferelka.

Mr. Fred Burnham spent Sunday in the village.

Omemee Citizens Want The G. T. R. Station Removed

Deputation Will Wait on Railway Commission To-morrow to Get Station Moved Nearer the Village

PIGEON CREEK DEEPENING.

Omemee people are taking advantage of the chief trip to Ottawa to secure an audience with the Railway Commission, and will ask that body to use its influence with the Grand Trunk Railway System to induce it to move the station nearer to the village, and with this in view Reeve Beatty and Councillors Major, Evans and Griffin have been sent by the Village Council to intercede in behalf of the corporation and the citizens. They will point out that while the G.T.R. received $3,000 from the village they moved the station at the time the Missing Link was built from a point practically in the village to one more than a mile and a quarter distant, and entailing much inconvenience upon the citizens. They hope to return with the assurance that their request will be granted.

Then in addition to these gentlemen, Messrs. J. D. Thornton and Wm. Stephenson have gone representing the citizens and their particular request will be with reference to the proposal to deepen Pigeon River and make it fit for navigation.

Police Court.

There was no session of the police court this morning. The Magistrate was not called upon to administer the law between two contending parties as is often the case.

SPRINGVILLE YOUNG LADY'S EXPERIENCE WITH A RACOON

Springville, March 19 — Miss Heatherly, a young lady, about twenty-two years of age, and a daughter of Mr. John Heatherly, had an experience with a raccoon a few days ago.

Miss Heatherly heard a noise in the hen house and, making a tour of inspection, discovered a good sized raccoon among the hens, and enjoying a hearty meal. The young lady, who is an excellent shot, ran back to the house for a rifle, intending to put an end to Mr. Raccoon with a bullet, but, on returning, she found that by discharging the rifle, she was endangering the lives of animals which were more precious than that which she wanted to kill, and she quickly decided that there were other ways of accomplishing her purpose and, choosing a heavy, iron bar, she knocked the raccoon out of the window, and afterwards finished him. Miss Heatherly is being complimented upon the presence of mind which she displayed.

STRANGE SIGHT WITNESSED BY SOUTH MONAGHAN PEOPLE

While Returning from Social Gathering They Saw Mysterious Light Rise From the Earth and Soar Into the Air--Phenomenon is Unexplained.

CAUSING MUCH SPECULATION

South Monaghan residents were startled in the early hours of Friday morning of last week by the appearance of an uncanny looking object overhanging a field near Rensfort village and it has yet remained a mystery. The object, which took the shape of a ball of fire, was seen by Messrs. F. Morrison and J. Pammett as well as a number of others while they were returning home home about 3.30 o'clock from spending a social evening at a neighbour's residence.

The strange phenomenon appeared to the startled onlookers to rise up out of a field on the farm of Mr. Freeman Thompson. The informants of the Examiner declare that the ball of fire was no ordinary light and that it did not come from a swamp or marsh.

It floated along through the atmosphere at a moderate pace and at about twelve feet from the earth. This distance, however, did not remain uniform. Its motion was of an undulating character with a tendency to soar into the air.

The illuminated ball was watched for several minutes as it kept up its regular motion and gradually widened the distance between it and those who saw it. As it rose into the air it appeared to diminish in size and by degrees became less and less until the big fire soon looked like a small star.

The sudden appearance of the peculiar body and its subsequent actions have aroused a great deal of superstition among the South Monaghan residents and almost every person in the vicinity of Rensfort is attempting to explain the mystry. Deaths and accidents of all descriptions are proposed to occur in the near future and speculation is rife. However, there seems to be no doubt that the ball of fire existed, as several returning home at different intervals on the Friday morning referred to have no hesitation in testifying under oath to its appearance.

Springville Mail Question And Post Master General

Deputation From That Village Will Wait on Head of The Department To-morrow to Deal With It

Examiner Special.

Springville, March 19. — The long unsettled question of the change in the mail service asked for by the residents of this village will be taken up to-morrow at Ottawa, when Mr. F. E. Wilson and Rev. Dr. Marsh, the two men who have perhaps been the most active in their efforts to have the mails delivered by the C. P. R. instead of by the G.T.R., as at present, went to the Capital today with the canal deputation, and to-morrow they will wait on the Postmaster General or his deputy, and lay the case before him, with good hopes of having a satisfactory arrangement effected.

Mr. Wilson, who is the postmaster at Springville, is thoroughly acquainted with the situation and will be able to present it intelligently to the officials at Ottawa.

CONVERTS SEND REVIVALISTS ONE DOLLAR A YEAR AFTERWARDS

Examiner Special

Havelock, March 19. — People who have attended the revival meeting in Old Havelock state that although the evangelists do not take up a collection they make it understood that every person converted at their meetings must send them one dollar every year. This seems to be a new system of raising money. Whether many were converted or not is not known.

Little Small Pox In The Eastern Part Of Province

Dr. R. W. Bell, Provincial Inspector, Visits City and Tells The Examiner of Deplorable Conditions in the West.

A TRIP TO COBALT REGION

The western part of the province has suffered considerably from small-pox recently while the portions east and north of Toronto, have apparently escaped well, according to Dr. R. W. Bell, Provincial Health Inspector, who is in the city to-day, and will be here for a few days. Dr. Bell tells of one place near Sandwich, in the St. Clair peninsula, where he found eighteen cases in four houses, and in his investigations in that district he discovered no less than 36 cases.

The prevalence of the disease is attributed by the doctor to carelessness and ignorance, and a remarkable fact in that this winter nearly all the cases of this disease are discovered in thickly populated and well settled communities, few being found in the lumber and mining camps.

Dr. Bell has just returned from a trip to Cobalt where he spent about a week looking into the sanitary conditions of that district. He expresses himself as hopeful that the people will get through the spring without any serious outbreak. The new comers into that region are described as very numerous, five coach loads a day going up from North Bay. It is quite easy to reach that district; one can take a Pullman coach at Toronto and in 18 hours can alight at New Liskeard without change of cars. Dr. Bell will remain in the city until to-morrow and will be one of the guests at the dinner to-night to Mr. Denniston in the armoury.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are local, for as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost inlief from the itching, burning, stinging sensations of piles and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes stubborn disease.

TWO HUNDRED MEN OFF TO THE CAPITAL AFTER THAT CANAL

Big Deputation Left on Special C. P. R. Train This Afternoon---Varied Requests Will be Made to the Ministers.

NUMBER FOUR DAM LEASE.

County Council After a Bridge Across Buckhorn Rapids---The Ministers Will Have a Busy Day To-morrow.

The special C. P. R. train, carrying the deputation to the capital left the station shortly after one o'clock, the advertised time for leaving, this afternoon, and the three coaches comprising the train, were well filled, more than two hundred persons joining in the trip, and helping to swell the delegation which will to-morrow wait on the Minister of Railways and Canals, with the request that steps be taken at once to proceed with the completion of the southern end of the canal. The despatch published yesterday, indicates that the intention of the Government is to do just what the deputation will ask them to do; indeed, the Examiner was advised today on good authority that no less a sum than $500,000 is included in the supplementary estimates for work in connection with the completion of the southern end.

Dam Lease

There are, however, other matters which will be discussed, besides the completion of the canal—that is taken to be assured now—the city council having decided to request the Railway Commission to grant a lease of No. 4 dam on the Otonabee to the Otonabee Power Co., for $600 per year in the event of which the city will be given power at $15 per horse power.

Buckhorn Bridge

The county council, in addition to showing its interest in the completion of the canal, will have a private audience with the Ministers in an effort to secure a grant towards the erection of a bridge across the Buckhorn Rapids. The present dam, the top of which constitutes the bridge, will have to be replaced, and the county council wants the Government to allow the new dam to be also used as a bridge, to which request no objection is expected.

Many Requests

Among the delegations from other places, too, there are members representing other municipalities, and the majority of them will have their own little family matters to discuss with some one of the members of the Cabinet; so that it is expected that the Ministers' lives will be made miserable to-morrow with requests of all kinds from different sections of the deputations.

It will be a great day for the members representing the different ridings and they may be trusted to do the honours in a fitting way.

A Member Gone

In this connection there is one regrettable fact: Last year on the occasion of the visit of the deputation the late Mr. E. Cochrane, who was then member for East Northumberland, was present when the visit was paid the Minister and warmly greeted many of his personal friends who formed the delegation. Since that time Mr. Cochrane has passed over to join the great majority.

DOES HARRIMAN LOSE HIS CONTROL?

It was again rumoured today that Mr. E. H. Harriman was heavily hit in the slump, and had to let go big loads of stocks at slaughter prices. Mr. Harriman denies this, but the rumour refuses to down. A conservative paper says: "A 75 point slump in Union Pacific would affect him more than anyone else and there is no but that he was forced to let go unwillingly of a great quantity of stock. The question now is: How far has his authority in Union Pacific affairs been curtailed? There are those who believe that Mr. Harriman has suffered a body blow." It is believed that the Morgan Interests bought at least 200,000 shares of Union Pacific.

ENJOYABLE BANQUET AFTER CONCERT

Farewell to Mrs. Prust on the Severance of Her Connection With the Choir of St. Andrew's Church—An Enjoyable Function.

CONCERT TALENT AND CHOIR ASSISTED

After the concert given in St. Andrew's Sunday School room last night a banquet was tendered the members of the choir and also those who participated in the entertainment. An interesting feature was a farewell to Mrs. Prust, who has severed her connections with the choir and with Dr. Prust left this morning for the West. It was a very enjoyable function and the splendid repast prepared by the ladies of St. Andrews received ample justice.

The affair was held in the spacious parlour adjoining the school room and was a fitting close to a very pleasant evening. Rev. Mr. Potter officiated as chairman, assisted by Mr. Wm. Fowler, Vice Chairman, in an acceptable manner. The guests of Honour were Mrs. Prust and Mr. Forsyth, seated on the right and left of the chairman. Mr. Forsyth represented the choir.

The first toast was to the Foreign Talent, and was proposed by Mr. Ferguson. In his usual manner Mr. Ferguson in his usual manner Mr. Ferguson in his usual manner Mr. Ferguson in

PRACTICAL DEFINITION OF GRAFT

When Parliament was treated by Mr. Fowler, M.P., to the unusual but timely spectacle of a brain storm in action, the bellicose member for King's threatened to oblige Parliament to give its attention to "women, wine and graft." If we may judge by his subsequent conduct, the seems, says the Montreal Herald, to be sorry for the explosion, doubtless realizing that there is a certain amount of wisdom in the tacit agreement by which "woman" subjects have been relegated to a select committee of the Senate, by which "wine" subjects are left veiled behind that charity which covers a multitude of sins and sinners, and by which "graft" subjects are reserved for free and open criticism by all and sundry.

What "graft" is, it might be difficult to define, but precise definition is not needed when there are examples to hand. "Graft," as the word is popularly understood, may be quite within the law and the conventions, but there is always a doubt as to either the one or the other. When Mr. Fowler and his friends accepted valuable favours from Mackenzie & Mann they may have put themselves outside the pale of the law as it applies to the independence of Parliament, or they may not. When Mr. Foster joined fortunes with them and mixed up his position as a land speculator with his position as manager of a Trust Company he certainly put himself outside the conventions, so far outside, in fact, that newspapers friendly to his side of politics freely advertised the termination of his usefulness. It may be useful, having recalled the stories of Mr. Fowler and Mr. Lefurgey, to follow up with the Foster end of the story, as it was told by Mr. Stevenson, now head of the Independent Order of Foresters in succession to Dr. Oronhyatekha. We remember, of course, that 200,000 acres of land had been bought from the C.P.R.; that Messrs. Bennett, M. P., Lefurgey, M.P., and Peuchen had paid in cash $5,000 each, and that Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann had financed $42,000 more for Messrs. Fowler, M. P., and Pope, M.P. These latter gentlemen appear to have secured for themselves a seven-tenths interest in the profits of the deal in consideration of the brains they put into it, whereas their friends (bosom friends) Bennett and Lefurgey got between them only a two-tenths interest for putting in money, quite a notable triumph, when one comes to think of it, of mind over matter. So we come to the point where Messrs. Fowler and Pope meet in with Messrs. Foster, McGillivray and Wilson. Mr. Stevenson tells what happened:—

"When I came here last year, I felt a good deal of concern about this large investment. There had been up to a certain time $337,000 advanced upon the purchase price of these lands. I ascertained THEN that this had been paid upon a contract to purchase that I think Pope and Fowler had with the C.P.R., and that under that contract there was a sum approximating half a million dollars to be paid. The matter was in the situation that the four gentlemen who were interested in the Great West Land Company, constituting a majority of the board of the Trust Company, were to need to take a position as between their personal interest and their interest as trustees, and I regarded that as an impossible position for them to occupy. After eighteen months, instead of all the property being sold (as anticipated by Mr. Wilson in a letter) none of it had been sold. Pope and Fowler had a contract by which they had the right to purchase 200,000 acres at $3.50 an acre. They turned that property over to the syndicate at $4.50 an acre, or adding $1.00 an acre to the purchase price, the syndicate being Messrs. Foster, McGillivray and Wilson. That syndicate, on turning the lands over to the Great West Land Company added another 50 cents and acre, which was the equivalent of another $100,000. I understood that the original syndicate, Pope and Fowler or whoever they represented, got $150,000 in cash, and that they took the other $50,000 in stock of the Great West Land Company. When the Foster-McGillvray-Wilson syndicate turned it over to the Great West Land Company, adding 50 cents an acre, the original syndicate claimed and were allowed $5,000 extra; so that they got $55,000 of stock, and that left $95,000 as representing the increased price added by the second syndicate. Mr. Foster, Mr. McGillvray, Mr. Wilson and Chancellor Boyd were directors of the Union Trust Company and were also directors of the Great West Land Company. My understanding is that every dollar put up in connection with the matter was put up by the Union Trust Company" (Sir John Boyd paid for his stock, and was under the delusion that the others did likewise.) "The largest amount advanced by the Trust Company at any time was $986,000."

That is the story in its essentials. Looking over the parts taken in it by those in whom the public have a right to take an interest it is found that the following payments were made:—

By Mr. Fowler, $206 for his own preliminary expenses.

By Mr. Pope, the same.

By Mr. Bennett, $200 for expenses, $6,000 cash for payments.

By Mr. Lefurgey, the same.

By Mr. Foster, nothing.

By Messrs. McGillvray and Wilson, nothing.

By the Union Trust Company, of which Mr Foster was manager and a director, and the other two directors, $986,000.

By Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, endorsements on Pope and Fowler's notes, on the proceeds of which $42,000 was paid the C.P.R.

The interests derived from these investments were:

On Bennett and Lefurgey's $12,400, two-tenths of $130,000 cash profits and two-tenths of $55,000 stock profits.

On Pope and Fowler's $400, seventenths share of $150,000 cash profits and $55,000 stock profits.

On Mr. Foster's nothing, Mr. McGillvray's nothing, and Mr. Wilson's nothing, $95,000 in land stock (possibly less a few shares.)

The Union Trust Company, it is proper to note, paid $986,000 for Mr. Fowler's option, the face value of which to the C.P.R. was $700,000.

A large part of the difference, the $286,000 answers to what is known in common parlance as "graft." It furnishes Parliament with an example which may serve where there is no definition handy.

"OUT OF POLITICS"

Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, seems to glory in his official interference in Toronto license administration, which Hon. Mr. Whitney promised to remove from politics. Speaking at a meeting of the noted Ward Four Conservative Association, he said that, "when he was asked to do an act of kindness, as long as he lived, he would do it." He doubtless referred to the request of an East End hotel-keeper to have the Minister get him a license. Because the Commissioners refused a license to Hon. Mr. Pyne's protege and political friend on account of his black record as a breaker of the law—a man of many convictions,—Dr. Pyne dismissed the inspector in whom the Commissioners had confidence, thus forcing the resignation of the Commissioners. Doubtless, Dr. Pyne is retained in the Cabinet to assist Mr. Whitney in keeping the administration of the License Law "out of politics."

The Ontario Gazette of last week contains the notice of the granting of a charter to the Milburn Cobalt Silver Mines, Limited, in which company a number of local people are interested. Those named in the charter are Messrs. S. T. Medd, W. S. Davidson, barristers-at-law, G. L. Hay and E. S. Clarry, accountants, and E. B. Fowler, manager, all of Peterborough. The capital stock of the company is placed at $200,000, and the head office is named as Peterborough. The company is given power to carry on the operation of a mining, milling, reducing and mining development company.

The provisional directors are Messrs. S. T. Medd, W. S. Davidson and G. L. Hay.

Sick all the Time with Kidney Trouble

4 BOXES CURED HIM

Mr. Whellam was a mighty ill man this spring. He had been ailing for almost a year. Sharp pains in the back and through the hips. Dull headaches and dizzy spells. Appetite poor—nothing seemed to taste right.

Finally, an old friend told him about a friend who was in just that condition and who was cured by GIN PILLS.

Mr. Whellam tried them. And you would not know him for the same man now. That worried, strained look about the face is gone. His eyes are bright—his complexion rosy. He enjoys what he eats—has gained in weight—and sleeps like a top.

He had kidney trouble. GIN PILLS practically gave new kidneys—healed and strengthened these vital organs—soothed the bladder—and freed the system of uric acid that was poisoning him.

Broad Cove, C.B., July 6 1906.

I received a sample of your Gin Pills last fall. They did me a great deal of good. In fact, they are the best kidney medicine I know of. A neighbor of mine has tried them and they did him more good than all the Doctors' Medicine he took in three months. I will not forget during my lifetime the benefit your Gin Pills have been to me. JOHN WHELLAM.

Are your kidneys sick? Do you feel just as Mr. Whellam did? Then take GIN PILLS on our positive guarantee that they will cure you. To have you give them a fair trial, we send a free sample if you mention this paper. Write to-day to Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg. 84

GIN PILLS are sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box—or 6 boxes for $2.50.

OBITUARY

MRS. WALTER HERKIMER

Mr. J. H. Greer, electrician in charge of the city waterworks power house, received intelligence this morning from Cobourg of the death in that town of his sister, Mrs. Walter J. Herkimer, at the age of 38, after a brief illness. The deceased leaves a husband and four small children. The late Mrs. Herkimer was a half sister of Mr. Arthur Ash, also of this city. A particularly sad feature of her death is the fact that about two weeks ago her mother died. Mr. Greer will leave to-night for Cobourg to attend the funeral.

THE REAL CAUSE

The Ancient Scalp-Fever Theory Exploded

At one time dandruff was attributed to the result of a feverish condition of the scalp, which threw off the dried cuticle in scales.

Professor Unna, Hamburg, Germany, noted authority on skin diseases, explodes this theory, and says that dandruff is a germ disease.

This germ is really responsible for the dandruff and for so many bald heads. It can be cured if it is gone about in the right way. The right way, of course, and the only way, is to kill the germ.

Newbro's Herpicide does this, and permits the hair to grow luxuriantly, just as nature intended it should.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Fire Insurance

The most important point in Fire Insurance is the selection of a Company which offers absolute security. Experience of the recent great conflagrations in Baltimore, Toronto and San Francisco shows that the English and Scottish Companies stood the severe strain of those appalling losses better than any other, and proves that the following are among the leading Companies in the world:—

BRITISH

Alliance Assurance Company, Commercial Union, Liverpool & London & Norwich Union, London Assurance, Northern, Sun, Globe, Caledonian, Union.

AMERICAN

Hartford Insurance Coy of North America, Queen

The above, as well as a number of other first-class Canadian and American Companies are represented by

LEARN DRESSMAKING IN TWO WEEKS

We teach you everything from the plainest Shirt Waist to the most elaborate Toilette that can be found in the fashion books. We show you how to put together not only the lining, but all the outer goods in Coats, Skirts, Waists, Wrappers, Sleeves, Collars, Children's Dresses, etc. Why spend months at a Dressmaking shop where you do nothing but hem sleeves, sew on hooks and eyes and then, after you have served months there, what do you know about cutting? Absolutely nothing. For you will know no more how to cut out a dress at the end of a year than you did the first day you went there. So why spend your time there when we can teach you in two weeks. You can come and try for a week and see for yourself what it's like, as there is nothing to be paid in advance, you certainly would not lose anything by trying.

We have taught over 2,000 this way within the past 6 years in Western Ontario, and all recommend it very highly.

Charge for full course is only $10, to be paid when course is completed, if satisfied, including one of the most perfect-fitting systems in use, which we give free. We guarantee that the waists made by this chart will not draw or pull out of skirt when raising arm.

An evening class will also be taught. In this class we will teach Shirt Waists, Sleeves and Sacques. This course will be $4.00, and hours from 7 to 9.

We will teach in Peterboro from April 8th to April 20th—Hours for Day Class 9 to 5. All wishing to learn be sure to see us at the Oriental Hotel, on Saturday, April 6th, between 10 and 5 o'clock. This is positively the last class we will teach at Peterboro this year.

Back So Lame Could Not Walk

DOCTOR'S EFFORTS WERE IN VAIN BUT CURE CAME WITH THE USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

It is not always the doctor's fault when he tries to give temporary relief instead of lasting cure. Sometimes patients demand it.

The thorough, far-reaching and lasting effects of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are well illustrated in this case, in contrast with the doctor's failure to even bring relief:

Mr. Geo. Tryon, Westport, Leeds Co., Ont., writes:—"For two years I was completely laid up with lame back, and could neither walk nor ride. I tried many treatments and the doctor put on a fly blister, which only increased the suffering and did not do me the slightest good.

"A friend told me about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I had not finished the first box before I was completely cured. I have never had a lame back or kidney trouble since, and it has been the means of selling dozens of boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. We are never without them in the house and think there is no medicine like them."

The urea, uric acid and other poisonous waste substances which are left in the blood after the process of digestion has taken place are eliminated from the system by the action of the kidneys. Failure of the kidneys to perform this important work of filtration means a poisoning of the whole system and consequently the most painful of diseases, such as Bright's disease, lumbago, backache and rheumatism.

The cause of such ailments are most promptly removed by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This great family medicine has a combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels which is not possessed by any similar preparation. The whole system is quickly and thoroughly cleansed and the vital organs invigorated by this treatment. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Mrs. Titterson and Misses Janet and Maude left this morning for a visit with friends in Belleville and Cannifton, in the latter place visiting Mr. Titterson's uncle, Mr. G. W. Palmer, and the young ladies will take part in a concert there to-night under the auspices of the Chosen Friends.

TORRENSE SYSTEM OF LAND TITLES

May be Established Here—Ald. Ball to go to Brantford to Study for One Week.

At the conclusion of the Committee of the Whole Council last night a brief council meeting was held and a number of matters disposed of. Ald. Wilson referred to the tax system which prevails there of holding deeds and proposed to have introduced the Torrens system which is used widely in Western Canada and by which land titles are protected by the Government.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Stevenson that a committee consisting of Mayor McWilliams and Ald. Stevenson, Bradburn, Morrow and Wilson be a committe to look into the establishment here of the Torrens System of Land Titles.—Carried.

Outfall Sewer

The City Treasurer was authorized to issue a cheque covering the expenses of Mr. A. W. Spence, arbitrator between the city and Mr. Jas. Bogue, over the outfall sewer extras. As soon as the money is paid over Mr. Spence will give his decision.

Scavaging System

Ald. Elliott moved that Mr. Ball, Sanitary Inspector, be furnished transportation to Brantford for one week for the purpose of studying the scavaging system of that city. The motion was seconded by Ald. McIntyre and carried.

Moved by Ald. Stevenson and Bradburn that the revised agreement with the Otonabee Light and Power Company regarding the obtaining of the lease of Dam No. 4, be passed.—Carried.

LITERARY SOCIETY'S FINE PROGRAMME

The Numbers Were Nearly All of a Longfellow Character.

The regular meeting of the Philomathean Society of the Collegiate Institute, was held in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mr. F. Brown, in the chair.

The programme, which was of a Longfellow nature, was a delightful one and was heartily enjoyed. Several of the students read very interesting papers on the life and work of the great American poet. They showed evidences of careful preparation and were most enjoyable. The musical numbers were as usual, delightful. Miss Davies and Mr. Crane sang Longfellow's "Excelsior," in splendid voice.

The complete programme was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Flynn.
Life of Longfellow, Miss L. Dean.
Paper, Miss Sykes.
Violin solo, Miss K. Wallis.
Paper on Longfellow, Mr. H. Matthews.
Paper on Longfellow, Mr. B. Ingham.
Vocal duet, Miss Davies and Mr. Crane.
Paper on Longfellow, Mr. Brown.
Paper on Longfellow, Miss L. Elliott.

DOCTOR FAILED TO RECOGNIZE PATIENT

Wonderful Cure by Dr. Johnston's Consumption Mixture Reported.

Dr. Johnston, V.S., was surprised the other day by a visit from a robust looking farmer, who wanted to hand him a signed and in other ways to express his gratitude to him. The doctor could not remember having seen the man before, and said so, but the visitor soon enlightened him. It transpired that he was Forest C. Guthrie, of Fowler's Corners, and a few months ago, when he called upon Dr. Johnston, he was a physical wreck, suffering from consumption. He decided to try Dr. Johnston's consumption mixture, and the result was astonishing, the change in his appearance being so great that Dr. Johnston failed to recognize him on his second appearance.

Following is a letter from Mr. Guthrie, which explains itself:

Dear Dr. Johnston,—

I take pleasure in giving you my testimonial for your consumption mixture, which I purchased of you last spring, and I can truthfully say that it saved my life. I had the advice of some leading doctors, which told me that the only thing for me to do was to keep out in the open air. So I thought I would give your medicine a trial, and I am glad I did, for I would be in my grave months ago. I would advise any one who has lung trouble to give it a trial. Hoping Dr. Johnston may be spared for years to come for his wonderful medicine. Any one doubting this, let the come to me or write me, and I will give them my testimonial for the same.

FOREST C. GUTHRIE,
Fowler's Corners P.O., Ont.

Dr. Johnston, on his cartons containing the remedy, makes use of the fact that The Examiner has referred in complimentary terms to his medicine.

Y. P. ASSOCIATION'S FINE PROGRAMME

Mr. Kerr's Lecture on Europe Was Greatly Enjoyed.

It was a highly pleased audience which wended its way from St. John's school room last evening, after listening to the delightful programme given at the regular meeting of the A. Y. P. A.

Owing to the numerous events of last evening, requiring the attendance of the different artists, the musical programme was rendered first. Those contributing were Mr. and Mrs. Firth, Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade and Mrs. Devey. The different contributors were never heard to better advantage than during last evening. Mr. Devey accompanied in his usual able manner.

Mr. Kerr's talk on "Europe" was a literary treat, delivered in his bright and breezy style. He kept his auditors in the best of humour throughout.

A very hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Stanley Richardson, seconded by Mr. Matt. Drysdale, with a few laudatory remarks by the president, was tendered Mr. Kerr and the artists of the evening.

The next programme will be of a social character, after Easter.

HAVELOCK PEOPLE WANT NEW STRUCTURE AT TRENT BRIDGE

Examiner Special.

Havelock, March 19.—The Havelock people have a few requests to make to the Government, too, on the occasion of the deputation to the capital to-day. At a special meeting of the town council it was decided to send the whole council, as well as Town Clerk, Bryans, to Ottawa, to impress upon the Government the necessity for the early completion of the canal, and, in addition, the deputation will ask for the construction of a wharf at Trent Bridge, where it is considered that one is greatly needed.

THE GOVERNMENT GIVES BELMONT $600.00

Word Received in Havelock to the Effect That This Sum Has Been Granted.

Examiner Special

Havelock, March 19. — Word has been received here to the effect that a grant of $600 has been made to the township of Belmont, by the Ontario Government, in response to the request made by the deputation which waited on the Ministers some weeks ago, in connection with the outbreak of small-pox which occurred in that township some time ago.

OUR CIVIC LAW-MAKERS AS CIVIC LAW-BREAKERS

The city authorities made a great spurt in compelling George street citizens to clean the ice off the pavement in front of their premises. They should be consistent. The pavements are clean, but the crossings are covered with ice of a dangerous slope, particularly that at Hunter and George street. Several falls have occurred there to-day. At 1 o'clock to-day a young lady, light of foot as a gazelle, stepped on the treacherous slant of ice, and fell with as much emphasis as the Mayor and aldermen laid down the law compelling citizens to observe a bylaw which they, the law-makers, treat as law-breakers.

THE WORK COMPLETED A BANQUET

R. Davidson Given Banquet—Presentation Made to Him by Fellow Workmen.

Last night the force of men, numbering about forty, who have been employed clearing the waters from Balsam Lake to Kirkfield, of stumps, etc., completed their work, and, to signalize the event, a banquet was held in McKay's restaurant at Kirkfield, at which Mr. R. Davidson, who has been the cook for the men during the work, was the guest of honour, and was presented with a gold chain and locket. A number of speeches were made by the men who had been engaged in the work, complimenting the Government upon the thoroughness with which it had been carried out. Among those who spoke were Messrs. W. Mitchell, J. Musgrove, C. Armstrong and P. McDonald, the foreman of the job.

A fact worthy of note in connection with the prosecution of this work is that during the whole time the work was in progress not a drop of liquor was brought into the camp, a condition which, in these days, is remarkable because it is unique, and speaks well, both for the discipline and for the excellent character of the men employed on the work.

MALE QUARTETTE AT THE REVIVAL

Y. M. C. A. Singers Rendering Valued Service at Park Street Revival Meetings.

The second week of the revival services in the Park street Baptist church opened auspiciously last night, when there was another large attendance and the outlook for continued success this week is most encouraging. The Y.M.C.A. Male Quartette was present last night and rendered valuable service. Miss Ida Sanderson played the accompaniments for the quartette.

Mr. Torrie preached again last night, taking for his text, "Israel's goodness as the morning cloud and as the early dew." The tendency to neglect and carelessness was referred to by the speaker, who recited instances of direful results following neglect. Good results are being recorded each night and the workers are correspondingly encouraged.

Music will form an important feature of the meetings during the remainder of the week.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, March 19.—The bears made another big drive at the stock market to-day and while they were able to break prices from 5 to 8 points they found no new liquidation in evidence and were forced to cover their stocks at losses later in the day. The support given was gilt-edged and the market was found to be full of buying orders at the lower levels.

The first drive was made right after the opening and carried Union Pac. off nearly 8 points, copper 5, smelters 12 and Reading 6. This was followed by a rally which did not hold and at noon the bears again attacked prices but did not succeed in getting them as low as in the morning. After a rally of 2 points about 2 o'clock another fierce selling movement, directed mostly against Copper and Reading carried prices down but the bulls took the offerings and then commenced bidding for more, caused the bears to retreat in disorder and prices jumped back as quickly as they went down. The rally did not hesitate this time, but carried prices back to near the opening, leaving a lot of shorts, but out much lower down, still uncovered.

The market has a sold-out appearance this afternoon and could be made to rally much further if the bulls desire. Call money was easy around 3 per cent. The close was active and strong and it looks as if prices would be put much higher this time.

St. Patrick's Day Concert Was A Grand Success

Delightful Entertainment Given Under the Auspices of the T. A. S. Last Night---"The Limerick Boy" a Splendid Farce.

The annual St. Patrick's day concert in connection with the celebration of the Seventeenth of March, by St. Peter's T. A. S., was held last night in the Grand opera house, and the same success that has always greeted similar entertainments under similar auspices, smiled upon the promoters of last night's event. The audience present was very large, in fact there were few vacant seats when the curtain rose for the first time. Needless to say, the programme was of the most enjoyable nature. The T.A.S. have earned a well merited reputation for the excellence of the entertainments they provide, and this year they have not fallen back from the standard established in the past. The programme last night, while it was of a nature peculiarly adapted for a St. Patrick's Day concert, was yet so varied that every number was greatly to the taste of the audience whose appreciation was evidenced by frequent encores. In almost every case was a recall number demanded.

Mr. H. Ruthven MacDonald, the well-known Toronto baritone, was the only out of town artist to take part and, as usual scored a big success in his vocal numbers. Mr. MacDonald is too well known in Peterborough to need any special mention. Suffice it to say, that he was at his best last night, and he has never been heard to better advantage in the city. His four numbers were rendered in a manner that brought forth round after round of applause from the audience, and in each case he had to give a recall number. Perhaps his most popular selections were "There never was a coward where the Shamrock grows," and the "King of the Elves."

Too much praise cannot be given to the work of the local talent, who excelled themselves by the merit of the programme they rendered. Miss Levina Hallihan was heard to great advantage in two selections, in which her pure clear soprano was most effectively displayed. She was very warmly received by the audience in both numbers, which were "Terence's Farewell," by Lady Dufferin, and Moore's "Love's Young Dream."

The Mendelssohn Club, a chorus of male and female voices, contributed two numbers that were features of the programme. Their work is worthy of special mention, the voices blending splendidly and the shading being especially well handled. Their numbers were "Moonlight will come again," by Thompson, and the old favourite number by Moore, "Oft in the Stilly Night."

A quartette, composed of Messrs. Brady, Koen, Cunningham and Creedon, was heard to advantage in the beautiful selection, "Juanita," which was sung with much expression and feeling, and was greeted with warm applause.

The T. A. S. Band, under the leadership of Mr. Finch Miller, demonstrated the fact that they have made very great progress. Their numbers were rendered with spirit, and were very cleverly handled. The band played two selections last night, both of which were received with a decided manifestation of appreciation by the audience. The overture, "Sons of Erin," by Beyer, opened the programme and was splendidly rendered, as was the waltz, "Old Limerick Town," by Olcott.

A feature of the programme was the one act farce, "The Limerick Boy," which was very cleverly staged and acted by members of the Society. The play which was in four scenes, dealt with the funny situations arising out of the pranks of Paddy Miles' Boy," a typical Irish gossoon. Local hits were introduced, much to the delight of the audience, who heartily enjoyed the sketch. Mr. Jas. O'Brien, as Paddy Miles, made a decided hit, his acting being so splendid throughout that he showed that he had a proper conception of the humour of his lines. Mr. John McCabe as Dr. Coates and Mr. Fred Derocher as Henry his son, both gave good interpretations of their parts. Miss Nellie McCabe and Miss Fanny Holmes were very successful in their acting of the parts of Mrs. Fidget and her daughter, Jane. Mr. William Donovan was happily cast as Job, a gardener, while Mr. Louis Bolin's acting as Reuben, was good.

As a finale, Mr. Brady sang in splendid style, the catchy Irish song, Colleen Bawn, in which he was helped by the chorus.

Following is the cast of characters:

Paddy Miles, Mr. Jas. O'Brien.
Dr. Coates, Mr. John McCabe.
Henry, his son, Mr. Fred Derocher.
Job, a gardener, Mr. Wm. Donovan.
Reuben, Mr. Louis Bolin.
Mrs. Fidget, Miss Nellie McCabe.
Jane, her daughter, Miss Fanny Holmes.

The tableau, Erin, which concluded the programme, was artistically arranged and was a pretty and patriotic manner of bringing the entertainment to a close. Miss Nellie Hallihan sang "The Harp that once through Tara's Hall," during the progress of the tableau.

Too much praise cannot be given to those in charge for the excellence of the programme provided, and to Miss McCabe who acted as musical director, especial credit is due.

Otonabee Power Company And City At Last Agree

Revised Resolution Presented Last Night Approved Of---City Will be Given 500 H. P. at $15 for Ten Years, Providing Company Gets Lease of Dam 4 at the Amount of Tender---Power Taken From High Pote tialWires.

The City Council have at last decided to agree to assist the Otonabee Light and Power Company, to obtain the lease of Dam No. 4, which question has for so long a time been under consideration. At the last meeting of the Council a notice of withdrawal of their agreement was presented on account of the council's inclination to disagree with some of the clauses. The withdrawal, however, was not accepted as some of the Aldermen believed a satisfactory agreement could be made whereby the city might be benefitted by the Otonabee Light and Power Company obtaining the lease of the dam.

The revised agreement, which was passed by the council last night, states that the company will give to the city 500 h. p., at a cost of $15.00 each for 10 years providing it will be able to obtain a lease of the property at Dam No. 4 for $600.00. The deputation which is now in Ottawa will interview the Railway Commission for this purpose and if they will not accept that amount, the city will agree to pay per horse power an amount over and above the $15.00 in accordance with the extra rental called for from the Government.

Those present at the meeting were His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Bradburn, Stevenson, Morrow, Leary, McIntyre, Morgan, Elliott, Wilson, Johnston, Duncan, Phelan and the Solicitor.

Points of Difference

The Mayor explained that the chief question arising between the city and the company was whether the company should reserve 500 h.p. at $15, at the city's command or give the power when they had it to spare. Also the question as to whether the power would be given at the rate of $15 at their power house or have it laid down at the nearest substation to any manufacturer, was disputed.

A deputation from the Company consisting of Messrs. R. R. Hall, M.P., and W. G. Ferguson waited on the council to explain their position. Mr. Hall stated that before submitting the new proposition to the council further reports on the estimated cost had been obtained and it was found that a great deal extra expense would be incurred from what was first considered.

In connection with developing power on the east side of the river there was the question whether the Company would be allowed to divert the roadway and if not two bridges would have to be constructed at a cost of $12,000 or $13,000. When the first proposition was submitted he was of the opinion that the company could obtain the lease of the property at their tender of $600.00, but the Railway Commission had decided that this amount was much too small.

Benefits To Be Derived

He believed that it was to the interest of the community that the property should be developed and that if it were developed it would be of much benefit to the city, whether they got it or not. If there was any amount of horse power to spare it would certainly pay the company to get a revenue from it so that there would be no difficulty when the power was developed in coming to a reasonable agreement with the city. But in the event of no agreement being made he considered it advisable to have the Railway Commission act as arbitrators in the matter.

The Difficulty Settled

Ald. Morrow suggested that the company reserve the power for the city at $15.00 as long as they did not want to sell it to others, and if they did want to dispose of it to give reasonable notice of the same.

Mr. Hall considered this reasonable providing the company could obtain the lease of the property for $600.00 and suggested that the council assist the Company in getting the lease for for that amount when in Ottawa to-day.

The next point in question was whether the 500 h.p. would be given at $15.00 per h.p. from the high potential wires or after transformation.

Mr. Hall stated there was a loss of 10 per cent. in transformation which meant an extra cost of $1.50 but he stated that the company would be willing to give the 500 h.p. at $15.00 after transformation for a period of 10 years instead of 21 years within a quarter of a mile from their nearest pole line.

The committee favoured this and with the above mentioned injunctions the revised agreement was approved of.

The Revised Agreement.

Ald. Stevenson and the City Solicitor went over the agreement with Messrs. R. R. Hall and W. G. Ferguson and the resolution moved by Ald. Stevenson and Bradburn was acceptable and passed the council. The clause containing the chief alterations is as follows:—

Provided that, after the expiration of two years from the date, said power is ready for delivery from said dam, the lessees shall have the right to dispose of said power, or such part thereof as shall not have been applied for by the corporation, and, provided all the other power developed by said company, except the said 500 h.p., is in use, but before doing so the said lessees shall give the corporation three months' written notice of this fact, and the corporation shall be entitled within that time to take, at $15 per h.p., such quantity of power not exceeding, in the total, 500, including the power the lessees may then be furnishing to said new industries, the same to be used for any new manufacturing industries.

AN ANGLERS' ELYSIUM

According to advertisements all summer resorts are alike. They are the best ever—but if fishing is better anywhere else than it is in the Georgian Bay we do not know where it is. There is a greater variety of fish in this water than anywhere else, and they are always hungry. No one ever counted the fish in the Georgian Bay, but those that have been caught there have been counted and eaten, and if you read the Government report on fisheries you know that Georgian Bay supplies more fish than any other equal body of water in the world. The only place that you can afford to fish is where the fish are numerous, big and delicious in flavour, and that place is the Georgian Bay—so the fishermen say. BUILDING PERMITS UNDECIDED

Clauses Added to "The Building By-law of Peterborough" Were Not Satisfactory to the Council.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE GETS QUESTION

The building permit question came up again before the Committee of the Whole Council last night, and, after a lengthy debate, was referred back to the Property Committee to receive more consideration. At one time in the discussion it was thought that the bylaw, as prepared, with an alteration or two, would be passed, but it was not to be. The committee was almost unanimous in a decision to insert in the bylaw that permits must be taken out by those intending to build, when the work would exceed $100.

Ald. Morgan and Leary moved, that, with this change, the bylaw be approved of, but before the vote was taken, Ald. Wilson called attention to the fact that some person might want to change his plans after taking out a permit, and asked what would be done in that case.

Ald. Bradburn thought that plans and specifications should be presented by those seeking permits, and moved that the question be again referred to the Property Committee and have them report at the next meeting of the Council.

Ald. Elliott, in seconding the motion, stated that the Property Committee had only about fifteen minutes in which to consider the question when it came up, and that they had not had any opportunity to discuss it. Ald. Bradburn's motion carried.

The following clauses were then proceed to add to the bylaw as it now stands:

"That the owner or person proposing to erect or enlarge any building in the city of Peterborough, or to repair or alter the roof or external walls of any existing building in the said city, shall, before doing so, file an application with the City Clerk, specifying the work proposed to be done, the kind of material to be used, the estimate cost of the proposed building on the improvements thereof, as the case may be, and in case of new buildings or the enlargement of existing buildings, the dimensions of such new buildings or additions as the case may be, and such other particulars that may be necessary in order to ascertain if the said buildings or alterations proposed to be done will be in compliance with the terms of this bylaw, and the City clerk may require further information to be furnished as to the proposed buildings or alterations and repairs, and if the said Clerk is satisfied that the work proposed to be done is in accordance with the terms of this bylaw, he shall grant a permit authorizing the said work, and said work shall not be proceeded with until such permit is granted; provided, also, that when any of said work is to be done within the fire limits, as specified in this bylaw, before said work is proceeded with, the said permit shall be countersigned by the City Engineer.

"That the owner or person erecting a building now in the course of construction, or now enlarging any existing building, shall within two weeks from the passing of this bylaw file in the office of the City Clerk an application specifying the same particulars as are required by paragraph 2(a) hereof, and if the City Clerk finds that the said work is being done in compliance with the terms of this bylaw, he shall grant a permit authorizing the completion of said building or of said alterations, and after the expiration of the said two weeks from the passing of this bylaw, any such work now in course of construction shall not be proceeded with unless and until such permit is granted."

BOUNDARY CHANGE IN WARDS PROPOSED

Met With Opposition Last Night and Will be Considered Again at the First Meeting in April.

FIRE ALARM INSTALLATION TO PROCEED

The question of making a change in the names and boundaries of the five city wards came up before the Committee of the Whole last night, but was left over until the next meeting for further consideration.

The Mayor stated that the question arose from the fact that the wards were unequal in size, and that, if the change was made, it would be necessary to make it now in order to have the numbers on the fire alarm boxes properly arranged. The wards now, he stated, do not mean anything, and suggested that they be called the North, South, East, West, and Centre Wards, instead of Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.

As boundaries, he suggested that all south of Sherbrooke street should be the South Ward; west of Bethune street, the West Ward; north of McDonel street, the North Ward; the section enclosed within the three, and bounded on the east by the river, the Centre Ward, and all east of the river, the East Ward. He contended that the boundaries should be governed by both the population and assessment.

By the present system, the average population is 2992, and the following table shows the population of each, as they are now, and what they would be under the proposed changes:

Present System

Ward 1.....4818—1826 over average
Ward 2.....2400— 515 under average
Ward 3.....3274— 282 over average.
Ward 4.....2436— 556 under average
Ward 5.....1957—1035 under average

Proposed System

South Ward—3123—131 over average.
Centre " —2454—538 under ave.
West " —3452 — 460 over ave.
North " —3843.— 854 over ave.
East " —2084—908 under ave.

Ald. Elliott considered that it was time enough to make a change when the system of election was changed to the ward system.

Ald. Phelan agreed to this.

Ald. Stevenson believed that more consideration should be given before a definite decision of changing the wards.

Ald. Johnston stated that if a change were made after the boxes were installed, it would have the effect of attaining only four boxes.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan and Elliott that the matter be left over until the next meeting, and in the meantime have the Fire, Water and Light Committee go on with the work of having the fire alarm system installed.—Carried.

EXCELLENT CONCERT AT ST. ANDREW'S

Annual St. Patrick's Day Concert Was a Decided Success—Large Attendance and Good Programme.

The annual St. Patrick's Day concert, which was given under the auspices of St. Andrew's church, church last night, was a very enjoyable affair. The large Sunday school room was almost filled with an appreciative audience, that was generous in showing its favourable regard for the splendid numbers that were given.

The whole programme was well-rendered and this concert may be classed as successful as any given by St. Andrew's church on past occasions. Rev. Mr. Potter occupied the chair in the absence of Mr D. Hughes - Charles, who was unavoidably absent through illness.

It is not necessary to comment on the individual numbers as everyone acquitted themselves in a creditable manner. Mrs. McClelland made a very efficient accompanist.

The following is the programme rendered:

Chairman's address, Rev. Mr. Potter.
Song, St. Paul's quartette.
Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Firth.
Selection, Mandolin club, Messrs. Mendel, Brightman, Cranfeld and Holland.
Violin solo, Miss Hope Miller.

CARTERS MUST GET OFF THE STREETS

Council Decides to Pass By-law Governing Their Actions—Refuse to Instal Telephone.

The City Council last night decided that the carters of the city must get off the streets. The bylaw governing this was brought up for discussion last night by Ald. McIntyre who moved that it be passed. It was pointed out that the carters refused to install a telephone in the apartments at the corner of Water and Charlotte streets, assigned to them, but the Alderman believed they would re-consider this when they were compelled to get off the streets.

Ald. Morgan seconded the motion which carried.

Enormous Shrinkage In Stock Market Securities

Clewes' Report States That Within Six Months Values Have Shrunk No Less Than $1,700,000,000.

PUBLIC SUFFERED LITTLE

Examiner Special.

New York, March 16. — The stock market situation has been unquestionably improved by recent liquidation, estimated at between $1,700,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 in value. That such an enormous shrinkage could take place within the comparatively short period of six months without causing a single failure of consequence is emphatic proof of general soundness in the situation. These losses were chiefly on paper, and fell with greatest heaviness upon rich holders or large operators who were abundantly able to meet them. Fortunately the speculative public suffered comparatively little. It is perhaps premature to say that liquidation has entirely exhausted itself. Yet many of the influences depressing the market have been amply discounted and some of them should soon begin to moderate if not disappear altogether. In all probability the worst of the strain upon the money market will soon be over.

Peterborough Men Have Leased Big Ottawa Rink

Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson Will Operate Dey's Rink as a Roller Rink This Summer.

HAVE TWO OTHER RINKS

Messrs. Sheridan and Henderson, the proprietors of the Charlotte Street Roller Rink, have leased the Deys rink in Ottawa and will operate it as a roller rink this summer. Those gentlemen will operate two, and, possibly, three, rinks this summer, the success which attended the rink here last year having influenced them in their decision to embark more extensively in a business which they believe will be even more popular during the coming summer than it has been in the past.

Deys' rink is the largest rink in the capital, and will make an excellent roller rink. The new proprietors left this afternoon with the excursion for the capital, to make arrangements for clearing the ice away, and will commence as soon as possible with the work of laying the floor.

DOWN STAIRS BAR FOR THE SNOWDEN HOUSE

Will be Completed in a Few Weeks—Present One Will be Removed

Among the improvements being made at the Snowden House is the installation of a down stairs bar. The work is now well under way, and it is expected that within a few weeks it will be ready for use. The present bar will be removed altogether when the new one is installed. An entrance has been cut through the pavement in front of the hotel to the new compartment, which is on the west side of the cellar so that the bar may be entered directly from Charlotte street.

When Your Health Fails, What Then?

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle. Success is for the strong and alert—for those whose blood is rich, and whose nerve cells are filled with vigor and energy. It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion and to keep health at high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

WAS BELIEVED TO BE DROWNED

Skater Was Absent for Several Hours, Clothes Remained on the Ice; He Skated for Miles Down the River.

Yesterday considerable alarm was felt by the street railway men on the George street cars regarding the whereabouts of a habitual skater on the river at the end of Lock street. During the afternoon, this man, as usual, betook himself to the river and exchanged his ordinary boots for those to which the steel runners were attached. Pulling off his long, brown coat, he left it with his leathers in a conspicuous place on the ice, and then sped away like a lark in the early morning. He disappeared from view down the winding Otonabee, and passers-by gazed upon his clothes with some alarm. Hours passed, and yet his graceful form was not seen wending his striding way back to the street car wharf. The cars passed and re-passed, and alarm took possession of the sturdy railway men. They thought that, possibly, he had become disgusted with such an ordinary world as this and had sought other climes, where the ideal life might be enjoyed and everybody's abilities appreciated.

However, this was not to be. Our friend was seen later, returning, after an exhaustive exercise on the glare ice. Those who were somewhat alarmed at his absence were greatly pleased to see him back again, and to say that they were relieved is speaking lightly, as the man in question is a well-known personage, and the news of his prolonged absence would have caused widespread alarm.

INSTALLING ENGINE IN NEW STEAMER

Mr. Campbell Putting 30 Horse Power Engine in the New Government Tug.

Mr. D. Campbell, of the Doty Engine Works, Goderich, has been in the city installing the 30 h.p. engine in the new tug being built for the Government on the shores of the Little Lake. The new steamer, which will be a good one, will, it is expected, be ready for use shortly after the opening of navigation, splendid progress having been made with her construction.

A number of worshippers have been stung by bees in the parish church, Kirkbride, Cumberland, Eng., and the rector and churchwardens made an examination of the roof and walls. They found a large number of bees and honey, and they distributed the latter among the church officials.

PILL POUNDERS HAVE NEVER LOST A GAME

Their Present Team Will Never be Together Again—Knockers Failed To Show Up.

The Pill-Pounders' hockey team have disbanded after an unexcelled record. During the coming autumn, four, at least, of the dope men will leave the city to attend college, which will make such a break in the team as will not be filled up next year. The Pill-Pounders were to have played the Knockers last night, but only three of the latter showed up, so they won by default. During the last two seasons they have won nine games without a single defeat, a record of which they may well feel proud.

CLOTHIERS SNATCH VICTORY IN TEN MINUTES EXTRA

In Hard Fought Game With the Grafters at the Brock Street Rink Last Night

Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night at the Brock street rink, the Grafters were defeated by a picked team from Richard Hall's and Turnbull's, by the score of 6-4, in a game which required ten minutes' overtime. The match was rather rough and a free-for-all fight occurred in the last half. The line-up:

R. Hall—Turnbull — Grafters

Goal.

Cochrane..... Sherwood

Point.

Nicholls..... Lightfoot

Cover-point.

Fitzgerald..... Haskill

Rover.

Gillespie..... Mann

Centre.

Davidson..... Heard

The half-time score was 4-2 in favour of the Grafters. This is the age of graft.

IT'S ALL HATS OFF TO WHITCROFT NOW

He Was the Star of the Kenora-Brandon Game Last Night.

Fred Whitcroft, Peterborough's pride, seems to be making a name for himself in the West. Kenora won the final game for the Manitoba championship from Brandon last night by four goals to one and "Whittie" was the star. A Winnipeg despatch says:—Whitcroft, formerly of Peterborough, was the star of this evening's contest, scoring three out of the four goals secured by the champions. He played a sensational game, attracting attention over even such favourites as Phillips, Smith and Westwick.

HIGH LIFES ENTERED IN THE TOURNAMENT

Local Club Will Take Part in Bowling Competition.

The High Life Bowling Club have entered a team in the Canadian Bowling Association tournament, in Toronto, during the first week in April. Over forty clubs have entered. The Peterborough team is composed of the following: Wm. Crowley, captain; Jas. Houlihan, J. Connors, W. Wareham, E. Hurubise and Thos. Boyd. They are making big scores nightly at the Majestic bowling alleys, Water street.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, No. 20, Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states: — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what the doctors called vericose ulcers. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very start Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

HOCKEY

Judging by the way in which Fred Whitcroft is distinguishing himself on the all-star Kenora team the Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. champions of last year, who won the intermediate honours and finished the season in a blaze of glory by trimming the Smith's Falls Federal League champions, an all-star Marlboro team and the speedy Varsity seven in a row, could have pretty near carried off the Stanley Cup. Whitcroft did not overshadow the rest of last year's team very much, and he seems to have the same proportions on the Manitoba champions even with the aid of Alf Smith and Westwick, of the redoubtable Ottawas.

REACH'S BASEBALL GUIDE IS OUT

The Volume is Larger and Better Than Ever This Year.

Reach's Official American League Guide for 1907, published by the A. J. Reach Company, of Philadelphia, and edited by Mr. Francis C. Richter, of "Sporting Life," is out, and is, as usual, first in the field, thus making it the harbinger of the baseball season. The Examiner has received an advance copy, of which it can be said, without qualification, that, excellent as all of the editions of the Reach Guide have been in recent years, the 1907 Reach Guide is the best hand book of the kind ever issued by this or any other publisher. The special distinction of the 1907 Guide is, next to the text, the superior quality of the paper used and the number and beauty of the engravings furnished, the world's championship series being specially well dowered with splendid action pictures. The American League Guide for 1907 is, in all respects, a first-class hand book of the national game, and a decided credit to the American League, and to the publishers, the Reach Company. This is the sixth annual issue of the Reach Guide as the official hand book of the American League, and the twenty-fifth consecutive year of its publication as a book of record and reference for the entire baseball world.

The book fully covers the American League baseball season, as well as the field at large, and as a great special feature, the official account of all the wonderful games. Other special features make the book worth many times more than the ten cents that is asked for it.

George Needed a Barrel.

The old courthouse had been replaced with a new one, though a very creditable sentiment prompted the citizens of Spottsylvania to make it of the same architecture as the old. By a great effort the old county records were preserved and survived the war records, antedating the Revolution by 100 years or more. One, dated 1760, cites that:

"Marye Scott and Clarissa Drury have thys daye been made to receive fortye and sixtye lashes, respectively, for stealing the clothes of one George Washington, Gentleman, whilst said George Washington, Gentleman, was in washing in the Rapidan river."

All who in youth sat at the head of the parental table and confronted a steel engraving of the dignified Father of His Country may cry out in protest against sending the decorous Washington home in a barrel, but Spottsylvania county has the records to prove it.

About the Ice Family.

Whenever a polar expedition is in progress we hear of ice floes, pack ice, sailing ice and other things of which the reader in a temperate climate has only a hazy idea, which makes him miss the interest of the news. An "ice field" is an area of frozen snow or water so large that the limits are invisible and unknown. On the other hand, a "floe" is a mass of ice perhaps very large, but whose boundaries are seen by the explorer. When such floes become broken and the pieces are wedged together by the wind and the currents they form "pack ice," the terror of the arctic voyager. When a ship gets caught in a mass of pack ice there it remains fast until contrary winds or currents break up the pack, and then we have "sailing ice."

A Fatal Advertisement.

Vestris, the great dancing master, died at eighty-three, and it was said he would have lived till a hundred but for a sudden and mortal blow in the shape of an advertisement. One day he asked for a newspaper, probably for the first time in his life. Scarcely had he opened the sheet when his eyes lighted upon the following: "Wanted, a professor of dancing at Calcutta. Must be a skillful chiropodist at the same time." He took to his bed and never left it again alive.

Long Legged Birds.

Long legged birds have tails so short that they seem to be out of proportion to their bodies. But there is a reason for the short tails. Birds, while flying, and often while walking, use their tails for steerage purposes. When birds with long legs take to flight, they throw their legs behind in a manner that causes them to serve the same purpose as a tail.

Spoke For Himself.

It is told of Charles Lamb that one afternoon, returning from a dinner party, having taken a seat in a crowded omnibus, a stout gentleman subsequently looked in and politely asked, "All full inside?" "I don't know how it may be with the other passengers," answered Lamb, "but that last piece of oyster pie did the business for me."

Manitoba Boundary Question Must Wait Sir Wilfrid's Return.

THE TRENT CANAL OUTLET

Severn River Route Not Yet Finally Accepted—Grand Trunk Railway Bill Passed — Homesteaders' Interest—Amendments in Dominion Lands Bill — Importation of Cutlery—Canadian Northern.

Ottawa, March 19.—In the House of Commons yesterday the Prime Minister stated that, owing to his contemplated departure to attend the Colonial Conference, he was not in a position to state whether the Government would during the present session bring forward any legislative proposals with regard to the extension of the boundaries of Manitoba. After being opposed by Mr. W. F. Maclean, on the ground that the company had not carried out its obligations in regard to providing accommodation for a two-cent fare, and also in discriminating between different communities, the G. T. R. amending bill received third reading and passed, Dominion Lands Act Bill.

The House afterwards went into committee to further consider the consolidation of the Dominion lands act bill. Mr. R. L. Borden suggested that provision should be made in the bill to permit records of Dominion land offices to be open to intending settlers for inspection. The Minister of the Interior was doubtful whether such a provision would not lead to land speculators obtaining undue advantagres, and suggested that the point might be met if the regulations were framed whereby an abstract of any individual record could be obtained on payment of a small fee. The clause was allowed to stand over to permit an amendment to be drafted on those lines. The terms of the bill were extended to permit application to be made on behalf of an intending home steader by a member of his family.

Georgian Bay Canal.

Mr. Leighton McCarthy drew attention to an article appearing in the Toronto papers to the effect that the Severn River route had been recommended for the Georgian Bay Canal. The Minister of Railways stated that nothing final had been decided, no report having been issued in respect of the Nottawasaga route. Instructions had been issued for securing information to the superintending engineer Mr. Walsh. There would be no selection of routes until the other routes had been surveyed.

Mr. Armstrong called attention to a statement appearing in the Weekly Report, stating that in the opinion of Mr. J. B. Jackson, Canadian trade agent at Leeds, England, a large quantity of German cutlery was being shipped through Great Britain to Canada and obtaining the benefit of the British preference.

German Goods Imported.

The Minister of Customs said that when it was discovered that German goods were being imported without the surtax being paid, the importer not only had to pay the surtax, but a penalty was imposed. Such attention as the department could give to this matter was being given to it.

The Prime Minister gave notice that he would ask the House to take the revised subsidies to the Provinces into consideration on Thursday.

Certain amendments passed by the Senate in regard to the bill to establish the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railway Employes' Provident Fund were submitted by Hon. Mr. Emmerson and adopted. One of these extended the provisions of the act to female employes.

The House adjourned at 11.30 p.m

CHEAPER RAIL FARES.

Railway Commission Declares Three Cent Rate Must Be Maximum.

Ottawa, March 19.—Sixty days from this date, the Grand Trunk Railroad may charge no more than three cents a mile passenger rate, either east or west of Toronto.

The board of railway commissioners, sitting here yesterday, decided that the maximum passenger rate to be charged in Ontario and Quebec, either by the Grand Trunk or the Canadian Pacific, shall be three cents.

Further, the Canadian Pacific must cancel its four-cent rate in Saskatchewan and Alberta, on the lines east of and including the Calgary and Edmonton Railway, charging only three cents. The board proposed to notify other railway companies of this action immediately, and to request them to inform the board whether they are willing to reduce their rates similarly, and, if not, to inform the board of the ground upon which they object to doing so.

BRITAIN NEGLIGENT.

Government Treatment of Newfoundland Severely Criticized.

London, March 19.—(C. A. P.)—In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Lyttelton said, respecting the Newfoundland fishery controversy, that while admitting it was impossible to ignore the United States case, there was a grave issue which was likely to lead to friction and collision unless it was settled. No prejudice ought to arise in future through making the modus vivendi.

He complained of the pathetic and negligent manner in which the Government treated the matter. He declared the Government ought at once to have consulted the colony, and both together ought to have framed such a policy as would, if possible, have been acceptable to the United States. If not, the policy ought at any rate to have been acceptable to Newfoundland. Britain, he complained most seriously, was the country of the Government which had allowed themselves to be placed in a position of conflict with the colony.

Mr. Winston Churchill, defending the Government, said the provincial arrangement was without prejudice, and was absolutely necessary if the fisheries were to be conducted in a peaceful manner. He denied that the Government had prejudiced the permanent interests of the colony.

The Solicitor-General said Newfoundland was fully consulted. The United States displayed the greatest possible anxiety to reach a reasonable arrangement, and had met the Government fairly.

Previous to the discussion Earl Grey declared he regarded the settlement as temporary.

The Chronicle says the Newfoundland discussion only indicates the need of an improved imperial organization.

The Leader asks: Does Mr. Lyttelton serious maintain that our relations with the United States ought to have been imperilled rather than violate the sanctity of the Newfoundland Legislature's statute-book when the statutes were aimed deliberately at the States.

TWO VESSELS WRECKED.

Mail Steamers On the Rocks, But the Lives Lost.

London, March 19.—Details received yesterday of the disaster to the White Star Liner Suevic, homeward bound from Sydney, N. S. W., by way of Cape Town, with nearly 600 passengers and crew on board, show that she struck the Brandies Rocks close under the Lizard Lighthouse at about 10.30 Sunday night, and will probably be a total wreck. Lifeboats and tugs from the Lizard and Falmouth soon reached the scene, and together with the Suevic's own boats, commenced landing the passengers. The women and children were first sent ashore. There were no fewer than 100 children on board, many of them being babies in arms, whom the local fishermen and their wives lifted out of the boats and carried through the surf to near-by cottages.

Rescued With Breeches Buoy.

London, March 19.—Almost within sight of the wrecked White Star Line steamer Suevic, the Elder Dempster Line steamer Jebba, from Calabar, Lagos and other West African ports for Plymouth and Liverpool, ran on the rocks under the cliffs near Prawle Point early yesterday morning. Her seventy passengers, many of whom were soldiers invalided home from the west coast of Africa, and her crew were safely taken ashore by the breeches buoy. Heavy seas were breaking over the steamer, rendering the lifeboats, which are standing by the vessel, useless. The Jebba will prove a total loss.

AYR BANK FORGERY CASE.

Duncan the Manager Goes For Trial On Serious Charges.

Galt, March 19.—John F. Duncan was formally committed for trial yesterday by Police Magistrate Blake on three separate charges, falsifying the books of the Bank of Commerce, at Ayr, by fraudulently making an entry of $17.90 read $13,017.90; forging by alteration of a cash voucher, and stealing a bank draft from the Galt branch of the bank in January, 1905.

In the last charge the prisoner, it is alleged, kept this draft, marked it cancelled, filled it out to the Windsor branch at Ayr, forged the Windsor manager's name, and, on March 7, at Stratford, cashed it at the bank, receiving the $2,000 it called for.

It also came out in evidence that Duncan had $3,650 on him when arrested at Paris, on the request of the Ayr manager, who had discovered his defalcation. This he handed to his lawyer, and the lawyer, in turn, to the Ayr manager.

Duncan expressed the hope that the bank would be merciful since he had given up all the money he had. He had nothing to say when arraigned. Crown Attorney Bowlby was present for the crown. Crown Attorney MacPherson of Stratford appeared for the bank, and J. B. Dalzell appeared for the prisoner.

The witnesses examined were Manager Lay of Ayr and Accountant Melville of Stratford. The prisoner took things coolly.

Level Crossing Accident.

Preston, March 19.—A team of horses attached to a wagon containing two men was struck by the 11 o'clock Grand Trunk train yesterday morning at Groh's crossing, between Preston and Hespeler.

A man by the name of R. Johnson, said to be from Berlin, was badly hurt and taken to Galt Hospital. The other man, name unknown, escaped. The horses were killed and the wagon smashed.

Three New Townships.

Toronto, March, 19.—Prosser, Lucas and Crawford are three new townships to be opened shortly for the benefit of those entitled to locate under the Veterans' Land Grant Act. They lie about 50 miles west of Lake Abitibi and consist of excellent farm land. They are six miles square each and will furnish 432 claims of 160 acres.

Medical Course Extended.

Montreal, March 19.—McGill University has decided to extend the medical course from four to five years. This goes into effect next September. Medical science has increased to such a marked extent that it is considered impossible to equip doctors properly within the present limits.

Dressmakers' Strike.

Vienna, March 19.—The dressmakers and ladies' tailors held mass meetings yesterday, and unanimously decided to strike to-day for increased wages. Nine thousand women and girls and 3,000 men are involved.

Triplets; Girls; All Well.

Comber, March 19.—Triplets, all girls, were born to Mr. and Mrs. William Manley of Staples, six miles from here, Sunday. The mother and children are all well.

Sir Robt. Weatherbee Resigns.

Ottawa, March 19.—Sir Robert Weatherbee, chief justice of Nova Scotia, has sent in his resignation to take effect to-day.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings opticians and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result—my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

(Signed) JOHN CARTER, Sr.,

Military Men Honour A Soldier And A Gentleman

Officers of the 57th Regiment Tender Dinner to Major R. M. Dennistoun on Eve of His Departure From This City.

A BRILLIANT GATHERING.

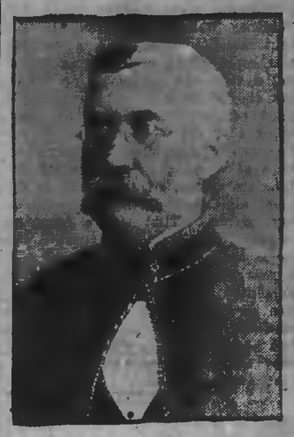
Present and Former Officers of the Regiment Unite in Showing Honour to Popular Officer—Presentation of Silver Plate.

The farewell dinner given Major Dennistoun last night, by his fellow-officers of the 57th Regiment, was, without doubt, one of the most successful functions of its kind ever held in this city or town, and never has any citizen, under similar circumstances, been so signally honoured, and with such unanimity of sentiment, of respect, esteem and appreciation on the occasion of his departure from Peterborough. The dinner was not only a splendid tribute to a fellow officer by the officers of the regiment, but an evidence of their large-hearted hospitality, for the invited guests were, perhaps, equal in number to the officers themselves, consisting of members of sister corps and prominent citizens representing important city interests. The mess rooms, which were crowded to their utmost capacity, were bright with the soft glow of candles, and a most enticing banquet graced the festal board. As was to be expected, the many good speeches made, revolved around the guest of the evening, and the tributes paid to his worth, as both a soldier and a citizen, while many, were not mere repetitions. The guest of the evening has so many good sides to his character, that it seemed to be difficult to exhaust the subject. His speech, in reply to the enthusiastic toast of his health was a modest one, a model of good taste, and a quiet, but evidently deep, expression of his grateful sentiments. The occasion was a most enjoyable one, and so deep was the interest, so interesting were the songs and speeches, that the night rolled unheededly away, and it was far into the morning before the delightful festivities came to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne, and the National Anthem. The entire affair, though at times pleasant informality was introduced, was managed with military precision, and great credit is due to Major Dennistoun's official successor, Paymaster Major Hayes, secretary of the mess, upon whose broad shoulders, a large share of the responsibility for the plan of campaign, rested.

The 57th band gracefully paid its tribute to the guest of the evening by volunteering its presence, and performing during the progress off the dinner, in its usual excellent style, a programme of appropriate selections.

Surgeon Major Halliday, president

OFFICIALS AT LAST NIGHT'S DINNER TO MAJOR R. MAXWELL DENNISTOUN



COL. HALLIDAY,
President of the Mess and Chairman of the Banquet Last Night.

MAJOR HAYES,
Secretary of the Mess and Vice-Chairman of the Banquet.

Col. Miller referred to the time, of the mess, presided in a most effective manner.

Several letters of regret were read by the chairman, from Messrs. E. A. Peck, J. E. L. Goodwill, E. F. Mason, A. T. Crothers and Capt. W. C. Ackerman.

The toast to the King was proposed by Surgeon Lt.-Col. Halliday and was heartily honoured.

Col. Miller then proposed the toast of the evening, that to "Our Guest," and said it was a pleasure to see such a large gathering, and especially to meet so many old comrades and friends of other days. He referred to previous officers of the 57th Regiment, to whom honours had been done in the past. Some had gone to the West, others had crossed the great divide, and a few had retired from the service. The regiment had offered its best to the great West, and one of its earliest officers, Hon. F. W. G. Haultain, had located in that land and had become a nation builder. Again the regiment was called upon to offer its best in the person of Major Dennistoun, who was leaving shortly for Winnipeg, twenty years ago, when the guest of the evening had joined No. 1 Company as a private at the camp in Cobourg, and had performed the most menial duty with ready obedience. He had gone on filling one post after another with credit to himself and advantage to the regiment, until he had attained his present rank. He was always a willing worker, and the speaker wondered how the regiment was to replace such officers as Major Dennistoun when they go away. (A voice, "You cannot do it.") Col. Miller, continuing, said that he looked into the faces of the young officers around him and hoped and believed that they would do as well as those who had left. They would miss Major Dennistoun at the mess, as well as his old familiar song, "Drill, Ye Terriers, Drill." The departing guest carried with him the heartfelt wishes of all those who knew him, and if his success in his new home was as great as they hoped for, it would be very great indeed.

The Respond

Major Dennistoun, in responding,

DEPUTATION GIVEN POSITIVE ASSURANCE THAT THE CANAL WILL BE COMPLETED SOON

Special Staff Correspondence

Ottawa, March 20.—"I have asked my colleagues and Parliament to grant sufficient money to push forward this work will all possible rapidity, and I think when the country learns the decision of Parliament they will realize that all the work that can possibly be prosecuted will have been placed under contract, and that there has been and will be no delay concerning this project on the part of the present Government, who are in earnest as to the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and before a week has elapsed, copies of the supplementary estimates for this scheme will be laid on the table showing just what action has been taken."

The above statements were the pleasing assurances given by the Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, to the deputation of 135 representative men from Peterborough and vicinity in the House of Commons this morning.

In the Canal Business.

He further impressed the delegation that the present Government was in the canal business, and hoped to complete the Trent Valley waterway as thoroughly and promptly as possible.

The Hon. gentleman proposed to remove the Trent Valley Canal project from the football arena of politics, and take the project up as a thoroughly business proposition.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., member for West Peterborough, and the speakers were Mayor McWilliams, of Peterborough; Mr. A. A. Mulholland and Mayor Dumas, of Campbellford; Warden McNulty, of Peterborough County, and Dr. Jaques, of Trenton.

Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, paid a glowing tribute to the general executive ability of the Hon. Minister of Railways and Canals, and has exemplified an unprecedented interest in the Trent Valley Canal.

Hon. Wm. Patterson, Minister of Customs, also said that if the Minister of Railways and Canals can have his own way, the Trent Canal will be completed at an early date.

The deputation was entirely satisfied with the result o fthem visit to the capital.

New Furniture Factory For City Is Decided On Property Purchased in East City for Site for Factory to Make Furniture—A Cobourg Man's Enterprise.

HAS GOOD PROSPECTS.

Peterborough, or to be more explicit, East City, is likely to have a new industry, in the shape of a furniture factory, in the near future.

The Examiner is advised to-day that a block of property fronting on Hunter street, just west of the Maple Leaf Hotel has been sold by Mr. Richard Dawson to a Cobourg man, who was formerly in the furniture manufacturing business, and that the intention of this gentleman is to establish a factory there for a similar purpose.

This will be good news to Peterborough people, who have had dreams of a furniture factory, for which it was recognized that the city was advantageously situated, for some time, and that it is to be established in East City is a fact which few will regret to learn.

The abundance of good hardwood in the county, and the easy means of communication afforded, make Peterborough one of the most favourably situated cities in Ontario for a furniture factory, and there is but little doubt that it will be successful from the start. Work on the erection of the building will in all probability be commenced in the near future.

IRREGULARITY IN THE MARKET

Some Confusing Features of the Stock Market To-day—Rally at the Close.

Special to J. R. Heintz & Co.

New York, March 20.—Much irregularity characterized prices in the market to-day. Alternately advancing and declining, prices gave an exhibition which, to say the least, was highly confusing. Some stocks showed strength while others at the same time exhibited great weakness. Of the latter, Smelters was the worst, declining from 123 1-2 yesterday to 114 1-2 to-day. There was heavy selling of this issue all day, and it showed no rallying power until late in the day.

The Hill stocks, Union Pac. and Reading were also weak at different periods, although Union acted better in the afternoon. St. Paul, selling ex-dividend, was very firm, while Amal. Copper resisted the declining tendency elsewhere in fine shape. South. Pac. was very well supported.

There was no news of importance bearing on values. London sent higher prices, especially for St. Paul and Union Pac. The bear element was very active on the short side, but whether their efforts were productive of success or not could hardly be determined. The market is a huge trading affair, and an active trader, who will buy when weakness is shown, or sell on the strong spots, can reap large profits. The indications favour this kind of a market for some time to come, although the ultimate trend should be for improvement. The market closed firm on a rally.

GAVE TWO LECTURES ON IRELAND

Mr. Daniel O'Connel Appeared Before Perth and Cobourg Audiences.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell returned to the city last night, after having given lectures on Ireland in Perth adn Cobourg. Mr. O'Connell is very much in demand for St. Patrick's Day lectures. Last year he was in Montreal in connection with the St. Patrick's Day celebration, and this year, as has been stated, he had to give two lectures, one in Perth on Saturday night and the other in Cobourg on Monday night.

Mr. O'Connell is a very eloquent speaker and was well received in both places, his patriotic references to Ireland bringing forth much applause.

Has Taken a Thousand

Zutoo

Always Cured Headache. Never Affected her Heart.

Here is a testimonial from the wife of Doctor W. L. Shurtleff, K.C., of Coaticook, Que., who has taken a thousand Zutoo Tablets (the Japanese Vegetable Headache remedy.)

It should convince any doubting one, that while the tablets cure headache, they do not, like the drug cures, affect the heart, nerves or stomach. No one would or could take such a number if they were not perfectly harmless. Mrs. Shurtleff herself had to discard the drug cures.

Here is what she says:

I have always been a great sufferer from headache, and have taken a great many headache cures. I found that after taking them for a time they caused palpitation of the heart. Three years ago I began using Zutoo. I have likely taken over a thousand tablets. I have never yet felt the least ill-effect from using them and they cure my headaches as quickly as any remedy I ever took.

They are Harmless as Soda.

LICENSES UNDER THE SPOILS SYSTEM

The wave of political purity, on the crest of which Hon. J. Pliny Whitney rode into office, seems to have begun receding almost as soon as he was safely landed there. If there was one argument used with more persistency than another when Mr. Whitney was in Opposition, it was that the Liberals made a corrupt and improper use of the liquor licensing system. They never proved it, but they seem to have believed it in good earnest, for about the first thing they did when they got to office was to begin upon the very practices of which they had accused the Liberals. The first step was to appoint all Conservatives to the licensing boards. That was a harmless measure, and one to be expected, because the appointments run for only a year, and the Liberals had always appointed Liberals. Next they began to eject all the inspectors, permanent and impartial officials, who had no more against them than that they had been appointed by the Liberal administration.

Most of Ontario had been covered before they came to dismiss the Toronto inspectors. When they did come to that there was trouble. Why there was trouble has recently been revealed. The licensing board was headed by Mr. J. W. Flavelle, a Conservative, of course, like his two colleagues. An application was issued for a license to be granted to a man against whom the inspectors, when when asked, reported fourteen convictions for violation of the law concerning the sale of liquor. Mr. Flavelle and his colleagues promptly rejected the application. The applicant, however, while a bad saloon keeper, was a good Conservative, and the machine managers wanted to please him. In the end no less a person than the Minister of Education, Dr. Pyne, tried to get Mr. Flavelle and his colleagues to grant the license. They refused. Instantly a demand was made for the dismissal of the license inspector, it being known that Mr. Flavelle was against the spoils system being applied in that way. The inspector was dismissed. As was expected and hoped for, the intractable Flavelle resigned and his colleagues with him. A new board was appointed, and now a commissioner is taking evidence in regard to the grant and promise of certain licenses, and the origin and purpose of certain cheques and notes for one and two thousand dollars, which seem to have been floating about the heads of license commissioners and local party bosses. They are evidently making ing the licensing system in fact, and not concealing the proofs, what they used to say it was when they couldn't prove it.—Montreal Herald.

IGNORANT OF CANADA

Old Country journals expect their dicta on political or imperial subjects to be accepted as gospel truth; but in practice they have to be taken with a generous pinch of salt. The stupendous ignorance they display of Canadian conditions is refreshing. For instance, the Morning Post, of London, speaking of the coming conference of Colonial Premiers, says apropos of the visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the latter "represents only French-Canadian ideas concerning an Imperial Council." The Post should know, if it took the least trouble to inform its splendid ignorance, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier represents the ideas of the whole of Canada. In the administration of his great trust as premier of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, where the interests of the country at large and its relations to the Empire are concerned, knows neither French nor English, nor Irish nor Scotch, nor any other nationality. He represents the Canadian idea. All the different elements of our population are fused into the homogeneous mass, called Canadians. Such absurdities, as that spoken of by the Post, may command respect from those of its readers who share its dense ignorance of Canadian affairs and conditions, but here they are taken as a heavy sort of joke.

GENERAL ADVANTAGE

Any immigrant coming to Canada, or any other man for the matter of that, need not be idle. Immigrants are pouring into Winnipeg, the western disembarking point, at the rate of nearly five hundred per day. They are in big demand for railway construction work. At present there are nearly six thousand miles of railway, (twice the span of Canada from sea to sea), under contract, in the prairie country between the Great Lakes and the Rockies, much of it nearing completion. It needs no very vivid imagination to see what a large effect this will have in promoting settlement. Not only will railway workmen, when construction shall have been completed, become, in large part, occupiers of land, but all along the lines of new railway which will principally tap hitherto unoccupied country, towns by the hundred will spring up, making new centres of population, and commercial and industrial activity. The demand for various kinds of supplies and manufactured products, which will thus be created, will have to be largely supplied by Eastern Canada; so that the substantial benefits resulting from railway extension and the concurrent growth of settlement, will result in the general advantage.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Canada seems to be the Mecca of migrators. The stream of emigrants is already so large that there are not enough boats to bring them across the ocean. A large number of men destined for Grand Trunk Pacific construction work were to have sailed last Saturday from England, but vessels sailing for Canada were so crowded that immigrants were told that they would have to wait a month perhaps before securing passages. The prospects are that there will be an unusual rush to Canada this year. All who will work will be welcomed. Though thousands may come to help build railways, they will develop into citizens. If they are industrious and thrifty they will acquire lands, and add to the solidest element of our citizenship — the farming community.

The Toronto News thinks that only a Liberal can hope for consideration from the Liberal Government. Is the News right? No. There are thousands of Conservative civil servants—not always "civil," either—who have been holding office during the whole ten years of Liberal tenure. True, some few have been removed—for cause—but taking the general record of the Liberal Government, in its relations to civil servants, who hold positions, when it took office, the News is hardly justified in insinuating that the Liberal Government has no consideration for other than Liberals, in regard to office holding. True, if a vacancy occurs, it is natural, and permissable, under our party form of government, for the government of the day to appoint an incumbent of its own political faith, a custom which applies to either of the two great parties.

But for the invention of the reaping machine, farmers would find farming a very slow and practically impossible business. We are led to believe that the United States is the great field of inventions, but some of the most useful and most widely employed inventions have been made in steady-going England and Scotland, for instance, the adaptation of steam to motive purposes, and the reaping machine. According to the Dundee, Scotland, Telegraph, the reaping machine was the invention, in 1827, of a minister, Rev. Patrick Bell, LL.D. He produced the first workable model, upon which reaping machines were afterwards patterned, both in Britain and America. It is a little remarkable that two of the most useful and widely used inventions are invented the reaper, and Mr. Alexander Graham bell rang in the telephone.

Signal Honour Shown Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour By The Ladies

She Was Given Life Certificate of Membership in Women's Missionary Auxiliary—The Annual Easter Thank-Offering.

CHARLOTTE STREET SOCIETY

The annual thank-offering service of the Charlotte Street W. M. S. Auxiliary was held in the parsonage, and was a great success, both financially and numerically. About fifty ladies, including visitors from George street and Mark street auxiliaries, were present. The president, Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour, opened the meeting by asking all to join in singing a hymn, after which Mrs. H. P. Kennedy read a portion of Scripture, and Mesdames Allen and Sutherland offered prayer. An enjoyable programme, consisting of readings by Mesdames Morrison, Allum and Lightfoot, a piano solo by Miss T. Elliott, and vocal solo by Mrs. Collier, was much appreciated. Rev. Mr. Manning, the pastor, made a few suitable remarks on the work done generally by the W. M. S., and the Charlotte street Auxiliary in particular.

The feature of the afternoon, however, was the presentation of a life membership certificate and pin to the president, Mrs. Kilgour. Mrs. J. K. Moore read the address, Mrs. Allum presented the certificate, and Mrs. Switzer, the pin. Mrs. Kilgour made a suitable reply, after which a thank-offering, amounting to over $25, was taken up.

The meeting closed by the singing of the Doxology, and the Benediction was pronounced by the pastor.

Miss Campbell presided at the piano in her usual capable manner. Refreshments were served, and a delightful time spent in social intercourse. A vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Manning for their kindness in entertaining the auxiliary.

The following is a copy of the address:

Mrs. (Rev.) Kilgour,—

Dear Friend and President — No more beautiful and appropriate custom could have been inaugurated by our society than that of bringing an offering of thanks at Eastertide, to be used in the extension of our work among those who do not yet realize that for them "Christ is risen." We have met here to-day for this purpose, and desire to add another pleasant feature to the programme, and to link with the happy memories of this service, on expression, as an auxiliary, of our appreciation of your loving services and faithful work as president of our auxiliary, by presenting you with a life membership certificate of the W. M. S. and the accompanying pin. During the many years you have been our esteemed president, your zeal, devotion and regular attention have been an inspiration and worthy example to all.

The prosperity of our auxiliary and the existing harmony are evidences of your rare tact and executive ability. We feel that we owe you a debt of gratitude for your painstaking efforts to make our meetings not only interesting, but profitable, while the interests of our beloved society are ever nearest your heart.

We trust that you may long be spared to be associated with this, the most influential and enduring work that is being done in this day of great enterprises, and also long continue to preside over our Charlotte Street Auxiliary, and when it may be yours to participate in the reward and joys of the Church Triumphant, you may meet many in whose interests you have laboured, and who, through your instrumentality, have learned to love our risen Saviour.

Signed on behalf of the auxiliary,
H. H. Allum, Treasurer,
A. E. Moore, Rec.-Secretary.
Mrs. Switzer, First Vice-Pres.
Mrs. McClennan, 2nd Vice-Pres.
Mrs. Carver, Cor.-Secretary.

LOCAL MEN ISSUE WRIT AGAINST BANK

Messrs. W. H. Bradburn and Alex. Elliott Plaintiffs in Suit to Recover $1,198.

Bradstreets, this week, gives notice of a writ having been issued against the Ontario Bank by Messrs. W. H. Bradburn and Alex. Elliott for $1,198. It is understood that there has been a dispute over money deposited in the Ontario Bank, at the time it was taken over by the Bank of Montreal, and the charge is practically that of withholding money belonging to the depositors. WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked by Male Physicians.

Mme. Alfred Arcand Zula Ecclison

An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful; they will lie to their physician." This statement should be qualified; women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to a male physician, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

It is a terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

Is it any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To her they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients, through her correspondence with them than the physician who personally questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon, which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove. Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in.

Madame Alfred Arcand of 414 Dorchester Street, Montreal, Can., writes;

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your Vegetable Compound was such a blessing in disguise to me that I am only too pleased to give my testimonial. About a year ago I contracted a severe cold at a critical time, which caused my periods to cease. I had very severe pains and sick spells, and this continued for several months with no abatement. Finally I decided to try your Vegetable Compound. After two weeks I became regular, had very little pain in the second month, and in three months' time I was restored to health. I consider your Vegetable Compound well worthy of praise."

Zula Ecclison, of 6 Erie Street, East, St. Thomas, Ont. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic and regulator for female troubles. I suffered for four years with displacement, and no one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental suffering those endure who are thus affected. Your Vegetable Compound cured me. Within three months I was fully restored to health and strength, and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to obtain such relief when so many doctors fail to help you. Your medicine is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant for many years before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women.

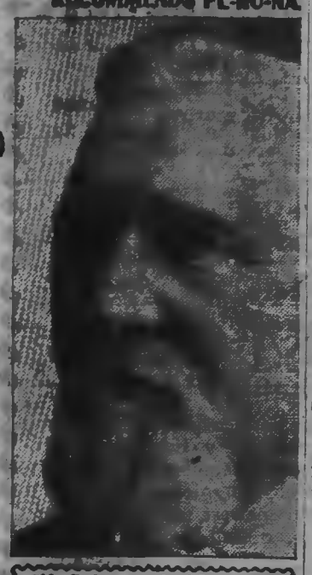
EX-MAYOR CRUMBO RECOMMENDS PE-RU-NA



"My Endorsement of Pe-ru-na is Based on its Merits."
—Ed. Crumbo.

ED. CRUMBO, Ex-Mayor of New Albany, Ind., writes from 511 E. Oak Street:

"My endorsement of Peruna is based on its merits.

"If a man is sick he looks anxiously for something which will cure him, and Peruna will do the work.

"I know that it will cure catarrh of the head or stomach, indigestion, headache and any weary or sick feeling.

"It is bound to help anyone, if used according to directions.

"I also know dozens of men who speak in the highest terms of Peruna and have yet to hear of anyone being disappointed in it."

Mr. Crumbo, in a later letter, dated August, 1904, says:

"My health is good, at present, but if I should have to take any more medicine I will fall back on Peruna."

The final rehearsal of Stainer's "Crucifixion" came off last night and everything is in train for the rendering of the work in All Saints' on Thursday at 8 p.m. Mr. H. Morphet and Mr. Geo. Chandler divide the tenor solo work, and Mr. Edwards, Mr. Hague Sawers and Mr. Greenhalgh, the bass solos. The chorus contains 50 voices and the conductor, Mr. R. J. Devey expressed great satisfaction at the quality of their work in such a short time of preparation.

Could Not Speak Above a Whisper

COLD IN THE CHEST SEEMED TO BE UNMOVABLE, BUT CURE WAS SOON EFFECTED BY

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

It is waste of time to use ordinary cough mixtures for serious colds on the chest, and time is of infinite value when the lungs are in danger.

The risk is too great, especially when you wait to think that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is for sale in nearly every store that keeps medicines at all.

This letter gives you some idea of the effectiveness of this great medicine.

Mrs. A. Burnum, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "My husband had a very severe cold on his chest, and got so bad that he could not speak above a whisper. The cough medicines he tried seemed to have no effect, and, reading about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine I sent for a bottle. In two days he was cured and is very grateful for such a medicine. He says we will never be without this medicine in the house."

The very name of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is sufficient to explain the simple and yet powerful and well-known ingredients of which this great medicine is composed.

While linseed sheaths the mouth, tongue and throat with a protective coating to prevent injury from hard coughing, turpentine disinfects and stimulates the ulcerated parts of the bronchial tubes and lungs and is almost specific for bronchitis.

Other ingredients, which, along with these, go to make up Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, soothe the nerves, loosen the cough, aid expectoration, and by thorough action on the whole system, completely cure coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough and sore throat.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.—10

SALE OF MARKET TOLLS TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY

Will be Auctioned in the Council Chambers—Will Probably be Warmly Contested.

On Friday, the 22nd inst., the annual sale of the market tolls will take place in the council chambers. As in previous years there will likely be numerous bidders as the tolls are let by auction. There are many in the city who have a desire to secure this position, and it is probable that the bidding will be brisk. The price paid last year was a good one and since then the market has improved. Although there may have been a falling off in some of the articles that passed through the public scales this has been offset by an increase in other lines. The money received from the Saturday sellers has continued to be quite satisfactory, the markets being well attended the whole year round. Thus it may be seen that the position of market clerk is sought after by many.

Some have suggested that it would be a wise plan to give the market clerk a salary and the money received be forwarded to the city's treasury. This was merely a suggestion that was offered in the course of a conversation with an ex-clerk.

OFFICERS OF THE MASTER BAKERS MEETING HERE

To Decide Whether They Will Hold the Annual Convention of Association in Peterborough.

The question of whether Peterborough will be favoured with the annual convention of the Master Bakers' Association of Ontario this year or not is being decided this afternoon, when a meeting of the officers and executive of the Association is being held at the Oriental Hotel. The Peterborough delegates to the annual convention last summer extended an invitation to the Association to come to Peterborough this year, and promised them a hearty reception and a royal good time. The Association decided to visit Peterborough before coming to any decision on the matter, hence to-day's meeting is being held. There are present, Mr. M. Bredin, Toronto, president; Mr. H. S. Treat, Toronto, secretary; Mr. A. W. Carrick, Toronto, treasurer, and three members of the executive, Messrs. Hilton, Toronto; A. M. Evans, Hamilton, and Jas. Acton, Toronto.

The Examiner is informed that if Peterborough is selected, which seems extremely likely, the programme will include a visit to Stony Lake, where a meeting will be held in the pavilion at Bummer Island. A trip down the Otonabee is also planned. The Association has between 150 and 200 members.

The local bakers are doing their best to make the visit of the officers of the association a pleasant one. Early this afternoon the visitors were taken over to see the Lift Lock, which of course made the usual impression, although it is seen at its worst at this time. At the conclusion of the meeting arrangements have been made to conduct the delegation through the Quaker Oats Company's buildings.

To-night the local bakers will tender the visitors a banquet at Hooper's palm parlours when a very enjoyable time is expected.

DRAMATIC SECTION MAY RE-ORGANIZE

A Suggestion Made Whereby T. A. S. Dramatic Section May be Enlarged and Have its Own Officers.

The dramatic section of the T.A.S., will probably be re-arranged next season, if a suggestion which one of the gentlemen who is connected with it, gave, is carried out. Previous to this, this society has been eminently successful in the production which they presented, and any change that would be made would be for the purpose of making it even more successful and capable of undertaking heavier plays. This gentleman suggested that with the Dramatic Section, with its own officers, a series of concerts, etc., could be given during the fall season, which would school any younger members, and at the same time a good play could be prepared. By this means the society would become strong in every way and also add money to the treasury of the T.A.S. The suggestion appears to be one which would be worth following. The general opinion is that there is plenty of material among the members and these who are experienced would be of great assistance to any new blood that might be needed.

The officers of the society would have charge of the plays and a good leader could assign the parts. Of course this is only a suggestion that was made but it certainly appears to be a good one.

SEVENTEEN CAR LOADS OF SETTLERS' EFFECTS

Fourteen Were Taken West by G. T. R., and Three by C. P. R. People From This District.

Yesterday saw seventeen carloads of settlers' effects leave this vicinity for the great West. Had they been all on the same train they would have constituted a fairly long freight train. The majority contained the effects of people between Peterborough and Belleville. Twelve of the cars were loaded east of there on that line and the other five in this city. Fourteen of the whole number went by the G.T.R. line via Orillia and North Bay, the other three were taken over the C.P.R. to Toronto and thence north. Mr. W. McIlroy the C.P.R. ticket agent issued the following tickets:—

Lizzie Richardson to Calgary.
H. G. Kay, to Manitou, Man.
P. Butler, to Edmonton, Alta.
Kasle Calver, to Winnipeg.
Andrew Telford, to Carberry, Man.
J. R. Brooks, to Calgary.
Alfred Oliver, to Quill Lake, Sask.

Mr. Sucese of this city also left for the West, his goods being taken along with the train thus mentioned.

If the people of the district were to continue to migrate to Western places, the result would be the depopulation of our own farm lands. In this way the West is a gainer, the East the loser.

MILITARY MEN HONOUR A SOLDIER AND GENTLEMAN

was accorded an enthusiastic ovation. He said that a man, after serving twenty-four years as a member of the corps, must expect that the time will come when he would be called upon to say farewell to his brother officers. It was difficult to say farewell. The happiest days of his life had been spent in the regiment, and he looked back over the period of twenty-four years as the most happy and satisfactory of his career. It was a pleasure to say that his brother officers had so largely contributed to his enjoyment of military life. His mind travelled back on this occasion to the day when he first enlisted, and his heart swelled with pride, and he would never forget the occasion when, as a lad, he bought a sword in London, and donned the old tunic, the scarlet sash, the braided patrol jacket, the straight, peaked forage cap. This all brought back to him a rush of emotions which it was hard to suppress. Emotions were very strong when the past was being reviewed. The speaker referred to the time when the 57th, then a rural corps, was organized as a six company city regiment. The task was not undertaken without a great deal of apprehension. Col. Miller and he were the only active officers to-day who were connected with the regiment at its inception as a city corps. The sacrifices made by the officers at that time meant a great deal, but they had all been well repaid for such sacrifice in the splendid progress that the corps had made. The corps had been established on a firm financial basis, and in this respect stood differently from any other volunteer corps that he knew of, in the fact that there were only two funds, the officers' fund and the regimental fund, and all monies received went into these funds, which were efficiently administered by the officers of the corps.

Other regiments had what were known as company funds, but in the 57th all financial matters had been entrusted to the officers of the corps from the beginning.

A Good Record

During its twenty years' existence as a city regiment there had not been any criticism offered against the management of the fund, that had amounted to a hill of beans.

Major Dennistoun advised the officers to be as careful of the finances in the future as they had been in the past, and so continue to retain the confidence of the regiment in the same marked degree as they enjoyed it at present. As the years rolled by, responsibilities would increase, and he counselled his brother officers to be careful with respect to any financial obligations. Before undertaking anything in any particular year the means had always been in sight to carry out the project. The regiment had never gone in debt, and so long as it kept clear of it it would be on the highway to prosperity.

Comrades Together

They had all laboured together to make the mess what it was to-day. Here they all met on common ground, and with one interest in view—the success of the 57th. In the petty routine of daily work there were many annoyances and sordid business cares and troubles, but in the mess they met for a common purpose. As soon as the uniform was donned, all outside daily vexations and difficulties were forgotten. The atmosphere was changed. They had one view and were animated by one purpose—that of service, and the defence of King and country. They were inspired by a high sentiment, their hearts were enlarged; they felt that they were better men, and nothing had ever transpired to mar the pleasantness of their association or the aim they had in view. While the mess constituted some thirty officers, it must be remembered that they represented four hundred of the finest young men of the city, whom they were leading forward to better things. They must be worthy of the trust committed to them and the responsibilities which fell upon their shoulders. He was glad to see so many young officers taking an interest in the regiment. Ideals were reached here which could not be reached outside. He liked to see men coming up from the ranks, and he believed in giving a preference to them every time, as they made the best soldiers. They should not regard the mess in the light of a social club. There were duties to do upon the parade ground and in the ordinary routine work of drill and instruction which they must not overlook. The day when an officer could rule by oaths had long gone by, and now a spirit of obedience and respect was fostered by kindlier means.

He had great respect for Col. Miller, the commanding officer of the regiment, and was thankful to have had the honour of serving under him. He also referred in kindly terms to Col. J. Z. Rogers, Col. R. W. Bell, who was adjutant for ten years; Sergt. Major T. A. S. Hay, Capt. W. H. Hill, Major Langford and other, who had been prominently identified with the progress and stability of the corps.

In closing, he warmly thanked all for this splendid reception, and dared forget whatever the West might hold in store for him, the time of his military career had closed in the annals of the 57th Regiment, the only one with which he had been identified.

Col. Halliday's Tribute

Col. Halliday paid a warm tribute to the departing officer, his good judgment and sound common sense. He said Major Dennistoun had been a credit to himself, to his family, to the community and to the regiment with which he had been so long connected. While the office of paymaster would no doubt be efficiently filled by another, they would find it exceedingly difficult to replace the personality and friendship of the man who was shortly to leave the city. They felt that in the growing and larger city of Winnipeg there was nothing too good for him, and believed that he would obtain a measure of success in his new home which would be exceedingly gratifying to the guest of the evening and his numerous friends.

The Presentation

At this juncture, Col. Miller, on behalf of the officers of the 57th, presented Major Dennitoun with a sterling silver plate, suitably engraved. He trusted that the recipient would accept it, not for its intrinsic worth, but as a memento of the kindly feeling which inspired them now, and which always would.

Major Dennistoun, in acknowledging the presentation, said that he would take much pleasure in passing it on to those who came after him. He noticed in the inscription, the words, "Quis Separabit," and although he was going to Winnipeg, the distance between Peterborough and that city would never divide the pleasant relationships between him and the many good friends he was leaving behind. The plate bore the coat-of-arms of the regiment and the following inscription, "Presented to Major R. M. Dennistoun by officers of the 57th Regiment, March 1907."

Sister Corps

Mr. Dennistoun's song, "Drill, ye Tarriers Drill," which has been sung by him on many occasions when the officers have gathered around the festive board, was again sung, probably for the last time by Mr. Dennistoun last night, prior to the next toast, to Sister Corps, which was proposed by Major Clegg, who referred to the pleasure it gave the officers of the 57th to meet with the officers of the other branches of the service, the new 24th Field Battery and the 3rd Dragoons. Responses were appropriately made by Major Young, commanding the 24th Battery and Capt. Medd of the Dragoons, as well as by Capt. Stroud, of the 3rd District Signalling Corps.

Col. Miller recited to the enjoyment of the gathering "Glengoe," and following this Capt. Cluxton favoured them with a solo.

Canadian Banking

The toast, to Financial Institutions was proposed by Major Stevenson and a reply was made by Mr. D. Hughes Charles, who paid a tribute to the soundness of the Canadian banking system, and pointed out the futility, so far as protection was concerned, of outside inspection. Capt. Eastwood and A. Montizambert also spoke to this toast. Capt. Eastwood spoke of the three great branches of financial institutions, the banks, the loan companies and the trust companies, while Mr. Montizambert spoke briefly of his military experience, and referred to his cousin, the late Col. Montizambert, who, he said, had a very warm feeling for Peterborough officers.

A Former Commander

An interesting speech was that given by Lt.-Col. Bell, of Toronto, late Commanding Officer of the regiment, who had come to Peterborough to do honour to Major Dennistoun, to whom in a short, but interesting speech he paid a high tribute, and wished him God-speed on his departure. Mr. Charles favoured the gathering with one of the songs for which he has become famous in gatherings of this character.

Another Presentation

A feature of more than usual interest was the presentation by Major Dennistoun to Major Hayes, who succeeds him as paymaster of the regiment, with his cocked hat, which the recepient acknowledged in an appropriate speech.

Capt. Ritchie, of the 24th Field Battery and a former officer in the 57th, proposed the toast to Lt.-Col. Miller, who in reply expressed the pleasure it had given him to command the regiment, and referred to the good name which the regiment bore through the Dominion.

Lieut. Watt was then heard in a solo, of which the gathering showed its appreciation.

In proposing the toast to the Press, Major Hayes paid a tribute to the press of Peterborough, remarking that he believed this city had the fairest papers of any city in the Dominion. Responses on behalf of the press were made by Mr. F. H. Dobbin and Mr. F. R. Yokome, who referred to the pleasant relations which had always existed between the guest of the evening and the newspaper men of the city, and paid a high tribute to his good citizenship and sterling manly qualities.

Major Hayes also informally proposed a toast to the ex-officers of the 57th, and coupled with it the names of Col. J. Z. Rogers, Col. Bell, Capt. Hill, Capt. Ritchie and Sergt.-Major Hay.

"The Regimental Babies," the toast to whom was proposed by Adjutant Walker, brought to their feet Lieut. Clarke and Lieut. Merritt. The last toast, that to "The Ladies," was proposed, as usual, by Capt. Cluxton, and responded to by Mr. F. D. Kerr, both speeches being eloquent and able.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought this delightful gathering to a close.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR COUGH

Mix half ounce of the pure Virgin Oil of Pine with two ounces of Glycerine and half pint of whisky. Use in teaspoonful doses. A famous throat and lung specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the pine woods of Maine, has attracted great attention, declares the above formula will break up a cold in twenty-four hour hours, heal the lungs and cure any cough that is curable. The ingredients can be procured from any drug store at small cost.

Care should be exercised in obtaining at the drug store the best quality of Glycerine and Whisky, while the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) should be purchased only in the original half ounce vials, which are securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name — Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) prepared only by Leach Chemical Company, Windsor, Ont., plainly printed thereon. Cheap or adulterated Oils, which are sold in bulk, always create nausea, and never effect the desired results.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. JARDINE, OMEMEE

Is Much Regretted in Omemee—Trent Canal Deputation Arranged.

Examiner Special.

Omemee, March 18. — The death took place on Wednesday, the 13th inst., of Mrs. Jardine, wife of Mr. W. Jardine, the principal of the High School. The sad event cast quite a gloom over the village. The deceased has been suffering from a complication of troubles for some time. The funeral was held on Friday and was a very large one. The deceased had endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. She was an active worker in the Presbyterian church and in the W.M.F.S., and other kindred societies.

The meeting in the interests of the Pigeon River navigation was largely attended by our leading citizens, besides the village council. Thanks were extended to all the Trent Valley officials for the interest shown. A large deputation will go to Ottawa on Tuesday.

We regret to hear of the sudden demise of Mrs. William Miller, of Peterborough, a former resident of this village.

Our church choirs are practising Easter music. A union service is to be held in the Anglican church on Good Friday.

The "Other World" entertainment by Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, is to be held on the 21st.

Several parties here are preparing to build residences.

John Beatty, an old citizen, late of Lindsay, will be buried here tomorrow—Tuesday. The deceased was one of the leading brick layers and masons here for many years.

Our citizens and business men have formed a board of trade to keep out all transient traders and peddlers; also to assist our council in encouraging industries, railways, etc., and booming our village for a summer resort.

ONLY ONE DEER TO EACH HUNTER

One of the most improtant clauses of the Fish and Game Bill which may be changed is one respecting the shooting of deer, the change in effect being the limiting of the number of deer that any person may kill to only one.

The clause states that only one buck and one doe can be shot, but the amendment, if adopted, will allow only the killing of either a doe or buck. One reason the change was favoured by most of the members was the fact that people shot the deer for the purpose of making money out of the sale of the venison.

HAVE YOU A WEAK BACK?

Does Rheumatism or Neuralgia Torture You? Zam-Buk Will Give Special Relief.

Has the trying March weather brought on your Rheumatism or Neuralgia, or put an ache into that weak back of yours? If it has, remember that Zam-Buk rubbed well in over the aching part will give you speedy relief. Zam-Buk contains valuable herbal essences so refined and concentrated, so searching and so powerful, that a little rubbing enables them to penetrate diseased or inflamed muscles, nerves and tendons. That ache in limb or back means that the muscles and nerves are needing help. They have "caught cold"—the nerves are "starved"—irritated, inflamed. Your body is a wonderful machine and it sometimes needs a little lubrication. What proper lubrication does for an overheated machine bearing, Zam-Buk will do for a joint or lever or muscle which is inflamed, or heated, or sore, or aching, because of cold, neuralgia, rheumatism, etc.

Mrs. John Sidestone, of Swan Valley, Man. says:—"I have proved Zam-Buk to be a sure cure for rheumatism. It gave me such relief that I would not be without it in the house."

For cold in the chest, catarrh in the head, etc., Zam-Buk rubbed well in to chest and forehead gives quick relief. Besides its uses as an embrocation, Zam-Buk heals chapped hands and cold sores, eczema, poisoned wounds, scalp sores, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, pimples, boils, spring eruptions, etc. It also stops bleeding and cures piles, fistula, etc. All druggists and stores at 50c. a box, or from Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, for price; 6 boxes sent for $2.50. Send 1c. stamp for postage of free trial box.

Alberta Government Is Helping Western Farmers

Col. E. B. Edwards, of Edmonton, Writes Interesting Letter Telling of the Progressive Steps the Government is Taking to Assist the Agriculturists---Live Stock and Seed Shows Held---About the Weather.

Many Peterborough people will be interested in the following letter, which was received this morning by by the Examiner from Col. E. B. Edwards, K.C., formerly of this city and now living in Edmonton, Alta. His reference to the weather they have been experiencing in the West this winter will be specially interesting. His letter follows:—

There was held here during the first week of March a Stock Judging Show, which interested me very much, as indicating the progressive, and practical spirit of this part of the country. It may be of interest also to people in the East. The Department of Agriculture of the Province of Alberta procured two large palace stock cars from Chicago, each of them one and one-half times the size of an ordinary car and got together a number of fine specimens of stock consisting of ten horses, four sheep, ten hogs, and thirty-six cattle; sixty animals in all and sent them under the charge of a number of competent instructors to different points in the Province where the Stock Judging Schools were held. These schools were held at nine places in all; seven of them lasting one week and two of them 2 weeks each, making eleven weeks in all. The school at Edmonton lasted two weeks. There were from sixty to eighty farmers regularly in attendance through the fortnight and at some of the classes there were as high as one hundred and fifty present. There were six instructors who took the work in turn. The mode of instruction was practical and thorough. A number of animals were brought in and the instructor taking an animal of a particular breed, such as the Short Horn, explained the points required in an animal of the highest type of that breed. The members of the school were given an opportunity to examine the animals carefully and they were then required to set down on cards, which were furnished to them, the number of points which they would give to each of the animals taking every part in detail from the nose to the tail. These were compared and commented upon by the instructor. Individual members of the school were also called upon to come forward and describe the different points of the animal, showing the reasons for preferring one to the other. The classes were held each morning and afternoon, and addresses, with limelight views, were also given on several evenings. At the close, a competitive examination of the school was held. The class of farmers who were present, and their keenness in the work, impressed me with the idea that great things might be expected for this country and for a new government in a new country to adopt such a thorough and practical method of assisting the farmers to perfect themselves in their work seemed to me most remarkable. At one of the sessions, the Lieutenant-Governor and members of the Legislature attended.

The week following, the Seed Grain Fair was held. Quantities of the finest seed grain were exhibited, wheat, oats, peas and barley from the different parts of the Province. Farmers from the Edmonton district won a fair share of the prizes. The wheat and oats were remarkably fine and were shown in great variety. To give an idea of the character of the oats, I may say that, when the Grain Commission was sitting here in January 1, I saw a large number of samples tested by the Commission for weight, the oats being taken from the bins of farmers in different parts of the district just as they came from the threshing mill. None of the samples were less than forty pounds in weight to the bushel, and a number of them ran up to 45 and 46 pounds to the bushel.

At the same time that the Seed Fair was going on last week, a poultry show and dog show were also in progress in different parts of the same building. The poultry, both in the number of classes exhibited and the character of the birds shown, would have done credit to any poultry show in Ontario. The dog show was not very large, but there were some handsome animals shown, collies particularly being well represented.

It is evident that the Province of Alberta is not going to be behind the older provinces in anything. You may have heard in the East some wonderful stories of the severity of the winter out here. The reports have been exaggerated. In January it was cold, but there was no wind, and the weather, since February came in, has been so delightful that no one would prefer the average Ontario winter to the winter, taken as a whole, that we have had here.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO THE PEOPLE OF PETERBORO'

From McDermid & Jury, Our Well Known Druggists.

To whom it may concern:

Of late there has been a good deal of discussion in Peterborough in regard to advertised medicines and their value—the papers are full of them.

We want to say to every man, woman and child in Peterborough, that we believe the most valuable preparation of cod liver oil—the best tonic reconstructor, health restorer and strength creator—we have ever sold in our store is Vinol.

Vinol is not a patent medicine, it contains no injurious drugs, and it atually does contain all of the medicinal curative elements taken from fresh cods' livers, but without a drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work; and, moreover, it is delicious to the taste.

Vinol acts first upon the stomach, tones up the digestive organs, creates an appetite, purifies and enriches the blood, and strengthens every organ in the body to do its work as nature intended.

Vinol is generally recognized throughout the world as the greatest strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women and children, nursing mothers and after a severe sickness.

Vinol cures hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Unequalled to create an appetite and to make those who are too thin, fat, rosy and healthy.

Vinol is sold everywhere on a positive guarantee that, if it does not give satisfaction, the entire purchase money will be refunded. McDermid & Jury, druggists. Vinol is also sold at the Market Drug Store, the Ormond & Walsh old stand.

BIRTHDAY CONCERT A SUCCESS

Under Auspices of Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A.

The birthday party under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. held in the building last night was a great success from every point of view. The attendance was large and as a result a large sum of money was realized towards the fund by which the ladies help to furnish the building.

The evening was one of great enjoyment to those present, the programme being a delightfull one, while the social nature of the gathering made it one long to be remembered. The programme was rendered in the parlour, while the game room was called into use as a tea room, which was in charge of Mesdames Harding, Meredith, Madill, Frank Mason, Elliott and other ladies. A prettily decorated candy booth was situated in the main hall and was presided over by Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Foote, assisted by Misses Garbutt, Ackerman and Elliott.

The programme, which was heartily enjoyed, was as follows:—

Instrumental selection—Mr. Chas. Ackerman.
Vocal solo—Miss Moore.
Recitation—Miss Greta LeBar.
Violin solo—Miss Crothers.
Instrumental—Miss Davidson.
Recitation Miss Henderson.
Vocal solo—Miss Reesor.
Instrumental—Miss Meldrum.

A novel scheme of admission charges was made. Each person was given a small silken bag in which was deposited the number of cents corresponding to the person's age. This new way proved very interesting and successful.

Credit is due those in charge for the success of the affair. The officers of the Auxiliary are Mrs. Mason, President; Miss Ackerman, Secretary, and Miss Davidson, Treasurer.

The members of the Auxiliary wish it stated that the fact that the programme, as presented was not identical with that published the day before is not the fault of the Auxiliary. Miss Reesor, who was to have sung was unable to be present and only learned of the circumstances which prevented her attendance late yesterday, and Mr. Van der Water was ill, which explains the absence.

CONSECRATION OF ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH, APSLEY, ON MAY 3

Preparations are being made for the consecration of St. George's church, Apsley, which will take place on May 3rd next. His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto will be present and will conduct the service of consecration. He will be assisted by the Venerable Archdeacon and the Rural Dean, as well as by a number of the clergymen of the county. In connection with the consecration confirmation will also be held. Rev. C. Lord, who has charge of the parish has reason to be proud of the work he has done during the time he has been labouring in the north.

St. George's church is now a commodious structure with a capacity of about 200 persons, and is well furnished. It is a credit to the people, of whose generosity it is an evidence.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBERT DINWOODIE

The death occurred yesterday at St. Joseph's Hospital, of Mrs. Robert Dinwoodie, of Campbellford, widow of the late Robert Dinwoodie, of that town. The deceased was 63 years old and has been ill for the past 6 years. She was brought to the Hospital a month ago, but medical assistance was unavailing. Her remains were taken to Campbellford on this morning's Belleville train where interment will take place.

MRS. JAMES MURPHY

The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital last night of Jennie Hurst, wife of Mr. Jas. Murphy, 657 Concession street, East City. The deceased was 34 years of age, and was born in Oshawa, being a daughter of the late John Hurst, of that place. She was well and favourably known in the city and the news of her death will be received with genuine regret. The deceased has been ill for some time. Her death was due to intenal hemorrhages.

She is survived by her husband and three sons and three daughters, all living here. One brother, Henry Hurst, also resides in Peterborough.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

ISABELLA STEWART

The death occurred early this morning of Isabella Stewart, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. James Tighe, Rogers street, after an illness of some weeks duration, suffering from cancer. The deceased was 64 years of age. She was born in County Donegal, Ireland, and came to this country when quite young, and settled in Peterborough, where she has resided practically all her life. She was the daughter of the late Matthew Stewart. The deceased was a most highly respected citizens and a faithful member of St. Luke's church. Two sisters and two brothers are left to mourn her loss. The sisters are Mrs. Jas. Tighe and Mrs. William Tighe, of East City, and the brothers are Mr. Jas. Stewart of East City, and Mr. Hugh Stewart, Marinetta, Wis.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Jas. Tighe, of Rogers street, to St. Luke's church, and thence to the Little Lake cemetery.

NEW LATH MILL FOR THE CITY

Messrs. Ed. Cook and Thomas McGarrity Will Operate a Factory.

It was stated in a contemporary yesterday that Mr. Fred Cook, the well-known East City painter and decorator, had purchased the portable lath mill, which he intended to put up on the east bank of the east bank of the Otonabee river, across from London street. The report is not quite correct as Mr. Cook this morning said that he was not connected with the new industry and asked the Examiner to so state.

The mill will be operated by Mr. Cook's brother, Mr. Edward Cook, and Mr. Thomas McGarrity. They have contracted with the Cavendish Lumber Company at Lakefield, to purchase all the slabs which have hitherto been used as fuel. There is great demand for lath, and the new mill promises to be well apronized.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS —During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

(Signed) JOHN CARTER, Sr.,

GREAT TRIAL WILL SOON BE OVER

Thaw Trial Is Now In Its Last Stages.

JEALOUSY NOT INSANITY

Is What Jerome Will Urge to the Jury—Strong Case Against Prisoner—Expert Gives Witty Retort—Affidavit as to Beatings Thought to Have Injured Thaw — What Both Sides Will Plead.

New York, March 20.—Unless all signs fail, to-day will see the completion of the evidence of the long-drawn-out Thaw trial, and on Friday the case will go to the jury, after nine full weeks before the court.

Thaw's attorneys stated last night that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw would not be recalled to the witness stand. The only thing she could do would be to again deny that she told Hummel that she had been beaten by Thaw, and deny again that she knew what was in the famous affidavit when she signed it. It is not believed that this would be of any value to the defence, as she has already told all her side of the story. The attorneys for the defence state that they do not consider that the introduction of the affidavit has done their case the slightest harm, while District Attorney Jerome is quoted as saying that he considers it one of the strongest features of his case.

A Day Each For Summing Up.

Under the agreement, each side will take one day for the summing up. It is probable that Justice Fitzgerald will charge the jury Friday morning, and the case should go to the jury Friday night.

Mr. Delmas, in his address to the jury, will urge the acquittal of Thaw, on the theory that he was temporarily insane at the time he killed White. He will argue that the defence has shown beyond doubt that Thaw's mind was unhinged by the story which Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told him before they were married, and that it was while in a condition of mental irresponsibility that he took White's life. He will attempt to discredit Abraham Hummel, who has testified that Evelyn Thaw told him everything that was in the affidavit, by showing Hummel's record.

Jealous Man's Revenge.

District Attorney Jerome will urge the conviction of Thaw for murder in the first degree. He will claim that there is nothing in the case to show that Thaw suffered from anything more than jealousy, and that his hatred for White, who had been his wife's lover before he married her, with full knowledge of this fact, led him to revenge himself by taking White's life.

The case has been fought to the last ditch by both sides, and what the jury will do no one can tell. In case of a conviction there will, of course, be an immediate motion for a new trial. Mr. Delmas has saved all his exceptions, and his constant objecting may have served to inject reversible error into the case.

The Trial Drags.

District Attorney Jerome yesterday morning continued his cross-examination of Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffee, one of the alienists for the defence.

"In your answer to the hypothetical question, doctor," began Mr. Jerome, "did you interpret the question in the light of facts which are outside the question?"

"Why, in a way, certainly," answered Dr. Jelliffee. "My knowledge of the alphabet allowed me to read the question, but there is nothing about that in the question."

The cross-examination dragged along at great length, and was something of a surprise in view of Mr. Jerome's expeditious handling of the experts Monday.

Thaw is holding up remarkably well, but said yesterday that he, too, was beginning to feel completely tired out. He asked permission yesterday to retire for five minutes, and, when he reached the corridors leading to the prisoners' pen, lighted a cigarette and walked briskly up and down.

During the cross-examination of one of the experts at the afternoon session, Thaw's prison guard created much amusement by falling asleep in his chair.

He slumbered for several minutes, with his chin on his breast, before one of the court attendants gave him a sharp nudge. The guard rubbed his eyes and looked sheepishly about. He stood up during the remainder of the session.

When Dr. Evans, the last of the experts stepped down, Delmas asked permission to introduce in evidence one of the letters sent from Pittsburg by Mr. Lyon. Jerome objected, unless all the letters were admitted. The point was still being argued when adjournment was taken fifteen minutes later than usual.

Thaw Sends Cheque.

Pittsburg, March 20.—Mayor G. W. Guthrie of this city received the following letter from Harry K. Thaw yesterday, in which a cheque for $100 was enclosed to aid persons suffering from the flood of last week.

"Owing to demands upon me, I can only send $100 toward the relief of the sufferers by the unprecedented flood. A cheque for that amount is enclosed."

The mayor replied that no fund had been raised in Pittsburg, but that one had been raised in Allegheny, and asked what disposition should be made of the money.

TO SERVE 20 YEARS.

Judge Regrets He Was Unable to Order Flogging.

Brandon, March 20.—A severe sentence was pronounced on Jesse Perriman, an English farm laborer, convicted on a charge of outraging an 11-year-old girl.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Richards said: "Considering the horrible circumstances, I may say I seriously thought of ordering you to be hanged, and though I am not doing so, I may tell you that murder is not more deserving than that heinous crime with which you are charged. Unfortunately I can't emphasize your sentence by flogging. Why the Legislature has not made such a provision under this count I can't say, but I greatly regret I cannot order you to be flogged three times during your term of imprisonment. I order you to be imprisoned in Manitoba Penitentiary for 20 years."

FIGHT AGAINST HOME RULE.

Unionist Campaign Was Formally Opened Yesterday.

London, March 20.—The Unionist campaign against the legislation, which the Government proposes to introduce after Easter, giving partial Home Rule to Ireland, was formally opened yesterday. A strong deputation of residents of Ulster, including about fifty leading anti-home rulers, headed by the Duke of Abercorn and Lord Lansdowne, had a conference with A. J. Balfour, the Opposition leader, and urged the necessity for an active propaganda to combat the Government's Irish policy. Mr. Balfour declared himself authorized to pledge every member of the Unionist party to fight everything in the nature of Home Rule. He added, that he believed the sentiment of the country had not varied on the subject since the defeat of the late Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule measure.

HAD HIS REVENGE.

Man Kills His Slayer and Fatally Wounds Latter's Brother.

Birmingham, Ala., March 20.—H. H. Chamberlaine, formerly of Richmond, Va., superintendent of the mines of the Crescent Coal Co. at Sloss, Ala., and Joe Creek, a miner, are dead, and Will Creek, the latter's brother, is dying as the result of a three-cornered pistol fight at the mines late Monday. The two miners were drinking and were creating a disturbance. When Chamberlaine tried to quiet them Joe Creek fired upon him, inflicting wounds which resulted in Chamberlaine's death. While lying mortally wounded, Chamberlaine fired several shots, one of which killed Joe Creek and fatally injured his brother Will.

Alberta Fixes Game Law.

Regina, March 20.—In the Legislature yesterday the second reading of the bill for the protection of game was made.

The amendment of the game laws was made necessary through the rapid settlement of the country. One of the features of the bill is the prohibition of spring shooting of wild fowl.

It was approved by the convention of game guardians last year, and is generally approved of, but the Government desires to get into line with public opinion, not only in this province, but throughout the American continent.

There also are provisions for limiting the amount of a sportsman's bag to ten grouse or prairie chickens for one day and 100 for the season, and forbidding the use of dogs in hunting deer.

Salaries of Judges.

Regina, March 20.—A resolution passed in the Legislature here yesterday provides that judges shall be paid $500 yearly as judges of Surrogate courts by the Provincial Government. A Surrogate judge will also be district judge and in that capacity will receive $2,500 a year from the Dominion Government for first year of service, and after that $3,000 a year.

SCORED ANOTHER WONDERFUL VICTORY

One More Added to the Long List of Cures Effected by Psychine.

This young lady, who lives in Brownsville, near Woodstock, Ont., tells her own story in a few effective words of how she obtained deliverance from the terrible grip of weakness and disease.

I have to thank Psychine for my present health. Two years ago I was going into a decline. I could hardly drag myself across the floor. I could not sweep the carpet.

If I went for a drive I had to lie down when I came back. If I went for a mile in two on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spin I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father would give me no peace until I procured Psychine, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results are wonderful, and people remarked my improvement. Instead of a little, pale, hollow cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day all of life, ready for a sleigh-ride, a skating match, or an evening party with anyone, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, a couple of roads from my home. I have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of the disease.

ELLA MURIEL WOOD,
Brownsville, Ont.

Thousands of women are using PSYCHINE, because they know from experience that in it they have a safe friend and deliverer. Psychine is a wonderful tonic, purifying the blood, driving out disease germs, gives a ravenous appetite, aids digestion and assimilation of food, and is a positive and absolute cure for disease of throat, chest, lungs, stomach and other organs. It quickly builds up the entire system, making sick people well and weak people strong.

LACES AND DELICATE FABRICS are so pretty and expensive that it seems a shame to have them eaten up and rubbed to pieces by using harsh soaps.

"SURPRISE" Soap is so pure that it can't hurt the most flimsy lace. Then it cleanses without boiling or rubbing, so there is no wear at all.

The best way to wash is to make a suds with "SURPRISE" Soap—and then let the soap loosen up the dirt.

After that simply move the fabric around and let the water circulate through it, and the dirt will drop out.

"SURPRISE" is the highest grade soap made. It costs the same as common kinds.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba of the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a Homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a Homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

SOME BIG BOUTS ON THE CARDS

Athletic Entertainment Under Auspices of the Peterborough Hockey Club.

SOME OF THE CLEVER TALENT

The athletic entertainment to be put on in the old opera house by the Peterborough hockey club, under the direction of Billie Breen, the trainer of the team, on March 27th, promises to be the biggest evening's amusement along this line ever given in Peterborough. Undoubtedly the best wrestling and boxing bouts ever seen here will be put on the programme that night. Among the events will be a wrestling bout between Eugene Hurtubise, champion heavyweight amateur wrestler of the Dominion, and Jack Thompson, the well known Hamilton mat artist. Harvey Staunton and Mike O'Toole, two well-known local boys, will also try conclusions and the bout should be a good one.

On the boxing line there will be a dandy bout between Pete Barry, the crack Toronto boxer, with a long string of victories, and Fred Brown of Lindsay. The "Broncho," as the latter is commonly known, has a great record in England and his appearance against Barry will attract a lot of attention. Both are shifty, clever boxers, who will put up a great fight. Pacer Wallace of Peterborough, and Jack Brown of Lindsay, will clash on the same night and another good bout will result. Tommy Daley of Toronto, another clever artist of the squared ring will take on Fred Green, a local dark horse, who will surprise the talent when he lines up against the Queen City boy.

BARBERS VERSUS BARTENDERS TO-NIGHT

Greatest Game of the Season is Promised—Betting Even.

One of the best games of the season will be seen at the Brock street rink to-night, when the Bartenders and the Barbers will clash. Both have been in training for months, and will be in the best of shape for the hard struggle. The betting is even, with all kinds of money being wagered on the result. Geo. Lynch will likely referee, and the Bartenders will line up as follows:

Goal, A. Johnston.
Point, Joe Guerin.
Cover, Miles McDonough.
Rover, Eddie Graham.
Centre, Billie Breen.
Right wing, Oscar Halliban.
Left wing, J. O'Shea.

The game will be called at ten o'clock sharp and will last as long as the players do.

BRIDGENORTH BEAT THE HAPPY THOUGHTS

Defeated the Best Stove Company's Team in a Hard Game Last Night.

The Bridgenorth team made their first appearance on local ice last night, when they defeated Best's Happy Thoughts in a warmly contested game of hockey by 5 goals to 4. The game was a good exhibition and the ice was fast considering the state of the weather. The Happy Thoughts had the best of the game in the first half, leading at the turn by 3 goals to 1; but the villagers made a strong finish scoring 4 goals to their opponents' 1. J. P. Crough made a very satisfactory referee and the teams lined up as follows:

WOULD BE STRONG MEMBER OF COUNCIL

Toronto News Says Nice Things of Mr. A. M. Regan.

His many Toronto friends will also be glad to hear that Ambrose Regan of Peterborough, has been nominated by his club. Mr. Regan is well and favourably known in Toronto and more or less widely throughout the Province. He has been connected with lacrosse for some years past and would make an exceptionally strong acquisition to the Council. He has been connected with Rugby, baseball and other sports, is, in fact, an all round man, and the C.L.A. could do worse than give Peterborough representation on the Council by electing Mr. Regan.—Toronto News.

INTEREST CONTINUES IN REVIVAL

Good Crowds at Park Street Church—Results are Gratifying—Song Service To-night.

The rain and wind storm were not enough to prevent the people from attending the revival last night in the Park street Baptist church, and the church was well filled with an audience which gave evidence of its deep interest. The singing last night was a feature. The Torrey and Alexander hymns are taking hold of those who attend the meetings. Last night Master Wilton Trenter a boy nine years old sang a solo. The text from which the evangelist preached was "I Find No Fault in This Man," and it was a clear presentation of gospel truth.

The afternoon meeting for the children was well attended and was one of much benefit to the younger portion of the congregation.

There will be a song service to-night at 7.45.

ANCIENT FORESTERS EXPRESS SYMPATHY

Letter of Condolence Was Sent by Court Stanley, A. O. F., to Family of the Late Richard Foster.

After the funeral of the late Richard Foster, which was held on Sunday last, the members of Court Stanley, A.O.F., of which deceased was a member, appointed a committee to prepare and forward a letter of condolence to the widow of the deceased. The following letter was accordingly sent to Mrs. Foster yesterday:

To Mrs. R. Foster and Family,—

We, the officers and members of Court Stanley, No. 7680, A. O. F., desire to express to yourself and family our sincere sympathy in this your hour of sorrow. Your late husband was very highly esteemed by us as a friend and brother, and we shall not soon forget him, but will mourn his departure from our midst. We can but offer our consolation to you by pointing out that we believe that he has gone to a better home prepared by our elder Brother, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, in Whom the weary heart and sorrow-worn soul shall find eternal rest, and we know that your loss, and ours, is his gain, and, although family and fraternal ties are broken here, our prayer is that we all shall meet in the heavenly home where there is no more parting, for in heaven we meet to part no more.

Signed, on behalf of Court Stanley, A.O.F.,

Tom Hendry, C.R.
R. J. McWilliams, Secretary,
Seth Adlam, Treasurer.

EVANGELIST TORRIE ENGAGED UNTIL FALL

Is in Great Demand by Churches in the Province—Works Under Direction of Home Mission Band.

Evangelist Torrie, who has been conducting services in the Park street Baptist church is in demand, and it is understood that he has now enough engagements to keep him busy until next fall. Mr. Torrie is one of two evangelists sent out by the Home Missionary Society of the Baptist church, by which society his salary is paid. He usually works in Home Mission churches, but the pastor of the Park street church was able to secure him for his church, which, of course, is independent of the Mission Society.

HAD THIRTY-TWO BOILS AT ONE TIME

Two Bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters Cured Him.

Imperfect organic action makes bad blood, so, too, bad blood, in turn, makes imperfect action of every bodily organ. If the blood becomes impure, poisoned or contaminated in any way from constipation, biliousness or any other cause, some especially weak organ must soon become diseased thereby, or the whole system may suffer in consequence.

Pimples, boils, blotches, ulcers, festering sores, abscesses, tumors, rashes or some serious and perhaps incurable blood disease may result. There is no medicine on the market to-day to equal the old and well-known remedy, for all cases of bad blood.

Mr. Ernest B. Tupper, Round Hill, N.S., says: "I think Burdock Blood Bitters a great medicine for boils. I had them so bad I could not work. I had thirty-two on my back at one time. I used only two bottles of B.B.B. and they completely cured me. I cannot recommend it too highly." Price $1.00 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5.00.

Y. M. C. A. DEBATERS WON CONTEST

Delightful Evening Spent at St. Andrew's Last Night—Enjoyable Banquet.

INTERESTING SPEECHES.

A most interesting and profitable evening was spent last night, by the large number who attended the regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church. A deputation from the Y. M.C.A. debating club was present, and an interesting debate was held, the Young Men's Guild upholding the affirmative, and the Y.M.C.A. taking the negative. The debate was: "Resolved — That Labour receives an equitable share of what it produces." The affirmative speakers were Messrs. W. Richardson and W. Langford, and the negative, Messrs. Shiner and Lilly. The judges, Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner, C. E. Anderson and W. McLaren gave their decision in favour of the negative.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the meeting was brought to order by the president, Mr. Richardson. After the business of the evening was over, Mr. W. S. Campbell was voted to the chair. After welcoming those present the chairman asked the debaters to take their places.

Mr. Will Richardson, leader of the affirmative, was the first speaker. He began by defining the words "labour" and "capital." Labour was work, and capital was the money invested. Capital played the most important part. The wages of labour were regulated by the demand for labour. It was capital that caused new factories to be built in this city and, as a result of the new factories, the labouring man's wages were increased considerably. The speaker referred to the opposition in business. There was also a great deal of risk. It was the owners of the factory who suffered the most if it were burned, not the labourers. He considered that the labourers were well paid. Labour is exceedingly high in price now, and where one could start in business a few years ago with $1000, it now takes $2,000.

Mr. Shiner, for the negative, was next heard. He said capital was wealth destined to be consumed in the production of wealth. Capital, he considered is a servant of labour. He thought that if two men did the same amount of work they ought to receive the same amount of money. Labourers do not receive wages in proportion to the profits of capital. In Cobalt men were digging in the mines for $4 a day and speculators were making immense sums of money. Mr. Shiner referred to what the leader of the affirmative had said regarding risk. He said the labouring man ran far greater risks of the loss of his life than men of capital.

Mr. Langford, of the affirmative, said that from hearing the last speaker he would judge he was a Socialist. He said he talked as if labour had done everything. He spoke of competition, but competition keeps prices down.

Mr. Lillie for the negative, next spoke. He referred to one point of the affirmative when mention was made of Cobalt capital. It was a disgrace to the country. He thought capital and labour were dependent upon each other. Capitalists risk money and labourers risk life. If the labour unions raised wages then merchants and others raised their prices as well. As soon as times became good the rents of houses advanced.

Mr. Richardson of the affirmative, then made a few remarks, after which the judges retired. Whilst the judges were considering the debate an interesting discussion took place.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the chairman for the judges, said that they gave their decision in favour of the negative. He congratulated the debaters on their splendid showing. The judges considered that the Y.M. C.A. debaters treated their subject better and delivered a more convincing argument than their opponents. The Young Men's Guild consulted their manuscript too much. Whilst they read well-prepared papers a debate was not for that purpose. An adjournment was then made to a room where a well-prepared banquet supplied by the young ladies was awaiting them. After everyone had done justice to the good things provided a toast list was run off, Mr. W. S. Campbell acting as toastmaster. The King was first honoured in the usual way after which Mr. Mackay gave a well-rendered vocal solo. The next toast was that to "Our Guests." It was proposed by Mr. G. W. Macdonald and responded to by Mr. Shiner.

Mr. Thompson then favoured the audience with a vocal solo, The Ladies were then honoured, Mr. T. R. W. Black proposing the toast, and Messrs. W. McLaren and E. Dormer responding on behalf of the ladies. A pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

KIDNEY DISEASE
COMES ON QUIETLY

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body and most people are troubled with some form of Kidney Complaint, but do not suspect it. It may have been in the system for some time. There may have been backaches, swelling of the feet and ankles, disturbances of the urinary organs, such as, brick dust deposit in the urine, highly colored scanty or cloudy urine, bladder pains, frequent or supressed urination, burning sensation when urinating, etc.

Do not neglect any of these symptoms, for, if neglected they will eventually lead to Bright's Disease, Dropsy and Diabetes.

On the first sign of anything wrong

Doan's Kidney Pills
SHOULD BE TAKEN.

They go to the seat of trouble, strengthen the kidneys and help them to filter the blood properly and flush off all the impurities which cause kidney trouble. Mr. Thomas Petty, Massey, Ont., writes: "After I arrived in Canada from New Zealand, a couple of years ago, I suffered very much from kidney trouble. I tried several remedies, but they did me no good. Finally my back became so lame I could scarcely work. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking them I felt like a new man.

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE SPRING OVERCOAT

Because a man can go without a Spring Overcoat at a pinch, sweltering in his Winter Overcoat, or shivering without any overgarment at all through the weeks that span the interval from real winter to real summer, this garment has become a sort of badge of prosperity.

THE COAT

that has the most admirers this season is the three-quarter length Overcoat in black or Oxford gray. The long Swagger Raincoats in Coverts, and the swellest of the swell coats, the Paddock, with long handsome skirts in plain gray and black Thibets.

Black Vicuna, three-quarter length, at.....$13.00
Gray Thibet, " " at.....$15.00
Covert Raincoats, long swagger, at $10 and $12.00
Vicuna and Covert, Paddock style, $16, $18, $20.00

Our Coats have hand-padded shoulders, hand-made collars, with the best of haircloth fronts; some are handsomely silk-lined and very luxurious garments. We don't know where better Spring Overcoats than ours can be found. They're simply perfection.

GOOD SKATING AT BROCK STREET RINK

Drop in Temperature Last Night Was Sufficient to Ensure Good Ice For a Few Days.

The drop in temperature, which came last night, made good ice again and there was a large crowd at the Brock street rink last night. To-night the ice will be in better shape still, a good flooding having been given it to-day, and it is expected that one of the best crowds of the season will be on the ice to-night. Peterborough has ice for skating, when such cities as Toronto have gone back to the rollers.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers, who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post Card Column:—

Dear Sir,—I believe that more complaints have been registered against the loafers for obstructing the walks and making themselves disagreeable to passersby, particularly ladies. Now, Mr. Editor, I am not questioning the truth of these statements, but I would suggest these people that they make their complaints to the Chief of Police and not run to the newspaper offices and then "knock" the police. I think that the latter make an honest effort to do their duty and should receive assistance from the people and not slights such as have been mentioned.

It is not the labourers that we see on the corners who offend ladies, but those "smart" fellows who hang around the Billiard rooms and then "show off" when they are on the streets. When the police pass these fellows are very careful to behave themselves. Thanking you for this space, I remain,

Yours truly,
"JUSTICE."

Prompt Completion Of Trent Valley Waterway Now Assured

Hon. H. R. Emmerson Proposes to Have Question Removed From the Political Football Arena—Gave Splendid Address in Reply to Delegation.

THE DEPUTATION A SUCCESS

Copies of Estimates for Continuance of Work to be Presented Within a Week—Representatives Jubilant Over the Result.

No deputation to Canada's capital during the past number of years has met with any greater success than that which visited Ottawa yesterday to ask of the Government the early completion of the southern terminus of the Trent Valley Canal. Not only was this delegation successful in obtaining assurance that the canal would soon be completed, but also the County Council succeeded in getting what they petitioned for — a new bridge at Buckhorn.

The deputation consisted of about 135 representative men from various places along the route of the canal, and, although not as large as that of last year, was just as enthusiastic.

The Honourable H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, was met in his committee room in the House of Commons at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, where he listened to the addresses of those representing the deputation. He assured them that before a week has elapsed copies of the supplementary estimates for the continuance of the construction of the canal would be laid upon the table in the House of Commons, showing what action the Government had taken in providing for the completion of the canal. He also assured the deputation that the Government, as well as himself, were in earnest as to the construction of the great waterway across the neck of Ontario, and that there will be no delay on their part in the furtherance of this important project.

The Speakers

The other Ministers on the platform with the Hon. Mr. Emmerson were Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, and Hon. Wm. Patterson, Minister of Customs, who also gave addresses. Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P. for West Peterborough, whose interest in the canal is well known, introduced the deputation to the Honourable Minister of Railways and Canals. Addresses were delivered on behalf of the object of the deputation to the capital by Mayor McWilliams, of

Rev. A. Bright Accepts A Call To Ingersoll

Will be Pastor of St. Paul's Church in That Town in About Three Weeks—Stipend of $1500 a Year.

SUCCEEDS REV. DR. HUTT.

Rev. A. Bright, B. A., who has been assistant pastor of St. Paul's and Knox churches in this city, for about a year, has received an unanimous call to accept the pastorate of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, in Ingersoll, and it is understood that he has accepted his willingness to accede to the request of the congregation, which was made as the result of a congregational meeting held last night, when it was decided to tender an unanimous call to the clever young preacher, who has proved so acceptable to the congregations he has ministered to in this city.

St. Paul's church is the only Presbyterian church in that town and has a seating capacity of 1200, and a membership of 650. The building is equal in size to St. Paul's in this city, and is a very fine structure.

The stipend is $1500 per year, and Mr. Bright expects to leave Peterborough in about three weeks to to enter upon his work in his new charge.

The congregation in Ingersoll heard Mr. Bright preach there on Feb. 24th and March 3rd, and were so pleased with him that at the meeting held last night it was the unanimous wish that he should be their pastor. He will succeed the late Rev. Dr. Hutt who, it will be remembered, died suddenly in his study last September, since which time the pulpit has been supplied by strangers.

Mr. Bright is to be complimented upon having been given the unanimous call to this pastorate, which is one of the most desirable in Western Ontario.

Harry Thaw Hopelessly Insane, Say The Alienists

Seven Experts Present Affidavits to Judge Fitzgerald to This Effect To-day---Dangerous to the Public Peace and Safety.

Examiner Special.

New York, March 21st. — The seven alienists employed by District Attorney Jerome, in the Thaw case to-day signed affidavits for presentation to Judge Fitzgerald, in the argument this afternoon for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to examine Thaw. Six of the alienists in their affidavits declared that Thaw was suffering from a form of paranoia; that he should not be discharged from custody; that if he should be discharged, he would be dangerous to public peace and safety; and that it is reasonably certain that he will not recover. The seventh alienist, Dr. Hirsch, agrees with his colleagues, except that he declares that Thaw cannot possibly recover.

Mystery Of William's Disappearance Unsolved

Young Englishman Who Left Town Suddenly Has Not Since Been Heard From, Though it is Not Thought He Has Suicided.

HE WAS A GOOD WORKMAN

William Williams, the dental employee, who disappeared from the city mysteriously a few days ago, has not yet been located, although there seems to be no reasonable ground for the suspicion that he has committed suicide. Dr. Robertson, in whose office he was employed until Saturday night, stated to-day that Williams was a very capable man, had spent thirteen years in the business in England, and was a man who could command a good salary. He had received no notice that he had intended leaving the city or his employer, and his disappearance is a mystery to him. He scouts the idea, however, that he has committed suicide.

Williams is an Englishman, and has lived in Canada only a few months. He has been working for Dr. Robertson since the latter opened his office in Peterborough and was well liked by his employer, who, while he is puzzled at the absence of the man, does not believe that he has done anything so rash as to take his life. His board was paid up to Saturday night and so far as Dr. Robertson can learn, he does not owe any money around town and everything, so far as he could judge, was all right.

PROMPT COMPLETION OF TRENT WATERWAY NOW ASSURED

Peterborough; Patrick McNulty, Warden of Peterborough County; Mr. A. A. Mulholland and Mayor Dowse, of Campbellford, and Dr. Jacques, of Trenton.

Premier Absent.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson regretted the absence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on account of other engagements, and referred to the Premier's interest in the Trent Valley Canal. Sir Wilfrid is also making arrangements to leave for England in a short time, so that it was impossible for him to be present.

A Pleasant Trip

The deputation was entirely satisfied with what they accomplished, and all left the capital last night greatly delighted with the success which attended their efforts. They left Peterborough on a special C.P.R. train on Tuesday at 1 o'clock sharp, arriving in Ottawa at 7 o'clock. A few remained over last night, and will return either this afternoon or to-morrow morning. Mr. W. Mellroy, ticket agent of Peterborough, accompanied the delegation and looked after the comfort of the passengers.

The following is a complete list so far as could be obtained of those who comprised the deputation:—

Messrs. E S Clarry, Jno Gemmell, Jas Davidson, R Sheehy, B Morrow, F J R MacPherson, Harry Evans, Ed Conroy, W S Russell, R Moher, W Hayes, H Phelan, Thos G Boyd, Wm G Howden, Peterborough; Jno. Mr. R. R. Hall

In introducing the deputation from the Trent Canal District, Mr. Hall explained that they had the satisfaction of knowing that this was not something new. The Honourable Mr. Emmerson had gone over the whole route of the Canal last year, and so far as facts were concerned they were all familiar to him. The main object of the deputation was that they wanted a speedy conclusion of the southern terminus of the Trent Valley Waterway.

Mayor McWilliams

In his address the Mayor expressed the strong desire of Peterborough for the speedy conclusion of the Canal. The City wanted, he said, to strengthen the hands of the Government in making a liberal grant towards the completion of this waterway. He referred to the importance of the problem of transportation which the Government had already recognized and had responded by wiping away most of the difficulties. Experts have stated that the Trent Canal is a link in solving this problem. He also referred to the decision of the Government in promptly defining the southern route. The G.T.R. are proposing to double-track their line parallel to the Canal and the C.P.R. also propose to construct a grain route from Victoria Harbour to Montreal. It will then be a question as to whether the goods can be taken by barge from Midland to Montreal a distance of 441 miles or by G.T.R. a distance of 420 miles, the more cheaply. Barges can carry more than twice the load of any railway train and have also the advantages of nature in assisting in cheap transportation. He pointed out that it was not two or three localities but a district as large as the whole of Prince Edward Island that was seeking the conclusion of this Waterway.

The completion of the Canal means the development of 100,000 horse power, and will go far in developing the great interior part of the Province of Ontario. He assured the Honourable Minister that Peterborough would back the Government in any way possible with a view to the early completion of the southern terminus of the canal.

A. A. Mulholland

Mr. Mulholland, of Campbellford, the second speaker, assured the Honourable Minister that the deputation, although smaller than that of last year, was just as enthusiastic and as representative. The canal was first proposed many years ago, and he always had considered its construction had not kept pace with the growth of the country. A great many industries of Central Ontario are crippled for want of proper transportation. He reminded the Minister that last year the deputation was given to understand that as soon as the southern route was decided upon, it would be concluded, and stated that the delegation was there to have further construction work go on and also have an appropriation placed in the estimates for that purpose.

Patrick McNulty

Warden McNulty stated that last year the Government agreed to place a liberal appropriation in the estimates for the completion of the canal when the route was decided upon. The deputation was again present, he said, to urge that the Government place a good liberal sum in the estimates this year, and asked that, for his sake, for God's sake, and for shame's sake, the Government continue with the project.

Mayor Dowse

Mayor Dowse, of Campbellford, also asked that a large sum be appropriated for the completion of the southern section of the canal. If this work is gone ahead with, he explained that the water power in the vicinity of Campbellford would be developed and would therefore have a tendency to benefit the whole district in the vicinity of the town which he represented.

Dr. Jacques

Trenton was represented by Dr. Jacques, who stated that the district he represented had no fault to find in what had been done so far by the Government. The completion of the canal will affect 600,000 people contained in a very large district, where manufacturing is extensive. A year or two ago, Trenton had the pleasure of a visit from the Hon. Mr. Emmerson, who went over that district, and who, he considered, was impressed that the best outlet would be by way of Trenton. He had, desired to bring a deputation of 400 or more to the capital, but, on learning that appropriations had already been made, the delegation did not come. He concluded by urging the necessity for the early completion of the southern terminus of the canal.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson

The deputation was responded to by Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, who, on rising, was greeted with loud cheers. He was pleased to meet the people from the Trent Valley Canal district on the subject of such an important waterway. The fact of the deputation being present demonstrated to him that the people had become imbued with the faith in the Trent Valley Canal. Once, when in Peterborough, he had occasion to remark that there was a lack of faith of the people on the Trent Canal, when they were then advocating. Had the people had more faith, he thought they might have done better, but his mind had since then been changed. He was fully convinced that the people had great faith in the prospects of the canal. He believed at the time that he had been a sort of voice crying in the wilderness in connection with the canal, but he was now impressed with the fact that there were a great many more voices encouraging the construction of the canal. He regretted the absence of the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, on account of other engagements and his proposed trip to England, could not attend. The Prime Minister had stated that, in view of the decision already reached to make an appropriation for the completion of the work, he did not think anything convincing the Government in this respect was necessary.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson had faith in the completion of the canal and had made promises to previous deputations that as soon as the Government could have a complete and comprehensive survey of the canal, the completion would follow soon after. He claimed he had kept his word to the letter, and the Government had backed him up in the project.

Route Determined Promptly

The survey had been made, reports had come in, and immediately and promptly the Government had determined the route, so far as Lake Ontario was concerned. He had also promised that, as soon as the route was decided, the Government would consider the immediate completion of the southern outlet of the canal. The Government, he explained, being trustees of the people, was not permitted to expend one dollar until that dollar was voted by Parliament, and his Department could only advise Parliament of the decisions it reached. He could not mention directly what money was under consideration, as this had to be brought up before Parliament in a constitutional manner, but, before one week has sped past, he added, copies of estimates will be laid on the table of the House, showing just what action had been taken by the Government. He had said before that the Government and he had faith in the canal, in fact, they recognized its completion to be beneficial to the whole Dominion. He was certain that the people of the Eastern Provinces would also support its speedy construction. What tends to develop one section of the country, benefits all, he said.

Definite and immediate action will be taken, he declared, and thought that as other promises had been kept this one would be also. If the Government is permitted to assist the transportation problem, it cannot overlook the section of the Trent Valley Canal under consideration. He promised that he would ask of his colleagues and Parliament sufficient

An Innovation

St. Luke's Parish Magazine says: "The presence of Rev. R. E. Knowles in the pulpit of St. Luke's on January 27, might have been an innovation, but it was a good one at that; and St. Luke's congregation appreciated it. Everyone was edified by his scholarly and appealing sermon. The co-operation of the representatives of the church of Scotland and the Church of England at a service of the latter Church was appreciated by all liberal-minded people, and they manifested their appreciation by the extraordinary large attendance at church.

Increase Over 1906

The Salada Tea Company report that their increase alone during the first eleven weeks of this year amounted to 163,306 pounds over the corresponding eleven weeks of 1906. This is an average increase of 14,846 pounds for each week of the eleven. In the Toronto branch alone the increase for the first eleven weeks of this year amounted to 87,597 pounds, or over 43 tons, more Salada has been sold in Ontario and Western Canada so far this year than in the first eleven weeks of 1906. The Montreal branch has also had a large increase every week this year. "Salada" is sold only in sealed lead "packets."

PETERBOROUGH MAN ELECTED

Grand Chaplain — Jos. Hatton, Peterborough.

Deputy Grand Chaplains — R. H. Leitch, Belleville, Rev. S. A. Dupeau of Rosenmeath, and N. B. Topping, Portage du Fort.

Grand Registrar — John Keldy, of Lindsay.

Deputy Grand Registrar—A. Gray, Westport.

Grand Treasurer—T. C. McConnell, Springbrook.

Grand Lecturer — James White, Madoc.

Deputy Grand Lecturer — Levi Locke, Brockville.

Grand Censors—F. F. Booth, Motton; T. H. Thompson, Madoc.

Grand Standard-Bearers — K. W. Elliott, Lindsay, and W. McMahon, Madoc.

In opening his address, Grand Master Halliwell said that no one present could fail to be inspired by the recollections that they were meeting at the birthplace of the Orange Association in British America, and under the auspices of the oldest lodge of that association, a lodge founded by Ogle R. Gowan, who may be justly called the father of the Orange Association in this country. He congratulated all on the prosperous condition of the association in Ontario East, as no association was ever blessed with more energetic and zealous officers. Referring to the appointment of Dr. Coughlin to the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Belleville, the Grand Master stated: "This appointment has caused a good deal of feeling amongst our brethren, and that it should do so is no cause for wonder. As your Grand Master, I placed on record in a communication to the Premier a strong protest. In that protest I not only expressed the utter disapproval of all Orangemen to such an appointment, but also clearly explained our reasons for such a disapproval. I don't think it is necessary here to go into the question of the reasons. You are all familiar with them. This is a very unpleasant subject me to deal with, and I do not wish to say one word more than is necessary to place myself and the Orange Association which I represent in a fair, honourable position. I must say that all I have heard of Dr. Coughlin since his appointment has been in his favour. He had a hard place to fill. He succeeded a man who spent the better part of his life in the position, and whose place it was considered almost impossible to fill. Notwithstanding all this, I am told that Dr. Coughlin has, in the short time since his appointment, kept up the efficiency of the administration of the institute. I have been told this by people whose testimony I consider reliable, and I have heard nothing to the contrary. I have no feud with Dr. Coughlin, neither has the Orange Association. But I consider that his appointment to that particular position was a great injustice to him, as well as an undeserved offence to us. It is quite probable that he does not even understand why we should object to his appointment, but I do think that we have a serious ground of complaint against the Premier.

Growing Membership

Following the Grandmaster's address the reports of the Grand Secretary and Grand Treasurer were adopted, both of which indicate a rapidly growing membership and healthy finances. In all 1079 new members were reported. The Grand Lodge embraces 377 subordinate Lodges, 80 district and 24 county, representing a membership of 13,-010.

Last evening the Orangmen held a public rally at which the leading addresses were delivered by Sovereign Grand Master Dr. Sproule, Grand Master Halliwell, and Controller Hocken of Toronto.

Vigor and Health Fully Restored.

THE OLD TIRED, LISTLESS FEELINGS, THE SLEEPLESSNESS AND NERVOUSNESS WERE DRIVEN AWAY BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The experience described in this letter corresponds to that of thousands of women who have not yet learned of the marvellous restorative and invigorating power of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. Henry Clarke of Port Hope, Ont., states: "I have used several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervousness and a completely run-down system, and can heartily recommend it as a wonderfully effective treatment. Before using this treatment I had been in very poor health for some months. I appeared to have no energy or ambition, felt tired and listless most of the time and could scarcely drag myself about the house. I was weak, irritable and nervous, could not sleep well and felt discouraged about my health. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has taken away these symptoms and given back my usual vigor and health, consequently I endorse it fully."

Weakness, lightheadedness, dizziness at rising is one of the certain indications of thin blood, and an exhausted condition of the body.

The action of the heart is weak, digestion is impaired, and all the vital organs perform their functions imperfectly, giving rise to headaches, feelings of fatigue and depression.

Because it goes directly to the formation of new, rich blood, every dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is bound to prove of some benefit under such conditions.

Naturally and gradually the exhausted system is restored until every organ is given back its accustomed strength and vigour. The weight is increased, the form is rounded out, and health and vitality drive out weakness pain and disease.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and restorative, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box.

500,000 Babies Are Sacrificed

State Official Declares Adulterated Foods an Appalling Menace.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, the secretary of a state board made the assertion, and produced figures to prove it, that the death of nearly half a million little children in America last year was due to poisons administered in impure foods.

Welcome, indeed, is a food that is known to be pure and wholesome, rich in nutrition and good to eat,—so good that no other food can take its place. We refer to Malta-Vita, that delicious crisp, whole-wheat food. Among all the cereal foods we believe Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholly pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. It is free from any foreign sweetening agent or other adulterant, and is made in absolute cleanliness.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, and it's just as good three times a day. Containing every food element of the best white wheat and pure barley malt extract, it is intensely vitalizing and easily digested. Let your children have all the Malta-Vita they want and you need not fear for their health. Try some yourself with cream or fruit. You never tasted anything quite so good. All grocers, now 10 cents.

METHODIST PASTOR GOES TO THE FAR WEST

Examiner Special.

North Smith, March 20.—Mr. Jos. Harris, jr., who has been confined to his home since last autumn, is able to be out again and is recovering rapidly.

Mr. Wm. Milligan, Alberta, who has been visiting friends in the neighbourhood during the winter, has returned to his future home.

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., Entertains The Peterborough Delegations

Delightful Banquet Given By Him In The Senate Restuarant of House of Commons Last Evening---Many Fine Addresses Delivered by Senators and Members of Parliament---Refreshments Served.

The members of the delegation from Peterborough and surrounding district to Ottawa were, last evening, royally entertained by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., in the restaurant of the Senate House of the House of Commons. The event was one of the bright features of the journey to the capital. It was an occasion where the delegates were given plenty of time to rejoice in the many favours they had received from the Dominion Government in a single day.

Assurance had been given of the early completion of the canal, the County Council had received the promise of a new bridge at Buckhorn, and the North Monaghan Council had been granted their request to have a change in the mail service.

The banquet was marked by a general good feeling, which reigned throughout the two hours' sojourn in that small corner of the great House of Commons. Mr. R. R. Hall proved an excellent host and provided every comfort for his guests from the west.

The banquet opened at 8 o'clock, and closed at 10, for those who had to leave for home last night, but many remained over until the conclusion.

Among the prominent political men present were Senators Ulorin, of Montreal; Domville, of St. John, and McHugh, of Lindsay; D. Derbyshire, M.P., Brockville; Jno. Tolmie, M.P., North Bruce; Mr. Crawford, M.P., from Manitoba, and Mr. Schell, M.P., from Glengarry. All these gentlemen, and also Mayor McWilliams, city, and Mr. W. H. Moore, of the Canadian Northern Railway, gave addresses touching upon the importance of the transporation question and of the Trent Valley Canal. The addresses illustrated the fact that the Trent Canal question was a national one, as the various speakers all upheld the Government in undertaking the matter, and they all promised to assist in every possible way to its completion.

Songs were sung by Messrs. W. McIlroy and John Belcher, of Peterborough, and Jno. Tolmie, of North Bruce. The evening was most enjoyably spent, and many compliments were paid to Mr. Hall for the hospitable manner in which he entertained the large gathering.

A New Concrete Bridge Over River At Buckhorn

Government Has Decided Upon This Course---County Will Be Asked To Pay Its Share---Deputation to Ottawa Favourably Received.

The Dominion Government has decided to construct a new concrete dam and bridge across the river at Buckhorn. The County Council who visited the Capital yesterday with the canal deputation availed themselves of the opportunity of calling upon Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals to find what the Government proposed to do in this respect and they were given a pleasant surprise. Although it was known a new dam was being constructed, the Council had no knowledge of the proposed new concrete bridge until yesterday.

They visited the Minister with the intention of asking the Government to construct the new dam so that the county would be able to place a steel bridge on top of it, similar to the manner in which the present bridge spans the river.

With the assurance, however, that a new concrete structure would be built by the Government this request was withdrawn. The county will assist in the building of the bridge with a sum of money equivalent to what would have to be expended for a steel structure.

A memorial will be presented in a short time to the Government stating just how much money the County is willing to give and for the purpose of drawing up this a committee was appointed yesterday which will meet in Peterborough as soon as County Engineer Belcher has made the estimates.

The county's request was ably placed before the Honourable Minister yesterday afternoon by Messrs. E. A. Peck, County Solicitor and Warden McNulty. Hon. Mr. Emmerson replied explaining the position of the Government and asked to have the memorial presented.

All the members of the County Council were present with the exception of Mr. Hales, of Chandos, and they were certainly well pleased with the result of their journey.

Fire Drill At St. Peter's School Was Success

Three Hundred and Twenty Children Left the Rooms Without Confusion Inside of Thirty Seconds.

Should a fire occur in St. Peter's School, of which, fortunately however, there is not much danger in view of the precautions taken in the construction of the building, it is not probable that the result would be so disastrous as the unfortunate fire in the Hochelaga school, the disaster attending which is still fresh in the minds of newspaper readers.

This morning a fire drill was held in this school—it was but one of the many held recently—and, inside of thirty seconds after the sounding of the alarm, every one of the three hundred and twenty children in the school were outside the building and there was not the slightest confusion attendant upon their leaving the rooms, though they had no knowledge that the alarm was not given because there was actually a fire in progress.

THE MASS MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE

A large gathering of members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew met last night in St. John's school house at 2 o'clock to arrange, finally, for the mass meeting in the Opera House on Sunday next at 4 p.m. Leaflets are to be distributed to every house in the city, the seniors being aided by the members of the junior chapters of St. John's and All Saints'. Doors will be open at 3.45, and the Opera House orchestra will play sacred selections while the people take their places. Choir and orchestra, numbering seventy, will lead the singing of well-known hymns, and a hearty invitation is extended to every person in the city.

AUCTION SALE OF THE MARKET TOLLS

The Property Committee of the City Council will meet to-morrow morning for the purpose of getting upon the tenders, bid in connection with the auction sale of the market tolls, which takes place to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock in the City Council Chambers. After deciding this matter the committee will attend the sale in a body.

GREAT SKATING AT BROCK STREET RINK

Crowd Last Night Was the Largest in Weeks—Ice in Fine Shape.

To look at the interior of the Brock street rink last night, one would imagine that it was the middle of January, rather than near the end of March. The largest crowd for weeks was present, and the ice was in splendid condition. The comparatively cold weather last night has enabled the management to secure another fast sheet of ice for to-night and another big crowd will be on hand, as it cannot be expected that these conditions will last very much longer.

ACCIDENT POLICY CAME IN HANDY

Mr. R. A. Morrow Received Cheque for $650 From the Fidelity and Casualty Company for Illness.

Mr. R. A. Morrow, Jr., has received a cheque through Mr. G. B. Stevenson for $650 from the Fidelity & Casualty Company, the accident and disability insurance people. Last August Mr. Morrow took out a $10,000 double indemnity policy with the Fidelity & Casualty Co. He paid the first premium of $30 and some time later took sick. He was unable to attend to his duties for 26 weeks and during all this time the company paid him $25 a week. Mr. Morrow wishes to express his sincere thanks for the company's prompt settlement of the claim. He is naturally delighted that he had the policy and he would not be without one now. His father, who has been dealing more or less with insurance companies all his life, says he never knew of a settlement made more promptly. Mr. G. B. Stevenson is the district agent, and Mr. Geo. E. STATION TO BE BUILT AT KENDRY

Deputation to Toronto From Springville Given Favourable Answer From C. P. R.

The C.P.R. have evidently recognized that the Springville district is an important one from their standpoint and have practically granted a station at Kendry, where it is proposed to erect sidings for shipping facilities. Some Springville residents including Rev. Dr. Marsh and Mr. F. E. Wilson, called upon Mr. Nelson, of Toronto, superintendent of the Eastern Division for the C.P.R., the other day and were given a favourable answer by him.

Although nothing definite was decided upon the deputation was given the assurance that Kendry would be the station for that section.

OBITUARY

MISS ELLEN McNICHOL

This morning at 8.30, at the House of Providence, the death occurred of Miss Ellen McNicholl, at the age of 86 years. The deceased has been ill for the past two weeks with erysipelas. She had been an inmate of the House of Providence during the past year. The wife and family of the late Mr. John McNicholl, Stewart street, are relatives of the deceased. As yet no arrangements have been made regarding her funeral.

COMPETENT JUDGES

Beauty Doctors Endorse Herpicide

Baldness follows falling hair, falling hair follows dandruff, and dandruff is the result of a germ digging its way into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality of the hair. To destroy that germ is to prevent, as well as cure, dandruff, falling hair, and, lastly, baldness. There is only one preparation known to do that, Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new, scientific discovery. Wherever it has been tried it has proven wonderfully successful. It can't be otherwise, because it utterly destroys the dandruff germ. "You destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. The Market Drug Store (late Ormond & Walsh).

A SUMNAMBULIST WITH OTTAWA DEPUTATION

Travelled Through Two Cars and Obtained Free Lodging in State Room But Didn't Know it.

The deputation to Ottawa yesterday did not know that it had a somnambulist in its ranks until this morning. Sometime during the night a Campbellford gentleman who had been hard up for a bed was given a share in a berth on car No. 4 with a Peterborough member of the delegation.

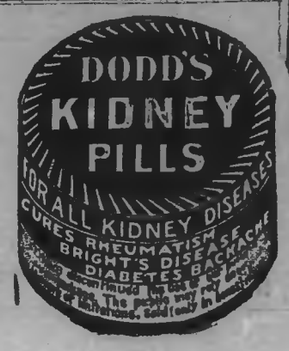
When the train drew into the station here the man from the southern town awoke in the state room of car No. 3, and was absolutely baffled in attempting to explain his presence there. He had arisen in his sleep during the night, left his bed-mate and travelled into the state room of the next car where one of the occupants gave him a bed.

This morning when the circumstance was reconsidered the state room occupants refused to believe the yarn of the Campbellford man and put him down as a "professional crook." The Examiner is reluctant in giving the names of the two imposed upon as they were newspaper men and representatives of local contemporaries.

THE ORCHESTRA AT SPRING OPENING

Richard Hall & Son, Limited, Introduce a Novel Feature.

The spring millinery openings of Richard Hall & Son, Limited, took place this afternoon and will be continued to-night. The firm has introduced a novel feature in connection with the opening this year, in the presence of a section of the Opera House Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Archie Greig, which rendered delightful music during the afternoon. The orchestra will be present again to-night. The store was crowded all afternoon.



CONTRACT WILL BE LET TO-NIGHT

For the Addition to the North Ward School—Contractors Want More Money.

DELAY INCREASES THE COST

The Board of Education will hold a special meeting to-night when it is expected that the contract for the building of an addition to the North Ward School will be let. The Board advertised for tenders some time ago, and a number were received, but the Board did not accept any of them, and now the contractors are loath to accept the contract at the figures of their tenders. The Board waited upon the City Council last week to urge that the city fathers provide the $25,000 necessary for the work, and now that this has been done the contract must be let at once.

It is understood that the firm whose tender was the lowest of those sent in, will not accept the contract at the figures then mentioned, but want $1500 more.

It is therefore probable that the next lowest tender, which was $500 more than the lowest, will be accepted, provided the contractor will allow the figure originally sent in to stand, which is, however, by no means certain.

The matter will, however, be threshed out to-night and the contract let, if at all possible.

MESSRS. TURNER AND SONS ARE GRATEFUL

Express Their Thanks to Council for Fixing of Their Assessment.

The Mayor has received a letter from Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, in which the firm express their hearty thanks to the Council for the action which that body took in granting them fixed assessment at $3,000. The matter was finally disposed of last week when the clause, making provision for the fixing of the assessment, was passed by the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature, together with the other clauses of the city's private bill.

"CRUCIFIXION" AT ALL SAINT'S CHURCH

Will be Given by Combined Choirs of All Saint's and St. John's Church To-night.

The sacred meditation on the passion of our Blessed Saviour, consisting of solos, (tenor and bass,) duets, quartette, and choruses, interspersed with hymns for choir and congregation, will be solemnly sung by the combined choirs of St. John's and All Saints' church at 8 p.m. to-night, under the direction of Mr. Richard J. Devey. Miss Bullen will preside at the organ. Printed copies of the hymns will be provided for the congregation.

For Family Colds.

A reliable cough and cold cure should be always in the house ready for use the moment the first symptoms appear.

It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning.

It is safer, too.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States to-day are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shiloh's Consumption Cure is without doubt the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will buy no other.—L. Elsley, Nassagaweya, Ont."

If it were anything but the best would this be so? Try it in your own family. If it does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? 25c. is the price. All dealers in medicine sell 563

SERMON BY REV. A. G. HAMILTON DICKER

Sixth of Lenten Special Services at St. John's Church.

The sixth of the regular mid-week Lenten services, was held at St. John's church last night. The attendance was very good, and the sermon, delivered by Rev. A. G. Hamilton Dicker, A.K.C., of St. Luke's, Toronto, was listened to with marked interest.

"Inasmuch as ye did it not," were the words which Rev. Mr. Dicker began his address, saying that these are the least appreciated of probably any that are met with. While in our everyday lives we even forget many things, how very probable, then, that we get behind in our spiritual welfare. Our spiritual account is becoming very large, on the wrong side of the ledger. Many people appear to have the idea, or, rather, have not the idea, that many sins of omission are being daily committed. Large numbers of Christians go on in this way, self-satisfied, not thinking of their own sins of omission. The reverend speaker said that God, however, considered these just the same, and punishment will undoubtedly follow.

Continuing, he gave an example where omissions led to very serious results. He asked to whom did Christ address these words? Were they to murderers and the worst of criminals? No; he thought they were rather directed against those of whom it might be said, "Ye did it not."

It is very important, Rev. Mr. Dicker stated, that we seriously consider how we stand in God's sight as regards the manner in which we have disposed of our talents. Everyone is talented, the speaker said. They have the faculties of worshipping God, of praying to Him, and communing with Him. He explained the beauties of these gifts, and how they should be appreciated. Further, Rev. Mr. Dicker, said that in the hurry of life people even forget their duties, such as saying their morning and evening prayers, and this will have to be answered for. He said that the talents given us by God are not to prove difficulties to us, but to assist in making man happy in this world, and also in the next. He urged all to cease being neglectful, and turning over a new leaf to resolve to lead a more perfect life.

THE KILLARNEY OF AMERICA

Nestling in a frame of beautifully wooded shores lies a series of beautiful lakes 145 miles north of the city of Toronto, Ontario, and known as the "Lake of Bays Region." A chain of seven lakes studded with lovely islands, with hotels throughout the district and a good steamboat service to all points, attracts the tourist, angler and sportsman. Just the out-of-the-way sort of a place to visit during the summer months. For all particulars and a free illustrated publication, apply to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"MY WIFE'S FAMILY"

It is seldom that a play meets with the universal endorsement of managers, theatregoers and the press in general on its initial production but an exception last season was that of "My Wife's Family," the combined efforts of two progressive and well known players, Hal Stephens and Harry Linton. This merry laugh producer was an instantaneous hit, playing return dates in many cities by special request. It is in three acts, filled with catchy musical numbers of original theme, while the comedy lines are all bright and new, containing none of the hackneyed kind.

The company presenting the comedy interpreting the three acts of fun and music is one of the best on tour, while the costuming and stage-setting and electrical and mechanical effects are correct in detail. There are two dozen musical numbers, all of the whistling order, to be heard in "My Wife's Family," which will be presented here at the Grand opera house, Saturday, matinee and night, March 23rd.

PETERBOROUGH PEOPLE DEAD IN EARNEST

Lindsay Post Says They Go After a Thing in a Way That Impresses Outsiders.

The Lindsay Post pays a tribute to the enterprise and progressiveness of the citizens of Peterborough in the following terms:—

When Peterborough citizens want anything they go after it in a way that impresses observers with their earnestness of purpose. Yesterday a special train left Peterborough for Ottawa with 200 citizens on board, their object being to wait upon the Minister of Railways and Canals with the request that steps be taken at once to proceed with the completion of the southern end of the Trent Canal. Incidentally they will make a few other suggestions calculated to benefit Peterborough. Under similar circumstances Lindsay might turn out a bunch of 25 or 30, but not without a lot of soliciting and urging.

BENEFITS DERIVED FROM MEMBERSHIP

What Members of Royal Astronomical Society Will Receive—Will be Kept Posted on Astronomical Matters.

The lecture to be given to-morrow night by Rev. Dr. Marsh, under the auspices of the newly organized Royal Astronomical Society in the Y.M.C.A. hall promises to be very largely attended and it will no doubt be most interesting. In connection with the formation of the Society here it may be pointed out that all who join are by that action made members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, and are placed in touch with the whole astronomical world. A portion of the fee paid for membership in the Society here is sent to the parent society and for this each member will receive during the year about seven books on astronomical subjects and will be kept posted on the new discoveries in astronomy.

Bakers' Convention Will Meet In Toronto This Year

Officers of the Association Decided Upon Queen City as Meeting Place---Educational Advantages Better There.

LOCAL BAKERS ENTERTAINED THE VISITORS WHILE IN CITY

The Master Bakers' Convention will not come to Peterborough this year after all. The officers and executive of the Canadian Association of Master Bakers met here yesterday at the Oriental and decided that the Convention should be held in Toronto on August 14th and 15th. The meeting had been called for the purpose of deciding where the convention should be held and also for outlining the programme.

The intelligence that the Bakers are not coming this year will be received with regret as the presence of 200 visitors like the members of the Bakers' Association in the city for a few days would mean considerable to local people to say nothing of the advertising it would give the city.

In making their decision to hold the convention in Toronto the officers of the Association were governed by the fact that the main object of the convention is to educate the members rather than to amuse them and in this respect Toronto with its many well equipped and modernly appointed bakeshops has advantages with which Peterborough could not hope to cope successfully. As far as the amusement features are concerned the officers expressed themselves as being delighted with Peterborough. The programme would have included a trip to Stony Lake which would have been a decided treat to the members.

As it was there was a long discussion before the matter was finally settled. Messrs. Stock and Lush, representing the local bakers were present and there was a long argument before a decision was arrived at. The motion to hold the convention in Toronto was only carried by one vote so that it is evident that this city did not lack supporters.

It was decided to offer a prize of $25 for the best plans for a bakeshop of medium dimentions the plans to be submitted at the annual convention of this year.

The meeting also made arrangements for the holding of an exhibit of bread and bakery products at the convention which is a new feature and one that should prove interesting and instructive. The following committee was appointed to draft a programme and make arrangements for the convention—A. W. Carrick, Toronto; John Turnbull, Toronto; Jas. Acton, Toronto; A. M. Ewing, Hamilton; E. Parnell, London, and H. E. Trent, Toronto.

The visiting officers and executive were entertained at a delightful banquet at Hooper's Palm Parlours last night. An appetizing repast, served in the usual excellent style of that establishment, was heartily enjoyed, after which the gathering, which included most of the local bakers, discussed many matters of interest to the craft, and a pleasant as well as profitable time was spent. Mr. N. Lush, of this city, occupied the chair, and the visiting members present were Messrs. M. Bredin, Toronto, president; H. E. Trent, Toronto, secretary; A. W. Carrick, Toronto, treasurer; Z. Hilton, Toronto, and A. M. Ewing, members of the executive.

A Sliver In Finger Was Extracted After Seven Years

Mr. J. E. Sullivan had a peculiar operation performed the other day. It appears that seven years ago he ran a sliver about half an inch long in the first finger of his right hand, and was unable to extract it. It did not cause him any pain after the first few days and he eventually forgot all about it, until a short time ago, when the finger began to pain him, and, casting about for a cause, he remembered the sliver, and came to the conclusion that it was the cause of the trouble. He consulted a physician, who advised him that he would have to open the finger and extract the foreign substance, which was done, not without some trouble, however, for it was found that the flesh had grown close to the wood, and it was with difficulty that it was taken out.

ONLY TWO NIGHT'S MORE SERVICES

Before Evangelist Torrie Will Leave Park Street Baptist Church for Other Fields of Labour.

Two nights more and Evangelist Torrie, who has been conducting special services in the Park street church, will cast the Gospel net into other waters. His work here has proclaimed him as a successful preacher, the crowds at each of the meetings being large, and last night was no exception, the attendance then being one of the largest of the series. Miss Hamlin, of Midland, who has assisted in the musical service has been a great help to the meetings. Last night she sang a solo and also sang in a duet with Mr. James Tranter. The sermon last night was an inspiring one, preached from the text, "In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood up and cried, if any man thirst let him come unto Me and drink!"

The song service will commence tonight again at 7.45 as usual.

MORE LIBERAL USE OF PUBLIC LIBRARY

Writer Points Out That Citizens Do Not Read as Much as They Should.

The Parish Magazine of St. Luke's church in its issue makes some reference to the Public Library, of which it speaks in the following terms:—

"Do our people make as good use of the Public Library as they should?" is a question often asked, and a question that puzzles the directors. Nothing is more valuable for mental refreshment than the reading of good books, and many who had not the opportunity of receiving a thorough education in their youth, have enriched their store of knowledge and have become intelligent and "well read" by making use of good books. The Peterborough Library is fortunate to be looked after by an efficient Board, of which Dr. George Burnham has been for many years the President.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

SPRINGVILLE MAIL ROUTE CHANGED

Mail Will Henceforth Travel by C. P. R. and Will Give an Efficient Service.

The North Monaghan Council, accompanied by Rev. Dr. Marsh and Mr. F. E. Wilson, of Springville, and Township Clerk Geo. W. Bennett, while in Ottawa yesterday with the canal deputation, waited upon Mr. R. M. Coulter, Deputy Postmaster-General, with reference to a change in their mail service, and they, too, were greeted with a favourable answer. The deputation was introduced by Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P. for West Peterborough.

It was pointed out that at the present time the mail from Toronto to Springville comes by way of the Grand Trunk, through Port Hope to Peterborough, where it is sorted, returns to Emerysville, and is conveyed from there to Springville, a distance of some seven miles. This round-about method gave the people of Springville and vicinity a very poor service, and they applied for a change. Similarly, the mail from Peterborough travelled by a circuitous route to Springville, so that it was almost impossible to get daily papers until the news was old.

The Proposed Change

The deputation proposed to have the mail from Toronto brought by the C.P.R. to Peterborough, assorted here, returned to Kendry the same day, and taken from there to Springville, a distance of about only a mile and a half. This would also enable Springville to obtain daily papers and mail matter direct from Peterborough, and thus give that section of Monaghan a much improved service.

Mr. Coulter was most favourably impressed with the proposed change and ordered that the request of the North Monaghan Council be carried into effect as soon as possible.

The Council deserve a great deal of credit for the interest they have taken in the Springville district, and their work in obtaining the change will no doubt be appreciated.

SPIRITUAL FAITH; ITS EFFECT

Rev. W. C. Allen, Rector of Millbrook, Preached Lenten Sermon in St. Luke's Church Last Night.

A large congregation attended the usual Wednesday evening Lenten service at St. Luke's church last night.

Rev. Wm. C. Allen of Millbrook, preached an eloquent sermon from the words found in the 24th verse of the 9th chapter of St. Mark's Gospel, "Lord I believe, help Thou my unbelief." The speaker referred to the miracle of our Lord which resulted in the words of the text being spoken. A man comes to Jesus with his son who is possessed of a dumb spirit. He asks Him to heal his child. Jesus replied "If thou can'st believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." "Look at the poor man's faith, his cry of faith and the Lord's treatment of it," said the reverend gentleman. First the man was in great need. He had tried everything for his son and all had failed. Secondly the man deeply felt his utter helplessness. Thirdly, as a last resort his faith strengthened by his sense of helplessness he comes to Christ. He is told to believe and to wait. He asks Christ to help his unbelief.

The speaker asked "do we desire spiritual faith? Are we desirous of filling those conditions that it is necessary to fill that we might escape hell and gain heaven?" Looking at things business-like we do not wish to be our own doctor, our lawyer or to do everything ourselves. Neither can we be our own redeemer, said the speaker. We must come to Christ even as the poor man came. The sense of our helplessness brought us to Christ. In all difficulties of life and in sorrow we should have faith and trust in God. He will help us, if we only believe in Him.

The text does not imply that the man had no faith. He had faith, but he asked that it would be strengthened. Our faith is not perfect. The speaker urged the congregation to be genuine and sincere in their faith and pray that in midst grow in strength. Depend upon it Christ will hear your calls and help you. Every day Christ answers our prayers. He gives us power to go about our daily work and sends us our bread.

In conclusion Rev. Mr. Allen paid a high tribute to the great work that General Booth of the Salvation Army who is now travelling through Canada, was doing in rescuing men out of the gutter and leading them to believe in the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

ficient money to push forward the work with all possible speed, and he explained that he only asked for that amount which would enable them to carry on the work for one year.

He emphatically declared that he would like to convince at least the man who was present with last year's deputation, and who had asked if the Government was "in the canal business for keeps."

From Foot-Hill Area

In conclusion he was pleased to have met the deputation, and again referred to the unavoidable absence of the Premier. He hoped that the Government would soon be able to remove the Trent Valley Canal from the political football arena, and again stated that he would endeavour to deal with it in a business-like manner in the future, as he had always attempted to do in the past.

Hon. R. W. Scott

Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, added a few words to the energetic address of the Minister of Railways and Canals, and paid a glowing tribute to the interest which that gentleman had always taken in the project. The Trent Canal, he said, had held a prominent part in Canadian politics for a number of years and no Minister had taken a more prominent part in its consideration than the Hon. H. R. Emmerson. He reminded the deputation that this great waterway had been talked of more than thirty years ago, but that no active work had been done until a change of Government had taken place, and since that time the Trent Canal has ever been in the mind's eye of the Government.

The outlook for the completion of the canal looked more hopeful now, he maintained, than it had ever done in the past. He referred to the scarcity of labour all over the Dominion to illustrate the difficulties that the Government was up against in order to complete contracts in various parts of Canada.

The Government, he was certain had shown more sincerity in the building of the canal than its predecessors, and he was pleased to see the earnestness of the deputation from districts along its route.

Hon. Wm. Patterson

Hon. William Patterson, Minister of Customs, was next called upon upon by Mr. Hall. He could not deny himself the pleasure, he said, of being present to hear what the deputation had to say to the Honourable Minister of Railways and Canals. He assured them that had Hon. Mr. Emmerson his own way the completion of the canal would be an early consideration by the Government.

The Government, he pointed out, had to exercise great care in seeing that no more money was appropriated in any year for any work than could be expended during that year. He was impressed with the fact that the sooner the canal was completed the better it would be in the interests of the whole country, and he jocularly remarked that he hoped he would have the privilege when it was completed to take a voyage along its entire route, part of which he had heard, was a summer resort unexcelled by none in the province.

The deputation was organized by the Campbellford Board of Trade, and was one of the most representative and successful that has ever visited the capital. All the assurance desired was given them, and they left the Parliament Buildings yesterday at mid-day thoroughly convinced that the Government was in the canal business for keeps," and thoroughly satisfied with the results they had obtained.

The Peterborough section of the deputation was engineered in a very able manner by Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Reception Committee of the city council. He carefully supervised the securing of tickets, badges and rooms at the Windsor Hotel, where part of the delegation from the city remained. Ald. Phelan is deserving of great praise for his efficient work in making the excursion a success from every standpoint.

LEARN DRESSMAKING IN TWO WEEKS
We teach you everything from the plainest Shirt Waist to the most elaborate Toilette that can be found in the fashion books. We show you how to put together not only the lining, but all the outer goods in Coats, Skirts, Waists, Wrappers, Sleeves, Collars, Children's Dresses, etc. Why spend months at a Dressmaking shop where you do nothing but hem, overcast, sew on hooks and eyes and then, after you have served months there; what do you know about cutting? Absolutely nothing. For you will know no more how to cut out a dress at the end of a year than you did the first day you went there. So why spend your time there when we can teach you in two weeks. You can come and try for a week and see for yourself what it's like, as there is nothing to be paid in advance. you certainly would not lose anything by trying.
We have taught over 2,000 this way within the past 6 years in Western Ontario, and all recommend it very highly.
Charge for full course is only $10, to be paid when course is completed, if satisfied, including one of the most perfect-fitting systems in use, which we give free. We guarantee that the waists made by this chart will not draw or pull out of skirt when raising arm.
An evening class will also be taught. In this class we will teach Shirt Waists, Sleeves and Sacques. This course will be $4.00, and hours from 7 to 9.
We will teach in Peterboro from April 8th to April 20th—Hours for Day Class 9 to 5. All wishing to learn be sure to see us at the Oriental Hotel, on Saturday, April 6th, between 10 and 5 o'clock This is positively the last class we will teach at Peterboro this year.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, residing upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent, or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

PREPARATION FOR SOME BIG BOUTS

Fight Between Pete Barry and the Broncho Attracting Lots of Attention.

The old opera house is being put in shape for the big athletic entertainment to be given there under the direction of "Billy" Breen, trainer of the Peterborough Hockey Club, on Wednesday of next week. A regulation ring is being constructed and everything placed in readiness for the bouts, which promise to be the best ever seen here.

Great interest is being taken in the boxing bout between Pete Barry of Toronto and Fred Brown, otherwise the "Broncho," of Lindsay. Both men are training hard for the bout, and it will be a hammer and tongs set-to. The Toronto boy is the favourite here, but it is said that the erstwhile English champion will win many friends when he makes his debut here next week.

The wrestling bout between Eugene Hurtubise and Jack Thompson of Hamilton will be a dandy, and, while a victory for the Peterborough boy is looked for, the Hamilton wrestler has a great reputation and will make the amateur heavyweight champion extend himself. The other bouts will round out a programme the equal of which has never been given here.

BASKETBALL GAMES BY SAME SCORES

In Two Games Played Last Night In Spring Series Score Was 37-31—Dobbin and Best Were Winners.

The Y.M.C.A. Spring Basketball League was opened last night when two swift games were played in the gym. The first game was played between Laing and Best, and won by Best by the score of 37 to 31. The game was of the fast open kind, and some pretty combination was worked in. The teams were evenly matched and the result was in doubt every minute. The half time score was 20-8, but in the second half Laing's bunch got going and pulled down the lead of their opponents to 6 points. The teams lined up as follows:

Best, captain; Weatherston, defence; Staunton, centre; Darling, Emmerson, forwards.

Dobson, Richardson, defence, Laing, captain, centre, Elliott, E. Best, forwards.

The second game between Dobbin and Richardson produced a different style of play, being a very close checking game. It was fast and strenuous from start to finish and closely contested all the way. The score was the same as in the previous game, Dobbin winning by 37-31. The half time score stood 22-18 in favour of the winners. The teams all through are evenly matched and put up great ball.

Next Wednesday night Best and Richardson meet at 8 o'clock and Laing and Dobbin at 9. These will be both fast contests and worth seeing. Everybody is welcome; no admission fee charged.

DIDN'T EVEN MAKE IT A CLOSE SHAVE

Barbers Were Too Fast for Bartenders Last Night.

The Barbers and Bartenders met in a thrilling game of hockey at the Brock street rink last night and when the noise of battle was hushed the Barbers were found to be hanging on to the big end of a ten to one shot. It was a massacre with the Bartenders figuring in the role of the slaughtered. It was a great game however and the score did not count very much in the eyes of the crowd. Some of the prettiest rushes and spectacular work of the season were shown and the crowd was in raptures over the form displayed. Owing to the fact that Johnston the goal keeper of the Bartenders, was unable to play, the game was played with six men a side—and that was enough. Campbell was the whole works for the winners and scored most of their goals. With him on the side lines the teams were about even. It would be hard to pick the other stars of the evening, as everybody shone in some way or another. Some of the players had to be towed out on the ice but once there they managed to do great work. Miles McDonough scored the only goal for the losers, amid applause that shook the roof.

MEETING OF PETERBORO' CRICKET CLUB ON FRIDAY

Will be Held in Y. M. C. A. Parlours at 8 P. M. Sharp—Important That Everyone Attend.

The Peterborough Cricket Club will hold a meeting on Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. parlours. It is important that all those who are interested in the game of cricket should be present. There are some players in the city, who have had considerable experience and also many who will need good coaching, to become efficient. Many gentlemen, lovers of the game, who have passed the playing stage, are showing an interest in the new club and are lending very material assistance. They should be commended for this and the players should show their appreciation of their efforts to make the club a success. There are prospects of a good season; games can be arranged with Toronto, Lindsay, Warkworth and other places, so it is important that the team become as strong as possible.

THE TENNIS PLAYERS WANT CINDER COURT

Ask If Y. M. C. A. is to Fit Up Court Adjoining Building for Use This Summer.

The Examiner has been asked by a tennis enthusiast to inquire if it is the intention of the Y.M.C.A. to fit up the cinder court this year. Two years ago when the court was in use a number of the young men of the city who were unable to spare the time to go to the Oval enjoyed many a good game of tennis on the cinders, and there is little doubt that if they were placed in commission this year they would again be popular and would be frequented even more than they were during the year referred to.

JOE HALL KEPT OUT OF TROUBLE'S PATH

Hall has a reputation for dirty work, and nobody knows it better than Joseph himself. When Whitcroft was laid out on Saturday night Hall was at the other end of the rink, and he promptly started to the timekeeper's bench, remaining there till the fight was all over. "I'll not go near there," he declared, "for they'll blame me sure."—Winnipeg Telegram.

HOCKEY

There was no Stanley Cup game last night. The Wanderers went down to Kenora last night from Winnipeg on a special train, but Kenora refused to play until tomorrow night. The Thistles want to play the first game then but the Montreal team claim a game by default. Trustee Foran don't seem to know just where he is at, and the thing is in a lovely tangle just now. Wanderers threaten to return home without playing but it looks like a bluff. Meanwhile the public are sitting up nights trying hard to figure out the dope.

FOOTBALL

The football enthusiats are reminded of the re-organization meeting at the Y.M.C.A. to-night at 7.30 o'clock. A club will be organized to represent Peterborough in the Midland League, the officers of which will be elected. Representatives will also be appointed to the annual meeting of the Midland League which will be held on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock.

• • • •

Cobourg has writtten Mr. J. E. Sullivan, Secretary of the Midland League, notifying him that that town will be represented this year in the league. Last year there were two football teams but these have amalgamated to place one good team in the field.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, March 2. — The stock market had a better tone to-day than for some time. Priced slowly improved throughout the day with various resting periods when the dullness was quite noticeable, but when any of the brave bears tried to cover a few shorts the list moved promptly upward. An unexpected drive at Erie common which carried it down to 27 7-8 immediately after the opening, was the only evidence that the bears were still trying to do business. The loss was quickly recovered.

There was particularly good buying of the active stocks to-day especially in Union and Southern Pac., St. Paul, Reading, M., Pac. and Copper. Accumulation of Reading on the soft spots was reported, insiders being given credit for the purchases.

The financial atmosphere is still clear and the repeatedly rumoured failures have not as yet materialized. Those who out to know say they will not, for that matter.

We strongly advise the purchase of Distillers as there are some very favourable developments pending and it is said this stock will look cheap at par. The strength in the general list continued throughout the afternoon and the close was strong.

PETERBOROUGH MEN IN COBALT

Messrs. Arthur Graham and Jno. O'Brien Contributed to Success of First St. Patrick's Day Concert.

GOOD PROGRAMME GIVEN.

The first St. Patrick's day concert in Cobalt, was, according to a report received by the Examiner today, a great success, and this success was very largely contributed to by two Peterborough men, Messrs Arthur Graham, and John O'Brien. The letter, which was dated Monday, was as follows:

The first St. Patrick's Day concert ever held in Cobalt took place here this evening in the Cobalt opera house, in the form of the Irish comedy, "The Rose and the Shamrock." The production, which was in aid of St. Patrick's church, was, from a financial standpoint a most decided success, due undoubtedly not only to the merits of the play itself, but to the immense popularity of the pastor, Rev. Father O'Gorman.

The house was crowded to its utmost capacity; late comers could not get standing room. The appreciation of the audience was made evident from the almost unceasing applause from the rising to the fall of the curtain. Among those taking part will be seen the names of two Peterborough young men, Mr. Arthur Graham and Mr. John O'Brien, who have become very popular in the "Town of Cobalt and Silver."

The preparations for the play began immediately after Christmas and since that time all possible efforts and sacrifices were made to insure its success, several hours daily being devoted by the members in studying and rehearsing the play.

One of the pleasing features was the conspicuous absence of all petty grievances and under-currents usually attending the preparations of an amateur play.

Mr. Graham, as an Irish comedian, acted his part to perfection keeping the audience in fits of laughter, and at the same time handling his more serious parts in a manner which would do credit to the professional. O'Brien, as the villain's accomplice, also made quite a hit.

The play by request will be repeated at Haileybury on the 19th inst.

The following was the cast of characters:

Barney O'Brady, Arthur W. Graham.
'Squire Fitzgerald, Geo. O'Gorman.
Captain Beck, G. M. Deming.
Shaun Carey, John D. O'Brien.
John Desmond, Jas. McCoy
John Douglas, S. Green.
Rose Fitzgerald, Miss Acquin.
Nano Desmond, Miss Madon.
Aileen O'Rourke, Miss McNulty.
Private Thornton, A. F. Craig.

BILEANS SHOULD BE ON ALL FARMSTEADS!

"Handiest and Best Household Medicine."

Farmers and farmers' wives say that Bileans are the handiest and most effective family medicine ever discovered. You have indigestion bad? Two bileans taken after each meal will rid you of the pains like magic! Constipation, perhaps, is your trouble? Bileans cure it without causing a single pang of griping! Headache, biliousness, heart trouble, piles, and all disorders arising from faulty liver and stomach action, are cured quickly and surely by Bileans.

Mrs. V. Lavouture, of Beaumont, Alberta, says: "For over ten years I was ailing—could not sleep, had pains after food, constipation, headache, and seemed without energy. A few boxes of Bileans gave me back my health."

All druggists and stores sell Bileans at 50c. per box, or from Bilean Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

WEDDING BELLS

ELLIOTT-KERR

Last night a wedding took place at the residence of Mr. E. C. Howson, 780 Water street, when his daughter, Mrs. May Kerr, was united in marriage to Mr. William Elliott, of Otonabee. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. J. J. Wright, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will reside in Otonabee.

COWARD-CAIN

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's manse last night, when Miss Minnie Cain, daughter of Mr. Jacob Cain, of Pontypool, was united in marriage to Mr. Maynard Coward, son of Mr. Thos. Coward, of Otonabee. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter. The bride looked charming in a handsome champagne suit of raw silk with hat to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Elliott, was prettily dressed in cream serge with hat to match. The groom was supported by Mr. Ben Seabrook. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch and chain, to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman, gold cuff links.

The young couple were made the recipients of many costly and useful presents, testifying to their popularity in Peterborough, where Mrs. Coward has resided for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Coward will take up residence in Otonabee.

PEG-LEG WAS LIGHT FINGERED

Cordova Man Who Raised Some Excitement in Madoc—Was Taking a Watch.

The "limit" struck town on Tuesday in the line of an unfortunate with a peg leg and a plum branch cane, varnished. He went into Mr. George F. Mabee's jewelry store, and while Mr. Mabee was showing him some watches which he asked to see he nimbly slipped one of them into his pocket and would have made off with it if he had not been noticed. It is needless to say that his purchasing was at an end. He claims to hail from Cordova, and gave his name as McFadden.—Madoc Review.

ANNUAL ROLL CALL OF MURRAY ST. CHURCH

Large Gathering of Members of That Congregation Last Night—Collections for Grand Ligne Mission.

Last night the annual roll call and tea of the members of the Murray Street Baptist Church was held. It was largely attended, those who were not present sending a response to their names. Tea was served by the ladies of the congregation from 6.30 to 8 o'clock, and, following this, the meeting was called to order by the pastor, who presided. Some of those whose names were called responded with solos.

A thank-offering was taken, amounting to $50, and it was decided to devote it to the Grand Ligne Mission work.

THREE MEN IN A BOAT: OR IN PRISONERS' BOX

Three Drunks Faced Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court This Morning.

Three drunks answered to their names at the Police Court this morning. "It never rains, but it pours," is an old proverb, and it is true enough in police circles. As the three men sat close beside each other in the prisoner's box, one was reminded of Jerome K. Jerome's story of "Three Men in a Boat." They pleaded guilty to the charge of having been found drunk, and were fined $2 each, to be paid in ten days. Bob Geary, of Ennismore, and Thomas Kelly, of Trenton, were two of the prisoners.

YOUR SUMMER OUTING

If you are fond of fishing, canoeing, camping, or the study of wild animals look up the Algonquin National Park of Ontario for your summer outing. A fish and game preserve of 2,000,000 acres, interspersed with 1200 lakes and rivers, is waiting you, offering all the attractions that nature can bestow. Magnificent canoe trips. Altitude 2,000 feet above the sea level. Pure and exhilarating atmosphere. Just the place for a young man to put in his summer holidays. An interesting and profusely illustrated descriptive publication telling you all about it, sent free on application to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

THE SPRING OVERCOAT

Because a man can go without a Spring Overcoat at a pinch, sweltering in his Winter Overcoat, or shivering without any overgarment at all through the weeks that span the interval from real winter to real summer, this garment has become a sort of badge of prosperity.

THE COAT

that has the most admirers this season is the three-quarter length Overcoat in black or Oxford gray. The long Swagger Raincoats in Coverts, and the swellest of the swell coats, the Paddock, with long handsome skirts in plain gray and black Thibets.

Black Vicuna, three-quarter length, at.....$13.00
Gray Thibet, " " at.....$15.00
Covert Raincoats, long swagger, at $10 and $12.00
Vicuna and Covert, Paddock style, $16, $18, $20.00

Our Coats have hand-padded shoulders, hand-made collars, with the best of haircloth fronts; some are handsomely silk-lined and very luxurious garments. We don't know where better Spring Overcoats than ours can be found. They're simply perfection.

CATERING AT BANQUET IMPORTANT FEATURE

In the Examiner's report of the military banquet tendered to Major Dennistoun yesterday, reference to the caterer of the evening was inadvertently omitted. To Mr. T. H. Hooper, who had charge of this important feature, of the function, too much credit for its success cannot be given. It was a matter of universal comment among those who participated in the dinner that the catering was equal to anything ever attempted in this, or any other city, for that matter, and Mr. Hooper was highly complimented upon its conclusion by a number of those who had enjoyed the excellent dinner, for which he was responsible.

WEDDING BELLS

HENDERSON-PLUNKETT

Examiner Special.

Keene, March 21.—A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. W. Plunkett, Otonabee, Wednesday evening, when her daughter, Miss Annie Plunkett, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William Henderson. Rev. D. D. McDonald, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Keene, tied the nuptial knot in the presence of about sixty guests. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of point d'esprit over white silk and wore the customary veil and orange blossoms, carrying a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Newton, of Peterborough, was bridesmaid and dressed in pink silk. Little Miss Isaacs was flower girl. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Walter Henderson. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome and costly presents. The happy couple will reside in Otonabee.

THE GREAT NORTH COUNTRY

Nimrod was a mighty hunter, but had he hunted in the "Temagami" region he would have been a mightier one. Nimrod hunted for glory, but Temagamians hunt for game. Those Indians who made the first canoe of birch bark long ago, were our greatest benefactors. The children of these Indians know the canoe, and they know how to use it, and if you go to Temagami this summer they will paddle your canoe in their own superb way. They will be the best guides you ever had. Students who camp in summer along the Temagami lakes are able to do two years' work in one. Finest of fishing and hunting. Easy of access by the Grand Trunk Railway System. For information and beautiful descriptive publication sent free apply to J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Peterborough Power Users Are Fortunate

While Manufacturers on Ottawa River Are in Need of Water—Power Scarce as a Consequence

FIND NO TROUBLE HERE.

Peterborough manufacturers and power users may thank their lucky stars that they are not dependent upon the Ottawa River, or one as erratic in its movements as that creek, for their power. The Free Press of yesterday had the following in reference to the difficulties being experienced by the power users there:

"The Chaudiere power power is in an extremely bad condition. Industries that are not thrown idle, are operating at great expense in order to compete with the unfavourable state of the river. One big firm is spending $120 a day extra on a staff of men trying to cope with the frazil and ice. J. R. Booth is prevented from carrying on the regular winter operations in his mill, and most of the pulp grinders are thrown idle. The E. B. Eddy Company is employing gas, gasoline, steam and electricity as supplementary power, and some branches of the establishment are run entirely by this means. The river has dropped lower than has been seen for many a year. The manufacturers are anxiously awaiting the spring freshets to bring relief."

Peterborough power users will appreciate in the face of the above conditions at Ottawa, the favourable position in which they are placed by reason of the fact that the water in the Otonabee River is maintained at a uniform level, the water in the river having remained at a uniform height during the whole season. Mr. McClellan, the superintendent of the canal, stated to-day that he did not anticipate either a surplus or a shortage of water, the river at the present time being at the same level as it has been maintained at during the last year. The power users here are not crying for the spring freshets as are those on the Ottawa River.

With the system of dams now being operated on the canal there is no danger of the high water incidental to the spring season being followed by a shortage of water, as is the case in many rivers.

Manufacturers looking for locations will no doubt appreciate the advantages which Peterborough possesses over many other cities by reason of the fact that the supply of water from which electricity is generated, is steady and no fears are entertained that the feast of water will be followed by a famine.

NEW HEADWEAR CREATIONS SEEN AT THE OPENINGS

The event dear to the heart of womankind, the spring millinery opening, is on to-day. The various dry goods establishments of the city are showing all that is the very height of fashion in dress goods, coats, ready-made suits, silks, and everything that goes to make up my lady's wardrobe.

Never were the hats more beautiful and becoming than they are this season. The shapes are small and medium, and some of the leading styles are: The Mushroom; soft flops made up in Milan and other fancy braids, very pretty and becoming are these with their crowns and brims covered with field flowers, veritable old-fashioned flower gardens; Japanese sailors; the helmet; the sir anip; the Duchess poke, and the cookie hat.

The principal new shades are apple green, browns light and dark, and vieux apricot, a light shade of brown, all yellow shades, rose and terra-cotta, Copenhagen blue, a very new and pretty shade, grays and black and white. It is a flower season; ferns and grasses in natural and dyed shades, roses in all colours and sizes, pansies, lilacs, cornflowers, daisies, field flowers and the locusts and hyacinthes, the two last named being the newest and daintiest of trimmings. These are in all shades. Fruits are used in cherries and grapes on the spring hats, sometimes alone and sometimes combined with flowers.

The ribbons are extravagantly rich and beautiful, in shot effects, plaids, crossbars, Roman stripes, Dresden and plain taffetas. Velvet ribbons in all colours are much used. The Valenciennes, Irish, renaissance, coloured laces and mallines in all colours are also features of the milliner's art. Many of the handsomest hats had lovely ostrich feathers, as well as flowers in black, white, colours and shaded effects.

Quills and wings will be good style trimming for suit hats. Handsome buckles, pins and daggers add a smart touch to the spring hats. These blend with the trimming or add a touch of contrasting colour.

The hats are chips, legborns, Milans, lace, Tuscan and Neapolitans, which are lovely, light, sheer and silky in effect.

Streamers of velvet, ribbons and mallines are seen on many of the hats. Flower crowns and whole flower hats will also be worn. There were on exhibition some unusually lovely hats for the wee tots and the young misses. One of the loviest hats seen was a Neapolitan flop caught into a pretty mushroom shape, the flat crown covered with locusts in three shades, pink, mauve and white, and streamers of mauve.

Another much-admired hat was an artist's dream in champagne coloured Neapolitan braid, mushroom shape, the crown covered with lilacs in shades of brown, rose, pale green and pale pink, while around the brim Dresden ribbon harmonizing with the flowers, and caught in the front with an exquisite Oriental buckle; champagne mallines was used to trim the bandeau. The hats are short in front, and becoming to the majority of faces. The legborns were exceedingly pretty in flops with flowers in great profusion and varieties.

A pretty hat was a lovely one of pale blue made of fancy braids. The edge of the brim was of lovely little pale blue flowers like the everlastings we gather in the woods, and dainty little bows of pale blue ribbon. Three lovely ostrich plumes in pale blue fall gracefully over the coiffure and the bandeau of pale blue mallines. Some lovely combinations in leather brown were seen at one of the show rooms, and were exceedingly smart.

While the millinery show was the chief attraction, there were fascinating displays of suitings in tweeds and worsted, in checks and stripes, though stripes seem to be the very latest. Plain Venetians and broadcloths were also in evidence. For the dressy afternoon gown, there were some new weaves shown called Marquesiettes. These were in all shades, in plain with satin stripes and dots. These were exceedingly exquisite. Printed voiles, cotton marquesiettes and muslins are shown for summer wear and are being rapidly picked up while the choice is unlimited.

In the mantle departments, lovely coats in pongee and tussar silks, white serges and linens trimmed and untrimmed in three-quarter lengths and longer, are shown. There are also some lovely black taffeta coats in short and long.

Ready-made suits with short Eton coats and pony coats are the prevailing styles, the sleeves mostly in three-quarter length.

Short coats, 22 and 24 inches in length, in cheviots, tight fitting and box back, will be worn also. There is a big display of whitewear, children's dresses, shirt waist suits in linen and lawn. Many handsome taffetas in black and white checks and stripes, as well as other combinations, will be used for the always popular shirt waist suit. In blacks, a wide range of fabrics, plain and fancy, is shown.

The city merchants have spared no pains in bringing from the centres of fashion from the leading marts of the world all that is newest and daintiest, and the prices are low for the quality of the goods.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributed the bad temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Female Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected.

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Can we dispute the well-known fact that Canadian women are nervous?

How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, it seems as if I should fly;" or, "Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Fits of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the abdominal region and between the shoulders; loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia; a tendency to cry at the least provocation——all this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Lelah Stowell, of 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your Medicine is indeed a Godsend to suffering women, and I only wish that they all knew what it can do for them and there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony. I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, extreme nervousness and excruciating headaches, but a few bottles of your vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy and I do not know what sickness is, and I have enjoyed the best of health now for over four years. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has sent sunshine into thousands of homes and hearts."

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you cannot wish to remain sick and weak and discouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be as easily cured as other women.

THE COMPANIES ACT

Discussion of Government Measure in the Legislature.

OPPOSITION ON THE ALERT

Number of Bills Read a Third Time—Others Advanced In Committee Stages—Shareholders and Auditors—Five Per Cent. Requirement Not Enough—Valuable Criticisms and Suggestions.

Toronto, March 21.—To the few spectators who occupied the galleries during the afternoon and evening sessions yesterday's proceedings in the Legislature had little interest. A great deal of work was accomplished, however, some measures being read a third time, many being advanced a stage. The whole of the night session, at which the attendance of members was slim, was occupied in a consideration of the new joint stock companies act, excellent progress being made. The Opposition displayed throughout the day the alertness which has become its notable characteristic, and in addition to thoughtful criticism advanced a number of helpful suggestions. Mr. Ross, who succeeded his father, the former Premier, as member for West Middlesex, took an active part in the discussion of the companies act, speaking with clear conciseness.

The following bills were read a third time:

Respecting the marriage settlement of Robert Woods Prittie and Jane Prittie—Mr. Crawford.

To confirm bylaw No. 1,839 of the city of St. Catharines—Mr. Jessop.

To authorize the Mercantile Trust Co. of Canada, Limited, to do business in the Province of Ontario—Mr. Duff.

Respecting the city of Niagara Falls—Mr. Fraser.

To confirm bylaw No. 9 of the village of Colborne—Mr. Fraser.

Amending Election Act.

Mr. Clark, in moving the second reading of his act to amend the Ontario election act, said that the object was to make residence in Canada instead of the Province a qualification for voting. There were many who were temporarily absent in the Northwest who were disqualified because of the present rule. The difference was not very great whether a man happened to be absent in Kenora or Winnipeg. The bill was referred to the Legal Committee.

Mr. McNaught's bill to amend the act respecting pawnbrokers was also referred to the Legal Committee, amid cries from the Opposition of "Killed," "Dead" and "Good-bye."

The Companies Act.

Hon. Mr. Hanna moved the House into committee on the Government's measure respecting joint stock and other companies, which has been explained at length.

Clause 36 had created some discussion. The second section of this clause stipulates the matters which must be laid before the shareholders at the annual meeting. One provision is that if demanded by shareholders holding 5 per cent. of the capital of the company the report of the auditors must be supplied to each shareholder. Mr. Graham said that many companies were family affairs. He was not sure that the 5 per cent. went far enough.

The Provincial Secretary thought that the report should be supplied on demand, the 5 per cent. requirement being eliminated. There were difficulties, however. One dry goods house might be interested in obtaining information concerning the business of another at the cost of only one share.

"And it would be cheap information at that," commented Mr. Graham.

Mr. MacKay—The 5 per cent. man can create all kinds of trouble. I object to the clause in its present form.

The clause was nevertheless allowed to stand as part of the bill.

The Provincial Secretary, answering Mr. Ross, said that whatever powers the companies had enjoyed heretofore with respect to the transfer of stock had not been interfered with.

Allotment of Shares.

There was considerable discussion on a part of clause 87, giving a company the right to make bylaws to regulate the allotment and transfer of shares. This power was opposed in several quarters, Mr. McDougal took the ground that there should be no such control over the rights of the individual holder of stock.

Mr. MacKay thought the regulation was a good one. By means of it people from an opposition company could be excluded. Why should not men who go into business be able to say who should or should not come into it?

Mr. McDougal pointed out the possible hardships that might result in a mining company such as the Nipissing if stocks could not be transferred.

Mr. MacKay—The majority of the shareholders select their directors and entrust their business to them. That is the point.

Mr. May advocated a saving clause, by which the shareholder should first offer his stock for sale to the company before selling to an outsider.

Mr. MacKay thought that any prohibitory clauses should be embodied in the wording of the stock certificates. The clause carried.

The clause providing that no payment for salary, bonus or otherwise shall be made to the President or any director unless authorized by a vote of two-thirds in value of the shareholders at a general meeting duly called for consideration of the same, was allowed to stand. Hon. Mr. Hanna intimated that he did not himself favor the clause. If this is taken out of the bill it means that the old law stands, a majority of the shareholders settling the question.

G. T. P. To Get Central.

Fredericton, N.B., March 21.—In the budget speech in the House yesterday, Premier Pugsley announced that, within a few months, the New Brunswick Coal and Railway Co. property, known as the Central Railway, and owned by the province, would be sold or leased to the G.T.P., which would use it to divert traffic to St. John from Chipman, where the Central Railway and G. T. P. connect. The run to St. John is only 78 miles, several hundred miles shorter than to Halifax.

TOWNS ARE FLOODED

Many Are Drowned, and Very Serious Damage Done.

TOOK REFUGE IN TREES

Nine People Are Drowned—Citizens Obliged to Abandon Their Homes—Severe Hardships From Exposure—Small Boats Rescued Many—Damage Not Less Than $650,000—Pittsburg Now In Safety.

Chico, Cal., March 21.—Flood conditions are still serious. The Village of Dreadful, near Oreville, has been entirely destroyed by the Feather River. More than two hundred men, women and children were driven to take refuge in trees and on tops of houses, where they were exposed to rain and cold for 48 hours. Small boats rescued many. One boat engaged in rescue work was capsized and seven were drowned. They were Mrs. J. R. Hogue, one child; Mrs. J. F. Dallis, two children; Mrs. Legallay and Stella Legallay. A relief train from Chico, with berths, clothing and provisions was despatched over the Northern Electric Road, reaching the scene after some difficulty. The rescue work continues. Fifty people are yet on the island, and there is much suffering among women and children.

Over Half-a-Million Loss.

Oreville, Cal., March 21.—It is estimated that the loss occasioned by the flood in Oreville will be not less than $650,000. The water is now falling as far as Montgomery street. All the business houses on this street are under six feet of water. A telephone office has been established in the second storey of the Union Hotel, and that is the only method of communication with the outside world.

Two Persons Were Drowned.

Stockton, Cal., March 21.—A report from Venice Island, in the San Joaquin River, says two persons were drowned there Tuesday night. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning, the flood had reached its highest point and the water commenced slowly to subside in the city, but there is still a great rush of water through the streets. In the business section of the city it is four feet deep.

Danger Over At Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, March 21.—Clearing weather and a cold wind have checked the rising streams at the head waters and all danger of another flood has passed.

Southern Pacific Blocked.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 21.—The coast line of the Southern Pacific has been blocked by a landslide that has closed the Santa Margarita tunnel, located in the mountains north of San Luis Coisco. The line will be closed to traffic for at least four or five days.

WOMAN SHOOTS HERSELF.

Stricken With Remorse After Wrongfully Accusing Her Husband.

Stettler, Alta., March 21.—The wife of a German named Stribritz committed suicide a few days ago at her home in the Notre Dame de Lavoie settlement, some 20 miles east of here, by shooting herself through the heart.

Her husband, it seems, had been confined in Fort Saskatchewan for assault upon his wife. It is believed that during his imprisonment the wife carried on an intrigue with another man, and that remorse for this, augmented by the kindness with which the wronged husband treated her, caused her to commit suicide. She had intimated to a stepson of Stribritz what her intentions were and the husband, hearing of it, had taken every precaution to hide firearms. The deed was done, however, while he was away, and the body was found in an outhouse by the dead woman's children.

Woman Strangles Child.

Winnipeg, Man., March 21.—After strangling her nine-year-old child with a suspender strap, Mrs. Ella Lisle, Port Rouge, yesterday attempted to cut her throat with a razor and ran screaming into the street.

The woman, who is thought to be suffering from emotional insanity, has been lodged in the provincial jail.

Two weeks ago a younger child died and there probably will be an investigation.

Rome, March 21.—It is officially announced that the Pope has accepted the invitation to be godfather to the expected child of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain.

Ship Lost; 21 Drowned.

Lubeck, Germany, March 21.—The German steamer Horn has been sunk in the North Sea with the loss of 21 lives.

CONSTIPATION CLOGS THE BOWELS

No other cause produces so much sickness as constipation, and therefore it is dangerous to allow the bowels to become clogged up. Bad blood, dyspepsia, headaches, biliousness, boils, pimples, and piles, are all caused by constipation.

Avoid all of these troubles by the use of nature's remedy for all diseases of the stomach, bowels and blood. It acts on the bowels and promotes their free and regular action, curing constipation and all troubles which arise from it. It has been on the market for over thirty years so you are not using a new and untried remedy. B.B.B. has cured thousands of others and will cure you. Mr. B. Woodcock, Nashwaak Bridge, N.S., writes: "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. She tried several physicians but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and is to-day in good health. My wife and I cannot speak too highly of B.B.B.

SNOW STOPS TRAFFIC.

Worst Blizzard in Years Rages From Montreal to Sydney.

St. John, N. B., March 21.—The entire system of the Intercolonial is in the grip of the worst snowstorm in many years. It extends from Montreal to Sydney.

The snowfall was heavy on the eastern division especially, and all freight cars and specials have been taken off to avoid a blockade.

The sky cleared last night, but a blizzard is piling up tremendous drifts. Every snowplow on the line is out trying to keep the tracks as clear as possible for passenger trains.

Capt. McIntyre, assistant police clerk, who spent 3 years at sea, says he has never known the barometer to fall so low as it did yesterday morning, when it was 28.10, or four-tenths lower than when the steamer Portland was lost six years ago in the Bay of Fundy, with great loss of life.

The street car service is demoralized. A drift threw a heavy car from the track and it crashed into a saloon, smashing everything before it.

All C.P.R. trains are many hours late.

Killed In Wreck of Barn.

Acton, March 21.—A severe windstorm Tuesday night completely wrecked the Acton House new stables, killing John McEachron and severely injuring J. C. McDougall.

St. Mary's Valley Swept.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 21.—St. Mary's valley was swept Tuesday night by a storm seldom equalled in the upper peninsula. The wind blew 60 miles an hour, demolishing telegraph, telephone and lighting service, and communication with the outside world was cut off until nearly noon yesterday.

Cattle Buried Under Debris.

Jarvis, Ont., March 21.—During the severe windstorm which prevailed Tuesday night, the barn of Mr. James Hazells, situated a short distance north, was blown down. Five head of cattle were in the born. Workmen are at present endeavoring to liberate the unlucky beasts from their position underneath the debris.

FAMINE IN RUSSIA.

Government Charged With Stealing Money Sent For Relief.

St. Petersburg, March 21.—Without any further allusion to the Ministerial declaration of policy, the Lower House of Parliament yesterday began the actual work of the session with the organization of committees, which in Russia are elected instead of appointed.

The proposal to appoint a special commission to organize famine relief led to a prolonged and animated debate, in which the various groups participated.

A peasant deputy boldly charged the Government with stealing the money intended for famine relief and referred to Assistant Minister of the Interior Gurke.

A Socialist resolution calling for a commission to investigate the whole system of famine relief for the last two years, was finally tabled by 326 to 149 votes.

The Socialists, who were supported by the Social-Revolutionists and part of the group of toil, were voted down by the Constitutional Democrats, Conservatives, Poles, Mohammedans and other groups. The Constitutional Democrats feared hasty action would precipitate a conflict with the Ministry.

Peasant Uprising Spreads.

Bucharest, March 21.—Peasants again yesterday invaded Botosahni and set fire to different parts of the town, especially the Jewish quarters. Troop intervened and several peasants were killed or wounded.

Brigadier Gen. Telt has been placed in command of the fourth army corps, whose headquarters are at Jassy, with full powers to suppress the agrarian revolt. A number of regiments have been ordered to Jassy to reinforce his troops.

The peasant uprising already has spread over the whole of Upper Moldavia, including the districts of Botosahni, Dorogoi, Jassy, Neamzu, Tutova, Baku and Roman. In spite of all precautions, the vandalism is spreading.

Japs Buy War Material.

New York, March 21.—Japan is continually receiving war material from the Krupp works, says a Berlin despatch.

Several Japanese officers are at Essen to take over guns, and Japanese engineers are employed at the Krupp works, something that concern, which maintains the greatest secrecy as to its methods, would not permit unless it had, or was desirous of cultivating, the closest and widest commercial relations with Japan.

Raid By Suffragettes.

London March 21.—The women suffragists attempted a demonstrative raid on Parliament, more important and more numerous than any other previous effort, yesterday. The police had timely warning and made preparations that resulted in making the demonstration somewhat ineffective.

The only result was some amusing disorderly scuffles and the arrest of nearly seventy suffragists, who were at once liberated on bail.

The raid was led by Lady Harberton, who was assisted by the most prominent women who took part in the previous raids.

The women drove up in wagons and, after promenading before the Houses of Parliament, stormed the entrance of the House of Commons, where the police reinforcements, drawn up for the occasion, awaited the onslaught and drove the women back.

After this first rebuff the women made a second determined attempt to penetrate the police cordon, but to little purpose. In accordance with the instructions, the police employed as little force as possible.

Earl Grey Praises Booth.

Ottawa, March 21.—Gen. William Booth of the Salvation Army addressed the Canadian Club yesterday on the work of the Army. There were present the Governor-General, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, R. L. Borden, Hon. Mr Emmerson and Speaker Sutherland.

Earl Grey, in moving a hearty vote of thanks to Gen. Booth, said it had been his privilege to have Gen. Booth as his guest at Rideau Hall, and it was a privilege he would not easily forget.

The Third Delight

By Lee Wright Hanson.

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham.

"It's so difficult, this being the third Delight," she sighed.

"What is it, Delight Darling?" I asked, using her family name for an adjective, a method which pleased me greatly, and longing to comfort her downcast sapphire eyes with kisses.

"As you know, Dick Courtenay, my great-aunt Delight was a wonderful woman. As a little girl she made samplers. Later she spun and wove and was never known to get angry or speak ill of any one, or to be vain, or covetous, or worldly, or anything she shouldn't have been."

"I don't wonder she never married," I remarked.

"You are quite impertinent, Dick," said Delight reproachfully. "She was a perfect woman and beautiful."

"And your second aunt Delight is a beautiful woman, and you are her fresh cheeked replica. She is also a foolish woman to have renounced the pleasures of the world and to disparage the holy state of matrimony. My poor father"—

HER HEAD SANK TO MY SHOULDER.

I paused. I had no right to give away dad's secret, albeit an open one, but Delight was nodding her pretty head savagely.

"I should like your nice father to be my uncle, but auntie must know best, and I must try to be like her."

"Delight Darling," I said fervently, "your blue eyes were made for beholding love's visions, your little pink ears for hearing love's messages and your lips for kisses. Your feet were made for dancing and"—

"I believe I could learn as easily!" she exclaimed.

"Of course you could," I answered, smiling at her flushed cheeks. "And if you will let me teach you I will take you to the charity masquerade next week."

Delight gasped, but her eyes were full of longing.

"I am going to reason with your aunt," I declared.

"She sits in the garden making trousers for the widow Jones' little boy," said Delight.

"She ought to be making trousers for her own little boy," I muttered as I strode out to interview her.

To my surprise I found the second Miss Delight quite susceptible to my arguments. She closed the interview by saying:

"But don't let the child know I said so. She will enjoy the pleasure more if she deems it stolen."

A strong sentiment indeed for the pretty but austere Miss Delight Darling to hold.

As I was dressing for the masquerade a tap came at my door, followed by a rather portly "Quaker grandpa." My eyes followed the outlines of his figure and fell upon a peculiar seal ring which I recognized.

"If you don't want to be known, dad," I suggested, "better let me wear your ring."

He complied so quickly that I divined that he didn't want to be known. He wasn't very talkative, and, as I had troubles of my own, I wasn't inclined to entice him into conversation. I was glad, though, to see that he was going into society again. Dad loved good women in an age of chivalry sort of way, and I hated to see him waste his time on perverse Miss Delight Darling.

Later Delight and I, masked and robed, stole down back streets to the charity ball, she turning my father's ring round and round on my finger, for she held my hand as if it alone could save her from destruction. I whistled carelessly under my breath to give her nerves a chance to be quiet.

She begged not to dance, though she had proved an apt pupil, so we, a lady in scarlet and a Roman senator, sat in a corner and watched the merrymakers.

"Why, there's another lady in scarlet!" she exclaimed. "The costumer said she had sold another like this. I wonder if she feels as reckless and as—as happy as I do."

"Probably this isn't her first glimpse into fairyland," I answered. "She doesn't dance like an old timer, though. Do you notice the Quaker with her?"

"He looks familiar," she said curiously. "I wonder who he is."

I was doing some wondering on my own hook, too, but I was most concerned about the lady in scarlet with him.

By and by I took my lady into the dimly lighted conservatory and pressed her scarlet gloved hand. After a long time she shyly returned the pressure.

"Have you a cold?" she asked constrainedly. "Your voice doesn't sound natural tonight."

"Perhaps. I hadn't thought about it. Little girl, are you very, very happy?"

"Yes," she admitted.

"Of course you are, and you are doing right to be happy. But this is only the froth. The real substance is a home and an honest man's love. It is as natural for you to love as for these orchids to bloom. Delight Darling, am I the man you love?"

Her head sank to my shoulder. From her dark hair came perfume of violets.

"If you must know it, Richard Courtenay, I think you are a king among men, and, renouncing all I have held to be most worthy, I will do your will."

It didn't sound like Delight's spontaneity of expression, but the sentiment was so satisfactory that I was about to lift the scarlet mask to prove to her that her lips were made for just what I had said, when two ghosts and the Queen of Hearts entered and obviously hindered the demonstration.

The fall of the masks was the coup de theatre of the evening, for four people at least. It happened that we stood close to the Quaker and the other lady in scarlet—my father and—my own little rosy, girlish Delight. I looked in amazement at the little lady on my arm. Then I know my face grew purple.

"Let's get out of here," I chortled, "or I'll explode!"

Into the conservatory, where my successful love making had been executed, I hurried my indignant companion, the small and decidedly fascinating aunt of my little Delight.

"Now, Dick Courtenay, explain yourself!" the little lady commanded, her eyes dangerously dark, her cheeks matching her dress.

"Oh, the joke is too rich to explain," I wheezed, wiping my eyes. "Sit down here, Miss Delight, till I bring my father."

She sprang to grasp my arm, but I fled. I met my father just darting in.

"Oh, boy, what a fool I've made of myself!" he groaned. "I've proposed to the wrong woman, and she's accepted me! Confound masquerades anyhow!"

I pushed him into the conservatory. "The right woman is in there, dad. If you'll fix it up with her, I'll attend to the other one."

"Oh, Dick," caroled my own Delight as I led her to the shadowy veranda. "I'm going to be your mamma!"

"And I'm to be your uncle," I answered, "but don't tell me you knew it was my dad all the time."

"Of course I did." Her eyes were dancing with mischief. "And I knew he thought he was talking to auntie, though I didn't know she was here. And, oh, Dick Courtenay, I have just begun to live in this beautiful, moon swept, rose colored world!"

And with the surety that matters were being "fixed up" in the conservatory and the yielding of the third Delight to my arm's embrace I realized that I, too, had just begun to live.

GOT A PAIN IN YOUR BACK?

You get a pain in your back, and you wonder what is the matter. You perhaps pay no attention to it. Backache is caused by imperfect action of the kidneys, in fact, is the first sign of kidney trouble to follow.

The kidneys, proper, are composed of a close network of fibrous tissue, interlaced with tiny elastic fibres. Their object is the excretion of the uric acid, and other poisonous matter composing the urine, from the blood.

They are continuously at work to preserve the general health of the body and most people are troubled with some form of kidney trouble, but do not suspect it.

Some of the symptoms are: A feeling of weakness in the small of the back, sharp pains in back, puffiness under the eyes, and swelling of the feet and ankles, urinary troubles such as supressed urination, excessive urination, cloudy, thick or highly colored urine, etc.

Mr. J. L. Whiting, Canabrook Centre, Ont., writes: "I suffered for two years with kidney trouble. I had terrible pains in my back, hips and legs. I could not sleep and had a poor appetite. I took four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and the pains left me, my appetite returned and I now sleep well. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Gambler's Hands.

"That man is a 'night worker,' probably a faro dealer," said a detective to a friend as the two stood on a street corner the other afternoon, while the person alluded to by the detective passed by. "Know him?" asked the friend. "Not yet," replied the detective, "but I may later." "How do you know he's a faro dealer, then?" "I don't know it," was the reply, "but that he is in some such business is evident from the peculiar pallor of his face, which you may have noticed. You wouldn't get that particular shade if you worked in a bank or at a desk all day long. It's the artificial light and the bad ventilation that do it, I guess. Keeping in the noise of the rattling chips keeps out the air in most cases, and those dealers work as steadily and as regularly as anybody else. Perhaps you noticed, too, that his hands were smooth and clean, in far better condition than yours or mine or the average business man's. The professional gambler may not like his pallor, but he takes great pride in his hands."

Cowbirds Unnatural Parents.

The cowbird is the only bird that we have in this country which is unnatural in its parental duties. It never builds a nest for itself, but lays its eggs in other birds' nests, thus forcing the rightful owners to assume parental duties. It is sagacious enough to choose the nests of birds smaller than itself, so that its young, when it is hatched, being inevitably the largest of the brood, must necessarily receive the lion's share of the attention of its foster parents. The birds thus afflicted resort to various means to rid themselves of this unwelcome addition to their litter. The most ingenious method is that frequently used by the little fellow wabbler, who will often build a substructure on top of her original nest, thus burying the eggs of the cowbird and often some of her own with it. Nests have frequently been found with two of these substructures in cases where the wabbler has twice been visited by the cowbird.

Battles Decided by a Single Shot.

There are certainly three instances on record of a siege or battle having been decided by a single shot. First in order of importance was the shot believed to have been fired by one of his own men which killed Charles XII. in the trenches of the fortress of Friedrichstein, which immediately led to the raising of the second siege of Friedrichshall. This is perhaps the most important musket shot ever fired in the history of the world. Next comes the discharge of the mortar fired by Lord Cochrane during the defense of Port Trinidad in 1808. This shot foiled a French surprise and saved the fortress. Lastly, there was the single discharge of grapeshot which saved the fortress and town of Haddington in 1548. The French invaders had actually forced their way into the outworks of the castle when the one well directed shot created such havoc in their densely packed ranks that there ensued an immediate panic, which ended in flight.

The Advantage of an Accident.

"The small size of the propeller screw," says a noted shipbuilder, "is not due to the perception of any inventor of its greater effect as compared with a larger one, but purely to accident. Many years ago screws for steamers were made as large as possible, it being the theory that the greater the diameter the higher the speed. A vessel was sent to sea with a screw so large that it was deemed best to cast each blade in two parts and then weld them together. During a storm all three blades of the propeller broke at the welding, reducing the diameter by more than two-thirds. To the surprise of the captain the vessel shot forward at a speed such as had never been attained before. Engineers then experimented with small propellers and discovered that they were much more effective than large ones. Had it not been for that accident we might have gone on using large bladed screws to the present day."

Where Fogs Are Thickest.

"In going from Rome to Paris," said a young man, "I paid extra money to cross the St. Gothard, but that lofty Alpine pass was a disappointment. It was foggy, and I saw nothing of the Alps. Hard luck, eh?"

"Not at all," replied the globe trotter. "Nearly everybody finds the St. Gothard wrapped in fog and mist. The St. Gothard, in fact, is the foggiest place in the world. London has 38 days of fog a year, Munich has 47, Hamburg has 52, Tegernsee, in the Bavarian Alps, has 134. Overtopping all of them comes the St. Gothard, with an annual average of 277 foggy days."

Every Day the Best.

Write it in your hearts that every day is the best day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is doomsday.—Emerson.

Most Irritating.

"I am so annoyed! My servant has just been killed on the railway. Only half his body has been found, and with the other half are my keys."—Bon Vivant.

No Chinese Language.

An English traveler says that "Chinese language" is a misnomer. "There is no such thing as a Chinese language any more than there is a European language. A Canton man cannot understand an Amoy man, and I have seen two Chinamen sitting together with a third one acting interpreter. Pigeon English is the common tongue of commerce."

Her Idea of It.

"Is this the Stock Exchange?" inquired the sweet young matron.

"Yes, madam."

"Then I wish to exchange these securities for some that will pay dividends. These never have."—Exchange.

His Distinction.

A doctor forbidding a patient to drink alcoholic beverages, the patient replied, "But, doctor, you yourself drink alcohol." "Yes, my friend, but not as a doctor. When I do drink I do so only as an ordinary man."

The Starry Cross.

The first order ever bestowed upon women was the order of the Starry Cross, founded in 1668 by Eleanor, widow of Ferdinand III. of Austria, in thanksgiving for the saving of a portion of the holy cross at a fire in the palace at Vienna. This order, which was confirmed the following year by the pope, is divided into two classes, containing different jewels, and is conferred in recognition of distinguished virtues. It is worn on the left breast attached to a black ribbon.

TOBOGGANING A JOY.

Is the Winter Pleasure of Canadian Outdoor Life.

In an article on the delights of the Canadian winter, in The Morning Post, Mr. E. B. Osborn says: "It is in tobogganing that the winter joyance of Canadian life finds its ultimate expression. There is no 'Cresta Run' in the Dominion; the pastime has not yet reach such a pitch of athletic artificiality as to exclude ladies from its delights. A voyage on a well-made, well-banked slide with a cleverly-arranged jump is really a momentary heaven. Yes, and marriages are made in that heaven, as is forthwith explained.

She's in front, I behind. We are off and away
O'er the edge of the world in our tiny trim sleigh.
See that little red flag on the plain far below,
Like a clear flame of fire in the midst of the snow!
'Tis the goal of our flight on the perilous slide;
One in ten yards of fall and five hundred to glide.

Now we speed to a climax. The banks spin uphill,
From the dim gulf beneath blows a breese silver-shrill,
The winding swift track whirls up out of the gloom,
The fir-trees fly upward like ghosts from the tomb,
Through silence all glist'ning we pass —like a star,
Down the sheer slope of Heaven that falleth afar.

Forty feet to the river! Our runners bite deep,
Then flash in mid-air as we take the great leap.
Earth reels like a drunkard, the depths of the sky
Turn swift as a whirlpool, the sun from on high
Is hurled to our feet, and the edge of the wind
Cuts keen—a sharp scimitar swung from behind.

Then backward she leans, and with sweet lips apart,
Droops her head to my shoulder; and heart beats with heart
(Like a rose in the dark is the heart of my sweet)
And the icebound deep river roars under our feet
Till we rock o'er snowdrift, and find a full stop.

Only Two Continents.

An Englishman, smoking a pipe, sat in a club car on a western train. There were several traveling men near by. They were discussing themselves and telling how good they were.

"I suppose," said one, "that I have about as long a trip as any one in the business. I go from Boston to San Francisco twice a year."

"Oh," said another, "I can beat that. I cross the continent twice every year, and I take in Canada."

The Englishman listened intently. He was interested. "By the way," said one of the drummers to him, "what is your business?"

"Oh," the Englishman replied, "my name is Douglass, and I come from London. I am a traveling man myself."

"What is your line?"

"Carpets."

"Have you got much territory?"

"Oh, not much," the Englishman replied modestly. "Only North America and Africa."

Don't Slump.

Don't slump. By this is meant a position when sitting in which the back gets bowed and the spine more or less bent. It does not really rest the body, and it brings about a bad figure and worse carriage. So called "easy" chairs help people to slump. A soft cushion should be used to lean against and fill in the natural hollow of the back.

Repairing a Mirror.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

New Ideas For Spring Shirt Waists Rainy Day Skirt.

The plain mannish shirt waist has the lead in the spring models for business and morning wear. A feminine touch about it is the tiny plaited frill each side of the center box plait in front and on the turn back cuff. Instead of being plaited this frill is sometimes a narrow ruffle, finished with the tiniest edge of torchon lace. Girls who like to give an individual touch wear studs and cuff buttons to match the little silk tie worn with the stiff linen collar. These sets of studs in various colors can be purchased.

The new lingerie shirt waists show touches of dainty color in the embroidery, and the trimming for the most part is applied in long lines. Filet lace is a new and pretty trimming for these waists.

Every woman should own a very short dark petticoat to match or correspond with her walking skirt to wear in bad weather. Italian cloth or mohair in a soft good quality is very nice for this use. The stiff watered moreen is not to be desired, for it catches the dust, which it is impossible to shake out.

Marquisette, a material somewhat on the order of grenadine, is among the spring dress goods. It ranges from three to four dollars a yard and comes the depth of an ordinary skirt. There is no trimming necessary for such a skirt, as the material is beautifully decorated with polka dots, and at the bottom there is a band in some darker contrasting color, above which is a floral design reaching to the knee.

Smooth fitting corset covers are in demand to be worn under fitted waists to keep the figure trim and snug. The cut shows a waist of this description made of batiste, with trimming of German valenciennes lace and beading.

Handbags Match Gown Trimming. Skirt Models For Muslins.

It is a charming conceit to have one's handbag match the buttons used on one's gown, and there are sets, consisting of neck chain and locket, buttons and mental wristbags, that come to be worn together. A bracelet to match is added, and the set is charmingly unique and dainty.

The skirt most in favor for simple muslin frocks has a deep flounce set on above the knees which is trimmed with groups of tucks or alternating rows of tucks and inset lace.

Pique is again a smart summer fabric for tailored gowns. A particularly smart model has a box plaited skirt and box plaited blouse cut low at the neck and without sleeves. This waist is worn with a lingerie blouse. Falling sleeves, drooping hat brims and a less defined waist line are some of the prevailing styles in early fashions.

Skirts seem to be of two kinds—one most heavily loaded with trimming and the other a long plain clinging skirt almost devoid of trimming unless it be at the hem. These are of course both skirts of a dressy nature.

The illustration shows a smart little dress of pongee in a new plaid effect, with green lines on the natural pongee

Wash Lace In Milk.

An almost infallible method of cleansing lace which has been much stained through age or other causes, says a writer in Good Housekeeping, is to stew it in milk. Place the lace in a jar and cover with milk. Then set the jar in a saucepan of water, after the manner of cooking beef tea. An hour or two are usually sufficient. The water in the saucepan will boil, but not so the milk. By allowing the milk to boil the stains would be more firmly fixed than ever. The writer tells of an old piece of brussels which had been lying on a fan for twenty years and was marked with brown stripes. All ordinary treatment had failed to remove the stains, but the lace came out of the hot milk treatment as white as snow and entirely uninjured.

FORECAST OF FASHION.

Old Fashioned Long Earrings Again. Fancies For Summer Gowns.

The wearing of earrings, in late years regarded as a relic of barbaric days, has suddenly become the rage. Indications are that the size of earrings will keep on increasing until the long pendants worn by our grandmothers will be considered the fashionable thing.

Some of the challies this spring are as pretty as the silks, and, indeed, from a distance they cannot be distinguished from the handsomer fabric. They come a yard wide and are soft and velvety in appearance.

Many of the prettiest summer gowns will have no trimming save tucks and bands of cluny beading. Fichus of silk on muslin frocks is a novelty both quaint and attractive.

The new straw hats all have drooping brims and look like nothing more than an inverted wash basin trimmed with flowers and ribbon. One dainty basin shape is of burnt straw in what is called French braid—the old fashioned coarse variety with a satiny sheen. All the trimming is massed at the back and takes the form of a lot of loops, half of which stand up stiffly above the tall crown and the others droop over the hair. A half wreath of deep red roses fits over the crown and outlines the circle of ribbon loops. The ribbon is of wide soft reseda green.

FOR EARLY SPRING—5456, 5568.

For early spring nothing is prettier than a costume of chiffon serge, which this season comes in such beautiful colors. The Tuxedo collar on the bolero jacket is of a contrasting color stripped with braid. Small crochet buttons trim both the skirt and jacket.

HERE AND THERE.

Lace Yokes Still Fashionable—Sleeve Expedients—Collar Tip.

The fancy for little white lace yokes that top the large yoke which is made in harmony with the rest of the bodice is a universally becoming feature of the fashions. The lower part of these double yokes are usually made up of heavy lace medallions or embroideries set together with lace or fancy stitches or appliqued on net or gauze. The upper yoke is of gauze, valenciennes, baby Irish or bruges.

Some of the sleeves, which are rather full at the top, are kept out by little elongated lawn puffs interlaced between the outside material and the lining and put in quite close to the armhole seam. The fronts of the blouses are kept in place by inside puffs of lawn or taffeta.

Slant the collar up slightly under the ear just enough to break the hard, straight line at the side of the neck, but not in an exaggerated point. Have it high enough, especially at the back, as nothing is uglier than an expanse of neck between the collar and the hair.

Shadow check batistes are very pretty, and there are other barred and shadowed checked white goods, such as muslin, swiss and lawn. These materials are to be very much used for smart morning dresses next summer.

Boys' nightshirts are subjected to so much hard usage that English twill is the material used in the shirt seen in the cut. It is trimmed with fancy cotton bands.

SARTORIAL NOTES.

Striped Foulard Smart For Shirt Waist Dresses—Modish Colors.

For a rough and ready shirt waist dress nothing is better in the summer wardrobe than one of foulard silk. It is inexpensive, wears well and is light and cool. The polka dots so often seen in this silk last season have given way to stripes of all widths and colors. There is the wide one inch stripe and the narrowest thread-like band of colors, and some of the foulards have stripes of graduated width arranged in clusters or verging gradually from wide to narrow.

MORNING DRESS—5371, 5129.

Alice blue is to be one of the spring colors, and mauve and pastel green will be prominent.

No woman can afford to be without at least one plain linen tailored costume in her summer outfit. Worn with a pretty lingerie blouse, even the simpler suits give one a very smart appearance, while those that are hand embroidered are extremely handsome and becoming. While cut on the same general lines as those of last season, there are decided differences. One of the newest is the use of the sloping shoulders. Trimming is also seen on the upper part of the sleeves, and the skirts are longer.

The old butterfly bows have at last gone out. All the new neckwear shows rosettes or a four-in-hand effect.

The shirt waist model in the cut is an admirable one for a simple little morning wash dress. The bands on the skirt can be dispensed with if they are thought not practical for tubbing.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

JOHN SMITH HONORED

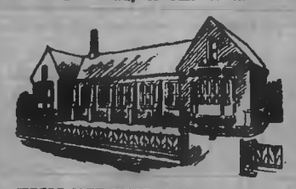
BUST PRESENTED BY BADEN POWELL TO HIS NATIVE TOWN.

Founded Jamestown 300 Years Ago—Was Pupil at King Edward the Sixth's Grammar School at Louth, England, Which Was Founded in 1551—Smith Showed Love of Adventure as a Boy.

King Edward VI. Grammar school at Louth, the school where Capt. John Smith wrestled with the "three Rs," has been made the proud possessor of a bust of its most illustrious alumnus. The fact that the gift is from Major-General Baden-Powell, who claims to be a "direct lineal descendant of the doughty colonizer" and was made by the general himself, makes the presentation decidedly appropriate aside from the fact that America is about to celebrate the founding of Jamestown, 300 years ago, by a great exposition.

Major-General Baden-Powell, known to every Englishman as "B. P." since his heroic defence of Mafeking in the Boer war, is a many sided man, and not the least of his talents is sculpture. Some time ago "B. P." discovered that there were no busts of his illustrious "ancestor," and in order that his features might be preserved to posterity he set about to use a few minutes before breakfast every morning in modeling a bust of Capt. John Smith. One replica of this work, it may be remembered, the amateur sculptor courteously presented to the state of Virginia, and a second copy of the same was given to the Royal school at Louth last week.

While Baedeker cites a church steeple as the only attraction for the sightseer at Louth, this ancient school peacefully ensconced in the valley of the rivulet Lud, is full of interest.



WHERE JOHN SMITH ATTENDED SCHOOL.

The town is in Lincolnshire, not far from the eastern coast of England, and while a majority of the 10,000 inhabitants are busy in the iron foundries, breweries, carriage shops, and carpet factories of the place, a few old schoolmasters are trying to uphold the reputation of the grammar school, which for six centuries back has been turning out famous "old boys."

Among the laurel wreathed escutcheons on the walls of the old school are names of distinguished alumni, including Lord Alfred Tennyson and Sir John Franklin, the Arctic explorer—names that are as well known in America as homely "John Smith."

The school was founded as a royal school in 1551, but it had existed for many years before that date as a "guild" school. The only relic of the buildings in which Johnny Smith spent his school hours is a bust of Edward VI.—and when gazing at the plaster features of his sovereign, it may be guessed that Johnny little thought that a bust of himself would some day grace the school as it now does.

The "Smith boy's" connection with the school is covered vaguely in the school records of 300 years ago—about as vaguely as a "Smith boy's" record would be chronicled to-day. After a few terms at a school in Alford, near his home, Johnny is known to have become restless, and his father decided to send him to Louth, where he might live with a relative and attend the royal school.

The period was a tempting one for Johnny, for it was shortly after the annihilation of the Spanish armada, and the tales of adventure and glories of war which filled his ears fanned the flames of adventure in his young heart. He was on his way to school in jerkin, and doublet, and high ruff collar one day, when he met a peddler, to whom he sold his books, and planned to go to sea on the proceeds. At this juncture he was called home by the death of his father, and his aged mother also soon passed away, leaving the would-be adventurer an orphan. The rest of his life story is known to the world.

In presenting the bust to the school the other day, Gen. Baden-Powell made reference, as he had often done before, of his "coming direct from the doughty captain." He traces the descent on his mother's side. He says "Capt. John Smith married while in America, and his grandson, Benjamin Smith, lived in New Jersey and died in 1769. Benjamin's son, Joseph, came to England as a loyalist, married, and was father of my grandfather, Admiral W. H. Smith, whose daughter was my mother. This branch of the Smith (or Smyth) family is entitled at the heralds' college to bear the arms of John Smith—viz.: Three Turks' heads, etc."

This claim has elicited a long letter from William Gordon McCabe, one of the commissioners of the Jamestown exposition, which appeared last week in The Saturday Review, a prominent London journal. Mr. McCabe says, in part: "It is a distinct shock to a humble student of Virginian history to learn that the stout old soldier, who died at the comparatively early age of 51, had a grandson living in—in all places of the earth!—New Jersey, 160 years after his grandfather had sailed away forever from Virginia!

"And it is as sure as anything can be sure that John Smith never was married and consequently could be no lineal ancestor of Gen. Baden-Powell. The question is almost too plain for discussion. Smith was in the colony less than two years and a half, was easily the foremost figure in it, and we can account for well nigh every action of his during that time. He had the bitterest of enemies and the staunchest of friends, and between the narratives of the two we can follow him almost every day in his splendid fight to save the great enterprise in the face of appalling difficulties and dangers without and cowardly treachery within.

"Had he ever married we should surely have heard of it from the narratives of Lookill and Ransall or Masters Pots and Prettiplace. No man, as I have said, had more bitter enemies, and had Capt. John Smith sailed away from Virginia abandoning his wife and child we should just as surely have heard of it from Wingfield or Master Archer. Indeed, after Smith, owing to his dreadful accident, sailed for England, the chief of all the stories trumped up against him was that he designed to marry Pocahontas!"

Mr. McCabe cites an English historian who speaks of Smith as spending his last days in London as a "lonely bachelor," and further goes to prove that his brother Francis left no lawful issue, and that Capt. Smith made no mention in his will of any offspring whatever.

It seems to be, in American language, "up to" the heralds' college and "B. P." to answer this flat denial from Virginia.

THE BUILDING OF ROADS.

Advice About How Not to Make Repairs on Them—Birmingham U. S. Consul Makes a Report.

Consul Halstead of Birmingham, England, reports to the Department of Commerce and Labor results of unintelligent, unscientific road repairing. He quotes some excellent advice about how not to make or repair a road. He writes:

"When in London recently I noticed that the great road along the Thames, one of the most important thoroughfares in London, known as the Thames embankment, was very rough, and in a recent article in The London Mail, entitled 'How Not to Make a Road,' some observant person tells of the methods used when the embankment was last torn up and remetaled and reironed, which confirms in many respects the despatch I recently published in Daily Consular and Trade Reports, Sept. 9, entitled 'Dust and Motor Cars.' This writer had thought that a sound knowledge would surely be displayed in repairing such a thoroughfare as the Thames embankment. After the scarifier had been at work and the road torn up, loads of 'blue metal,' he said, were dumped down, but this stone was of a very uneven nature, both as to size and shape, many of the pieces being long and narrow, while others were small and approximately cubical, and there was additionally a large proportion of irregularly shaped stones. The loads were roughly spread across the roadway, and in many cases 'the wheel ruts of the carts were not even raked out.' Continuing his description of what was done as roadmaking for the great thoroughfare, he says:

"Over this chaotic heap was strewn—shade of Macadam! — pulverized clay. Water was then copiously flooded on to this interesting mess to induce the clay to get in between the crevices or chasms in the roadway. This it speedily did, although naturally much remained as mud on the surface. Then the steam roller got to work, and soon the roadway looked quite smooth and nice, and he who knew no better would have passed by and said, 'That is a fine bit of work.' He who knew, however, and saw it done, said 'Give it a few weeks and it will be as bad as ever.'"

EIGHT-DAY REVOLUTION.

Gen. Paredes and Most of His "Army" Put to Death In Venezuela.

The much advertised "revolution" of Gen. Antonio Paredes is over and its leader and most if not all of his "army" are dead.

Just eight days was the length of the "revolution"—one of the shortest in history.

Gen. Paredes and 18 men were captured by Government forces and sent from Bolivar and Maturin and by boat from La Guayra.

After the collapse of their expedition they were imprisoned at Barrancas under a strong guard. All have since been shot.

GEN. PAREDES.

Gen. Paredes landed with about 20 men at Pedernales, at the mouth of the Orinoco River, Feb. 5. In his "army," of which Gen. Baldillo was chief of staff, were several men who are well known in Venezuela.

Choosing the name "Legalista" for his organization, and with the war cry "Free Industries and Popular Sovereignty!" Gen. Paredes, under the tricolor of Venezuela, started full of confidence for Ciudad, Bolivar, expecting the country would rise and flock to him as he marched.

The result of this revolution has naturally left the Government stronger than ever.

There Was No Lord Bacon.

Apropos of Dr. Karl Bleibtreu's new theory about the origin of Shakespeare's plays, a correspondent writes to The London Chronicle as follows: "When will the British public learn to call things and men by their correct names? There is no such person in history as 'Lord Bacon.' The great Elizabethan, who by a few modern idiots is accused of having written the plays, was by name Sir Francis Bacon, Baron Verulam, Viscount St. Albans. In no standard work of reference is he spoken of as 'Lord Bacon.'"

Fear In Children.

An examination of 1,500 children recently made in the west shows that thunderstorms are by far the worst terror of childhood. Afterward, in the order set down, come snakes, strangers, darkness, fire, death, disease, wild animals, policemen, water, insects and ghosts. In the fear of rats and mice girls exceed boys in the ratio of seventy-five to sixteen. In boys fear begins to diminish after the fifteenth year, in girls after the eighteenth.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

FOUGHT FOR HIS LIFE

OFFICER'S DESPERATE STRUGGLE WITH A LEOPARD IN INDIA.

Was Returning From a Day's Hunt, When the Infuriated Beast Attacked His Wife—Could Not Shoot For Fear of Killing Her—Grapples With the Animal and Finally Overcomes It Without Aid.

The story of an officer's desperate encounter with an infuriated beast comes from Lucknow. Lieut.-Col. Hutchinson, of the Second Ghurkas, had a thrilling fight with a leopard, which attacked his wife while on a shooting trip near Dehra Dun.

They were returning after a day's shooting, and the beaters had gone on some distance ahead. Mrs. Hutchinson was walking about ten yards in front of her husband. She deviated slightly from the path, and surprised a young leopard, which immediately attacked her.

Col. Hutchinson instantly raised his rifle to shoot the beast, but dared not fire for fear of wounding his wife.

Then, seeing that the only way to save her life was to drag the leopard off, he dropped his rifle and attacked the beast with his hands.

A Desperate Fight.

The leopard first attempted to seize his arm, but missed, and Col. Hutchinson was able to keep it at bay while his wife rose and ran to call the beaters. Meanwhile, the animal sprang again on Col. Hutchinson, and a desperate fight between the man and the beast followed.

Col. Hutchinson eluded its spring with marvelous agility. He made several attempts to regain his rifle, but the leopard was on him before he could pick it up. Then he thought of his revolver, and was placing his hand on his hip to draw it, when the leopard sprang on him again and seized his right arm. Desperate as the position was, Col. Hutchinson did not give in, and, although he was suffering terrible agonies, he grappled with the beast. They rolled over several times, the leopard still clinging to its hold on his arm.

Rifle Does the Work.

At last Col. Hutchinson freed his arm and succeeded in getting his revolver. Then he shot the leopard in the eye. The animal let go its hold, but the shot had only blinded it.

Before it could spring on him again Col. Hutchinson had gained possession of his rifle, and succeeded in killing the beast just as the first of the beaters came back.

Col. Hutchinson was by this time so exhausted from loss of blood and the struggle that he was in a state of collapse. He was carried back to his bungalow, and his arm, which was terribly lacerated from the shoulder to the wrist, was attended to.

He is now progressing favorably.

BARBARIC RELICS FOUND.

Massive Bracelets and Armlets of Solid Gold That Once Adorned Warriors Bold, In Good Preservation.

Workmen engaged in a sandpit at Crayford, Kent, England, have unearthed a number of massive bracelets or armlets of solid gold, supposed to be portions of the barbaric ornaments of ancient British chiefs.

The supposition that the sandpit was the burying place of the chiefs is supported by the discovery of bones at the same spot and of weapons of stone and flint close by.

The armlets were found at a depth of three or four feet from the surface. Their value as gold alone is estimated to be from $1,250 to $1,500, but their antiquity and historical associations make them priceless.

They are in a perfect state of preservation, and bear inscriptions on some of the jewels, which have not yet been deciphered. Experts are of opinion that they date from a period long before the Christian era.

They have been deposited at Scotland Yard as treasure trove, and are now the property of the Crown.

In May last eight similar bracelets were found near the same spot, and the finders received as their share of treasure trove a sum equal to about $110. Those bracelets are now in the British Museum.

Ventilating London.

Skyscrapers were advocated by Mr. A. Hudson, at a lecture at the Surveyors' Institution, for the purpose of ventilating London.

The best natural ventilator of London, said Mr. Hudson, was the Thames. The London parks were also most important ventilators.

The action of motors in stirring up germ-laden dust was a very serious item. In future, windows in many streets might have to be used purely for the admission of light. In that case the ventilation would chiefly have to be derived from shafts running down the middle of the house.

Mr. Hudson thought that tall blocks of buildings here and there throughout London would constitute health resorts for those who lived in the upper storeys, whilst those who lived in the neighborhood of these high buildings would have the ventilation of their houses vastly improved by the eddies round these lofty buildings.

Why They Cried.

"I say, mamma," said little Flossie, "why did Mrs. Brown cry at the wedding today?"

"Oh, because her dear daughter was getting married and leaving her."

"And why did Mrs. Jones cry?"

"Oh, because her dear son has left her."

"I see. And why did Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Simpson cry?"

"Oh, because they have ever so many daughters to get married and no sign of any of them going off."—Pearson's Weekly.

English Sunday Laws.

The most absurd of British laws is undoubtedly that forbidding a man pursuing his trade on Sunday. Apart from the moral aspect of the case, this law is constantly broken, and the cases being reported form an excellent advertisement for the lawbreaker.—London Telegraph.

STILETTO IN ENGLAND.

Revolver Is Growing In Favor as a Weapon.

Is the revolver becoming the stiletto of England? The question is prompted by the recent appalling list of crimes committed by this cheap, easily-used and easily-procured weapon in England. The list might have been said to culminate in the murder of Mr. Whitely but for the fact that since then there is a case in which a young railway porter is charged with shooting and wounding a girl.

An Impulsive Age.

The tendency of the age is undoubtedly toward quick decisions and active measures. The old-time deliberate, non-impulsive habit of the Briton has been influenced by the restless energy of the day. In restless, badly balanced minds the sense of proportion is lost in the need for instant action. Many deeds of violence, done on quite inadequate grounds, are reported which never would have taken place if the perpetrator had had the patience calmly to consider whether or not his method of righting his wrong, real or fancied, was in proportion to the offence.

In many murder cases tried recently it has been shown that the deed had not been deliberately premeditated. The murderer seems to have provided himself with a revolver, so as to be ready for any emergency, just in the way the Italian seems to carry a stiletto.

Act Decreases Sales.

Extensive enquiries made revealed the surprising fact that the gunsmiths' books show a falling off in the sale of revolvers of at least two-thirds since the act of 1903 was passed. That act requires the production of a license or other authority by a would-be purchaser, while the seller has to keep a careful record. The act has diminished remarkably the shooting crimes by gangs of young ruffians, such as those who made Clerkenwell infamous a few years before it was passed, but has not prevented suicide or crimes in which passion of some kind acts as the spur. There was a well-known case not long ago of a man obtaining a license to carry firearms from a postoffice, walking along to a gun shop, buying a revolver, proceeding a few yards farther to an hotel smoke-room, and shooting himself. The series of events occupied about twenty minutes.

Rural Training Cause.

A suggestion was thrown out by a member of a leading firm of gunsmiths that it is, as a rule, the man who is country-bred who uses the revolver when he means to injure or destroy life.

"I think if these cases were investigated," he said, "it would be found that the men concerned had either had a country training or were in the habit of going out shooting. The pure-bred townsman knows nothing of weapons; he would sooner use a knife or poison. But the man who has lived in the country has seen or has engaged in the destruction of animals by firearms. He is familiar with them, and hence his liking for the revolver."

The view was supported by one of the leading detective officers, though it struck him as being novel. He could hardly recall a case in which the man who shot to kill had not had country experience. Usually, however, it was slight. The true sportsman, if he commits suicide, uses one of his favorite guns, and hardly ever the revolver.

SCHOOLS VERSUS CRIME.

Elementary Schools In Great Britain Reduce Number of Criminals.

Since the year 1870 millions of money have been spent on elementary schools in Great Britain. Have the great results which were then anticipated been realized? It is very pleasant to note that the highest hopes of promoters of education thirty years ago are accomplished facts to-day.

In 1870 there were 30,000 people in jail, nearly 6,000 more than there had been ten years before. Now, though the population of the United Kingdom has increased by over fifty per cent., we have to-day only some 20,000 people in prison. That this good effect is due to our elementary schools is strongly suggested by the following table:

	1870.	Present day.
Population	22,500,000	34,000,000
Number of persons under sixteen in prison, reformatories, etc.	11,733	2,321
Total per 100,000 of the population	52	7

Photographs, again, will point out the improvement that has been brought about in Council School children's appearance.

Where, in 1870, we saw forbidding little semi-savages, we now see clean, neat children, with happy and intelligent faces.

Proper Way to Churn.

The agitation in churning should be as violent as the form of churn will admit, says Farm Progress. The churning is to be stopped while the butter is in the granular form. In order to have as thorough churning as possible the temperature of the cream should not be over 53 degrees.

The buttermilk should be drawn from the churn and the butter washed. The butter must be removed from the churn and salted while yet in the granular form. The amount of salt should be to the taste of the customer. For most people one ounce to the pound is required.

Dress Linings.

It is a very poor plan to economize on the linings of dress either in money or the care with which it is made. A cheap little dress made with absolute simplicity frequently looks better than one costing twenty times as much if the slip for the cheap dress has been well made of good silk. The waist and skirt should be fitted with as much care as the other dress, and the skirt must hang perfectly. Many costumes are spoiled by the underskirt hanging in loops and scallops that are noticeable whenever the dress is lifted.

The Soubrette.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT IN ENNISMORE

St. Patrick's Day Was Celebrated by St. Martin's T. A. S. With Good Concert In The New Hall.

A FINE PROGRAMME GIVEN

Examiner Special.

Ennismore, March 20.—Once more the capacity of the large township hall was taxed to its utmost to accommodate the large crowd that turned out from all parts to hear the annual concert, given by St. Martin's T.A.S. Over five hundred people found seating and standing room in the hall, and they came from Emily, Young's Point, Bridgenorth, Indian Village, Peterborough, in fact all the surrounding country had its representatives of eager listeners. The programme was as follows:—

Overture—Local Orchestra.

Song, "I'm the only Star that Twinkles on Broadway"—Wm. Bell.

Banjo selection, "Gimme Me Leavms"—J. K. Galvin.

Duet, "I'd Rather Play in My Own Yard"—Lorette Kennedy and Norval Crough.

Song, "Colleen Bawn"—Mr. T. E. Kyle.

Clog dance—Mr. Quinlan, of Peterborough.

Song, "Rip Van Winkle"—Thos Begley.

Sketch, in one act, "Is Marriage a Failure?"—Mr and Mrs. Kyle.

Part II.

Irish Airs—Orchestra.

Song, "Little Colleen"—Eliza Flood.

Step Dance—P M Twomey, of Ennismore.

Song, "Rory Darling"—Miss Gertie Moloney.

Irish Jig—O'Connor Brothers.

Banjo selection, "Whistling Mike" J. K. Galvin.

Song, "Kitty Tyrill"—Eveline Carew.

Song, "McGuire's Bike"—Wm Bell.

Dance and jig—Mr. Quinlan.

Song, "Sweet Vale of Avoca"—Ida Galvin.

Song, "Waltz Me Around" — Thos. Begley.

Irish play in one act, "A Touch of Nature"—Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kyle.

Song, "God Save Ireland"—Junior Choir.

God Save the King.

The above is the original programme, to which was added many hearty and well deserved encores.

Thos. Begley, a great favourite in Ennismore, was obliged to respond several times, and sang so encores "Girl Wanted" and "McNulty and his Desk." J. K. Galvin, the old reliable, came before the audience several times, and each time was most cordially received.

Misses Loretta Kennedy and Norval Crough were obliged to respond, and sang together, "When Papa Laid the Carpet on the Stairs."

Mr. T. E. Kyle was recalled three times, and at each recall pleased the audience more and more. And right here we wish to state, that Mr. and Mrs. Kyle, are just what they advertize to be, "Public Entertainers." They simply carry the audience with them. Their acting is of no ordinary quality. Mr. Kyle's portrayal of the "Irish Labourer," is simply perfect. Mrs. Kyle is a highly educated lady, and her education and refinement are clearly reflected in all her acting. We bespeak a warm welcome to both Mr. and Mrs. Kyle, should they decide to visit Ennismore again in their capacity of entertainers.

Miss G. Moloney sang "Rory Darling" in her accustomed good form, and received many well deserved compliments from Mr. and Mrs. Kyle for the excellent manner in which she accompanied them in their songs and plays.

Eveline Carew and Eliza Flood appeared for the first time before the foot-lights, and both give much promise for the future. Their songs were well received, as was also that of Ida Galvin.

The dancing during the evening was something new and most entertaining, Mr. Quinlan being obliged to come back several times.

The Junior Choir sang at the close, in excellent condition, "God Save Ireland."

Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick acted as chairman, and one of the best concerts ever held in Ennismore was concluded by singing the National Anthem.

Miss Gertrude Moloney and Miss Ida Galvin acted as accompanists for the evening.

The local orchestra, under the leadership of J. K. Galvin, is composed as follows: Richard Hickson, Wm. Hickson, Jas. Killen, J. K. Galvin, and Miss G. Moloney.

KEENE HOCKEY CLUB'S CONCERT

Kyle Concert Company the Entertainers —Funeral of the Late Miss Agnes Anderson—Other Keene News.

Keene, March 20.—Miss Lillian Bell left Monday for Sudbury, where she will spend a month with her sister, Mrs. Michael Galvin.

Mrs. T. Howson, Cavan, is the guest of her son, Mr. Gilbert Howson.

The sad death occurred on Saturday from Bright's disease, of Miss Agnes Anderson, after a long illness. The funeral was held Monday, interment taking place in Keene Cemetery, Rev. D. D. McDonald conducted the services. The pall bearers were John Lang, A. Shearer, W. Campbell, J. Graham, James Lang and Richard Hope. The funeral was largely attended. The deceased was born on Otonabee and was a daughter of Mr. James Anderson, one of the early settlers, and has resided continuously on the homestead. She is survived by two brothers, John, with whom she resided and William Anderson, M.L.A.

The Kyle Concert Company assisted by local talent, consisting of Mr. A. St. A. Smith, Miss Mabel Harrison, Mr. J. H. Scriver and Miss Margaret Bryce, will give a concert in the town hall Friday evening under the auspices of the Keene Hockey Club. The Kyle Concert Company have filled several engagements in nearby towns and have in every case so pleased the audience that they will no doubt be greeted with a crowded house on their appearance in Keene.

The L.O.L. gave a very enjoyable concert followed by an oyster supper and dance Friday evening. The affair reflects great credit upon the members of the lodge who spared no pains to make it a success.

Following is the programme:—

Chairman's address — Dr. W. T. Harrison.

Gramaphone selection.

Song—Miss Flora McLachlan.

Violin solo—Miss J. Elmhirst.

Dialogue, "An Army of Applicants" —Messrs. Stillman, Pue, Rennie, McGregor, Newton and Mathers.

Solo—J. Harry Scriver.

Recitation—Miss Flora McLachlan.

Solo—Miss Margaret Bryce.

Song, "Jolly Fishermen" — Harry Taylor, Fred Pue, Fred Moore.

Dialogue, "A Female Conversation" —A. Stillman, Thos. McIntyre.

Solo—R. J. McCamus.

Violin solo—Miss J. Elmhirst.

Dialogue, "Pat at the Post Office" —Messrs. McIntyre and Stillman.

AN ANGLER'S ELYSIUM

According to advertisements all summer resorts are alike. They are the best ever—but if fishing is better anywhere else than it is on "Georgian Bay" we do not know where it is. There is a greater variety of fish in this water than anywhere else, and they are always hungry. No one ever counted the fish in the Georgian Bay, but those that have been caught there have been counted and eaten, and if you read the Government reports on fisheries, you know that Georgian Bay supplies more fish than any other equal body of water in the world. The only place you can afford to fish is where the fish are numerous, big and delicious in flavour, and that place is Georgian Bay—so the fishermen say. Suppose you send for booklet, issued by Grand Trunk Railway System, free, telling about the home of the bass, pickerel, pike and the noble trout family. Address J. D. McDonald, Union Station, Toronto, Ont., [illegible] they will in future reside.

CAVAN RESIDENTS HONOURED

Mr. and Mrs. A. Reynolds Presented With Address and Tangible Marks of Esteem on Eve of Departure For This City.

AN INTERESTING EVENT.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Reynolds, who are shortly moving from Cavan to this city, were waited on at their home one night this week by a number of their friends and presented with an address, accompanied by a coon coat for Mr. Reynolds, and some fine china for Mrs. Reynolds, as evidences of the esteem in which they are held by those among whom they have lived for a number of years. The coming of their friends and their object was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds. After a delightful evening had been spent, Mr. W. T. Donaldson read the following address and the presentations were made:

Archie Reynolds, Esq.

Dear Sir,—We, a few of your many friends and your neighbours, desire, on the occasion of the removal of yourself and Mrs. Reynolds from Cavan to Peterborough, to express our regret at losing an old resident of Cavan and an old neighbour. We shall miss you because your absence means the withdrawal of one more from the worthy citizenship of Cavan, your native township. Here, where your life has been spent, you have earned the good will and respect of all who know you by your good qualities as a citizen in all capacities—and a worthy member of society, as an obliging neighbour, and as a large-hearted and generous friend. We are sure that you will carry these qualities to your new home, where they will win you the same esteem and respect that they have done in Cavan, and contribute to the prosperity and happiness which, we hope, will fall to your lot. In our expressions of regret and good will we would also include your worthy help-meet, so well worthy to share the respect which we wish, on this occasion, to show you both. In token of your good will, we ask your acceptance of this fur coat, which all who know you will consider an appropriate gift, because it will have a warm heart to keep it company, and we ask Mrs. Reynolds to accept this china.

As your neighbours, collectively, we take this opportunity of bidding you both goodbye, with the wish and prayer that you may both be long spared in health and happiness, and may win as many and as warm friends in your new home as you leave behind you in dear, old Cavan.

Mr. Reynolds expressed his deep appreciation of the honour done Mrs. Reynolds and himself, and assured his friends that they should never forget the many acts of kindness which had been shown them during their residence in that neighbourhood.

In the course of a short time they will come to Peterborough, where

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY MARCH 22 1907

STANDS SIXTEENTH

Peterborough's Building Operations for Last Year Estimated at $615,000.00—Well Up in List of Canadian Cities.

TORONTO IS THE FIRST

This Year Will Likely Show an Increase Over Last—Some Interesting Statistics Are Given

Ottawa, March 21.—The Labour Department has issued an interesting report on building operations in Canada last year. It applies to 41 cities of the Dominion, an estimate of the total values of the buildings erected being obtained in each case.

The total value of buildings erected in these cities was $58,140,294. Of this total, the city of Toronto contributed $13,160,398, being the locality in which building was most active in 1906. The city of Winnipeg stood second with a total of $12,-7660,450. Montreal third, with $8,-800,300, and Vancouver fourth, with $4,233,910. The remaining cities in which the value of building, during 1906, exceeded $50,000, were:

Port Arthur	$2,894,760
Hamilton	2,124,815
Edmonton	1869,069
Ottawa	1,728,975
Calgary	1,482,984
London	1,200,000
Fort William	1,152,240
Moose Jaw	843,221
Brandon	748,672
Victoria	699,300
Halifax	688,315
Peterborough	615,000
Belleville	600,000

In view of the fact that, by reason of the lack of any building permit system covering the whole city until this year, the amount of building operations carried on during last year can be but an estimate, and it is stated that the figures given above are under, rather than over, the actual amount of building carried on.

This year, with the establishment of a building permit system, it will be possible to arrive at a fairly correct estimate of the value of new buildings erected during the year.

CITIZEN COMPLAINS OF PROFANITY OF STREET CORNER BOYS

To-day's noon mail brought the following post card letter from one of the city's best known and most highly respected residents, and, since the matter complained of is one which everyone who spends much time on the streets has noticed, the letter is given the prominence to-day which the subject seems to demand. It is as follows:—

Dear Editor:

The rising generation especially of boys is becoming certainly intolerable. Boys for instance, ranging from the ages of twelve to seventeen years, daily, can be heard using "oaths" in their gangs at various corners in the town. This occurs chiefly around the corner of Hunter and Aylmer street. Here every day is a congregation of small and large boys and their language is certainly very abusive. An officer of the law should be stationed at this particular place to prevent all such language and disorder. It is not very appropriate especially when ladies are passing to hear such language.

Yours, etc.,
"AYLMER STREET."

MR. BRIGHT IS VERY POPULAR

Ingersoll Chronicle Refers to New Presbyterian Preacher in Most Complimentary Terms.

Rev. A. Bright evidently made a good impression when he preached in Ingersoll recently. The Chronicle, referring to the meeting at which the call was extended, said:

"The names of all the candidates who have been heard were submitted to the meeting and Mr. Bright received a very large proportion of the votes cast.

"Mr. Bright is a young man who made a very favourable impression when he preached here recently and the congregation of St. Paul's church are to be congratulated on their choice. Many outside of St. Paul's church will be pleased to welcome Mr. Bright to Ingersoll."

MAJOR STEVENSON WILL BE NEXT COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE 57th REGIMENT HERE

It will no doubt be news to the people of Peterborough to learn that Lieut.-Col. Miller, the veteran commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, will retire from active service in connection with the regiment after September 1 of this year, so that this will be his last drill season. His five-year term as commanding officer will have elapsed on that date, and, in accordance with the regulations governing the militia, will then have to retire from the command.

His successor will be Major Stevenson, the next in command, a popular and efficient officer, who will no doubt keep the regiment at the high standard which it has maintained.

Lieut.-Col. Miller made the announcement in reference to his retirement at the banquet of No. 7 Company last night, and asked the men to see that the last year of his command would be the banner one of the regiment.

Lieut.-Col. Miller has been connected with the Peterborough Rangers for over forty years, having enlisted in 1864. He joined as a private and has risen through the various grades of promotion until, in September, 1902, when he took command of the regiment, succeeding Lieut.-Col. F. B. Edwards. He has always been a most zealous and energetic soldier, and his enthusiasm may be judged when it is stated that for a period of eleven years he did not miss a drill.

Major Stevenson has had long service in connection with the regiment, has a thorough knowledge of the drill, and is esteemed and liked by every one in the regiment.

MAJOR STEVENSON, who will be the next commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers

For this lecture the public is cordially invited, those who are not yet members of the society, as well as those who have joined.

FAMILY ESCAPED IN NIGHT ROBES FROM THE BURNING HOUSE

Narrow Escape Which Mr. J. H. Deleslie's Family Had at Nassau—House Caught Fire in Middle of the Night.

HAD A VERY CLOSE CALL

Mr. J. H. Deleskie and his family had a very narrow escape from death on Wednesday night when his residence at Nassau was destroyed by fire. Mr. Deleskie is employed at the C.G.E. Company's power house at Nassau, having charge of the plant during the day. That night the family retired as usual, at about the usual time, and about midnight Mr. Deleskie was awakened by the smell of smoke and found upon investigation that the whole building was afire. He quickly awakened his wife and their family and escaped from the now furiously burning house with what few clothes they could pick up in their hurried flight, and they did not leave the house any too soon, because in a few minutes the building, which was of frame was a complete mass of flames and was burning so fiercely that it was impossible to do anything to check the fire. The few persons who live near and the night staff at the power house were on hand as soon as they learned of the fire, but the smoke was so thick and the fire burning so fiercely that it was impossible to save scarcely any of the furniture, which, with the house was totally destroyed.

It is supposed that the fire originated from the stove or in the chimney.

The building belonged to the Canadian General Electric Company, and it and the contents were insured, but not enough to cover the loss, which to Mr. Deleskie will be great.

WOODCHUCK WAS SEEN IN JACKSON PARK

Another sign of the advent of spring has been reported, and one in which much faith is placed, especially by the farmers, Mr. W. A. Stabler, the well-known local stock dealer, reports that he saw a woodchuck in Jackson Park yesterday. When the "ground hogs" make their appearance spring is certainly at hand.

VETERAN'S JEWEL GIVEN MR. NOYES

Presentation Made Last Evening by Dr. Morrow—Reply by the Recipient.

At the regular meeting of the I.O.O.F. last night Mr. Chas. Noyes of East City was presented with a veteran's jewel in honour of his having been an Oddfellow for a quarter of a century. The presentation was made by Dr. Morrow, accompanied by a verbal address, referring to Mr. Noyes' splendid record as one of the three-linked brethren.

Mr. Noyes made a suitable reply thanking his brethren for their kind remembrance.

Dozen Children Hurt In Railway Collision

Steam Railway Train Crashed Into Street Car in Detroit, Loaded with School Children.

SOME OF THEM MAY DIE

Examiner Special.

Detroit, March 22. — A dozen persons were injured to-day, two of them fatally, when an inbound Lake Shore train struck a Fourteenth avenue street car. A number of the injured are school children.

THE SPECIAL SERVICES CLOSE TO-NIGHT

Evangelist Torrie Leaves the City After Two Weeks of Very Successful Services in Park Street Church.

To-night Evangelist Torrie gives his last address, and the special services close with a thank-offering to cover the expenses of the mission. Miss Hamlin, of Midland, who has rendered such valuable service, will contribute one or two selections. The pastor is very anxious that all who rose during the meetings, desiring salvation, should be present to-night when they will be presented with a most valuable Christian Life Card, containing "Hints on True Christian Living," "Growth in Grace," "How to Begin a Christian Life," and "How to Use the Bible," a most useful souvenir of the revival. A very full house is expected. The song service commences at 7.45.

THE OFFICER WAS VERY VIGILANT

P. C. Newhall Quickly Recovered Pool Ball Taken From M. Pappas' Pool Room.

On Thursday night several young men were playing a game of pool in Mr. M. Pappas' pool rooms, 327-329 George street. After the game ended they left somewhat suddenly. When they had gone the attendant in charge discovered that one of the balls was missing. Mr. Pappas tried to find the boys but they were not in sight.

At about eight o'clock yesterday morning P. C. Newhall walked into the cigar store and pulling a pool ball out of his pocket asked Mr. Pappas if it were his. The ball was at once identified and the officer duly thanked. This was a prompt recovery and reflects great credit upon the prompt action and vigilance displayed by the officer.

Purse Found

A lady lost a purse yesterday and notified the police, saying that she thought she would never get it again. She did not know where she lost it. To-day it was returned by the Street Railway Company, on one of whose cars it was found by the conductor. There were nine five dollar bills in it.

A Peterborough Woman Looking For Husband

A Strange Story of the Visit of a Woman and Child to Lindsay—Said Her Name Was Flinders.

THE SEQUEL MISSING

The Lindsay Watchman-Warden tells the following mysterious story: "On Thursday morning, a young-looking English woman, not more than twenty years of age, if that, appeared on Kent street, dressed in a light coloured coat and suit, with red tam, and carrying a young child, possibly a year old, which was rather thinly clad. She visited Mr. Joseph Brown's grocery, where she asked for some food for the child, which was given. She stated that she came from Peterborough, and was looking for her husband, Flindell by name, and a cheese-maker by trade, who had left home without notifying her. The lower part of her skirt bore evidences of her having walked about for some time on wet sidewalks.

"She took the 10.55 a.m. G. T. R. train for Peterborough, and, in answer to an inquiry, stated that she had heard that her husband had been seen in Peterborough. She had evidently met with an acquaintance on the train, as a man came up and engaged in conversation with her as soon as she got aboard. It is natural to query what further light her full story might have given."

Not Much To Learn In The Telephone City

Brantford Expositor Says Inspector Ball Will Not Get Many Pointers There on Establishment of Scavenging System.

BRANTFORD BACKWARD

According to the statements of the Brantford Expositor, Sanitary Inspector Ball will not learn much that will be of benefit to him in connection with the institution of a scavenging system, on his visit to Brantford, as proposed by the Council. The Expositor, referring to his visit, says: Peterborough is sending its sanitary inspector to Brantford for a week to study the local garbage system. If the official in question is as progressive as the city he represents, it will take him considerably less than a week to master the details of the simple system in operation here. While the results thus far are fairly satisfactory, Brantford has been backward in the inauguration of an adequate system of scavenging, and affords fewer pointers in this department than can be had in some other cities which are better served along this line.

NO CONVENTIONS FOR THIS CITY DURING PRESENT YEAR

Conventions are giving Peterborough the go by, apparently, this year. The Master Bakers this week decided to pass Peterborough over for Toronto, and the A.O.U.W., the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of which was held in Toronto this week, though invited to hold their next annual meeting in Peterborough by Mr. J. J. Turner, who was the representative of the Peterborough Lodge, and who used his best efforts to secure the annual meeting for this city, decided that it would not be wisdom on their part to leave Toronto, where for a number of years the annual meeting has been held, and the result was that next year they will gather there again.

The Toronto Workmen were very generous to the delegates from outside points. They bought the Grand opera house outright for one night, and the visitors were guests of the Toronto members to see "Peggy from Paris."

Peasants Aroused Are Murdering The Jews

Seventy-five Murders are Reported as Having Taken Place Within the Last Twenty-four Hours---Women Outraged.

Examiner Special.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 22.—The roused peasants, who hitherto have refrained from killing, are now blood mad, and every Jew who offers the slightest resistance, is put to death instantly. In the last 24 hours, 75 murders have been reported, and more than 300 Jews have been badly wounded. Numerous cases of horrible outrages perpetuated against women have come to light.

Will Rev. H. B. Ketchen Return To Peterborough?

A Report in Hamilton to the Effect That Former Assistant Pastor of St. Paul's Church May be Here Again.

A STORY FROM HAMILTON

The Hamilton Spectator of yesterday had the following article in reference to a young Presbyterian minister who is well known, and, as the item states, exceedingly popular in Peterborough:

"There is a possibility that congregation of Macnab Street Presbyterian Church may lose its pastor, Rev. H. Beverly Ketchen. There was a rumour this morning that Mr. Ketchen had resigned, but the Board of Managers of the church say that this is not so. Some of them are afraid, however, that Mr. Ketchen may go if he gets the call to the church in Peterborough, of which he was assistant pastor before he came to Hamilton. It is expected that Mr. Ketchen may receive a call, as he is exceedingly popular in Peterborough. The people of Macnab Street Church would be sorry to lose Mr. Ketchen, as he has done splendid work since coming here, and he is a very able man. It is well known, however, that Mr. Ketchen was disappointed when the managers decided to retain the present church site, as he feels his work will always be circumscribed."

The Examiner communicated with one of the leading members of the church in question, and he stated that so far as he knew there was no truth in the report that Mr. Ketchen was likely to return to this city.

New Superintendent Of Indian Affairs

Mr. Gordon J. Smith, the New Appointee to That Office at Brantford, a Peterborough Boy.

MADE HONOURARY CHIEF.

The Paris Star-Transcript, in its last issue had the following reference to the new position which had been given to a former Peterborough boy, in the person of Mr. Gordon J. Smith, who will be remembered by many of the older residents of this city. The paper mentioned, says:

Mr. Gordon J. Smith, the new superintendent of Indian Affairs, with headquarters at Brantford, was last week at a meeting of the Six Nation Indians, on the Reserve, made an honorary chief of the Mohawk tribe, whose totem is a bear. Chief Smith's new name is "De-ha-kares," meaning long-visioned, far-seeing, or eagle-visioned.

Mr. Smith was born at Peterborough, and later studied the practice of law and graduated a "B.A." from Queen's College, Kingston, in 1886. He was called to the bar in 1889, and practised in Toronto, coming to Paris five years later. During his residence here Mr. Smith has always taken an active interest in all things tending for the betterment of the town generally. He was for three years a member of the Board of Education, secretary-treasurer of the public library board for six years and for some three years has held the position of chairman of the Board of Management in the Presbyterian Church. He was also prominent in Reform matters, and for the past eleven years has been secretary-treasurer of the North Brant Reform Association.

In athletics he took an active interest and was a member of the first Paris hockey team, when in 1895, they were champions of the S.O.H.A. Later he has been actively identified with the Paris Bowling and Golf Clubs. Although Mr. Smith does not propose leaving Paris for some time, yet when the break does come he will be sorely missed in a great many circles.

Peterborough Man Had A Very Narrow Escape

Mr. T. H. Crowley Was Within an Ace of Being Pulled Under Moving Train at Latchford on His Way Home.

AN EXCITING MOMENT

Mr. T. H. Crowley, a Peterborough man, who was up the Montreal River with a prospecting party, narrowly escaped being crushed to death under the wheels of a train at Latchford, on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Crowley was boarding a moving train when a trunk dropped from the baggage car, knocked him down and he fell between the platform and the track. Mr. Crowley's head and shoulders were on the rail and he could see the truck of the car coming towrds him. A bank of snow shelved from the platform to the track, and, pushing his elbow into the snow he dragged himself out off the way of the wheels in time to save himself. Mr. Crowley, however, was severely bruised by the truck of the car. When the injured man was boarding the train several men were getting on the steps ahead of him and this caused him to miss his hold. Mr. Crowley was lifted from the ground and taken on the train and he reached his home the next day.

COLD SPRINGS SOCIAL WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

About $30 Collected in Aid of Furnishing New Sunday School Hall.

A successful pie social was held at Cold Springs Union Sunday School, Otonabee, on Wednesday night, when about $30 was cleared in aid of the furnishing of the new hall. A large number were present at the social event, and sales of baskets were made all the way from 50 cents to $3.50. Mr. Alex. Huston acted in the capacity of auctioneer. Mr. Robert Henderson, the well-known comic singer, was present and rendered a number of delightful songs, and Mr. Hicks, of Otonabee, favoured the audience with numerous selections.

CHINESE MUST QUIT THE MINES

Transvaal Government Makes Strong Announcement.

TO EXCLUDE ALL ASIATICS

Employment of Chinese Will Cease at Early Date—Asiatic Ordinance to Be Re-Introduced—First Act of New Parliament — Will Repatriate Alien Mine Workers—Imperial Government Dare Not Oppose.

Pretoria, Transvaal, March 22.—The first Parliament of the Transvaal colony, under the newly-granted constitution, met here yesterday morning in the hall in which the late President Kruger presided for so many years over sittings of the Upper Volksraad of the South African Republic.

In a speech at the opening of the Legislature, the Earl of Selbourne, High Commissioner for South Africa, said:

"My Ministers have resolved that the employment of Chinese in the mines shall cease at the earliest possible moment. As to the Chinese already employed there, my Ministers will not take any steps to prevent their repatriation at the end of their indentures, unless they are convinced that such repatriation will have to take place before an effective substitute, either in the form of other unskilled labor or improved mechanical appliances, has been found."

The disposition of the new Government of the Transvaal to exclude all Asiatics from work in the mines is shown by the fact that the "Asiatic ordinance," recently disallowed by the Earl of Elgin, Secretary of State for the Colonies after it had passed the late Legislature, is again published in The Official Gazette here, indicating that among the first acts of the new Parliament will be a re-enactment of this measure, in spite of the opposition of the Imperial Government.

Dare Not Disallow It.

London, March 22.—The "Asiatic ordinance" which the Transvaal Parliament proposes to re-enact, although at the present time aimed specially at British Indians, who are ousting the small white traders in the Transvaal, is equally intended to exclude the Japanese or other Asiatics who are immigrating to South Africa in increasing numbers.

Sir Gilbert Parker, who represents colonists in the House of Commons on this question, is quoted yesterday in an interview as saying:

"If, as I am sure it will, the Transvaal Parliament re-enacts the Asiatic ordinance, the Imperial Government will hardly venture to disallow it again, as over 99 per cent. of the whites in South Africa thoroughly approve of it."

LABOR BILL IN SENATE.

Findings of Arbitrators Should be Accepted by Disputing Parties.

Ottawa, March 22.—In the Senate yesterday, upon the second reading of the Lemieux Labor Disputes Bill, Mr. Scott explained that the measure was drawn with the single idea of promoting peace in industrial Canada, while avoiding injustice to any individual or class.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell said he had followed in the press the comments of the employers and the unions on the bill, and as neither was fully satisfied with it, he had come to the conclusion that it must be a pretty good bill. He had noted that many amendments had been made to it in the Lower House, which had no doubt improved it, and made it more acceptable to both sides. As amendments had been accepted from the Opposition the measure was in no sense a party one.

Senator Cloran thought the bill a good one and was a credit to the Minister of Labor. The measure would remove friction between capital and labor. The country had been notified by the authorized leaders of labor in Parliament and out that the bill should go into force at once.

Senator Ferguson would have been glad if the Senate had been given more time before being asked to give second reading to so important a bill. While against coercion by labor, Senator Ferguson thought that the sympathy of the Senate should always be for the organization of labor, for capital was always organized. As the bill applied only to industries which were public utilities, which meant mines and railroads, it was probably only a tentative measure, which should be followed up by further legislation.

Senator Ferguson said he would like to have seen the bill declare that the find of the board of arbitration should be accepted by the parties to the dispute. He said that the Commons had given the bill thorough consideration and therefore the Senate might be able to get through with the measure within a reasonable time.

76 Suffragettes Go to Jail.

London, March 22.—Seventy-six "suffragettes," arrested Wednesday for brawling within the precincts of Parliament, were sentenced yesterday to from $5 or a fortnight in prison, to $10 or a month imprisonment.

They all elected to go to jail, and were taken away in the prison vans, amidst the mingled cheers and jeers of the crowds outside the police court.

SUCCESSION DUES WERE DISCUSSED

Fraternal Insurance Is Now Exempt From Duty.

STRATHROY DAIRY SCHOOL

Will Be Discontinued and Consolidated With School at O. A. C.—Government Control Over Public Utilities —Seek to Prevent Stock Watering — Charitable and Educational Bequests Not Dutiable.

Toronto, March 22.—With the exception of a few clauses held over by consent, the Government's joint stock companies bill is ready for the third reading. It was discussed at some length in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, particularly as to the control it exercises in respect to the capitalization of public utility companies. In regard to other classes of companies, it was pointed out by Hon. Mr. Hanna that the concurrent jurisdiction exercised by the Dominion makes such control impossible. These companies would simply get incorporation at Ottawa to do all they desired to do, and the only effect of trying to impose conditions here would be that the Province would be deprived of revenue. Several suggestions advanced by Mr. Graham and other members of the Opposition in regard to this and other measures were adopted. There was no night session, much to the relief of most of the members the arduous work in the House and in committees during the past few days having been very trying.

Strathroy Dairy School To Go.

Hon. Mr. Monteith, replying to a question by Mr Ross, said: "It is the intention of the Government to consolidate the two dairy schools in the western part of the Province, and after this year to carry on all instruction work at the Central Dairy School at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Nothing has yet been decided upon as to the disposal or future use of the building at Strathroy" (where one of the schools is now conducted).

Some Third Readings.

The following bills were given a third reading: Respecting the Town of Kincardine, Mr. Clark; to incorporate the village of South River, Mr. Mahaffy; respecting the village of Port Perry, Mr Calder; respecting the municipality of St Joseph; respecting the Superior Copper Co.

Insurance and Succession Dues.

Hon. Mr Matheson introduced two amendments to the act to consolidate the law relating to succession duties. The effect of the changes is practically that when insurance goes to the widow or children, grandfather, grandmother, father, mother or husband, no sum less than $5,000 shall be called part of the estate rendered liable to succession duties. This idea, which means the exemption of fraternal insurance, was suggested a few days ago by Hon. George P. Graham and received Hon. Mr. Matheson's approval.

Mr. Graham thanked the Provincial Treasurer for the amendment exempting fraternal society insurance. The loss of revenue will be small. "It will facilitate the work of reaching a settlement," added Hon. Mr. Matheson.

The other amendment extends exemption to subscriptions to charitable and educational institutions not paid at the subscriber's death, and paid from his estate afterwards.

Colonization Roads.

Hon. Dr. Reaume, in moving the second reading of his bill respecting colonization roads, said it was the first bill of its kind that had ever been introduced in the Legislature. The great object of the bill was to have the co-operation of the organized municipalities in the building of roads.

The New Companies Act.

The House discussed in committee the Government's bill respecting joint stock companies, which caused considerable discussion.

Hon. Mr. Hanna agreed with Mr. Clark (Centre Bruce) that if the number of shares was limited it might have the effect of preventing overcapitalization. But it was difficult to see how this could be done.

Mr. Graham added that they might even go farther, and hold investigations on applications for incorporations, with a view to checking overcapitalization.

Hon. Mr. Hanna said that all possible precautions had been taken in the bill in respect to over-capitalization of companies operating municipal franchises.

Mr. Graham favored the idea of limiting the number of shares. The Legislature should declare itself as opposed to over-capitalization. The department might exercise closer scrutiny over applications for increases in capital.

Control Over Stock Issues.

Mr. McDougal thought no issue of stock below par should be allowed. He questioned the advisability of giving the Lieutenant-Governor power to direct the issue of letters patents in terms and conditions different from those applied for in the case of public utilities companies.

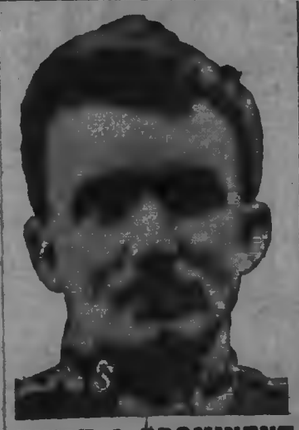
One clause of the bill was amended so as to make it clear that, provided they were not aware that the statements were untrue, promoters are not liable for false statements in prospectuses.

Mr. Graham asked as to the delay in bringing down some returns asked for by the Opposition, and Hon. Mr. Hanna promised to look into the matter.

Mr. McNaught gave notice of a bill respecting investments by trustees.

Montreal, March 22.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy gave out a statement yesterday in regard to the lines that will be under construction by the C. P. R. and for which allowances have been made in the appropriations.

The company has in hand extensions amounting to nearly 1,000 miles of new lines, while 700 miles of double tracking is to be done, as compared with 1,000 miles of construction on the Great Northern, 1,900 on the Grand Trunk Pacific and 1,500 on the Canadian Northern.



WHAT A PROMINENT SALVATIONIST OWES TO ZAM-BUK

Mr. R. C. Hurton, a prominent Salvation Army worker, who occupies the proud position of Deputy Band-Master at the Temple Toronto, has just proved how wonderfully beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of skin eruptions, pustules, etc. He says:—

"Pimples and sores broke out all over my face and neck, and notwithstanding all I did to try and remove them they continued to increase. They were not only very unsightly but very painful, and I was sadly troubled how to get rid of them. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and for several days I applied it to the face and neck, gently anointing the sore places. In a few days I perceived a marked improvement. The sores were not so angry and some of the inflamed patches became lighter in colour. I persevered with Zam-Buk after noting this satisfactory state of affairs, and it did not take long before the balm demonstrated its healing powers. I found it a splendid remedy, and it cleared both my face and neck in fine form. I was strongly recommend Zam-Buk to all who suffer from any skin eruption whatever and I trust the publication of my experience will lead others to prove how beneficial Zam-Buk is."

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for eczema, itch, blood poisons, ulcers, chronic sores, ringworms, children's rashes, spots, etc. It also cures, cuts, burns, bruises, chapped hands, enlarged veins, piles and all diseased or injured conditions of the skin and subjacent tissues. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Six boxes sent for $2.50. Send one cent for a dainty trial box.

REFRIGERATION'S GOOD RESULTS

Government's Cold Storage Policy Has Worked Well.

RE TRANSPORTATION NEEDS

Agitation Over Grand Trunk Pacific Accounts Fizzles Out—New Members Are Introduced—Subsidies to Prince Edward Island—Mr. Hyman's Case—Sir Frederick Borden Presents Report.

Ottawa, March 22.—The Minister of Railways was prepared to submit his Intercolonial Railway budget in the House last night, but he had to give way to Mr. Smith, member for Wentworth, who desired to discuss the perennial topic of cold-storage in relation to transportation. The debate had the effect of emphasising the activity shown by the Department of Agriculture in the direction of improving facilities for the transportation of perishable goods. In the earlier part of the session the agitation raised by the Opposition over the Grand Trunk Pacific accounts received its quietus, an amendment declaring that there was nothing before the Public Accounts Committee calling for inquiry, and that it was not necessary to enforce the production of papers which did not relate to any payment made, being carried by a large majority. An interesting incident at the outset of the proceedings was the introduction of the new members for l'Assomption and Richelieu, who were accorded a hearty reception.

Militia and Defence.

Sir Frederick Borden presented the annual report of the Department of Militia and Defence for the year ending Dec. 31, 1906.

Mr. Lefurgey put a question to the Premier in reference to the increase of subsidies to Prince Edward Island. He wanted to know the basis upon which the per capita grant of 80 cents per head was to be calculated, whether upon the present population or upon the Province's population at confederation. In reply the Premier said that the matter was now engaging the attention of the Minister of Justice, and a decision would be announced when the address to the King in reference to the subsidies was taken up in the House.

Mr. R. L. Borden asked whether the Premier had had any further communication from Hon. C. S. Hyman as to whether it was his intention to make valid the resignation which had been declared invalid.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Since the last communication I made to the House I have had no communication, directly or indirectly, with Mr. Hyman.

G. T. Pacific Vouchers.

Mr. Bennett resumed the debate upon Mr. Barker's resolution in reference to Grand Trunk Pacific vouchers, and succeeded in being twice called to order by the Speaker for wandering away from the subject to discuss dredging contracts, etc. He urged that it was the duty of the Government to give every facility to probe this matter to the bottom.

Mr. F. F. Pardee argued that instead of being censured the Government should be commended for its action in this matter. By its refusal to pass the accounts submitted by the Grand Trunk Pacific the Government had justified their choice as trustees of the British bondholders.

Mr. Ames argued that the credit and honor of the country were involved by what he called the suppression of the Grand Trunk statements.

Mr. Johnston's Amendment.

Mr. Alex. Johnston said it was a good thing that there were not many other members of the House like Mr. Ames, who patted themselves on their breasts and thanked God they were not like other men. He contended that the Public Accounts Committee had no right to investigate charges which do not involve the payment of public moneys, and moved in amendment to the amendment: "That this House will at all times insist on its rights to make through its committees the fullest investigation of all public expenditures, but does not deem it necessary or proper to authorize the Committee on Public Accounts to enforce the production of papers which do not relate to any payment of public money."

On a straight party vote Mr. Johnston's amendment to the amendment was carried by 114 to 49, and the motion as amended carried.

Transportation Needs.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Smith of Wentworth moved that it was the duty of the Government to take steps to provide adequate transportation for perishable goods.

The Prime Minister pointed out that a similar motion being on the order paper, therefore the present motion was out of order.

After dinner the Speaker ruled that Mr. Smith was in order in bringing the subject up.

Mr. Smith then proceeded to argue that the Government had not taken all the steps that were necessary to insure safe transportation. They should make regulations insisting upon the temperature of chambers on ships carrying perishable goods being maintained at the temperature of the ocean, and they should enforce them. With regard to land transportation, he maintained that the Government should see to it that the Railway Commission took the matter up earnestly and vigorously, and that cars carrying perishable products were properly ventilated.

Opposition Condemned.

Dr. Chisholm having supported the motion, the Minister of Agriculture pointed out that members of the Opposition were condemned out of their own mouths, having quoted what the Government had already accomplished. The great fault lay with shippers, who did not look after their products properly before they were handed over for transportation. Parliament had before it a measure which was an attempt to provide means for obviating the difficulty, and he was glad to see that since the measure was brought in there had been many applications made with a view of taking advantage of those proposals, and he was glad to announce that through private enterprise all goods shipped to the old country by the Allan Line of the C.P.R. would receive cold-storage accommodation. There was no country in the world but Denmark where such arrangements were made for dealing with dairy products as in Canada. All official information showed that products arriving from Canadian ports were received in better condition than those from United States ports. The amendment was lost.

The House went into Committee of Supply, and, miscellaneous estimates for expenditure of $91,000 having been passed, progress was reported, and the House adjourned at 11.45.

MONTREAL HAS BIG FIRE.

Firms on Notre Dame Street Lose $100,000—Fireman Injured.

Montreal, March 23.—Fire which caused $100,000 damage broke out in Notre Dame street at five o'clock yesterday morning. The firms interested are the Canada Tag and Label Co., D. Morrice, Sons & Co., wholesale woollens and cottons, and the Hudson Bay Knitting Co.

Joseph Bernier, a fireman, fell 70 feet, from the top floor to the cellar, the man escaping with but a few scratches.

The loss to the Canada Tag and Label Co. will amount to $50,000; to the Hudson Bay Knitting Co., $30,000; to D. Morrice, Sons & Co., $10,000, and to the buildings, $15,000.

MAN CUTS HIS THROAT.

Suicides Rather Than Meet His Old Sweetheart.

Montreal, March 23.—Jack Freebody, a well connected Englishman, committed suicide yesterday because the girl who had jilted him in England and married his elder brother had changed her mind and was on her way to Canada to seek him.

He killed himself in the boarding house of H. Waugh, 167 St. Antoine street. He was about 25 years of age, and had been employed by the C.P.R.

Mr. Waugh went to No. 6 police court and informed Capt. Bourgeois that a man had just cut his throat. Capt. Bourgeois went back with Mr. Waugh and found Freebody dead on the floor of one of the bedrooms. At the left side was a knife and a razor.

In the pockets were $24.25, a gold watch and ring, and in his grip were letters from his mother and sister in England.

NEARLY CAUSED FIRE.

Plumber Took Lighted Match Too Near a Leaky Gas Pipe.

Chatham, March 23.—A plumber with a lighted match and big leak in the gas pipe at the Collegiate Institute were the cause of a terrific explosion here yesterday that shook the whole school and tore up gas pipes all over one room. The plumber was severely burned about the head and hands, and had a narrow escape from being burned to death. There was a panic in the school, but this was soon allayed.

The school house at Charing Cross, near here, a frame building erected 25 years ago, was burned to the ground last night. Loss $3,000.

Could Not Speak Above a Whisper

COLD IN THE CHEST SEEMED TO BE UNMOVABLE, BUT CURE WAS SOON EFFECTED BY

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

It is waste of time to use ordinary cough mixtures for serious colds on the chest, and time is of infinite value when the lungs are in danger.

The risk is too great, especially when you wait to think that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is for sale in nearly every store that keeps medicines at all.

This letter gives you some idea of the effectiveness of this great medicine.

Mrs. A. Burnum, Ingersoll, Ont., writes: "My husband had a very severe cold on his chest, and got so a whisper. The cough medicines he tried seemed to have no effect, and, reading about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine I sent for a bottle. In two days he was cured and is very grateful for such a medicine. He says we will never be twithout this medicine in the house."

The very name of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is sufficient to explain the simple and yet powerful and well-known ingredients of which this great medicine is composed.

While linseed sheaths the mouth, tongue and throat with a protective coating to prevent injury from hard coughing, turpentine disinfects and stimulates the ulcerated parts of the bronchial tubes and lungs and is almost specific for bronchitis.

Other ingredients, which, along with these, go to make up Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, soothe the nerves, loosen the cough, aid expectoration, and by thorough action on the whole system, completely cure coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, whooping cough and sore throat.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.—10.

BATTALION OFFICERS OBJECT TO DISPOSAL

Of Scrapings From the Streets Around Their Quarters in Central Park.

Some of the scrapings off the Market Square and the streets were being placed on Central Park as a fertilizer for the grass. While it was placed there the military men made no objection, but it was also dumped on the Government property near the drill sheds. When dried in the summer time the odour is not the best, and for this reason a complaint was registered, as the officers' quarters are near at hand. Last spring the same incident occurred, and the militia won the day, and they endeavoured again to prevent the disposal of the scrapings under the windows of their quarters, thus being the cause of evil smells.

ARE ASKING FOR NEW TENDERS

Board of Education Decided Upon That Step Last Night.

The Board of Education last night decided to advertise for new tenders in connection with the enlarging of the North Ward School. The Board met in committee of the whole and decided upon this step so that it is not possible to give a detailed account of the meeting. The Board advertised for tenders some time ago and the delay that ensued resulted in the contractors wishing to increase their figures, as the cost of building had gone up in the meantime. It was for this reason that the board decided that the easier way to settle the matter was to advertise for new tenders.

Varicose Ulcers Cured

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, No. 20, Sheridan avenue, Toronto, states: — "About eight years ago I hurt my leg near the ankle, and the result was what the doctors called varicose ulcers. I was treated in two Toronto hospitals and sent away without being cured. From the very start Dr. Chase's Ointment helped me, and by persistent use it has entirely cured me."

ACCIDENT POLICY CAME IN HANDY

Mr. R. A. Morrow Received Cheque for $650 From the Fidelity and Casualty Company for Illness.

Mr. R. A. Morrow, jr. has received a cheque through Mr. G. B. Stevenson for $650 from the Fidelity & Casualty Company, the accident and disability insurance people. Last August Mr. Morrow took out a $10,000 double indemnity policy with the Fidelity & Casualty Co. He paid the first premium of $60 and some time later took sick. He was unable to attend to his duties for 26 weeks and during all this time the company paid him $25 a week. Mr. Morrow wishes to express his sincere thanks for the company's prompt settlement of the claim. He is naturally delighted that he had the policy and he would not be without one now. His father who has been dealing more or less with insurance companies all his life says he never knew of a settlement made more promptly. Mr. G. B. Stevenson is the direct agent, and Mr. Geo. E. Elliott, special agent. 3d1w-682816

WELL PAID ASSASSINS.

Slayers Get From $2. to $2,000 For Each Murder.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Sensational testimony to the effect that the Reactionary League of the Russian people hired men to murder Ivan Petrunkevitch, the noted Liberal member of the first Parliament, and also contemplated the assassination of M. Ramischwill and M. Dshaparidge, former members of Parliament, to terrorize that body, was given at the trial of the murderers of Professor Hertzenstein, the member of the Lower House, who was killed near Terioki, Finland, on July 31, which was resumed this week in Finland.

The prosecution placed on the stand a soldier named Kriks, who had been a member of the fighting organization of the reactionary party, and who testified to receiving various sums of money from M. Yushketvitch, a leader of the league of the Russian people, in order to induce him to kill M. Petrunkevitch.

Kriks gave details of various crimes committed by the group and furnished a mass of hearsay evidence, detailing the murder of Professor Hertzenstein and the plot to assassinate M. Ramischwill and Dshaparidge. He said the prices paid for assassinations ranged from a couple of dollars for minor murders to $15,000 for killing Professor Hertzenstein.

The testimony was admitted by the court, and the trial of the defendants was adjourned until April 16.

AGAINST CHANNEL TUNNEL.

British Parliament Gives the Project Its Death Blow.

London, March 22.—The revived project of tunneling the English Channel received its death blow, at least for a long time to come, by the announcement of the Government's decision against the enterprise in Parliament yesterday.

Premier Campbell-Bannerman, in the House of Commons, and the Earl of Crewe, lord president of the council, in the House of Lords, made identical announcements to this effect, which were echoed and approved by Mr. Balfour, the Opposition leader in the Lower House. It is understood the bill will be withdrawn.

"Even if the military dangers could be guarded against," said the Premier, "their would be a feeling of insecurity, leading to constant demands for increased naval and military expenditure and creating a feeling of alarm, which would not be compensated for by the advantages of the tunnel."

MADHOUSE IS IN SIGHT.

Experts Sign Declaration That Thaw Is Still Insane.

New York, March 22.—District Attorney Jerome yesterday presented to Justice Fitzgerald eight affidavits in support of his contention that Harry K. Thaw is in such a state of lunacy or insanity as to be incapable of understanding the proceedings against him, or of making his defence.

The court was in session for less than an hour, Delphin M. Delmas, for the defence, stating that their answer to the district attorney's proposition was not ready. Justice Fitzgerald allowed both sides until Saturday afternoon to file such affidavits and exhibits as are to be offered.

Neither the jury nor Thaw was in court yesterday. The jury having been excused until to-day, when there will be a brief session, and a formal adjournment until Monday morning. By Monday Justice Fitzgerald, it is expected, will be ready to announce his decision.

Dr. Hamilton Turned Down.

Jerome pleaded for permission to examine Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton orally, but, in the absence of a waiver of professional privilege on the part of the defence, Justice Fitzgerald said he would not allow the alienist to be examined at present.

Justice Fitzgerald added significantly that he would take judicial notice of everything which had been adduced in evidence during the nine weeks of the trial.

Dr. Hamilton testified Wednesday that, in his opinion, Thaw is not capable at present of directing his defence. The question was put to Dr. Hamilton by Attorney Gleason of the defence, and Jerome now contends that the defence thus waived the matter of professional privilege.

The attaches of the district attorney's office are inclined to the belief that Dr. Hamilton, having already stated his opinion to Justice Fitzgerald, the latter deemed it unnecessary to precipitate an argument as to the waiving of professional privilege. The defence seemed inclined to the view that Justice Fitzgerald held, that Dr. Hamilton's evidence could not be taken into consideration, and that, consequentially, the district attorney's position was materially weakened.

Affidavits of Experts.

Jerome's affidavits, submitted yesterday, embraced the opinion of his seven experts, and a statement by Irvin S. Cobb, a newspaper reporter, who furnished the text of the statement which Thaw issued at the conclusion of Jerome's long and severe cross-examination of his wife.

Jerome called particular attention to one signed by Dr. Carlos F. McDonald, in which he declares he is firmly convinced that Thaw is suffering from paranoia, and that he is and for some time has been incapable of understanding the proceedings against him.

The reporter, Cobb, sets forth the ideas connected with Thaw's dramatic manner of issuing his statement concerning Jerome's cross-examination of Evelyn Thaw.

All these facts were narrated at the time; Thaw's insisting that the reporter should sign and seal an envelope containing the original of the statement and should compare the original with the typewritten copies which were handed to him for distribution among the other newspaper men at the trial.

Jerome Is Convinced.

Jerome occupied most of the short session with a personal explanation of the reasons which hindered him from earlier calling the attention of the court to Thaw's present state of mind. He said he had long been convinced that the defendant was of unsound mind, but he had no way of legally bringing the matter to the attention of the court until Dr. Hamilton was put on the stand by the defence.

Jerome said he could not have called Dr. Hamilton on account of the professional privilege the defence could have interposed as a bar to any testimony the expert might have had to offer.

Delmas declined again to waive any privilege with regard to Dr. Hamilton, on the ground that, if the district attorney's contention as to the present insanity of the defendant is sound, his lawyers have no right to waive anything for a lunatic.

All the attorneys were present, however, when Justice Fitzgerald took his place on the bench. Mr. Delmas alone was heard by Justice Fitzgerald. Twice Mr. Hartridge attempted to enter into the argument, but each time he was rapped down by the justice.

ARMY RESERVE OUT.

Roumanian Government Will Suppress Disorders.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 22.—All the army reserves have now been called out to join the colors, with the result that the Government has at its disposal plenty of troops to enable it speedily to suppress the agrarian troubles. Large numbers of Jews from Jassy, Vaslui, Botesahni and other Moldavian towns, which have been terrorised by the excesses of the peasantry, have arrived here, seeking refuge and assistance. They assert that the Russian portion of the population largely participated with the peasants in the plundering and incendiarism at Botesahni. According to the latest advices received here from that town quiet has been restored there.

Precipitated a Riot.

The calling out of the army reserves at Berlad, Moldavia, led to serious rioting. The men, as a rule, were peasants who sympathized with those who had been raiding the country, and some 350 of them, before donning their uniforms, paraded the streets of Berlad, smashing windows by wholesale and plundered several shops. The police ultimately restored order.

The reinforcements now going on to the front are large drawn from Wallachia, so as to avoid the possibility of the soldiers fraternizing with the disorderly peasants.

Annual Dinner Of No. 7 Company Was Enjoyable

Officers Gave Their Men a Pleasant Evening Last Night---E'Sprit de Corps Displayed Was Great.

If the esprit de corps and the good fellowship that was displayed at the annual banquet tendered by the officers of No. 7 Company of the 57th Regiment to their men may be taken as an indication, the company will have a most successful season this year. The affair was held last night at Hooper's Palm Parlours and was a great success in every way. About twenty-five of the officers and men of the company gathered around the festive board, and Lieut.-Col. Miller and Sergt. Major Brittain were present as guests of honour. Adjutant Walker, and the chaplain of the regiment, Rev. Canon Davidson, had also been invited to be present, but, owing to previous engagements, were unable to attend, and their absence was regretted by officers and men alike. The feature of the gathering was the spirit of enthusiasm that seemed to permeate every member of the company, which promises great things when the annual drill season commences. It was evident that the officers and men are on the best of terms, that the men respect and like their superiors, while the latter are doing everything in their power to make the lot of the privates as pleasant as good treatment can make it.

Mine Host Hooper had prepared, in his usual efficient manner, a bountiful repast, which the company attacked gallantly in close formation, and emerged from the engagement, in good order and without losing a man.

The Toast List

After this important part of the evening's programme was completed, an informal toast list was run off. Many enjoyable and patriotic speeches were made, and the evening passed very pleasantly, while the good advice offered the men by their officers can not fail to be productive of good results.

Capt. R. F. McWilliams acted as toast-master, and called upon the gathering to drink the toast to the King, which was honoured in true, soldierly fashion by the red-coats.

Commanding Officer

Capt. McWilliams then proposed the toast to the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Miller, which was drunk with enthusiasm, amid the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow."

Lieut.-Colonel Miller made a patriotic response, which was frequently interrupted by volleys of applause. In beginning, he expressed his pleasure at being present at such an enjoyable function, which, he said, always tended to do much for the regiment. The speaker referred to the fact that he had been connected with the 57th for over forty years, rising from the ranks to be commanding officer of the regiment. He stated that he had been as proud of the uniform which he wore as a private, as that which he now wears as colonel. For a period of eleven years he did not miss a drill.

Speaking of his reasons for joining the regiment, Lieut.-Col. Miller said that he did not know of any other sport that could do a man so much good, morally or physically, as drilling in the militia. He spoke of the good effect which drill has in building up a man's physique. There are other reasons as well, why young men should join the militia. "What greater honour can any young man want," he asked, "than to know that he is preparing himself for the service of his king?"

The speaker referred to the glorious record of the soldiers of the British Empire and to the exploits of the Canadian troops in the South African war.

Speaking of the 57th Regiment, Lieut.-Col. Miller had nothing but good words to say. He spoke in glowing terms of their conduct in Brantford last year, and stated that he had been proud of them at that time. In fact, whenever they had been called upon to make a special effort they had always responded nobly.

The speaker announced the fact that this would be his last year in command of the regiment, as his five year term of office would elapse on the first of September. He therefore asked the men of No. 7 Company to do their part in making the year a banner one.

In conclusion the speaker asked the men to be loyal to their officers, whom, he said, were most anxious to promote the welfare of the regiment, and to see that the men were well drilled.

Sergt. Major Brittain

Sergt.-Major Brittain made a neat speech, giving some incidents in connection with his training with the Permanent Corps of Canada. The references were enjoyed by the men, to whom he gave some advice that will, no doubt, prove helpful to them when they don their uniforms for the season's drill. Sergt.-Major Brittain was greeted with great applause when he rose to speak, and the gathering sang "He's a Jolly, Good Fellow," once more.

The Captain

Captain McWilliams was warmly received when he arose to speak and made a patriotic speech, containing many helpful pointers to the men. He said that he was particularly interested in No. 7 Company, inasmuch as he was the only captain that company had ever had. He stated that this year, owing to municipal business, he would be unable to attend the drills very much during the early part of the season, at least, and that Lieut. J. W. Kelly would have command of the company during that period. He referred to the benefits to be derived from a military training and expressed the hope that No. 7 would be the best company in the regiment this year with the others scrapping for second place.

The Subalterns

Lieut. Kelly and Lieut. Best, the subalterns of the company, next addressed the men in neat speeches. Both asked the men to do everything in their power to help along No. 7 Company, and referred to the pleasant relationships which had existed in the past.

From The Men

Sergt. Hall, Corporal Spencer and Pte. Ed. Wood, made good speeches on behalf of the men, referring to the many kindly acts of the officers of the company. Private Wood proposed the health of the officers which was heartily honoured.

Lieut. Kelly proposed the toast to the press, which was responded to by the representatives present, after which a most enjoyable and pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

The Millinery Opening Of Peterboroughs Biggest Store

Messrs. Richard Hall & Son, Limited, Make a Magnificent Display of Spring Goods---Biggest in the History of the Firm.

THE BIG STORE WAS CROWDED ALL DAY TO CAPACITY.

Peterborough's biggest store, the establishment of Richard Hall and Son, Limited, held its annual spring millinery opening yesterday, and the event was a notable one in the history of the store. The display of goods in all departments was the biggest ever shown by the firm, and to the thousands of people who visited the store yesterday afternoon and evening it was a revelation of what a modern establishment can produce. The store throughout all its branches was thronged all day, and the best thing about it, from the standpoint of the firm, is that they bought freely. In fact, the sales yesterday were larger than ever before at an opening, and the ladies that crowded the store were loud in their praises of the beautiful goods displayed and at the lowness of the prices, two features, quality and comparative cheapness, that tend to make the establishment most popular. It is a significant fact that Messrs. Rich. Hall and Son, Limited purchase every article they sell direct from the makers, doing away with middleman's profit entirely.

The crowd that was present yesterday was the largest that the firm has ever had at a millinery opening. Both in the afternoon and evening the store was crowded throughout all branches. Usually most of the crowd confine their attentions to the millinery department. Such was not the case yesterday, however, as every section of the store came in for its portion of praise and attention. Everyone seemed satisfied and delighted with the magnificent goods shown and the prices charged.

The Centre Attractions

The millinery department on the second floor was a popular section, and deservedly so, for never has there been a grander display of millinery in connection with the establishment. Hundreds of the newest and most dainty models were displayed to great advantage in the splendid show cases with which the section is surrounded. The hats shown include all varieties, but all are new and beautiful. Some of the pretty styles of this season noticed are the following:

The "Air-Ship" Hat, which is very much in vogue this season, is made of a mohair hood on wire frame, beautifully trimmed, with tipped plumes and black velvet ribbon, with two pretty jet darts, making it very stylish and effective.

The new "Collie Busby" hat, a pressed Milan shape, trimmed with soft, feathery, blue wings, two pretty blue darts and ribbon, and soft, fluffy tulle on bandeau. This is in Copenhagen blue.

The Leghorn

The drooping "Leghorn" Hat, with pink tulle folds let in on edge, shaded roses disposed in a very graceful manner in and about the crown. The bandeau is trimmed with shaded ribbon and maline.

These are only samples of the many beautiful designs which are being shown by Messrs. Richard Hall and Son, Limited. A newspaper report could not do justice to the magnificence of the display, and the best advice that can be given the ladies of Peterborough is to go and see for themselves.

The Carpet Department

The carpet department, also on the second floor, was another section that was thronged with visitors all day yesterday. Undoubtedly the finest display in this line ever seen in Peterborough is shown here in the mammoth department, which is 100x25 feet in size.

A feature of the display is the showing of a magnificent Tashkent rug of the style of Louis XVI., truly a work of art, the retail price of which will be $125. The colouring and shading of the rug are such as to bring forth the greatest admiration from all who have seen it. In size, the rug is nine feet by twelve feet. The firm are also showing shadow draping of the same period and style to match the rug.

The establishment makes a specialty of window and door drapings, which are made to order by the firm to suit all styles of decoration.

There is a remarkable showing of all lines of carpets, Axminster, Brussels, tapestries, etc., undoubtedly the biggest display ever made in Peterborough. There are one hundred varieties of Axminster and velvet rugs, ranging in price from $21 to $125, and all of these are shown without seams, and woven in one piece.

The Mantle Department

New designs in mantles are shown in the mantle department, also on the second floor. The display made this year is larger and better than ever before, and the cloaks and mantles found here include the latest styles of the leading centres of fashion. Among the host of magnificent mantles shown, attention was directed to a pretty taffeta silk coat, which is a feature of the display. The coat is 48 inches long, with embroidered trimming around the lower part of the skirt eyelet embroidered collar extending out to the edge of the shoulder lending a beautiful effect; military cuff design with eyelet work, to match collar, and streams of silk ribbon extending down the front. The pretty mantle will be sold at $20.

Downstairs Department

Every department down stairs shows the same magnificence and high quality in the goods they display. The store was beautifully decorated for the occasion by Mr. Harry MacDonald, whose cleverness in this line is winning him a wide reputation. A lattice work, decorated with ivy vines, plays a prominent part in the decorations, while with the muslin goods displayed, are exhibited beautiful lithographs, showing the goods as they will look when made up.

The stock downstairs is a magnificent one, in every line of hosiery, gloves, laces, collars, dress goods, staples, etc, the goods displayed being of especially high quality.

The dress goods department at the rear of the ground floor contains a larger stock than usual. A special feature in connection with this section of the store is the display of checks and stripes and of the light colourings in tweeds, especially suited for early spring wear.

In connection with the downstairs department, the firm have a new feature in the presence of a lady, who is a specialist in trimmings, and who devotes her whole time to this feature, being able to advise purchasers of dress goods as to the nature of the trimmings that would be best suited to the material they have selected.

The staple department has been doubled in size, and a very large stock of the finest articles that can be purchased anywhere are to be found here.

The Window Dressing

Messrs Richard Hall & Son are nothing if not consistent, and so the progress found in every other department of the store, is strikingly displayed in the window dressing. The three large windows of the store contain the finest samples of artistic and modern window dressing that has ever been displayed by the firm. Mr. Harry MacDonald, who dressed the windows, is to be congratulated upon the magnificent display that he has arranged.

A feature of Mr. MacDonald's work is that the colours he selects blend and harmonize so nicely. Good taste, and not gorgeousness, is evidently his motto, and he has certainly carried it out in the beautiful windows which he has prepared for the grand opening. The dress goods window, the largest of the three is magnificently dressed, the background being of lattice work and violets, while in the foreground are three figures artistically draped, one in mauve, one in pale blue silk poplin, and the third in a biscuit shade of poplin.

The carpet window is decorated entirely in one colour, an idea very much in vogue just now in room decorating.

The third window, containing muslin, represents scenes of spring. The idea is a novel one and very cleverly carried out by Mr. Macdonald.

Richard Hall & Son, Limited, now employ some 125 people in connection with their establishment, which gives one some idea of the immensity of the concern. Their two first-class dressmakers, have each in their department about sixty hands.

As an indication of the magnificent display shown by Richard Hall & Son, a commercial man was heard to say that he had never seen such a grand display even in the big cities.

HONOURS SHOWN TO MR. TURNER

Was Elected District Deputy Grand Master of A. O. U. W for This District at Annual Meeting.

Mr. J. J. Turner has returned from Toronto, where he has been attending the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of the A.O.U.W., held in that city. Mr. Turner reports a most successful meeting and states that the affairs of the Order are in a satisfactory condition.

At this session of the Grand Lodge Mr. Turner was given the honour of being elected to the office of District Deputy Grand Master for this district, which embraces about twelve lodges, from Brighton on the east to Whitby on the west, and north between these two towns. It will necessitate considerable travelling over the district for Mr. Turner, paying his official visits to the lodges in his jurisdiction.

OBITUARY

ISABEL MEHARRY

At the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. Jones of Maripoaa township, Isabel Meharry, relict of the late Mr. William Hooton, passed away at the age of 76 years. The death occurred yesterday morning at 2 o'clock. The deceased was a long resident of Canvan, where her children, five girls and two boys, are living. Her husband predeceased her 13 years ago. The late Mrs. Hooton was a devout member of the Methodist church. The remains arrived in the city to-day at noon and the funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon to the cemetery, 9th line of Cavan, from the homestead, concession 13, same township.

MARGARET RITCHIE

This morning at 11 o'clock, the death occurred of Margaret Ritchie, wife of Mr. Martin Connors, proprietor of the City Hotel, George street. The deceased has been ill for a long time, suffering from nervous debility, and the death of her brother some time ago also greatly affected her. The deceased is the last member of a family of five, parents and two boys and herself.

The late Mrs. Connors was born in the vicinity of Port Hope, 54 years ago, 29 years ago she was married to Mr. Connors, and with him removed to this city a year later. Thus they have been residents of this city for 28 years and respected members of the community. The deceased was of a quiet disposition, were special cares were in the interests of her family. Her husband, two boys and one daughter, will mourn the loss of a faithful wife and a kind and loving mother. The sons are John and Thomas, and the daughter, Miss Clara, all of whom reside at home. The sympathy of their many friends is extended to Mr. Connors and family in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

Mr. Hugh Regan Returns After Winter's Work as Foreman for Turner Lumber Company and Tells of Conditions.

THE INDUSTRY IS BOOMING

Mr. Hugh Regan, who for a number of years has filled the position of walking boss for the Turner Lumber Company, with limits on the North Shore, is home after his winter's work, superintending the woods operations of the Company. Mr. Regan reports that the past season has been a most successful one so far as the work in the woods is concerned. There has been just enough snow to make the work comparatively easy, and the result is that in all the limits along the North Shore of the Georgian Bay report record cuts of timber, and the Turner Company, along with the others.

Mr. Regan states that the lumber industry in that portion of the province is in a very flourishing condition. The depletion of the pine of Northern Michigan has resulted in the American millmen looking towards Canada for their supply of timber, and the action of the late Ontario Government in prohibiting the export of logs has had the desired result, that of inducing the American saw mill men to locate their mills in Canada. The present year is one of the most prosperous in the history of the industry in Canada, and Mr. Regan sees no reason why there should be any depression in the near future. There is a good demand for Canadian lumber, both at home and abroad and with the rapid expansion in the building operations taking place all over Canada the lumber trade is assured for years to come.

After remaining home for a short time Mr. Regan will leave again in the near future for the North Shore to superintend the drive of the logs to the mills. Enough timber has been gotten out this winter to keep the mills running steadily from early spring to late in the fall.

City Grocers May Combine To Prevent Cutting Of Prices

Correspondence to the Canadian Grocer Embodies Suggestion of an Organization---"Slow Pay and Dead Beat" System Would be Eliminated.

Peterborough now is ripe for the organization of a retail grocers association. It has been felt by the grocers for a long time that such a move should be made. The men catering to the necessities and luxuries of teh inner man are not ignorant of the great benefit an association would be to them. They are perfectly aware of all that, and so far not a man has said he would not join in the undertaking. On the contrary nearly everyone has said that he would gladly do all he could to help it along.

Since the agitation has been started by The Canadian Grocer the merchants have renewed their interest in the movements. They have read the letters in the Grocer from H. C. Beckett and from the other correspondents. They fully appreciate the weakness of individualism in trade and the strength of unity. They agree with many of the suggestions thrown out and have several other to offer which would be applicable to the whole Dominion.

A Leader wanted

The trouble here is who will take the lead? A grocer in business, taking to the public every day cannot take up the organization without great loss to his own business. At the same time it is felt by many that the organizer should be a man who understands the grocery business.

One suggestion is that an outside man, that is, a local man not in the grocery business, be engaged to call on every grocer in the city; explain to him the objects of the association in detail, ask him to sign a paper agreeing to become a member and to help the movement along. After this work had been completed and the great majority of the grocers had signed, a meeting could be called and the organization proceeded with. None of the members would be injured by those who stayed away, and for the simple reason that the majority would control the trade.

Two Many Dead Beats

One great object of the association, aside from any relationship with the wholesale houses which of course, would be one of the main features, is to disestablish the "slow pay and dead-beat system." Hundreds of dollars are lost every year, it fact, thousands of dollars, by the professional "dead-beats," and this city as well as every other city is full of them. With an organization the permanent secretary would be authorized to go over the books of each grocer every month and pick out the "slow pay and dead-beat" accounts. These names he would keep alphabetically in a book and whenever a merchant desired any information about a person desiring credit all he would have to do would be to call up the secretary and walk down to see him. A complete list of such accounts could be kept and the merchants could save hundreds of dollars.

One Price System

Another object is to establish and maintain throughout the entire city a one price system. The executive would be empowered to watch the market and regulate the local prices so that the customers would get the full benefit of any reduction and still the merchant would do business at a profit. It would abolish the system of cutting prices selling at and below cost and every man would be on an equal footing.

As far as joining in with the wholesale men or accepting any assistance from them, other than mere suggestions, the merchants here would strongly oppose it.—Canadian Grocer.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S QUEUE

It Hid a Luxuriant Suit of Straight and Very Dark Hair.

The Father of his Country concealed a luxuriant suit of hair beneath his queue wig. Many now wish the old fashion were in vogue, to conceal thinned hair or baldness. Yet no one need have thin hair nor be bald, if he cure the dandruff that causes both. Dandruff cannot be cured by scouring the scalp, because it is a germ disease, and the germ has to be killed. Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ—no other hair preparation will. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." There's no cure for dandruff but to kill the germ. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. The Market Drug Store (late Ormond & Walsh).

SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR A MEMORIAL FUND

A letter has been received here from Mr. Geo. A. Stiles, barrister, of Cornwall, requesting that a subscription be taken up to assist Mrs. McCourt, the mother of the late "Bud" McCourt, who met death in a hockey match not long ago. The local hockey club have generously decided to start the contribution with a sum of money, and any private citizens who may sympathize with the bereft mother, are requested to hand in their contributions to Mr. C. G. Graham, at the Oriental, who has been decided on as the local treasurer for the McCourt Memorial Fund.

The letter from Cornwall reads as follows:

A committee of the citizens of this town, of whom Mr. A. Gillespie Watson is treasurer, has been appointed to take in hand the matter of the formation of a McCourt Memorial Fund, in which the general public, and, in particular, all hockey organizations, are to be asked to contribute. The reason of this move is that the late Owen "Bud" McCourt, who met death so tragically a few days ago here, was the chief support of his widowed mother, and there is a general desire to do something tangible as an expression of this sympathy. Subscriptions, large and small, are earnestly asked for, and may be sent to the above-named treasurer, who will duly acknowledge them."

Parties who have Toboggans at the Street Railway Rink may get them Friday or Saturday, 22nd and 23rd inst., up to 8 o'clock p. m.

All Toboggans left during the Summer will be at owner's risk. 2d-69.

OBITUARY.

MISSCHARLES M. HOLMES

Her many friends in this city will learn with deep regret of the sudden death in Toronto yesterday of Mrs. Charles M. Holmes, youngest daughter of the late John Bertram, aged 29 years.

No particulars have been received in the city as to the cause of her death. The late Mrs. Holmes was very well known here having resided here some time ago and frequently visited her relatives here.

She is survived by her husband, mother, and three brothers and two sisters. They are Hugh of Peterborough, Melville and Robert of Toronto, Mrs. Chas. W Pitt and Mrs T. Bradshaw of Toronto.

The funeral will take place tomorrow, privately, in Toronto.

WHY WASTE TIME?

If You Are Suffering From a Cough Or Cold Accept This Offer.

Hundreds of people right here in Peterborough, are coughing, sneezing, shivering and trying all kinds of cough mixtures, old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions which only upset the stomach and fail to cure the condition.

Why waste time and remain miserable when we guarantee our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol. It contains everyone of the medicinal elements of cod liver oil without a drop of oil to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work, and no sickening drugs. Vinol will cure that hard cold, hacking cough, throat or bronchial trouble, and if it fails we pay back your money.

We wish every person in Peterborough suffering from a hard cold, hacking cough, throat or bronchial troubles which have run down their system would try Vinol, on our offer to return money if it fails. McDermid and Jury, Druggists. Vinol is also sold at the Market Drug Store, the Ormond & Walsh old stand.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

New York, March 22.—Liquidation broke out afresh in the stock market to-day and the improvement of a week was lost in two hours' time. The chief feature of weakness in the early trading was the Erie issues, which broke sharply to new low record prices, the second preferred melting away like the snow before the warmth of spring. The other Morgan issues, L. & N. and Southern Ry., went down in sympathy, and the weakness gradually extended to the remainder of the list which, for half an hour had shown a strong resisting tendency.

Can. Pac. was under steady pressure and went below the low of last week, while Union and Southern Pac., Copper, Reading, Penna. and the Steels sagged away all day. There was no news accompanying the selling of Erie, which had a very depressing effect on sentiment generally. The bears had all the best of it all day and hammered prices unmercifully all around the room. The only buyers in sight were shorts taking profits, and this had little effect in steming the tide.

After 2.15, C.P.R. was smashed down to 163, and the downward movement elsewhere was continued. The close was active and very weak.

THE "CRUCIFIXION" PRESENTED

A Good Audience Heard Combined Choirs of All Saint's and St. John's Churches Last Night.

MR. DEVEY'S GOOD WORK.

The Rev. Wm. Major and Mr. Richard J. Devey are worthy of the best thanks of the citizens for combining choirs and giving the musical treat of last night. Although it as quite understood that it was not a concert, yet the vocal solos and choral work generally was of a very high order. The attractive interest of the "Crucifixion" was proved by the attendance of a crowded congregation, who fully entered into the solemn story of the Passion, so realistically portrayed by Sir John Stainer. The Rector opened the service with prayer, and the choir and congregation sang "When I Survey," hymns A and M 108. The choruses 'Fling Wide the Gates," "God so Loved the World," "From the Thorne of His Cross," were beautifully sung, the large choir responding to the baton promptly, many passages dramatically scored and presenting great difficulty, being attacked and overcome with a precision as welcome as almost unexpected.

Mr. Morphet and Mr. Chandler are tenor singers of great value and Mr. Devey is a fortunate choir master to have two such voices assisting him. The dramatic trial recitatives, ending in the solemn procession, "And Soldiers led Him Away," constitute some of the hardest of Stainer's tenor compositions, and Mr. Morphet sang them easily and well. In the great tenor solo "King Ever Glorious," Mr. George Chandler found scope for his pure tenor voice and gave a rendering that was very impressive and will not readily be forgotten. His duet with Mr. Greenhalgh, "So Thou Liftest Thy Divine Petition," is also a grand number and was finely sung.

The baritone solo work was taken by Mr. Edwards and Mr. Hague Sawers, and while they have not the heavy solo work as have the tenors, it is work of no common order and the singers gave a good account of themselves. Mr. Edwards in "Could Ye Not Watch," and Mr. Sawers in "And as Moses" and "God So Loved the World." Mr. McCabe and Mr. Allen also took parts up in the mens chorus and "Words From the Cross." The chorus "God So Loved the World" was sung without accompaniment, and exquisitely given. The organ accompaniments by Miss Butlen were well and tastefully played.

Mr. Richard J. Devey of St. John's conducted in his usual quiet but effective manner, and having the chorus well in hand succeeded in giving the work with all the grandeur and solemnity that is its due.

Surely it is not too much to hope that the good work so well begun will be continued, and we may have more choirs combining, and standard choral work prepared and performed.

On Good Friday "The Crucifixion" will be sung in St. John's church at 8 p.m. by the combined choirs.

RE-ORGANIZATION OF FOOTBALL CLUB

Quaker Teams Representing Peterboro' to Enter Midland League—Fall River Champions Will Probably be Here in May.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

The Peterborough Quaker Football Club was organized last night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall under very favourable circumstances. A large number of football enthusiasts assembled and all followed with deep interest the questions discussed, and the business transacted. As is well knowu the local Association Club won a reputation for itself last summer by placing in the Midland League a team which met with nothing but victory, and which carried off the highest honours by winning the famous Midland League trophy.

From the present prospects, football will again be a prominent game in the city this year, and it promises to be even more popular than in the past. The club decided last night to enter both intermediate and senior teams in the Midland League of 1907, providing a double series is decided upon on Saturday at the annual meeting.

The secretary's report showed that the club finished the season with a slight deficit.

New England Champions

It is also quite probable the football fans will see the Fall River team, champions for the past six years of the New England States, here about the latter part of May. Their Canadian representative, Mr. J. A. MacPherson, of the Toronto Scots, has written the secretary of the Quaker Club, regarding the proposed game, and although no definite decision has yet been arrived at, it is practically decided that the great pigskin chasers from New England, will line up against the local team. This game should certainly be an interesting one, considering the splendid showing the Peterborough Quaker team made last year in the football arena. The Fall River team propose to play in Seaforth and other western towns, Toronto, Peterborough and Montreal.

Many Players Available

All of last year's champion team will be available with the exception of Mut Armstrong, who left for Cleveland at the close of the season of 1906, and his place will no doubt be difficult to fill. There are, however, several old countrymen in the city who play the game, together with a couple from Montreal, so that new blood may be had, if required.

Officers Elected

In the unavoidable absence of Dr. Morgan, president of the club, the chair was occupied at the meeting last night by Mr. J. E. Sullivan. After it was decided to retain last year's name for the club, the following officers were elected:

Patrons and Patroneases — Hon. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, Mr. and Mrs. John Crane and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neill.

Hon. Pres.—Mr. W. H. Denham.

1st. Hon. Vice-Pres. — Dr. Geo. Burnham.

2nd Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. T. F. Matthews.

Pres.—Dr. J. A. Morgan.

1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. T. J. Wallace.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. C. E. Sisson.

Manager—Mr. Percy Fitzgerald.

Sec.-Treas—Mr. B. T. Huston.

Executive and Managing Committee — Messrs. R. P. Best, Richard Evans, Jas. Doris and the secretary.

Messrs. R. P. Best and B. T. Huston were appointed representatives to attend the annual meeting of the Midland League on Saturday afternoon.

The election of a captain was left over until the next meeting.

As far as is known at present the clubs in the senior series will probably be Bowmanville, Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterborough, Bridgenorth and Onemee. Even if all these do no enter the League is bound to be a popular one and those who enjoy football will be enabled to witness some scientific games here this season.

YOUNG SHAMROCKS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Will Again Place a Junior Team in the C. L. A.—Meeting to be Held on Wednesday Night.

The annual meeting for the election of officers and for other business, of the Young Shamrock Lacrosse Club, will be held in the Oriental Hotel on Monday night next.

The team wearing the Shamrock colours last year made a good start in the Junior C.L.A. series, and it is expected that this year a team will again be entered in the same series, and with the experience gained last year should make even a better showing than in 1906.

A JUNIOR TEAM IN LINDSAY THIS YEAR

May Place a Bunch of Youngsters in the C. L. A.—Have Plenty of Good Material.

The Lindsay Post says: The probability of having a junior team in the C.L.A. this season has made a stir in lacrosse circles in town, and the Canadian national game may receive an impetus in "baseball-smitten Lindsay." Already some enthusiasts have got out their hickories, and plans are rife among athletic circles in town for the coming season.

If encouragement were given by our citizens, the "lacrosse spirit" would find a ready soil to mature in among Lindsay sports.

THE GRITS TRIMMED OVER-CONFIDENT TORIES

Final Curling Game of Season Last Night at the Rink—Won by Margin of Five Points.

GAMES KEENLY CONTESTED

Probably the last curling games of the season, were played at the Charlotte street rink last night between the Grits and Tories, and resulted in a famous victory for the former. The Tories were scarcely in the game for a minute and went down to defeat before the straightforward and scientific playing of their opponents in one of the most interesting and most keenly fought contests of the season. In only one rink out of three did they win out, and were defeated on the round by 5 points.

The Tories on entering the game were over-confident while the Grits took things coolly and played a winning game throughout. Although the contest raged for a couple of hours between the two great political parties, it is almost needless to say that the best of good feeling was manifested and all agreed that the best rinks won.

The personnel of the rinks was:

ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS

Report of Operations of Past Season Will be Presented and Directors Will be Elected.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Rink Company will be held in the rink on Monday, April 1st, at 8 o'clock, when the report of the directors for the past year will be presented and the new board of directors will be elected. Other important business will in all probability be brought before the meeting of the shareholders.

PARENTS MUST SEND CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

Five Dollars, a Fine, Laid Against a Parent Who is Neglectful in This Matter.

This morning Jas. Wilson was once more in evidence at the police court. He was charged with vagrancy, and having no place of abode nor any means of support. "Jim" pleaded not guilty to the charge, saying that at present he was in the employ of Mr. Geo. Stevens. He was remanded for one week during which complications may set in and another charge be preferred against him.

A charge was brought against the father of a young boy who is not attending school. The mother appeared instead of her spouse, saying that he has just returned from the shanty and knows nothing about the boy's schooling. Mr. Duncan Walker, Public School Inspector, read a report showing that during the term between September and Christmas in 1906, the boy attended school 51 days out of 196 and since Christmas has been at school just 5 days. The teacher reports that he is a good boy and should be at school. The mother said her son was 9 years old and would not attend school. He was of a nervous disposition and she did not try to force him to go of late, although formerly she had tried.

Magistrate Dumble considered that it was the fault of the parents and imposed a fine of $5 to be paid in five days and in default of this 15 days in gaol.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and wrinkles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks treatment of this remedy will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, sunk and nervous.

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle Gets Market Tolls For Year 1907

Purchase Price Was $1060, a Raise of $30 on Last Year---Five Bidders Started in the Race---Bidding Brisk Towards the Close.

The sale of the market tolls this morning was attended by a larger crowd in the City Council Chambers than is usually present at a Board of Trade or an Industrial Fair meeting. The tolls were sold to Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle for $1,060, which is $30 in advance of last year's highest bid, so that the market from April 1st, 1907 until March 31st, 1908 will be in charge of him. There were only five bidders one of whom was Mr. Thos. Lee, the clerk of the past year. Judging from this only bid of $500 he does not place as much value on the tolls as the others.

Mr. Chas. Stapleton, auctioneer, conducted the sale. The bidders were Messrs. Thos. Lee, Jas. Brown, W. A. McIlmoyle, John Riddel and Walter Fisher. Mr. Lee started the bidding at $500, which slowly advanced by hundreds until $800 was reached. Here it became much livelier and by tens and twenties went up to $1,060, completing the bidding in about 20 minutes.

The Property Committee placed a reserve bid on the tolls which is not known but which was less than the $1,060.

List Of Bids

The bids in the order in which they were made were:—Lee $500, McIlmoyle $600, Fisher $700, Brown $800, McIlmoyle $850, Brown $860, Fisher $870, Brown $880, Fisher $890, Riddel $900, McIlmoyle $910, Fisher $920, Brown $930, Riddel $940, Brown $950, McIlmoyle $960, Brown $970, Fisher $980, Brown $1,000, Fisher $1,010, Brown $1,020, McIlmoyle $1,030, Fisher $1,040, Brown $1,050, McIlmoyle $1,060.

When the bidding was well under way Mr. Jno. Craig, who was present but had not advanced the required security, asked to be admitted, but his request was fused on the plea of it being in too late.

Contrast With The past

As mentioned above, the tolls sold at $30 more than last year, but both sums are considerably lower than a number of years ago. When Mr. Green had possession of the tolls about 20 years ago he paid as high as $1,500 for them. In 1904 they had dwindled down to $1,000, but the following year rose again to $1,320. However, the above figures show that the Peterborough market is not as popular as it was ten and fifteen years ago, when the market clerk could make money after paying $1,500 to the city.

The figures for the past 5 years are:—1902, $1,220; 1903, $1,020; 1904, $1,000; 1905, $1,320; 1906, $1,030.

A Busy Season Is In Prospect For Chemong

One of the Largest Gatherings will be the Methodist Summer School to be Held in July—200 Persons to Participate.

MR. GEORGE BROWN'S PLANS

To-night the annual meeting of the Chemong Cottagers' Association will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers. At this meeting officers will be elected and plans for the coming season laid.

It is expected that Chemong this year will be more popular than it has been for a number of years. Mr. George Brown, who, for so many years, conducted the hotel at the park, has again secured it, and will be in charge again this year. He has already been out to the park, and is preparing early for what he confidently believes will be the best season in the history of Chemong.

Already he has received a large number of applications for accommodation for a portion of the summer or the whole season, and, from the number of inquiries received up to date, he believes that he is justified in his optimistic forecast on the season's operations.

One of the largest gatherings at the park this summer will be the annual Summer School, which will be held in July under the auspices of the Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues of the Bay of Quinte Conference. It is expected that about two hundred young people will spend a time for the excursion season.

ten days at the park, the time to be spent in a manner which will combine pleasure with a study of the Bible. A number of prominent speakers will be present during the ten days and will give addresses.

For a number of years this Summer School has been held at Twelve O'Clock Point on the Bay of Quinte, but it was decided that Chemong was a more central point, and that the facilities were better here than at any other place for holding the school, hence the decision to meet here.

BUYING MACHINERY FOR NEW BOAT

Capt. W. H. White in Toronto Making Purchases of Equipment for the Otonabee Navigation Company's Steamer.

Capt. W. H. White, of the Otonabee Navigation Company is in Toronto in connection with the purchase of the machinery for the new steamer being built for that company. She will be equipped with twin screws, and will be fitted up with every modern convenience. The hull will be considerably wider than that of the "City of Peterborough," and with the increased length will have a much greater passenger accommodation. It is expected that she will be ready for launching during May, when the machinery will have been installed and she will be completed

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

ACCIDENT POLICY CAME IN HANDY

Mr. R. A. Morrow Received Cheque for $650 From the Fidelty and Casualty Company for Illness.

Mr. R. A. Morrow, jr. has received a cheque through Mr. G. B. Stevenson for $650 from the Fidelity & Casualty Company, the accident and disability insurance people. Last August Mr. Morrow took out a $10,000 double indemnity policy with the Fidelity & Casualty Co. He paid the first premium of $60 and some time later took sick. He was unable to attend to his duties for 26 weeks and during all this time the company paid him $25 a week. Mr. Morrow wishes to express his sincere thanks for the company's prompt settlement of the claim. He is naturally delighted that he had the policy and he would not be without one now. His father who has been dealing more or less with insurance companies all his life says he never knew of a settlement made more promptly. Mr. G. B. Stevenson is the direct agent, and Mr. Geo. E. Elliott, special agent. 3d1w-662316

A KALADAR RESIDENT'S SUICIDE

Wm. P. Berry, a Veteran of the American Civil War, Took His Life on Saturday —No Reason Assigned.

Wm. P. Berry, who lived with his wife and son about a mile from Kaladar station, committed suicide last Saturday by shooting. For some days he had been threatening to take his own life, but his threats were not taken seriously. After dinner, during which meal Berry showed no signs of mental aberration, the son left to visit his sister, who lives near, and on his not returning, the father sent his wife to bring him home.

When Mrs. Berry returned Berry was missing, and a search revealed his dead body, seated in an outhouse, with a Winchester rifle between his knees and the muzzle lying against his throat. The bullet had passed upward through his head and pierced the roof.

Berry, who was 65 years of age, was a veteran of the American Civil War.

CHICAGO GIRL AFRAID; BALKS AT THE ALTAR

Eighteen Year-Old Girl Refused to Wed After She Had Eloped to Do So—She Wants Her Mother.

ARTHUR RUPP'S DILEMA.

Examiner Special

Chicago, March 22.—"No, I won't; I won't get married. I've changed my mind. Take me back to mamma. I love you, Arthur, and I'd like to, but—"

Miss Geraldine McCormick, eighteen years old, refused to carry out her part of the programme at Crown Point, Ind., yesterday, in a drama in which Arthur Rupp, twenty-two years old, living in Chicago, was cast for the hero's part. The couple went to Crown Point from Chicago to get married. Miss McCormick had defied her parents, who opposed the match, and had announced that nothing would prevent her from becoming Mrs. Arthur Rupp. On the strength of her assurance Rupp had invested in a new tie and a marriage license. When the Justice was about to make them one, the near-bride rebelled.

"What did you come down here, for, then?" protested Rupp.

"But I'm afraid. I'm afraid to get married," replied the heroine.

No amount of pleading and argument could induce Miss McCormick to alter her mind. Neither would she explain further her reason for the action.

Rupp is keeping the license in a forlorn hope.

"They would not give me my $2 back, anyway," he said.

Deer License To Cost Non-Residents $50.00

Ontario Fish and Game Committee Decides to Double the Fee This Year—$25 for Wild Ducks, Too

OTHER NEW REGULATIONS.

Toronto, March 22.—The Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature decided this morning to tax non-residents of Ontario $25 for a wild duck shooting license and $50 for a deer license per annum. Formerly a $25 license covered all game, including deer.

The committee also discussed at some length, and finally decided to leave to the House an amendment which was submitted providing for the issue of fishing leases of Crown lands covered by water with such rights, rentals, terms and conditions as are deemed expedient. The suggested amendment provided that no one lease shall cover more than two square miles, nor be granted for lands nearer than twenty miles from any other leased land. It was also provided that all leases shall contain a clause prohibiting the use of any device by which the free ingress and egress of fish from the property so leased to adjacent waters is hindered or prevented.

A LOCAL COMPANY'S GOOD WORK

Canadian General Electric Company of This City, Supplied Equipment for Winnipeg Power House at Lac du Bonnet

IS A $4,000,000 PLANT

Winnipeg, March 23.—Sixty-five miles from this city, at a point distant a few miles from Lac du Bonnet, which is on a branch line of the C.P.R., is, as experts have described, "one of the most modern water-power installations on the continent." It was in 1901 that the Winnipeg General Power Company conceived the idea of harnessing the waters of the Winnipeg River with a view of furnishing electrical energy to the city of Winnipeg. In 1906 this corporation amalgamated with the Winnipeg Electric Street Railway Company, under the name of the Winnipeg Electric Railway Company, and the work of completing the Lac du Bonnet power development was proceeded with without interruption.

The electrical apparatus, which is really the life of the plant, was furnished by the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, and has been pronounced as most complete and thorough in every detail. The main units in the power house consists of four 1,000-Kw and five 2,000-Kw, revolving field, 60-cycle, 2,300-volt three phase generators, coupled to turbines; 100-Kw, 125-volt direct current exciters coupled to turbines, and two 175-Kw, 125-volt exciters, coupled to three-phase 2,300-volt induction motors. The switches are sectional, and are separated by walls. There are fifteen transformers, comprising two banks of 1,100 horse-power, and three banks of 2,400 horse-power. The voltage in operation is stepped up from 2,300 volts to 60,000 volts for transmitting to the substation at Winnipeg, over a distance of 65 miles. The power and transformer houses are absolutely fire-proof, being built of structural steel and brick throughout. The general arrangement of the sub-station at Winnipeg is similar to that of the transformer house at Lac du Bonnet. The most essential feature in the station construction is the absolute protection of life and apparatus afforded throughout.

The cost of the complete plant will amount to about $4,000,000, and it is felt that this hydraulic development will make Winnipeg commercially possible as a manufacturing centre, which the high cost of fuel for the operating expenses of steam plant and the necessarily enormous cost of energy to the consumer have hitherto precluded it from becoming.

THE BLUE CLAY FIELDS ALMOST READY

Cement Company Have Installed Their Big Dredge at Drummond Station.

The Lakefield Portland Cement Company's new dredge at Drummond Station, Otonabee, has been completed and steam turned on. The dredge will be used for digging out blue clay and placing it on the cars for shipment to the works here. The next work to be done is the laying of a railroad siding from the main G. T. R. track to the dredge. This will begin as soon as the frost is out of the ground and will be completed by May 1st. One cut on this siding will involve the removal of at least one thousand cubic yards of gravel and sand.

The Hound of the Baskervilles

Another Adventure of Sherlock Holmes.

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

Author of "The Green Flag" and "The Great Boer War"

Copyright (1902) by A. Conan Doyle.

there great stones, such as we see there, which were set by certain forgotten peoples in the days of old. The moon was shining bright upon the clearing, and there in the centre lay the unhappy maid where she had fallen, dead of fear and of fatigue. But it was not the sight of her body, nor yet was it that of the body of Hugo Baskerville lying near her, which raised the hair upon the heads of these three daredevil roysterers, but it was that, standing over Hugo, and plucking at his throat, there stood a foul thing, a great, black beast, shaped like a hound, yet larger than any hound that ever mortal eye has rested upon. And even as they looked the thing tore the throat out of Hugo Baskerville, on which, as it turned its blazing eyes and dripping jaws upon them, the three shrieked with fear and rode for dear life, still screaming, across the moor. One, it is said, died that very night of what he had seen, and the other twain were but broken men for the rest of their days.

"Such is the tale, my sons, of the coming of the hound which is said to have plagued the family so sorely ever since. If I have set it down it is because that which is clearly known hath less terror than that which is but hinted at and guessed. Nor can it be denied that many of the family have been unhappy in their deaths, which have been sudden, bloody, and mysterious. Yet may we shelter ourselves in the infinite goodness of Providence, which would not forever punish the innocent beyond that third or fourth generation which is threatened in Holy Writ. To that Providence, my sons, I hereby commend you, and I counsel you by way of caution to forbear from crossing the moor in those dark hours when the powers of evil are exalted.

"(This from Hugo Baskerville to his sons Rodger and John, with instructions that they say nothing thereof to their sister Elisabeth.)"

When Dr. Mortimer had finished reading this singular narrative he pushed his spectacles up on his forehead and stared across at Mr. Sherlock Holmes. The latter yawned and tossed the end of his cigarette into the fire.

"Well?" said he.

"Do you not find it interesting?"

"To a collector of fairy tales."

Dr. Mortimer drew a folded newspaper out of his pocket.

"Now, Mr. Holmes, we will give you something a little more recent. This is the Devon County Chronicle of May 14th of this year. It is a short account of the facts elicited at the death of Sir Charles Baskerville which occurred a few days before that date."

My friend leaned a little forward and his expression became intent. Our visitor readjusted his glasses and began:—

"The recent sudden death of Sir Charles Baskerville, whose name has been mentioned as the probable Liberal candidate for Mid-Devon at the next election, has cast a gloom over the county. Though Sir Charles had resided at Baskerville Hall for a comparatively short period his amiability of character and extreme generosity had won the affection and respect of all who had been brought into contact with him. In these days of nouveaux riches it is refreshing to find a case where the scion of an old county family which has fallen upon evil days is able to make his own fortune and to bring it back with him to restore the fallen grandeur of his line. Sir Charles, as is well known, made large sums of money in South African speculation. More wise than those who go on until the wheel turns against them, he realized his gains and returned to England with them. It is only two years since he took up his residence at Baskerville Hall, and it is common talk how large were those schemes of reconstruction and improvement which have been interrupted by his death. Being himself childless, it was his openly expressed desire that the whole countryside should, within his own lifetime, profit by his good fortune, and many will have personal reasons for bewailing his untimely end. His generous donations to local and county charities have been frequently chronicled in these columns.

"The circumstances connected with the death of Sir Charles cannot be said to have been entirely cleared up by the inquest, but at least enough has been done to dispose of those rumors to which local superstition has given rise. There is no reason whatever to suspect foul play, or to imagine that death could be from any but natural causes. Sir Charles was a widower, and a man who may be said to have been in some ways of an eccentric habit of mind. In spite of his considerable wealth he was simple in his personal tastes, and his indoor servants at Baskerville Hall consisted of a married couple named Barrymore, the husband acting as butler and the wife as housekeeper. Their evidence, corroborated by that of several friends, tends to show that Sir Charles's health has for some time been impaired, and points especially to some affection of the heart, manifesting itself in changes of color, breathlessness, and acute attacks of nervous depression. Dr. James Mortimer, the friend and medical attendant of the deceased, has given evidence to the same effect.

"The facts of the case are simple. Sir Charles Baskerville was in the habit every night before going to bed of walking down the famous Yew Alley of Baskerville Hall. The evidence of the Barrymores shows that this had been his custom. On the 4th of May Sir Charles had declared his intention of starting next day for London, and had ordered Barrymore to prepare his luggage. That night he went out as usual for his nocturnal walk, in the course of which he was in the habit of smoking a cigar. He never returned. At twelve o'clock Barrymore, finding the hall door still open, became alarmed, and, lighting a lantern, went in search of his master. The day had been wet, and Sir Charles's footmarks were easily traced down the Alley. Half-way down this walk there is a gate which leads out on to the moor. There were indications that Sir Charles had stood for some little time here. He then proceeded down the Alley, and it was at the far end of it that his body was discovered. One fact which has not been explained is the statement of Barrymore that his master's footprints altered their character from the time that he passed the moor-gate, and that he appeared from thence onwards to have been walking upon his toes. One Murphy, a gipsy horse-dealer, was on the moor at no great distance at the time, but he appears by his own confession to have been the worse for drink. He declares that he heard cries, but is unable to state from what direction they came. No signs of violence were to be discovered upon Sir Charles's person, and though the doctor's evidence pointed to an almost incredible facial distortion—so great that Dr. Mortimer refused at first to believe that it was indeed his friend and patient who lay before him—it was explained that that is a symptom which is not unusual in cases of dyspnoea and death from cardiac exhaustion. This explanation was borne out by the post-mortem examination, which showed long-standing organic disease, and the coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence. It is well that this is so, for it is obviously of the utmost importance that Sir Charles's heir should settle at the Hall and continue the good work which has been so sadly interrupted. Had the prosaic finding of the coroner not finally put an end to the romantic stories which have been whispered in connection with the affair, it might have been difficult to find a tenant for Baskerville Hall. It is understood that the next-of-kin is Mr Henry Baskerville, if he be still alive, the son of Sir Charles Baskerville's younger brother. The young man when last heard of was in America, and inquiries are being instituted with a view to informing him of his good fortune."

Dr. Mortimer refolded his paper and replaced it in his pocket.

"Those are the public facts, Mr. Holmes, in connection with the death of Sir Charles Baskerville."

"I must thank you," said Sherlock Holmes, "for calling my attention to a case which certainly presents some features of interest. I had observed some newspaper comment at the time, but I was exceedingly preoccupied by that little affair of the Vatican cameos, and in my anxiety to oblige the Pope I lost touch with several interesting English cases. This article, you say, contains all the public facts?"

"It does."

"Then let me have the private ones." He leaned back, put his finger-tips together, and assumed his most impassive and judicial expression.

"In doing so," said Dr. Mortimer, who had begun to show signs of some strong emotion, "I am telling that which I have not confided to anyone. My motive for withholding it from the coroner's inquiry is that a man of science shrinks from placing himself in the public position of seeming to indorse a popular superstition. I had the further motive that Baskerville Hall, as the paper says, would certainly remain untenanted if anything were done to increase its already rather grim reputation. For both these reasons I thought that I was justified in telling rather less than I knew, since no practical good could result from it, but with you there is no reason why I should not be perfectly frank.

"The moor is very sparsely inhabited, and those who live near each other are thrown very much together. For this reason I saw a good deal of Sir Charles Baskerville. With the exception of Mr. Frankland, of Lafter Hall, and Mr. Stapleton, the naturalist, there are no other men of education within many miles. Sir Charles was a retiring man, but the chance of his illness brought us together, and a community of interests in science kept us so. He had brought back much scientific information from South Africa, and many a charming evening we have spent together discussing the comparative anatomy of the Bushman and the Hottentot.

"Within the last few months it became increasingly plain to me that Sir Charles's nervous system was strained to the breaking point. He had taken this legend which I have read you exceedingly to heart—so much so that, although he would walk in his own grounds, nothing would induce him to go out upon the moor at night. Incredible as it may appear to you, Mr. Holmes, he was honestly convinced that a dreadful fate overhung his family, and certainly the records which he was able to give of his ancestors were not encouraging. The idea of some ghastly presence constantly haunted him, and on more than one occasion he has asked me whether I had on my medical journeys at night ever seen any strange creature or heard the baying of a hound. The latter question he put to me several times, and always with a voice which vibrated with excitement.

"I can well remember driving up to his house in the evening, some three weeks before the fatal event. He chanced to be at his hall door. I had descended from my gig and was standing in front of him, when I saw his eyes fix themselves over my shoulder, and stare past me with an expression of the most dreadful horror. I whisked round and had just time to catch a glimpse of something which I took to be a large black calf passing at the head of the drive. So excited and alarmed was he that I was compelled to go down to the spot where the animal had been and look around for it. It was gone, however, and the incident appeared to make the worst impression upon his mind. I stayed with him all the evening, and it was on that occasion, to explain the emotion which he had shown, that he confided to my keeping that narrative which I read to you when first I came. I mention this small episode because it assumes some importance in view of the tragedy which followed, but I was convinced at the time that the matter was entirely trivial and that his excitement had no justification.

"It was at my advice that Sir Charles was about to go to London. His heart was, I knew, affected, and the constant anxiety in which he lived, however chimerical the cause of it might be, was evidently having a serious effect upon his health. I thought that a few months among the distractions of town would send him back a new man. Mr. Stapleton, a mutual friend who was much concerned at his state of health, was of the same opinion. At the last instant came this terrible catastrophe.

"On the night of Sir Charles's death Barrymore the butler, who made the discovery, sent Perkins the groom on horseback to me, and as I was sitting up late I was able to reach Baskerville Hall within an hour of the event. I checked and corroborated all the facts which were mentioned at the inquest. I followed the footsteps down the Yew Alley, I saw the spot at the moor-gate where he seemed to have waited. I remarked the change in the shape of the prints after that point, I noted that there were no other footsteps save those of Barrymore on the soft gravel, and finally I carefully examined the body, which had not been touched until my arrival. Sir Charles lay on his face, his arms out, his fingers dug into the ground, and his features convulsed with some strong emotion to such an extent that I could hardly have sworn to his identity. There was certainly no physical injury of any kind. But one false statement was made by Barrymore at the inquest. He said that there were no traces upon the ground round the body. He did not observe any. But I did—some little distance off, but fresh and clear."

"Footprints?"

"Footprints."

"A man's or a woman's?"

Dr. Mortimer looked strangely at us for an instant, and his voice sank almost to a whisper as he answered:—

"Mr. Holmes, they were the footprints of a gigantic hound!"

Standing over Hugo there stood a foul thing, a black beast shaped like a hound.

CHAPTER III.

I confess that at these words a shudder passed through me. There was a thrill in the doctor's voice which showed that he was himself deeply moved by that which he told us. Holmes leaned forward in his excitement and his eyes had the hard, dry glitter which shot from them when he was keenly interested.

"You saw this?"

"As clearly as I see you."

"And you said nothing?"

"What was the use?"

"How was it that no one else saw it?"

"The marks were some twenty yards from the body and no one gave them a thought. I don't suppose I should have done so had I not known this legend."

"There are many sheep-dogs on the moor?"

"No doubt, but this was no sheep dog."

"You say it was large?"

"Enormous."

"But it had not approached the body?"

"No."

"What sort of night was it?"

"Damp and raw."

"But not actually raining?"

"No."

"What is the alley like?"

"There are two lines of old yew hedge, twelve feet high and impenetrable. The walk in the centre is about eight feet across."

"Is there anything between the hedges and the walk?"

"Yes, there is a strip of grass about six feet broad on either side."

"I understand that the yew hedge is penetrated at one point by a gate?"

"Yes, the wicket-gate which leads on to the moor."

"Is there any other opening?"

"None."

"So that to reach the Yew Alley one either has to come down it from the house or else to enter it by the moor-gate?"

"There is an exit through a summer-house at the far end."

"Had Sir Charles reached this?"

"No; he lay about fifty yards from it."

"Now, tell me, Dr. Mortimer—and this is important—the marks which you saw were on the path and not on the grass?"

"No marks could show on the grass."

"Were they on the same side of the path as the moor-gate?"

"Yes; they were on the edge of the path on the same side as the moor-gate."

"You interest me exceedingly. Another point. Was the wicket-gate closed?"

"Closed and padlocked."

"How high was it?"

"About four feet high."

"Then anyone could have got over it?"

"Yes."

"And what marks did you see by the wicket-gate?"

"None in particular."

"Good Heaven! Did no one examine?"

"Yes, I examined myself."

"And found nothing?"

"It was all very confused. Sir Charles had evidently stood there for five or ten minutes."

"How do you know that?"

"Because the ash had twice dropped from his cigar."

"Excellent! This is a colleague, Watson, after our own heart. But the marks?"

"He had left his own marks all over that small patch of gravel. I could discern no others."

Sherlock Holmes struck his hand against his knee with an impatient gesture.

"If I had only been there!" he cried. "It is evidently a case of extraordinary interest, and one which presented immense opportunities to the scientific expert. That gravel page upon which I might have read so much has been long ere this smudged by the rain and defaced by the clogs of curious peasants. Oh, Dr. Mortimer, Dr. Mortimer, to think that you should not have called me in! You have indeed much to answer for."

"I could not call you in, Mr. Holmes, without disclosing these facts to the world, and I have already given my reasons for not wishing to do so. Besides, besides——"

"Why do you hesitate?"

"There is a realm in which the most acute and most experienced of detectives is helpless."

"You mean that the thing is supernatural?"

"I did not positively say so."

"No, but you evidently think it."

"Since the tragedy, Mr. Holmes, there have come to my ears several incidents which are hard to reconcile with the settled order of Nature."

"For example?"

"I find that before the terrible event occurred several people had seen a creature upon the moor which corresponds with this Baskerville demon, and which could not possibly be any animal known to science. They all agreed that it was a huge creature, luminous, ghastly, and spectral. I have cross-examined these men, one of them a hard-headed countryman, one a farrier, and one a moorland farmer, who all tell the same story of this dreadful apparition, exactly corresponding to the hell-hound of the legend. I assure you that there is a reign of terror in the district and that it is a hardy man who will cross the moor at night."

"And you, a trained man of science, believe it to be supernatural?"

"I do not know what to believe."

Holmes shrugged his shoulders.

"I have hitherto confined my investigations to this world," said he, "in a modest way I have combatted evil, but to take on the Father of Evil himself would, perhaps, be too ambitious a task. Yet you must admit that the footmark is material."

"The original hound was material enough to tug a man's throat out, and yet he was diabolical as well."

"I see that you have quite gone over to the supernaturalists. But now, Dr. Mortimer, tell me this. If you hold these views, why have you come to consult me at all? You tell me in the same breath that it is useless to investigate Sir Charles's death, and that you desire me to do it."

"I did not say that I desired you to do it."

"Then, how can I assist you?"

"By advising me as to what I should do with Sir Henry Baskerville, who arrives at Waterloo Station"—Dr. Mortimer looked at his watch—"in exactly one hour and a quarter."

"He being the heir?"

"Yes. On the death of Sir Charles we inquired for this young gentleman, and found that he had been farming in Can-

TO PREVENT BRONCHITIS or CONSUMPTION

Do not neglect a cold or cough no matter how slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages sooner or later will lead to fatal results.

If on the first appearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of you would save yourself a great deal of unnecessary suffering.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the pine tree combined with Wild Cherry Bark and other pectoral remedies.

It stimulates the weakened bronchial organs, allays irritation and subdues inflammation, soothes and heals the irritated parts, loosens the phlegm and mucous, and aids nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulations.

Miss Belle Campbell, Long River, P.E.I., writes: "For some time I was troubled with bronchitis. A friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. So I procured three bottles but it only took two to cure me."

Be careful when purchasing to see that you get the genuine Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark and the price 25 cents at all dealers.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

BEWARE OF THE DOGS.

By Rita Kelley.

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham.

"Hello! What are you doing here; here of all places? What's this? Tar, by Jove! And rents all over your frock!"

"You seem to be nothing but a big interrogation point," quoth the girl resentfully, refusing to look up at the athletic chap striking toward her. She was seated on a bowlder making standby dabs with scraps of old newspaper at some black spots on her gray skirt, and at the sound of his voice the color had rushed furiously to her cheeks.

"Can't a girl get tar on herself if she wants to? And I'd like to know if I haven't as good a right to be here—alone, as you have?" she challenged.

The man laughed joyously and flung himself down at her feet.

"Delicious," he said. "Go on."

The girl bit her lip.

"You were always taking advantage," she flared out.

He laughed again, rolled over and touched one of the spots. She had forgotten them. "Will they come out?" he asked.

She flushed again, more painfully than before, at being thus off her guard when she wished of all times to be mistress of herself.

"I don't know," she exclaimed, "and I don't care, but I think you are mighty mean." She stood up suddenly, flinging away the blackened newspaper. "Didn't I tell you that I never would speak to you again and that I never wanted to see you? And here you are making me miserable and yourself obnoxious! Oh, I don't want you to touch me! I hate you!"

"Agatha!" He leaped to his feet, the boyishness gone from his manner, his face grown strangely tense. "If I thought you meant that!" he cried, clinching his hands till the knuckles showed white. "Oh, if I thought you meant it!"

She turned away, unable to meet the searching pain in his eyes, and gazed down at the river rolling its placid path between the October hills. It was all peaceful out there in the woods. A squirrel chirped exultantly as he leaped for a falling beechnut, and a belated thrush warbled out a song of sweetness and light from the hawthorn hedge near by. Only man knew strife—and a girl.

HAND—OH, SO GENTLY!—TO RUB A SPOT OF THE PRECIOUS GRAY SKIRT.

The silence that is more deadly than battle of words and more difficult to bear grew appalling. Agatha felt driven to bay by a relentless pursuer, while she groped frantically for something to make him utterly, to free herself of oppressive nearness.

"Well, why don't you go?" she gasped finally, struck cold by the need for saying it.

"I can't go, Agatha—I can't go—till I know that you mean it."

The misery in his voice stung her. "Haven't I said it?" she cried in self scorn.

"No, Agatha, but I have such a tiny hope that you don't always mean what you say"—

"Don't you think I meant it when I told you three months ago I never wanted to speak to you again? Don't you think I meant it when I released you from—our—engagement?" She hid her face convulsively in her hands.

"Agatha," he said slowly, his voice dropping to its lowest, most vibrant note. "Agatha, what did you mean when—without our engagement being known—except to ourselves—you went into seclusion and lived like a religieuse? Is it—is it," he insisted, "that you cared more than you wished to confess?"

She uttered a sharp little cry. "You were always like a surgeon's probe." And, with a beseeching flinging of her hand: "Please, please go! Don't you see you make me wretched?"

For a moment they stood measuring each other, her smoldering, pleading eyes vainly trying to wrest away from the intensity of his steadfast gaze. There was a crackling of underbrush, and a little, wizened old man, carrying a bunch of newspapers, shambled into the small open.

"Thought you might want some more, miss, to clear your skirt with," he said, ignoring the silence of the two and the presence of the young man. "How did the scraps do? I come back as soon as ever I could. Know'd you'd be a pretty sight goin' into town if I didn't.

"There," he said officiously, crumpling up a large page and thrusting it toward the young man, "you clean that side, and I'll go at this, and we'll soon have her in some sort of decent shape." He squatted beside the girl and began scrubbing the spots as though he were polishing harness.

The man looked at the girl, the girl looked at the river, and neither moved a muscle, though the man looked sheepish with his big wad of paper and a bit helpless and quite a good deal forlorn.

"Girls is strange critters," speculated the old man, beginning on another spot. "Allus doin' what they ain't got no call to do and jumpin' the traces when you least expect it. Funniest part of it is they don't allow as they ought to get their come-uppances neither. If you tell 'em not to do a thing they go straight and do it, and if they get into trouble they expect some one to yank 'em out. Here, you," he called suddenly to the young man, "set to and rub out them spots—near as you can."

"I—I'm afraid it won't do much good," he said, dubiously eying the girl rather than the tar smears.

The old man's eyes gleamed mischievously. "Haven't you been introduced yet? Well, now, that's an oversight! Young man, this is a girl that read that there sign about no trespassin' on these premises and decided right off to come in and make me a call. That there barb wire fence is enough to keep ordinary trash out, but you can't never reckon on a girl. Girls mostly needs a keg o' tar, too, and she got both."

The old man backed off and squinted his eyes. "Mighty fine skirt to get scratched up. But, then, girls is skittish. I'd sooner break sixteen colts one winter than try bringin' one girl to time." And he grinned illuminatingly up at the young man from the safety of the back breadths of the gray skirt.

The girl shook herself impatiently.

"That will do, thank you," she said, moving quickly forward. "It is growing late. I must be going."

But the old man had a firm hold on the skirt, and she stopped short. He continued to rub away—he had never stopped.

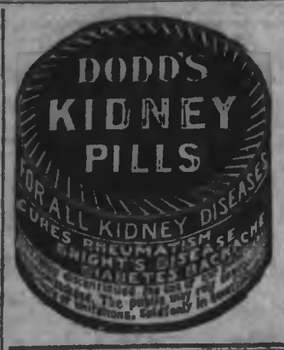
"Had a little experience of that myself," he said reminiscently, "when I was courtin' Mandy. Swore she wouldn't ever have a gol durned thing to do with me—just cause I held Tabitha Juniper's hand one sleighin' party to see if Mandy cared. Tickled plum crazy"— For the first time the old man ceased to rub, and, half crouched, the dirty paper crunched in his hand, he gazed out across the river. "Queer how kind a-durned happy a fellow can be just cause a skittish girl shows him she cares," he muttered.

"Who-oo-oo! Who-oo-oo!" A shrill, beckoning call floated across the wood lot.

The old man let the tarry paper fall from his big hand.

"It's Mandy," he said, springing up. "I guess you'll have to manage now for yourselves. Supper's waitin'." With a quick sidelong movement he was off through the low hawthorn.

Both the man and the girl stood and looked at the place where he had disappeared until the last leaf ceased to flutter, then slowly she turned to the man before her. Their eyes met and lingered for a long moment fraught with questioning. What they answered could not be told in words, so the man fell on his knees and began—oh, so gently!—to rub a spot of the precious gray skirt. She stood looking down on his broad shoulders, his big blond head touched gold by the setting sun. Then her eyes watered to the crude sign, "No Trespassing," directly in front. With a quick movement she reached down and ran her slender fingers through his hair, stooped and touched his face caressingly with hers. "Beware of the dogs," she said in a voice that choked, but ended in a laugh.



DIES IN FAR EAST.

Theosophy's Head, Col. Henry S. Olcott, Passes Away At Adyar, Madras, India—Was 76 Years Old.

Col. Henry Steel Olcott, president of the Theosophical society and who with Mme. Blavatsky founded the organization, died recently at the presidency at Adyar, Madras, India.

Col. Olcott had been ill since last June, having never full recovered from an attack of pneumonia in Paris.

Col. Olcott, who was 76 years old, founded the order and became its president on Nov. 17, 1875, in New York. Three years later he and Mme.

COL. H. S. OLCOTT.

Blavatsky went to India for the upbuilding of the association. Mme. Blavatsky died in 1891.

Col. Olcott was born in America and was a lawyer by profession when he became a soldier in the civil war. The formation of the Theosophical society was the outgrowth of a friendship formed during the exploitation of the "Eddy" ghosts in Vermont, just after the close of the war. Col. Olcott, on account of his interest in psychical research, was sent to the Eddy farm by one of the New York newspapers. The published statements brought a pilgrimage of hundreds of people to the farm, and Mme. Blavatsky was among them. Later the organization was suggested at one of the gatherings in Mme. Blavatsky's parlors.

A lodge was subsequently formed in London, but progress in commercial centres it was found was so slow that Col. Olcott and Mme. Blavatsky decided to go to India and work back into the busy world. In the atmosphere of the east the society thrived.

The headquarters of the organization include twenty acres on the banks of the Adzar river, which is a mile and a half from the Bay of Bengal. There are theosophical societies in forty-two countries, but perhaps the most effective work of Col. Olcott was in uniting various Buddist sects in the orient. He supported himself entirely from the sales of the Theosophist magazine and contributed to the extension of the society by gifts of money. He was credited with some remarkable cures.

Air Sickness.

Accidents apart, traveling by aeroplane is calculated in some directions to be a healthy mode of getting about from place to place. The vehicle will rise above the impurities contained in the air of the streets and may even reach a level far removed from the madding crowd of microbes. The aeroplane, it may be assumed, will soar, it need not be at a very great height, yet nevertheless into regions of the air purified by light, ozone and the process of sedimentation. All this sounds ideal; but, on the other hand, there will be a diminution of pressure which may unfavorably affect the heart's action, for the pulse rate increases as the atmosphere pressure is withdrawn. Secretions are diminished, while evaporation from the skin and the lungs is decidedly augmented. At extreme heights there are swellings of the veins and bleeding from the nose, and there is a sense of being unable to use the legs and arms. The distressing symptoms of mountain sickness may even be simulated during a journey in an aeroplane. Doubtless, however, all these evils could be avoided by keeping the aeroplane at the proper level.—London Lancet.

The Long Bridge.

The Long bridge across the Potomac is being demolished, a modern steel structure having been built to take its place. Originally opened in 1809, it has been connected with some of the most stirring events associated with the history of the national capital. In the war of 1812, in the civil war, in times of peace, it has been a noted landmark. It felt the tread of thousands who marched across it to uphold the flag when the Union was threatened. It saw the frightened hosts fleeing after Bull Run. It welcomed the returning veterans as they brought their victorious banners to be borne proudly in the grand review after four years of fierce fighting. The words "Long bridge" have found their place in the history of the nation. No modern structure will ever have any sentiment connected with it. The laborers who tear the old bridge down are destroying one of the landmarks of the nation.—Chicago Tribune.

To Keep Windows From Frosting.

The haberdasher sighed, for his window, full of lovely neckties, was quite opaque with frost.

"I'd give a lot," he said, "for some method to keep my window from frosting over in cold weather."

"I'll let you have the method you want for nothing," said the patron. "Coat the inside of your window with glycerine, and it will keep as clear in winter as in summer. I'm a surveyor, and in my trade we always use glycerine on our glass instruments when it's cold."

Do not sew too much. Don't embroider too many hours a day. Don't do one thing exclusively and all the time, for this means a strain upon the eyes and headaches.

Won by a Violin.

By EPES W. SARGENT.

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment.

Avard clambered up through the trap leading from the music room with the same intolerable feeling of disgust that always filled his soul when it came time to take his place beside the leader of the Odeon orchestra.

He hated it all, the endless procession of sidewalk comedians, serio comics, sketch artists, trained dogs and all the other component parts of the vaudeville show.

He had come to America fresh from the conservatory, with visions of a concert tournee that should make him famous. They told him that America was a land of money; that there people sat up nights for an opportunity to hear some great artist.

Instead, he had discovered that only those heralded by a skillful promoter stood any chance. He was glad to get an occasional engagement for some small concerts, and even these grew less and less frequent as the season waned.

Then had come that awful time when, penniless and hungry, he faced the realization that he could never hope for success. He was too proud to go back home a failure, and he thankfully accepted an opening in a concert hall, where he, a pianist and a cornet player comprised the orchestra.

Benson had found him there one night when he dropped in to see the proprietor. Benson had played violin there himself before he had become a bandmaster, with a blue and gold band at a summer resort, and he dropped in at intervals for old times' sake.

He called Avard over to his table and offered him a place in his orchestra in the fall, when the season opened, so ever since September Avard had sat beside Benson playing first violin. He loathed it all, but it was better than the concert hall, and he was grateful.

But this afternoon he was gloomy. A great artist, one with whom he had studied, was giving a matinee, and some one had told him how the people were thronging to the hall. Their master had declared Avard to be the better, yet Herman drew the crowds.

Monday was always a bad day. The music sheets, some of them yellow with age and filthy with dirt, were hard to read. Rehearsal had been more or less of a farce, and he scarcely noticed the performance. Then suddenly a voice broke on his ears, and he looked up in wonder.

A mere girl stood in the gleam of the spot light. She could not be more than sixteen or seventeen, but from her throat there poured tones of crystal purity. The voice was unplaced and unschooled, but she had a natural gift for singing, and her tones had not yet become hardened through overwork.

The music thrilled him through and through, and once or twice he broke in his accompaniment. Long after she left the stage she still occupied his thoughts, and as he started to leave the theater after the matinee she confronted him at the top of the stairs.

"What did you crab my act for?' she demanded.

"I am sorry, mademoiselle," he said, with humility. "But such a voice—in vaudeville. The surprise was too great. I faltered."

"It looked as if you were scared," she agreed, mollified at the compliment. "But don't you do it again."

"I protest that I shall offend no more," he assured, and she turned to the elderly woman who hovered in the background.

"Come on, ma," she called. "He didn't do it a-purpose. I knocked him off his pins; that's all. Come on."

She passed out of the stage door, and Avard followed slowly. Into his life love had come. He could forgive the uncouth speech for the sake of the voice, and Gertie Clayton, "phenominal" (she invariably misspelled the word) soprano, had become a goddess to him.

All that week he drank in the flute-like tones, as a drunkard imbibes his tipple. Saturday night, when the engagement closed, he left a single rose, perfect in its loveliness, with the doorkeeper, to be given her as she left.

She was gone when the show was over, and he hurried to the doorkeeper for his report.

"What did mademoiselle say?" he demanded eagerly.

"'Stingy,'" grinned the unsympathetic soul, and Avard slowly passed out.

But the slight was forgotten the next day, and only the memory of that perfect voice remained. From the press agent he begged one of her photographs, and when he came home at night, tired and disheartened, he looked upon her youthful face and seemed to hear again the liquid sweetness of her singing.

It was several months before she came again. Avard feared that perhaps the hard work, the singing in smoke filled music halls, had spoiled her tones, but she did not strain for high notes, and her voice retained its clarity and freshness.

It seemed an interminable time after he took his place before she came on, and again after her appearance the moments dragged woefully, but they were to be endured for the sake of those momentary uplifts to paradise, and he was content.

Several times, when the sketches were on, he left his place and prowled about the stage in the hope of gaining speech with her, but she always was dressed and out before the sketch brought him an intermission from his labors.

As the week progressed these repeated disappointments preyed upon him, and he grew more and more gloomy. Saturday night came all too soon, and it was with an aching heart that he opened her music to play her accompaniment for the last time.

Gertie had put in a new song to try the last night. It was a popular ballad, one that had just come out, cheaply constructed, but with a slow melodic chorus. They had tried it over in the music room before the performance, and he had liked it then. Now the melody seemed to fill his heart, and he put all of his artistic soul into the interpretation of the chorus. The other musicians, as if by common impulse, lowered their instruments, and the wailing tones of the violin formed such a perfect accompaniment to the voice that as the strains swelled out the audience suddenly grew quiet. Twice the chorus was repeated, and the bathos of the words became pathos when sung to the sobbing accompaniment of the violin. Now the chorus was ended, and the singer looked up expectantly.

For a moment the audience sat silent as if in the presence of death. Then a great outburst of applause swept down from the gallery, to be met with a demonstration from the lower floor. Three times Benson played over the "vamp"—the short symphony between the verses—before the house became quiet again. Then Gertie began, and the house was hushed. At the chorus the other players settled back, and once more the duet between violin and voice thrilled the hearers. Again the applause thundered out. The singer bowed repeatedly, but still the hand clapping continued, and she leaned over the footlights. "Get up and take a bow," she shouted. "Push him up, Benson."

The leader guided Avard to his feet, and he stood there, abashed by the sensation he had created. Three times they repeated the double chorus, and even then the stage manager had to ring up in the next act and hold the curtain up before the house would quiet down.

Presently the call boy poked his head through the trap and handed a note to Benson. He turned to Avard. "Miss Clayton wants to see you in her dressing room," he said. "Never mind this act. I can get along."

Weak and trembling from the reaction, Avard slipped out of the orchestra pit and presently presented himself before the singer.

"What's your name?" she demanded curiously.

"Pierre Avard," he said hesitatingly.

"Sounds good for the bills," she said critically. "Say, we'd make a great team, something like the three Dumonds' stunt—street singers, you know. I'll fix Benson all right. Will you come?"

"Mademoiselle wishes my services?" he asked haltingly, unwilling to believe that such good fortune could be true.

"Sure thing!" she confirmed. "We stopped the show. We'll be headliners. Want to double up?"

"Double up?" he repeated wonderingly. "Mademoiselle does me the honor of proposing a matrimonial alliance?"

Gertie eyed him curiously. To double up meant to form a team. Then an idea came to her. "I guess so," she answered carelessly. "It'll keep some other dame from getting her hooks on you."

Benson summed up the situation later over his nightcap.

"It's a good thing for both of them," he declared oracularly. "He'll keep her straight and do something with her voice. He's too much in love with her to realize what a silly little fool she is. By the time she's really ready to fall in love he'll be there to be fallen in love with. Here's luck to 'em."

And they all drained their glasses.

Animals Never Commit Suicide.

I do not believe that animals ever commit suicide. I do not believe that they have any notions of death, or take any note of time, or ever put up any bluff game, or ever deliberate together, or form plans, or forecast the seasons. They may practice deception, as when a bird feigns lameness or paralysis to decoy you away from her nest, but this, of course, is instinctive and not conscious deception. There is at times something that suggests co-operation among them, as when wolves hunt in relays, as they are said to do, or when they hunt in couples, one enguging the quarry in front, while the other assaults it from the rear, or when quail roost upon the ground in a ring, their tails to the center, their heads outward, or as when cattle or horses form a circle when attacked in the open by wild beasts, the cattle with their heads outward and the horses with their heels. Of course all this is instinctive and not the result of deliberation. The horse always turns his tail to the storm as well, and cows and steers, if I remember rightly, turn their heads.—John Burroughs in Outing.

It Puzzled Him.

"When going through a big apartment house the other day looking for a friend I came across something funny," said the busy woman. "I read the names of all the tenants on the doors as I passed from floor to floor, and by and by I came to one card that said, 'J. Fitzgerald and wife.' I have been puzzling ever since over the significance of that card. Had J. Fitzgerald only recently taken unto himself a wife, and was he anxious to advertise the fact, or had Mrs. Fitzgerald a mind of her own, and did she insist upon recognition, or—but I give it up. What did it mean anyhow?"—New York Globe.

A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

Railway Man Shot Wife Who Had Left Him.

Boston, March 21.—John Blake, an employe of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co., yesterday intercepted his wife Mary, who refused to live with him, on Carson street, in South Boston, shot her, and then committed suicide. The woman may recover. It is said that Blake urged his wife to return to his home, and when she refused he shot her. As she fell Blake placed the revolver's muzzle in his mouth and fired four shots, causing instant death. Six children of the couple lived with their mother.

Hat Cost His Life.

Sault Ste. Marie, March 21.—During the storm Tuesday, Donald McDonald, while crossing the river on the ice bridge, tried to recover his hat, which blew off, but broke through the ice and was drowned.

S. Larson went in to try and rescue McDonald, and was swept under the ice.

He came up in another hole, after it was supposed he was drowned. He crawled out unseen and went to his boarding house.

Affiliated With McGill.

Montreal, March 21.—Principal Peterson of McGill University, announces that affiliation with McGill of the Prince of Wales' College, Charlottetown, P. E. I., is accomplished.

Lineman Killed on Pole.

Chatham, March 21.—A heavily charged electric wire crossed the wires of the G. N. W. here yesterday and D. Loson, a lineman, was killed while working at the top of a pole.

Leopold and Cabinet.

Brussels, March 21.—An acute disagreement exists between King Leopold and his Cabinet over the question of the Congo Independent State, the King considering the concessions made by his Ministers to the Parliamentary Congo commission to be unwarranted.

A special envoy from the Belgian Foreign Office has had an audience with King Leopold at Beaulieu, France, the result of which was unsatisfactory. It is believed in well informed quarters that the resignation of the Cabinet is certain as soon as the King returns to Belgium.

Eddy Estate Tax $105,143.

Ottawa, March 21.—The balance of the succession tax on the E. B. Eddy estate has been paid to the province, $75,000 had been paid and the balance is $30,143, making a total of $105,143.

French Ship In Collision.

London, March 21.—(C. A. P.)—The French sailing ship Massena, from Newfoundland, is a derelict in the English Channel, after a collision. Her crew of 17 were landed at Boulogne.

Lord Nevill Held For Trial.

London, March 21.—Lord William Nevill, fourth son of the Marquis of Abergavenny, was yesterday committed for trial on the charge of stealing jewelry. Bail was fixed at $25,000.

First analysis of the urine showed that chronic disease of the kidneys was present.

A PHYSICIAN PROVES

By Analysis of the Urine that Chronic Kidney Disease is Cured by the use of

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

The case of Capt. Smith is unusually interesting, because it proves absolutely by analysis of the urine that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured him of kidney disease. The doctor himself could scarcely believe it until he made the second analysis and pronounced the captain a well man.

Capt. Wm. Smith is a veteran of the Crimean war, living at Revelstoke, B. C., and earned his title in the British army. He reported his case in a letter as follows:—"I can testify to the benefits derived from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For years I was a sufferer from kidney disease, and could get no relief from it. The doctor examined me and analyzed my urine and told me I had chronic disease of the kidneys. As his medicine did me no good, I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was benefited so much that I kept on taking them until I can say that I am perfectly cured. I told the doctor I was cured, but he would not believe me until he examined my urine again. After doing so he stated that I had no trace of kidney disease left. I have recommended Dr. Chase's medicines to many people."

It is not pleasant to contemplate the approach of Bright's disease, dropsy, gravel, rheumatism or apoplexy, and yet these are the very diseases which anyone may expect who neglects to cure derangements of the kidneys.

YOU CAN MAKE THIS TEST:

Should it not be convenient for you to have a physician analyze the urine, you can make this test yourself:—Put some urine in a bottle or tumbler and let it stand for twenty-four hours; if there is a sediment in the bottom at the end of that time, or if it is discolored, milky, cloudy or stringy, your kidneys are out of order and are not doing their work properly.

Among the other symptoms of kidney disease are:—

Backache, scanty, highly colored urine, deposits in urine after standing, painful, scalding urination, continued paleness, loss of flesh, swelling of ankles and legs, irregular action of the bowels, rheumatism and sciatic pains.

If you suffer in this way there is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. You will search in vain for a treatment which will so soon call a halt to this terrible disease. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Second analysis of urine showed that after treatment with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills there was no trace of kidney disease left.

ALL RUN DOWN

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy E. Leduc of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a saleslady. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I seemed to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says:—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

It makes the weak strong, the sick well, and assures lasting good health.

WARNING—Beware of any substitute for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine, only in 50c boxes containing 50 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

A Proven Cure For Indigestion

A healthy stomach does two things.

1st—gives up enough gastric juice to digest food—and —2nd—churns food, by means of its muscular action, until digestive juice and food are thoroughly mixed.

An unhealthy stomach is either too weak to properly churn the food or it does not give up enough gastric juice to make digestion complete.

Then you have Indigestion—Heartburn—Distress after Eating—Sour Stomach—Headaches—and finally chronic Dyspepsia.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia because they give you a healthy stomach.

"Fruit-a-tives" actually strengthen the muscles of the stomach—increase the power of the churning movement—and also enable the stomach to excrete sufficient gastric juice to completely digest every meal.

Thousands have been cured of Indigestion and Dyspepsia by "Fruit-a-tives" alone.

"Fruit-a-tives" also cure the Constipation and Biliousness with which so many Dyspeptics suffer.

"Fruit-a-tives" are intensified fruit juices, combined with tonics and antiseptics—and are an infallible cure for all Stomach Troubles. Try them. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MAY HAVE TO GET COOLIES.

Canada Needs Fifty Thousand Men to Construct Her Railways.

So great is the railway construction work to be carried on in Canada during the present year that those who have the work in hand are in a desperate state of mind as to procuring the necessary labor. The lowest estimate given by contractors is that fifty thousand pick and shovel men will be needed, if the undertakings at present in view are to be gone on with. Where are these men to be had? How are they to be procured?

To Bring John Chinaman.

For months the idea has been afloat that the railway companies will use their combined influence at Ottawa to secure permission for the bringing in of Chinese coolies by the shipload to engage in this work on the understanding that the men will be deported when the work is done. In the British Columbia elections some of the Conservative speakers declared that the whole matter had been secretly arranged with the Ottawa Government to the satisfaction of the Grand Trunk Pacific, at least; that a contract had been entered into between that railway and a certain company whose agent was already in China booking thousands of men; that those men would be landed from ships at Prince Rupert and would then be engaged for railway work, thus evading the Alien Labor law. But this would not evade the necessity for each coolie to pay down $500 as an admission fee to the country, and it is said that the Government will be asked to suspend the collection of this head-tax.

Work Must Not Stand Still.

Pick and shovel men are needed in great numbers. There is no getting away from the fact that the ordinary supply will not answer. So far as organized labor is concerned there is no sense in disputing facts evident to all. Something must be done to permit the country to make progress during 1907. What can be done? If the leaders of labor object to the bringing in of the cheap labor, the inferior blood and low morals of China, what are they prepared to assent to? There is work to be done and no workers to do it. If the labor unions will recommend nothing and assent to nothing, something will be done whether they like it or lump it. Their wisest course, then, would seem to be to assent to the plan least objectionable from their point of view, which surely would be the bringing in of a specified number of white men from Europe under contract to perform a specified work and then be deported—the whole operation to be under the direction of the Department of Labor and under the eye of the fair-wage officer of that department. Let us at least have white men, an army of whom could be secured in Great Britain alone.

TO DUTY AND DEATH.

Another Name Added to the Roll of Canada's Noble Women.

Montreal has many stately monuments, but there is need for another in one of the most conspicuous places in the city. No braver deed is to be found in Canadian annals than that of Sarah Maxwell, the schoolmistress of Hochelaga, who on Tuesday gave her life for her pupils. The story is Homeric in its simplicity says The Globe.

In those few terrible minutes one woman was at work, untiring, unflinching. One after another she carried the little ones out to the windows and to safety, groping her way back each time to rescue those behind. There was not time to carry them down the narrow stairway. It was impassable with smoke and flames. Burned, blinded and bruised, she still battled with the smoke and flame until after handing out one little girl, the agony she suffered forced her to cry out, "Oh, I am burning."

But even then she did not hesitate for a moment. Back she went into the blistering heat and the roaring smoke, where, groping in search of others, whom she could not see, but whom she knew had not been saved, Fireman Benoit found her as he climbed the ladder and broke in one of the windows of the second story, himself almost blinded by the smoke and badly scorched by the terrible heat. He cried to her to come out and save herself while there was yet time, but she stayed on.

To the poet, the statesman and the soldier Canada has raised not a few fine monuments of bronze. These men are worthy of remembrance, but not more worthy, not nearly "so worthy most of them" of having their names graven on imperishable tablets as this girl, who with the agonized cry, "I'm burning," went back to duty and death.

Are the Colonies Underrated.

One hears this remark often reiterated of late, it appears to be just dawning upon the rank and file of people in this country that the policy of England regarding settlement of respective claims between Canada and the United States has brought into being a feeling among young Canadians, which may prove a source of trouble in the future. How far this is justified it is difficult to estimate, but the present expansion of Canadian affairs in every direction appears to be accompanied with a sort of awakening among English people as to possibilities of the change in the centre of gravity within the British Empire. This may sound bombastic and absurd, but British North America is daily approaching closer to the mother island, as the facilities for transport and communication increase, and a diminuation in the cable rates would greatly accelerate the approach of the two countries.—The Toronto News.

Canned Foods.

Bright colors should be regarded as a flag of danger in the selection of canned foods, for they invariably indicate artificial coloring. A bright green color, such as is seen in canned peas and beans, indicates the presence of copper or iron. The brilliant red of catchup and canned tomatoes and fruits usually comes from aniline dye. A bright yellow, such as is found in mustard, extract of lemon and noodles, is also aniline in its origin as a general thing. The abnormally white color of canned corn and other foods indicates bleaching.—What to Eat.

WAS SHE DELUDED?

Strange Story of How a Woman Thinks Her Husband Has Changed His Identity.

There are no limits to the strange things that can happen in this world of ours. Recently a woman who had been married fourteen years, in calm, incisive tones, explained to the bewildered Magistrate at Willesden that lately she "had noticed a change in her husband," and was now sure that a substitute had taken his place. The five children called the substitute "Daddy," but she was sure that she was being imposed upon.

"Bring this man to court if you can," said the magistrate, faintly. But the man will not go. Recently, however, the woman explained why she is sure that a deception is being practiced on her. She lives in a flat in a rather poor part of Willesden.

Fourteen years ago, she said, she was married to a zinc worker. She noticed the "change" when the last child but one was born. Although the new husband gave her 27 shillings a week, like the old one, some of his ways are different.

For instance, the boots he wore were "nines" instead of "eights." Then she saw that he was darker in complexion. He admitted this cheerfully. "I am getting a bit darker," he said. But the decisive proof came soon after. She noticed that a birthmark on her husband's leg was missing, and asked for an explanation. "It went away not long after the baby was born," she was told.

Finally, says the wife, the new husband smokes the same tobacco as the old one.

LADIES TAKE THE BOX.

They Have to Run the Gauntlet of Many Sarcastic Remarks.

Several Paris women have longed to become cabdrivers, and at last two of them have passed the necessary examination, and are now qualified to handle the reins. They are Mme. Duffaut and Mme. Charnier.

The Prefect of Police, M. Lepino, who is a most thoughtful public servant, has ordered that "with a view to the possibility of falls," men's attire will be compulsory for the lady cabdrivers. There seems to be a good deal of humor in the official notice, comments a writer. Are the cabwomen expected to fall frequently from their boxes? They will be quite safe if they do, for they are to wear "stout pantaloons, short jackets, and boiled leather hats."

Less than five minutes after setting out on her first day's round, Mme. Duffaut had her first experience with professional jealousy. A mere man driver whom she encountered addressed her familiarly as "La petite mere," and remarked that she was holding her whip like a wax candle. Mme. Duffaut disdained to reply.

Further on near the Central Market a woman inquired pointedly whether Mme. Duffaut's husband mended the family hose. A milkman asked tenderly after her health. A marketman, saluting her with a tremendous sweep of his broad-brimmed hat, advised her never to drive on the left, because that was the side where the heart was.

A group of men drinking in a wine shop cheered her lustily and invited her to join them. Two small boys ran after her with shouts of "Vive la Republique!" All things considered, she felt that she had attained popularity.

Mme. Charnier had a similar experience.

PROSPERITY IN THE WEST.

Canada Is One of the Richest Countries in Natural Resources.

Writing in "Canada" recently Mr. William Whyte, who has an intimate knowledge of the Dominion west of Winnipeg, says:—With respect to my views regarding this country at the present time, at the outset I might say that the present exceedingly prosperous conditions prevailing all over Western Canada are but the realistion, in part, of the hopes of those who, like myself, came to the country when it was in its infancy, and who had unswerving faith in its resources and possibilities.

Never in the history of the country has Western Canada exhibited such signs of prosperity as it has this year—the crowning of several years of pronounced advancement. The crops have been excellent, the farmers in all communities have made money, resulting in a large increase in business generally.

Happy and Contented.

Above all, the population generally appear to be happy and contented, and this is the strongest evidence I could adduce as to the general prosperity and advancement of the country, because without prosperity the people would be neither happy nor contented.

The development displayed is truly marvellous. The country is thickly settled, and there is not a town on either line that has not at least one or two business streets, well built up—the bustling inhabitants indicating that the streets were there for other than ornamental purposes.

Without Foundation.

Many conflicting reports about Canada have been circulated in the Old Country, some of them rather to the discredit of this country, but they are absolutely without foundation. Such reports could only be originated by idle, shiftless persons not having the ability to adapt themselves to the conditions of a new country, and who, instead of taking things as they found them and endeavoring to make the existing conditions fit their requirements, took the mean course of endeavoring to prejudice the minds of their countrymen at home against Canada.

One of the Richest.

In natural resources, Canada, particularly the western portion of it, is one of the richest countries in the world, and there is plenty of room and opportunities for hundreds of thousands of settlers who are willing to work.

If a man is willing to work hard he need have no fear of not attaining success ultimately. The foremost men of Western Canada to-day are living proofs that what I say in this respect is correct.

What "Yf" Spells.

A gentleman once received a letter in which were these words:

"Not finding Brown at home, I delivered your message to his yf."

The gentleman, finding it bad spelling, and therefore not being very intelligible, called his lady to help him read it. Between them they picked out the meaning of all but the "yf," which they could not understand. The lady proposed calling her chambermaid, because Betty, says she, has the best knack at reading bad spelling of any one I know.

Betty came, and was surprised that neither sir nor madam could tell what "yf" was.

"Why," says she, "yf spells wife. What else can it spell?"

And indeed it is a much better as well as shorter method of spelling wife than doubleyou, i, ef, e, which in reality spell doubleyifey.—From a Letter by Benjamin Franklin.

Birds Evolved From Reptiles.

It may be a shock to some persons to learn that the birds of the present day are descendants of reptiles. This fact has been conclusively proved by the fossil remains of creatures that form the intermediate stages between the birds of today and the reptiles of prehistoric ages. In fact, many of the birds have not yet completed their evolution, as in the case of the penguin, whose wings are merely rudimentary, absolutely inadequate for flying purposes and useful only as a means of propelling these awkward creatures through the water.

Too Much For Him.

"Andrew," said a devoted wife to her husband, "I want $100."

"A hundred what?" exclaimed the husband.

"Dollars," she replied calmly.

"What for?"

"Oh, a whole lot of things."

"Um—um," he hesitated. "I guess I shall have to check your extravagance, my dear."

"Do," she smiled, "and make it payable to my order, please."

He collapsed then and there.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Handsome Buttons Numbered Among Jewels—Spring Styles.

Buttons are now bought for posterity and are reckoned among one's jewels. The prettiest of the antique buttons are of silver filigree in gold and in cut steel. But there are boundless possibilities in the decorated buttons of enamel, cloth, bone and velvet.

Glace kid continues the favorite for street wear. With the three-quarter length sleeve, which many prefer to the elbow length and which is newer, twelve button length gloves are amply long, and it is a waste of money to buy the longer ones, which cost more proportionately. The best colors for general wear are white, black, gray and all the delicate shades of tan and suede. Self stitching is considered in better taste than contrasts, even black not being very much in evidence.

To one looking for something severe in spring tailor modes there are mixed gray suitings, which are quite attractive made up with blue enamel buttons and blue taffeta bands and possibly blue taffeta collar and cuffs. One must do something distinctive to mark the note of spring, and this can be done in the case of the tailor made by the addition of a bright note of color.

The Prince Chap coat and skirt are to be leading favorites in the spring. The coat is almost three-quarter, and the skirt is plain, save for a few bands of taffeta stitched upon the upper edge. The very plain and tight fitting coat is finished with a flat collar and sometimes with wide flaring cuffs.

The cape illustrated is for evening wear and is made of ivory white broadcloth, held at the throat by a silk cord and tassel. The lining is of liberty satin. JUDIC CHOLLET.

A MARCH HARE LUNCH.

Unique Entertainment That Any Hostess May Easily Give.

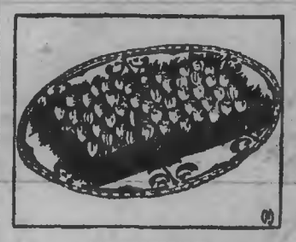
A timely and unique entertainment is a March hare luncheon.

For the centerpiece place a mound of dampened sand in a wooden box cover, then edge with ground pine and fill with seasonable blossoms—narcissuses, tulips or jonquils. This mound should be placed upon a white embroidered or drawn work centerpiece, the polished table being used. Beneath each cover a doily is placed which matches the center one in design. In the center of the flowers place two hares. Beautiful ones made of gray and brown velvet, with wild eyes, can be purchased in the department stores where children's toys are sold, but the cost being something like $1.50 apiece it behooves the hostess to make her own. Draw on stiff bristol board two hares, then cut four of these out. Cover both patterns of each with cotton batting. The ones used for the front view have the face stuffed out and the eyes, inside of ears, nose and lips made of deep pink cotton. The bristol board legs are cut separate, covered and glued on.

For those who feel they cannot indulge their love for natural blossoms there are those made of French crape paper that can hardly be distinguished from the real flowers.

At each cover place a name card, to which attach the "Left hind foot of a graveyard rabbit, caught in the dark of the moon," with ribbon corresponding to the color of blossoms used. If jonquils, then yellow ribbon; narcissuses, green and white; scarlet tulips, then red ribbons, etc.

If the rabbit feet cannot be bought conveniently, then use the quaint cards which may be purchased from station



THE CENTERPIECE.

ers. These have rabbits and hares doing all manner of laughable antics, and if one is clever with water colors original souvenirs can be made with plain cards.

Of course the hare plays an important part in the menu, but it must not make its appearance in the first course, but should be held until dessert.

Etiquette.

When calling, a lady never rises from her chair when another visitor whom she does not know is announced.

If you know her, rise and come forward to speak to her as soon as your hostess has done so.

It is unnecessary to rise even if a lady is introduced to you. A bow is quite sufficient.

If the host happens to come into the room when afternoon tea is going on, ladies do not rise to shake hands. He comes forward and shakes hands with them while they are still sitting.

Don't make a tour round the room when leaving to shake hands with all the people you know. Do so with the host and hostess and bow to any other friends.

The hostess rises to receive her visitors as they arrive unless she happens to be an old lady. She also rises to shake hands with departing lady visitors. In the case of gentlemen she may pay them the compliment or not, as she thinks best.

If when staying with a friend a caller whom you do not know is announced when you are sitting alone in the drawing room, don't rise unless you offer to go in search of your hostess. But you might make a remark as to her speedy appearance or something of a like nature.

Crushed Chiffons, Ties and Veils.

Of these perishable articles many are merely tossed and crushed without being soiled and will freshen up if laid under a slightly damp cloth and an iron applied.

If dirty they may often be washed, but this process must be carried out speedily with a warm soapy lather.

Squeeze dry, but do not wring.

Squeeze and swish through the water, but do not rub.

Gently shake and press into shape.

If starch is required, gum water or rice water—one made by adding a few drops of gum to warm water, the other by straining the water off boiled rice—are the only permissible stiffeners.

French and English Husbands.

When an English wife has hysterics, her husband is immediately bored and goes to his club or else he says: "You are not very well, my dear. Shall I send for a doctor?" The Frenchman, an contraire, has hysterics too. The Frenchman may fight with his wife, love her, hate her, kiss or kill her, but indifferent to her, superior to her—never!

HOUSE FURNISHING.

Young Wives of Limited Means Should Start Slowly.

"One of the most frequent mistakes made by young wives," said a matron known for her sensible advice on topics of the household, "is that of filling the house with furniture at the outset of their married life.

"They like to feel that their friends find nothing wanting, and they forget that, starting out with too full an equipment, they must necessarily keep that unchanged for several years. There is no room to add new things, and to dispose of old furniture that is not worn out is a serious loss. The proper thing to do is to start out with just enough to be comfortable.

"From time to time little things may be added as they are found necessary. In that way one never feels like a back number. At the same time one does not have to turn everything topsy turvy in order to be up to date. Another important thing in this connection is to resist the temptation, frequent when a young woman has everything she needs in furniture, to spend on entertainment money and time she can ill afford. Many young matrons have become broken in health from that."

SPRING ADVICE

Do Not Dose With Purgatives and and Weakening Medicines--What People Need at this Season Is a Tonic.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the spring feeling. You are easily tired, appetite variable, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depressing. Or perhaps pimples and eruptions appear on the face, or you have twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order, that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble. Don't dose yourself with purgative medicines in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system, and weaken instead of giving strength. What you need is a tonic medicine that will make new, rich, red blood, build up the weakened nerves and thus give you new health and strength. And the one medicine to do this speedily and surely is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which makes weak, easily tired and ailing men and women feel bright, active and strong. If you need a medicine this spring try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will never regret it. This medicine has cured thousands in every part of the world and what it has done for others it can easily do for you.

The headquarters for the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in Canada is Brockville, Ont. So-called pink pills offered by companies located at other places in Canada are fraudulent imitations intended to deceive. If your dealer does not keep the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People send to Brockville, Ont., and The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., will mail the pills to you at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

Labor Saving Embroidery.

Odd new initials have just been invented, an ingenious way of getting an effect without having to do the work usually associated with that effect. These are letters—big or little affairs, depending upon what you want them to mark—already embroidered, ready to apply to towel or sheet or napkin. A few careful stitches set them firmly in place, and the tip ends are embroidered in a soft cotton, the same sort as the initials themselves are done with.

A Rehash.

"What shall I do with this hash?" said the cook. "We've served it four times, and there's some left yet."

"Put a little brandy and a few raisins in it," said Mrs. Sleek, "and make it into a mince pie."

VOGUE POINTS.

The Easter Hat In Odd, Attractive Sailor Shapes.

Sailor hats will be smart for Easter and general spring wear. They are to be worn in a variety of shapes, with upturned, downturned, curved and dented brims. By their general becomingness, too, an uninterrupted vogue during the spring and coming summer seasons is predicted, so that a woman who invests in one at this early date may feel convinced that she has a shape that will be used throughout the summer.

The irregular models that will be stylish offer to the business girl of limited means an unusual opportunity for practicing a bit of clever economy on her spring headgear, for flowers of every form, size and color are given prominence in trimming, and there are few women who do not possess a discarded mass of foliage from which they can in all probability extract for present use a bunch or two of blossoms and leaves that have done duty in a bygone season. With the proper freshening processes applied, these flowers will come forth quite fresh and new again and serve admirably for the decoration of one's first hat.

A becoming shape in one of the new delicately tinted straws or braids may be ornamented with a few yards of malinette and ribbon for rosettes and bandeau trimming, a wreath or bunch of flowers and foliage, and one has a bonnet for Easter that is a bit of fashionable millinery which would do credit to any exclusive modiste's shop.

Wherever the flowers are most becoming they should be worn, for in the coming season there is no definite place for a rose, a bunch of sweet peas or for large poinsettias. If the foliage looks best on the front of the hat—the latter twisted up in an attractive fashion—then the blossoms should be put on at the desired angle, and incidentally if leaves, etc., show to advantage at the side or in the back they should be sewed in place where they best become the wearer.

While the flowers in light and dark shades will be the most pronounced feature of hat trimmings, tulle and sheer chiffon silk will be used as twisted bows, pompons, large fluffy loops and occasionally as plain bands.

To Wash China Silk.

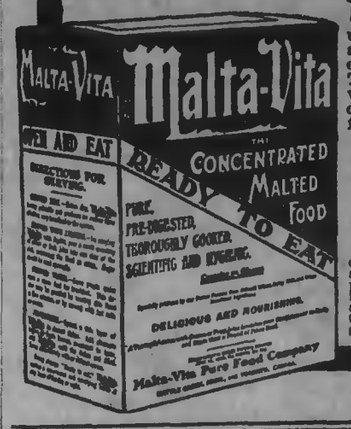
To wash black and fast colored china and taffeta silks pour a quart of household ammonia into a twelve quart pail of warm, not hot, water, in which suds have been made with castile soap. Wash the fadeless silks in this and rinse thoroughly in clear soft water. Before the material is quite dry smooth it on the wrong side with a moderately hot iron. A silk that is not fast colored cannot be wet without injury to the dye, but sometimes another color or a neutral tone that will be more artistic and satisfactory than the original tint may be produced by washing as above.

Malta-Vita

"The Perfect Food"

Same Big Package Same High Quality

Now 10 cts.



Malta-Vita "The Perfect Food," malt life, as its name implies, stands for that intense vitality that results from the daily use of a food skilfully prepared from the whole of the wheat, of which, after being cooked, each kernel has been subjected to the searching digestive action of the diastase and other enzymes of barley malt. This makes it a "predigested" food of highest nourishment value, which explains the remarkable results obtained in cases of nervous debility, deranged stomachs and constipation. Besides, it is the best food to eat.

"We have used several boxes of Malta-Vita and think it the finest food we have tried yet. Having used different kinds, we find Malta-Vita has a flavor which excels all others. We had almost despaired to find something our baby could eat without being distressed. He had, since birth, been a constant sufferer from constipation and a general derangement of the stomach and bowels. Since we began feeding him Malta-Vita he has improved wonderfully in health and is entirely cured of constipation. In fact, myself and husband realize a great benefit since using the food, as we have suffered from general debility. We find it gives life and tone to the entire system." Name given on request by Malta-Vita Pure Food Co.

MALTA-VITA is a food with a "taste." It does not belong to the tasteless variety of "flaked foods" and too great credit cannot be claimed for Malta-Vita on account of the fact that it contains its own sweetening agent—maltose always being present in a proportion exceeding eight per cent and sometimes ten per cent. This is a healthy, digestible sugar, formed by the action of the malt diastase upon starch and it causes the stomach no inconvenience. This is not the case with flaked foods that are sweetened by cane sugar, beet sugar, maple sugar, boiled cider, glucose or grape sugar, as all these cause acidity in the stomach and are seriously injurious.

A NORTHERN ROOKERY.

How the Seals Go About Setting Up House.

There are many kinds of seals, including sea-lions hair-seals, and fur-seals, the latter being the most valuable from a commercial point of view. During the breeding season great numbers make their homes on the Pribyloff Islands, in Behring Sea, and hither with wonderful instinct hundreds of thousands of seals steer their course through thousands of miles of sea at the appointed time.

The names by which seals are known are very strange. A male seal, over six years of age, is a "bull," his wives are "cows," their young are "pups," males under six years of age are "bachelors"; further, a swarm of them is called a "herd," and during the great seal season they congregate in "rookeries."

Old Bulls Arrive.

The first to arrive at the breeding ground early in May are the old bulls, some of them from 15 to 20 years old, and seven feet in length. Then in June come hundreds and thousands of other bulls and a great fight begins for suitable places on which to live with their wives and rear their children. Those who take up the best positions are attacked by the newcomers, and are often driven off to find other quarters less suitable. Some times an old veteran, heavy in shoulder and hard of sinew, will wage a dozen or more desperate battles, and come out the victor at last.

These fights take place between the males over six years of age, the others—the "bachelors"—keeping apart by themselves on the outskirts of the breeding ground. After a time the rookery is mapped out into little pieces of ground from eight to ten feet square, ready for the advent of the female seals. When they arrive the fighting among the bulls begins afresh with renewed vigor, but after a time they settle down into domestic life. A day or two after the arrival of the female seals they give birth to their young, and for the next three months the islands are one huge nursery.

Bachelors Provide Furs.

By the middle of September the old bulls have departed, and these are soon followed by the females and the young who have now learned to swim. The seal skin of commerce is obtained chiefly from the backs of the "bachelors." They are not at all timid, and it is an easy matter for three or four men to enter a herd in the early morning, pick out the finest specimens, and drive them inland to the killing ground. They are killed by being hit on the head with heavy oak bludgeons, so that the skins are not injured in any way.

Meeting the Deficiency.

Man is growing shorter,
So the doctors say.
Car straps must be longer
Or they'll idly sway.

GROWING OLD WHILE YET YOUNG

What a number of women there are who feel that these words exactly suit their case.

There are thousands of females all over our land, broken down in health and dragging out a miserable existence, overburdened with disease peculiar to their sex, apparently growing old while yet young.

From early morn till late at night they have been on the go year after year, attending to the household duties. Is it any wonder then that sooner or later there comes a general collapse? Palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, smothering and sinking spells, weakness, dizziness, sleeplessness and many other troubles follow. What a woman wants is something to build up the system and for this purpose you cannot equal

SCOTLAND

A sad domestic tragedy occurred at Ayr a few days ago. A sawyer named John Cochrane discovered his wife lying in an unconscious condition on the bed with several wounds in her throat. His two boys, aged 4 and 6, were dead, their throats having been cut. One was on the bed and the other on the floor. A week old baby and other children were unharmed. The police found a blood stained razor on the floor. It is supposed that the woman who is thirty years of age, attacked the children in a sudden fit of insanity, and then attempted to commit suicide.

Edinburgh is to attempt a new way of dealing with the unemployed. Recognizing that a permanent scheme is desirable the corporation are purchasing a farm, 15 miles from Edinburgh, which has 235 acres, 70 being unimproved moss land. Refuse from the city destructor is to be deposited on about 100 acres, rendering that land ready in the course of time, for tillage. The aim is to use the whole farm for spade work and to sell market garden produce.

Much excitement was created near Dundee recently when three women and three men, members of a new religious sect, were baptized in the Dighty Burn. At dusk the party appeared on the banks of the stream; rain was falling and pieces of ice floated on the surface of the burn. One after another the converts were plunged into the water. The spectators were chilled by the mere sight of the dripping shivering creatures emerging from the waters of the Dighty.

Mr. Oswald of Auchencruive, the chairman of the Ayr Auld Brig Preservation committee stated to the Ayr town council a few days ago, that the committee had raised 9500 pounds of the 10,000 pounds necessary for the preservation of the bridge and guarantee the balance by the end of next month. The town council has decided to hand over the bridge to the committee to proceed with the preservation work.

The ancient border custom of "creeling" the bridegroom has been successfully revived at Lauder, Berwickshire. The creel, a basket, used by fish-wives, for carrying their fish, was placed on the bridegroom's shoulders, and the crowd of creelers then threw stones into it until the bride publicly kissed her husband. This she promptly did, and he was forthwith released.

IRELAND

Mr. James Hood, a prominent Irish horse dealer, of Londonderry, was accidentally suffocated by gas in a Dumfries hotel.

A verdict of manslaughter was returned by a coroner's jury at Armagh against Mrs. Sugahan in connection with the death of David Crozier. Mrs. Sugahan struck Crozier with an umbrella while he was fighting with her husband.

A dramatic turn was given to an inquest on three young children at Loughrea, Galway, recently, by the reconstruction of the tragedy. The mother's story was that she put some live coals on the bedroom grate, which had not been used for some time; that the room filled with smoke; that she opened and closed the window during the night, but that when she awoke late next day half stupefied, the children were dead. Live coals were put on the grate again; the room was soon full of smoke, and when it cleared off the deadly fumes of carbon monoxide were detected. It was found that, with the exception of a slight down draft, the chimney was blocked.

An old woman named Meddley, who is the caretaker of the Protestant Church at the village of Annaduff, Leitrim, was attacked recently by a masked man. Having bound her, he pushed a towel into her mouth, but she succeeded in pulling it out, and her screams attracted the attention of passers-by. Her assailant escaped by a back door. The woman's brother recently returned from America, where he had amassed a large amount of money, and it is believed that the intruder desired to rifle his trunks.

A Crimean veteran died recently at Cambrie House, Newry, Co. Down, in Private Geo. Evans. He was present at the battles of Inkerman, Alma, Balaclava and Sebastopol, for which he received the Crimean medal with four clasps, and also the Turkish medal. It was at the battle of Inkerman that the old soldier saw a terrible struggle with the Russians. Three times were the British driven from their guns by the Russians, and three times ddid Evans and his gallant comrades re-take them.

Your Doctor

Can cure your Cough or Cold, no question about that, but—why go to all the trouble and inconvenience of looking him up, —then of having his prescription filled, when you can step into any drug store in Canada and obtain a bottle of SHILOH'S CURE for a quarter.

Why pay two to five dollars when a twenty-five cent bottle of SHILOH will cure you as quickly?

Why not do as hundreds of thousands of Canadians have done for the past thirty-four years: let SHILOH be your doctor whenever a Cough or Cold appears.

SHILOH will cure you, and all druggists back up this statement with a positive guarantee.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. 61, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child; the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night. 4

ROYAL Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Healthful cream of tartar, derived solely from grapes, refined to absolute purity, is the active principle of every pound of Royal Baking Powder.

Hence it is that Royal Baking Powder renders the food remarkable both for its fine flavor and healthfulness.

No alum, no phosphate—which are the principal elements of the so-called cheap baking powders—and which are derived from bones, rock and sulphuric acid.

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY MARCH 23 1907

A General Provincial Election Is Forecast

Report That Whitney Will Disolve Parliament After the Present Session and Bring on the Elections.

IN JUNE OR SEPTEMBER.

Toronto, March 23.—I am told that it is not at all improbable that the Whitney Government will make an appeal to the electors after the present session—in June or September. From present conditions, it would seem that there is likely to be a great deal of truth in this statement. There is no question of doubt, notwithstanding what is said to the contrary, that there is serious division of opinion among the members of the Government in regard to the Back power proposition, as it is regarded to be an unfeasible and impracticable scheme. The Central Prison contract with Helen Charlotte Taylor is a scandal and a shame. The license scandal in Toronto has shocked the community, the extravagant increase of expenditure, and the utter failure of the Government to grasp its responsibility in regard to legislating for the people, the double dealing on the temperance question, are creating a strong belief in the mind of Mr. Whitney, that it is considered the best time—before popular discontent becomes more acute—to appeal to the people, as this is their third session. They would most probably go to the country in June of the next year in any case, and the Government feels that a year more would only add to the burden of explanation they would have to make in an attempt to justify their course and administration. Another reason is that they do not want to have their general election the same year as the Dominion elections.

THE INDIAN GAVE THEM A SCARE

Officials of the Cobourg Jail Were Given an Exciting Time by Red Man Who Stole an Overcoat.

The Cobourg World says: — There was an exciting time at the new gaol on Sunday evening between seven and eight o'clock. An Indian named Rathburn was arrested and lodged in gaol on Saturday charged with stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves from George Green, a brother of Mr. J. H. Green, of this city, while he was out in the county. He was committed to stand trial by Mr. Jno. Miller, J.P., and Constable Frank Young brought him to town. It is supposed that the prisoner had been drinking heavily before his committal. He remained quiet until Sunday night when he seemed transformed into a raving maniac and began tearing the interior of the cell. He was a man of splendid physique, standing 6 feet high. His terrific warhoops could be heard a long way. Governor Snelgrove first ordered him to hand out the broken pieces which he had wrenched from the cell, and then to come out into the airing space, where he was securely locked until the padded cell could be got ready for him.

COUNTY TEACHERS TO HOLD CONVENTION

They Will Meet in Norwood on May 22 and 23rd, When Important Questions Will be Discussed

A meeting of the County Teachers Association was held this morning in the city, when it was decided to hold a teachers' convention in Norwood on May 22 and 23, when questions of interest to the teaching profession will be considered, and on the night of the first day a public meeting will be held, and addresses will be given by prominent educationalists.

BOLTING FROM CAR HORSE WAS HURT

Lively Runaway at Central Park at Noon To-day.

A team of horses attached to a democrat created considerable excitement in the vicinity of Central Park at noon to-day. The animals became frightened at a street car at the Central Park switch, and got beyond the control of the driver. Dashing on to the pavement, they mounted into a telegraph pole and their flight was abruptly stopped. One of the animals was badly cut, while the dashboard of the democrat was shattered. Fortunately the driver escaped injury.

The Maple Leaf And The Beaver

The many friends in Peterborough of Miss Camilla Sanderson, formerly of Peterborough, will be interested in reading the following patriotic verses from her pen, which appeared in the Toronto News of a recent date:

The bright Maple Leaf and the Beaver
Are emblems we love to display.
Then watch we the trail of the spoiler,
And stand for the rights of the toiler,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

We're proud of this land of the Maple,
Our country's behests we obey.
We think of her greatness progressing,
We ask for each effort a blessing,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

We thrill to the beauties of nature,
So sweet in their varied array.
We boast of our storehouse of treasure,
We sing of our wealth and our pleasure
While the Beaver keeps working away.

But here's to our hope of the future—
The boys and the girls at their play—
Who'll stand at their post in their station.
And build up the strength of the nation,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And to her who must earn her own living,
Each lassie so brave and so gay,
Who sings at her work and, while humming,
Builds hopes for the home that is coming,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

To the women and men that are toiling
From morning till eve of the day,
In cheerful acceptance of duty,
Regardless of pleasure or beauty,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And here's to the man who is giving
The wage that is righteous to pay,
Whose wealth is not scrimped out of others,
Who thinks of employes as brothers,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And to artist, and writer, and teacher,
Who feel, and who think, and who say
The Truth as they see it and know it,
Who care for their fellows and show it,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And here's to the man in the Senate,
Giving bond unto honour each day,
To watch for the Wrong and expose it,
And fight till the Right overthrows it,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

Yes, honour each work and each worker,
For beauty and wealth may decay,
But the fruit of each honest endeavour
Will grow into fruitage forever,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

—Camilla Sanderson.

A TALENTED ARTIST MAY RETURN

Mrs. Le Grand Reed May be Heard From Again Early in April—With a New York Company.

Those who heard Mrs. Le Grand Reed, when she was here with the Pittsburg Orchestra, will be glad to learn that there is a probability of her being heard again in this city. An effort is being made to secure her for a date early in April, and this time she will be accompanied by Mr. Kelley Cole, tenor; Mr. Carl Grienauer, cellist, Edith Cave Cole, pianiste, all of New York. The opera house management is under a heavy expense bringing these artists here and in order to ensure themselves against loss it has been decided to open a subscription list, which Mr. Walter Stocker will have charge of.

PETERBORO' MARKET IN EARLY DAYS

Thirty Years Ago, an Old Resident Relates, the Tolls Sold for $1505, and Five Men Were Employed.

The record of the sales of the market tolls for $1050 yesterday recalled to one of the older residents of Peterborough the fact that thirty years ago this spring the tolls, which for a number of years were held by Mr. Edward Green, were sold for $1505. At that time the market was patronized to a much greater extent than it is at the present time, five men being engaged around the market for a considerable portion of the time, and farmers for many miles gathered at the market twice a week to dispose of their produce.

He also recalled the fact that 30 years ago to-day there was one of the biggest storms of the winter, and he compared the present spring weather with that of the year referred to.

A Crusade Against The Youthful Junk Dealers

Citizens Alarmed at the Evils Connected With the Trade—Alderman Advised of the Pernicious Habits of the Boys.

TEACHES BOYS TO STEAL.

The alarming increase in the number of small boys dealing in the junk business has aroused the attention of a number of the citizens and a crusade against this may be expected at the next meeting of the council. An Examiner representative heard a conversation this morning between a local citizen and an alderman, and the above question was the subject.

The former asked if there was not a bylaw already standing on the books prohibiting youths under a certain age going about the city and country, gathering junk. The alderman was not aware of the presence of the bylaw, but promised to open the question at the next meeting of the council.

The citizen pointed out that small boys were running about the city after junk to obtain a few cents to spend in questionable ways. Nothing, he said, would cause them to learn to steal more quickly than the gathering of junk. He knew of cases where boys have stolen bones and old iron from junk dealers and then sold the same to them. This practice had become a craze among the boys and was ruining many of them. It was the worst thing possible, he considered, to allow them an open hand in this respect and he believed that if the council would take the matter up with a view to eliminating this existing evil that body would receive the hearty approval of the ratepayers of the city.

He suggested that a bylaw be passed if there was not one already on the books, prohibiting all youths under the age of 18, from participating in this pernicious practice. If this were done he considered it would be a God-send to Peterborough, as the temptation of stealing, leading to greater evils, would be materially lessened.

THE FORMER PRESIDENT GUILTY

Joseph Phillips Pleads Guilty to Charge of Making False Returns of York Loan Company

PETERBORO' PEOPLE WILL GO ABROAD

Some of Those Who Will Spend the Summer on the Continent and in England

Many Peterborough people are going abroad this season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Rush will sail in May.

Mr. Robert Fair and Miss Fair have taken passage for early in June.

Mrs. Peter Campbell will accompany her brother, and tour the Continent, sailing next month.

Mrs. Thos. Bradburn and daughters, Mrs. Hewson, and Miss Mabel Bradburn, leave in June.

CAVENDISH COMPANY'S BIG SEASON

Has 23,000,000 Feet of Timber on the Dumps Ready for the Drive—A Good Season's Operations.

The lumber camps are breaking up after a very fine winter's work, the weather having been most favourable for work in the woods. Mr. Jas. Powers was in the village this week, having closed his operations of jobbing for the Cavendish Co.

This Company had five large camps of their own, besides jobbers, and have twenty-three million feet of timber on the dumps, about two thirds of it being good pine. Mr. Creswell, forest superintendent, has had a very busy winter but a very successful one.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Parties who have Toboggans at the Street Railway Rink may get them Friday or Saturday, 22nd and 23rd inst., up to 8 o'clock p. m.

All Toboggans left during the Summer will be at owner's risk. 2d-69.

This Council Goes Alderman Tovey One Better, And Will Impose Fines On Bachelors

Men Between the Ages of 25 and 45, Who Refuse or Are Unable to Wed, Must Pay Fines of From $10 to $100, According to the Degree of Negligence.

Ald. Tovey's scheme to tax bachelors has been out-done by an ordinance which was passed recently by the City Council of Fort Dodge, Iowa, where it is not only considered to be a neglect of one of the duties of citizenship to remain single, but a crime. A despatch to the Chicago Tribune from that city has the following in reference to the new ordinance by which it is intended to clear Fort Dodge of those who refuse to conform to the law in this respect. The despatch referred to is follows:—

"Every man in Fort Dodge, between the ages of 25 and 45 years, must become a married man as the result of an ordinance introduced by Mayor Bennett and passed by the City Council yesterday. Any one failing to comply with the law will be fined. The ordinance in part provides:—

"That all able-bodied men between the ages of 25 and 45 years, whose mental and physical propensities and capabilities are normal and who are not now married, shall be required to obtain a license and pride and straightway be exalted to a state of connubial bliss.

"Any person or persons failing to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined a sum not less than $10 nor more than $100, according to the degree of criminal negligence."

Canada Good Enough For Him, Mr. McKenzie, Thinks

A Scotchman Who Was Left a Fortune and Who Went Home to Live, Returns to Canada, Which He Prefers to the Old Country.

WILL REMAIN HERE NOW

Last fall reference was made in the Examiner to the fortune, which had been left to Mr. James McKenzie, who had been living in the city for some years and was employed at the Little Lake Cemetery, with Mr. Frank Wise. After having been advised of the death of his father and of the fact that by his death he had fallen heir to a considerable fortune Mr. McKenzie decided that he would leave Canada for his native heath among the highlands of Scotland, stating at the time his intention of remaining there the rest of his life and enjoying his competence.

Canada, however, had too many charms for Mr. McKenzie, and with the return of spring he decided to return to the land of his adoption, though on leaving here last fall his intention was to remain there. He arrived in the city last night and this morning went to the Cemetery to see if he could get his job back again. He prove himself a good workman, and Mr. Wise was glad to take him on the staff again.

Mr. McKenzie crossed this time on one of the Donaldson Line of steamers and reports that outside St. John, which city was their destination they encountered what the officers of the boat claim was the worst storm they were ever out in. The steamer was anchored and for twenty-four hours she dragged, the captain not daring to try to make the harbour with the sea that was on. Needless to say all hands were glad when shore was reached, and Mr. McKenzie lost no time in taking the train for Peterborough, which he reached last night, and is now content to remain and make his home here.

In view of the fact that some Old Country men who have been a little unfortunate in Canada are writing to their home papers in disparaging terms of this country it is gratifying to know that a man of Mr. McKenzie's stamp can find it so attractive that even with a fortune which makes it unnecessary for him to work he prefers to live here and earn his living by remaining in Scotland and enjoy in ease the money left him.

Hockey Lovers Saw More Than One Hundred Games

Season Closes at Brock Street Rink This Week—It Was Open 126 Times for Skating During the Season.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

With this week the Brock street rink will close for the season, one of the most successful seasons in the history of the rink. Mr. John Thirnbeck, who has been the superintendent for a number of years, states that during that just closed the rink was open for skating no less than one hundred and twenty-six times, and there were more than one hundred hockey games played druing the season, including those played by the senior team, in the schedule and exhibition, those in the City League, and by local teams, not forgetting that between the Review and Examiner teams.

The season just closed has been a most favourable one for skating, very few days during the whole season has the rink been closed on account of lack of ice. While the season is ending a little earlier than it did last year, there has been considerable more skating because of the fact that it opened much earlier and the ice continued throughout the whole winter without interruption, practically.

Mr. Thirnbeck will be at the rink to-night and for a few days at the beginning of the week to enable those who have skates there to secure them before the rink is closed for the season.

NEW MOTOR CAR WITH A SPEED CAPACITY OF 40 MILES AN HOUR

Motor cars are apparently going to be popular in Peterborough this summer. To-day Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson closed the sale of a Ford touring car to Dr. Frederick, which the latter will use in his practice. This car is a four cylinder equipment, with 18 horse power motor, and a speed capacity up to 40 miles an hour. It will be fitted especially for physicians' use and will have a leather-top, to be used in case of wet weather. The car will be delivered in about two weeks and it is but the first of a number which Mr. MacPherson expects to sell during this summer. It is a significant fact that Mr. MacPherson was the first to own an auto in Peterborough, and he has also sold the first car to be disposed of through a local agent.

WILL BUILD NEW WHARF AT TRENT BRIDGE SOON

All the deputations which waited on the Dominion Government this week appear to have been favourably received. It is understood that the deputation from Havelock, consisting of the town council, which went to Ottawa to ask the Government to build a wharf at Trent Bridge, received a favourable response and was given to understand that the request would be granted, and the wharf would be built in the near future. The deputation was introduced by Mr. John Finlay, M.P. for East Peterborough. With the completion of the Trent Canal to its southern outlet, the wharf at the bridge will be required, because it is expected that a heavy freight traffic will be developed between that point and Havelock, from which town it is distant only a few miles.

OMEMEE IN EARNEST AFTER A CHANGE IN STATION LOCATION

Board of Trade Was Organized There Last Night With Large Membership—Will Press Claims for Navigation of Pigeon Creek.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED.

Examiner Special.

Omemee, March 23. — At a largely attended meeting here last night in the commercial room of the Commercial House an Omemee Board of Trade was fully organized. Those present were very enthusiastic over the prospects and many have already become members. The scheme to form a Board of Trade has been on foot for some time, but it was only recently that the matter was fully considered, with the result mentioned above.

The following were the officers elected:

President—G. G. Lamb.
Vice-Pres.—Wm. H. Kerr.
Sec-Treas.—W. Bryson.

All these gentlemen are energetic and prominent Omemee citizens, so that some improvements of an expected character are expected.

The proposition to have the G. T. R. station removed to a point nearer the village will be among the early considerations. The deputation from here to Ottawa on Wednesday called on the G. T. R. officials there and were given good encouragement. Before the station is removed however there will be a ticket office installed in the village.

The other matter now before the board is the dredging of the weeds from Pigeon Creek to make that stretch of water navigable for steamers.

Reports were presented last night by members of the deputation to Ottawa and these gave the members great encouragement.

METHODIST REVIVAL HAS STRANGE EFFECTS

Bellingham, Miss., March 23. — Every member of the grand jury in the Circuit Court here yesterday indicted himself for violating the Sunday liquor law, and each appeared before Justice Booth, and was fined $10.00, with a lecture from the bench. The self-indicted grand jurors also returned bills against several petit jurors for the same offence. A religious wave following a Methodist revival recently swept over Sharkey County, and people of high and low degree are purging themselves.

TAILORING BUSINESS TRANSFERRED

Mr. George Evans Has a Complete Stock of Best Lines in Men's Suitings

LATEST NEW YORK FASHIONS

As announced in another column, Mr. George Evans has purchased the tailoring business of Mr. Harry Stock, on Hunter street, and will carry on the business on the same popular lines that have made this store the headquarters for men who want their clothes to look right, and to know that they are wearing garments that are correct from the standpoint of fashion.

Mr. Evans took over the business on March 1st, and since that time has been in New York studying the newest designs in men's clothing. He spent three weeks in the centre of fashion for this continent, and returns with an accurate knowledge of what is latest and best in clothing for men. He will therefore be in a position to supply clothing that the men of Peterborough may depend upon as being correct in every particular.

Mr. Evans' stock is most complete, containing all the fashionable materials and shades, and the fastidious dresser can have no trouble in selecting material that will thoroughly suit him in this well equipped and well stocked store. Everything that is new and good in the line of tailoring material is to be found, and the man who wants his clothes to look right and feel right cannot do better than visit the establishment.

As far as tailoring is concerned Mr. Evans is in a position to supply some of the best work in this line that has ever been turned out here. He has a clever and competent staff, thoroughly aquainted with every detail of the business. Mr. Evans has been connected with the establishment since 1898, and is very well and favourably known to the people of Peterborough. In his new enterprise he will no doubt be well supported, as the high quality of his work cannot fail to win many customers.

Speaking of his trip to New York to an Examiner reporter this morning, Mr. Evans said that the popular shades this year in New York are grays and browns, with tweeds as the favourite material, although worsteds will have their following as well. There will be the usual differences of opinion with regard to double and single breasted coats, and both will be largely worn.

A noticeable feature in connection with the spring and summer fashion is that the broad and heavily padded shoulders will be a thing of the past. The best dressers have come to the conclusion that a "six foot shoulder on a five foot man" is not the best of taste, and so this year coats with natural shoulders will be the fashion.

MR. D. B. TRUE IS POST-MASTER AT SPRINGVILLE

Error Made in Report in Recent Issue—Is Also the Mail Carrier

An error was made in an item appearing in the Examiner the other day in reference to the Springville mail question. It was stated that Mr. F. E. Wilson, was the postmaster at Springville and that he was thoroughly acquainted with the situation. The latter part of the statement was no doubt true but the postmaster at the village is not Mr. Wilson, but Mr. D. B. Trew, who is also the mail carrier and is well versed in the mail situation at Springville.

GIVES LEGAL STATUS TO LOCAL SOCIETY

Act Relating to Agricultural Societies Introduced in the Legislature Yesterday

In the Legislative Assembly at Toronto yesterday, Hon. Mr. Monteith introduced an act amending the Agricultural Societies' Act. It gives legal status to the agricultural societies at Mount Forest, Chesley, Peterborough, McKellar township and Forest. It also amends the clauses prohibiting horse racing at fairs by providing that action can only be taken against the offending societies by the members of the then current year and the previous year.

SUCCESSFUL CLOSE TO MEETINGS

Revival Services in Park Street Baptist Church Ended Last Night—Much Good Resulted

Last night was a fitting close to a most successful series of revival meetings at the Park street Baptist church. Every seat was taken and the school was thrown open for the overflow. The sermon was addressed to young converts and was a tender appeal to the unsaved to decide for Jesus. A number responded and came to the front, and a larger number who arose, and did not come, were left to the workers in the crowd. The Park street church members are a happy people, rejoicing in large additions to the membership, and the finances equal to the expense of the revival, and all happily wound up. Mr. Terrie thanked all who had helped and had contributed to the success of the revival, making special reference to the courtesy of the press with their notices each day, and casting the weight of their valuable columns on the side of truth and righteousness. The choir received much praise for their part and the Y.M.C.A. quartette and the valuable assistance of Miss Hamlin of Midland were much appreciated. Services to-morrow will be conducted by the pastor, his morning subject being "An Eventful Journey," and the evening "A Great Catastrophe." A large baptismal service is arranged for Easter Sunday.

Don't forget The Charlotte St. Methodist Church Ladies Aid Society's Annual Bazaar and Entertainment, to be held on Easter Thursday, April 4th.

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY MARCH 23 1907

A General Provincial Election Is Forecast

Report That Whitney Will Disolve Parliament After the Present Session and Bring on the Elections.

IN JUNE OR SEPTEMBER.

Toronto, March 23.—I am told that it is not at all improbable that the Whitney Government will make an appeal to the electors after the present session—in June or September. From present conditions, it would seem that there is likely to be a great deal of truth in this statement. There is no question of doubt, notwithstanding what is said to the contrary, that there is serious division of opinion among the members of the Government in regard to the Beck power proposition, as it is regarded to be an unfeasible and impracticable scheme. The Central Prison contract with Helen Charlotte Taylor is a scandal and a shame. The license scandal in Toronto has shocked the community, the extravagant increase of expenditure, and the utter failure of the Government to grasp its responsibility in regard to legislating for the people, the double dealing on the temperance question, are creating a strong belief in the mind of Mr. Whitney, that it is considered the best time—before popular discontent becomes more acute—to appeal to the people, on this is their third session. They would most probably go to the country in June of the next year in any case, and the Government feels that a year more would only add to the burden of explanation they would have to make in an attempt to justify their course and administration. Another reason is that they do not want to have their general election the same year as the Dominion elections.

THE INDIAN GAVE THEM A SCARE

Officials of the Cobourg Jail Were Given an Exciting Time by Red Man Who Stole an Overcoat.

The Cobourg World says: — There was an exciting time at the new gaol on Sunday evening between seven and eight o'clock. An Indian named Rathburn was arrested and lodged in gaol on Saturday charged with stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves from George Greer, a brother of Mr. J. H. Greer, of this city, while he was out in the county. He was committed to stand trial by Mr. Jno. Miller, J.P., and Constable Frank Young brought him to town. It is supposed that the prisoner had been drinking heavily before his committal. He remained quiet until Sunday night when he seemed transformed into a raving maniac and began tearing the interior of the cell. He was a man of splendid physique, standing 6 feet high. His terrific warhoops could be heard a long way. Governor Snelgrove first ordered him to hand out the broken pieces which he had wrenched from the cell, and then to come out into the airing space, where he was securely looked until the padded cell could be got ready for him.

COUNTY TEACHERS TO HOLD CONVENTION

They Will Meet in Norwood on May 22 and 23rd, When Important Questions Will be Discussed

A meeting of the County Teachers' Association was held this morning in the city, when it was decided to hold a teachers' convention in Norwood on May 22 and 23, when questions of interest to the teaching profession will be considered, and on the night of the first day a public meeting will be held, and addresses will be given by prominent educationalists.

BOLTING FROM CAR HORSE WAS HURT

Lively Runaway at Central Park at Noon To-day.

A team of horses attached to a democrat created considerable excitement in the vicinity of Central Park at noon to-day. The animals became frightened at a street car at the Central Park switch, and got beyond the control of the driver. Dashing on to the pavement, they crashed into a telegraph pole and their flight was abruptly stopped. One of the animals was badly cut, while the dashboard of the democrat was shattered. Fortunately the driver escaped injury.

A Crusade Against The Youthful Junk Dealers

Citizens Alarmed at the Evils Connected With the Trade—Alderman Advised of the Pernicious Habits of the Boys.

TEACHES BOYS TO STEAL.

The alarming increase in the number of small boys dealing in the junk business has aroused the attention of a number of the citizens and a crusade against this may be expected at the next meeting of the council. An Examiner representative heard a conversation this morning between a local citizen and an alderman, and the above question was the subject.

The former asked if there was not a bylaw already standing on the books prohibiting youths under a certain age going about the city and country, gathering junk. The alderman was not aware of the presence of the bylaw, but promised to open the question at the next meeting of the council.

The citizen pointed out that small boys were running about the city after junk to obtain a few cents to spend in questionable ways. Nothing, he said, would cause them to learn to steal more quickly than the gathering of junk. He knew of cases where boys have stolen bones and old iron from junk dealers and then sold the same to them. This practice had become a craze among the boys and was ruining many of them. It was the worst thing possible, he considered, to allow them an open hand in this respect and he believed that if the council would take the matter up with a view to eliminating this existing evil that body would receive the hearty approval of the ratepayers of the city.

He suggested that a bylaw be passed if there was not one already on the books, prohibiting all youths under the age of 18, from participating in this pernicious practice. If this were done he considered it would be a God-send to Peterborough, as the temptation of stealing, leading to greater evils, would be materially lessened.

The Maple Leaf And The Beaver

The many friends in Peterborough of Miss Camilla Sanderson, formerly of Peterborough, will be interested in reading the following patriotic verses from her pen, which appeared in the Toronto News of a recent date:

The bright Maple Leaf and the Beaver
Are emblems we love to display.
Then watch we the trail of the spoiler,
And stand for the rights of the toiler,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

We're proud of this land of the Maple,
Our country's behests we obey.
We think of her greatness progressing,
We ask for each effort a blessing,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

We thrill to the beauties of nature,
So sweet in their varied array.
We boast of our storehouse of treasure,
We sing of our wealth and our pleasure
While the Beaver keeps working away.

But here's to our hope of the future—
The boys and the girls at their play—
Who'll stand at their post in their station.
And build up the strength of the nation,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And to her who must earn her own living,
Each lassie so brave and so gay,
Who sings at her work and, while humming,
Builds hopes for the home that is coming,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

To the women and men that are toiling
From morning till eve of the day,
In cheerful acceptance of duty,
Regardless of pleasure or beauty,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And here's to the man who is giving
The wage that is righteous to pay,
Whose wealth is not scrimped out of others,
Who thinks of employes as brothers,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And to artist, and writer, and teacher,
Who feel, and who think, and who say
The Truth as they see it and know it,
Who care for their fellows and show it,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

And here's to the man in the Senate,
Giving bond unto honour each day,
To watch for the Wrong and expose it,
And fight till the Right overthrows it,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

Yes honour each work and each worker,
For beauty and wealth may decay,
But the fruit of each honest endeavour
Will grow into fruitage forever,
While the Beaver keeps working away.

—Camilla Sanderson.

A TALENTED ARTIST MAY RETURN

Mrs. Le Grand Reed May be Heard From Again Early in April—With a New York Company.

Those who heard Mrs. Le Grand Reed, when she was here with the Pittsburg Orchestra, will be glad to learn that there is a probability of her being heard again in this city. An effort is being made to secure her for a date early in April, and this time she will be accompanied by Mr. Kelley Cole, tenor; Mr. Carl Grienauer, cellist, Edith Cave Cole, pianiste, all of New York. The opera house management is under a heavy expense bringing these artists here and in order to ensure themselves against loss it has been decided to open a subscription list, which Mr. Walter Stocker will have charge of.

PETERBORO' MARKET IN EARLY DAYS

Thirty Years Ago, an Old Resident Relates, the Tolls Sold for $1585, and Five Men Were Employed.

The record of the sales of the market tolls for $1050 yesterday recalled to one of the older residents of Peterborough the fact that thirty years ago this spring the tolls, which for a number of years were held by Mr. Edward Green, were sold for $1505. At that time the market was patronized to a much greater extent than it is at the present time, five men being engaged around the market for a considerable portion of the time, and farmers for many miles gathered at the market twice a week to dispose of their produce.

He also recalled the fact that 30 years ago to-day there was one of the biggest storms of the winter, and he compared the present spring weather with that of the year referred to.

THE FORMER PRESIDENT GUILTY

Joseph Phillips Pleads Guilty to Charge of Making False Returns of York Loan Company

Examiner Special

Toronto, March 23.—Joseph Phillips, former president of the York Loan and Savings Co., this morning pleaded guilty in the sessions to the charge of making false returns in connection with the company.

PETERBORO' PEOPLE WILL GO ABROAD

Some of Those Who Will Spend the Summer on the Continent and in England

Many Peterborough people are going abroad this season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Rush will sail in May.

Mr. Robert Fair and Miss Fair have taken passage for early in June.

Mrs. Peter Campbell will accompany her brother, and tour the Continent, sailing next month.

Mrs. Thos. Bradburn and daughters, Mrs. Hewson, and Miss Mabel Bradburn, leave in June.

CAVENDISH COMPANY'S BIG SEASON

Has 23,000,000 Feet of Timber on the Dumps Ready for the Drive—A Good Season's Operations.

The lumber camps are breaking up after a very fine winter's work, the weather having been most favourable for work in the woods. Mr. Jas. Powers was in the village this week, having closed his operations of jobbing for the Cavendish Co.

This Company had five large camps of their own, besides jobbers, and have twenty-three million feet of timber on the dumps, about two thirds of it being good pine. Mr. Creswell, forest superintendent, has had a very busy winter but a very successful one.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Parties who have Toboggans at the Street Railway Rink may get them Friday or Saturday, 22nd and 23rd inst., up to 8 o'clock p. m.

All Toboggans left during the Summer will be at owner's risk. 2d-69.

This Council Goes Alderman Tovey One Better, And Will Impose Fines On Bachelors

Men Between the Ages of 25 and 45, Who Refuse or Are Unable to Wed, Must Pay Fines of From $10 to $100, According to the Degree of Negligence.

Ald. Tovey's scheme to tax bachelors has been out-done by an ordinance which was passed recently by the City Council of Fort Dodge, Iowa, where it is not only considered to be a neglect of one of the duties of citizenship to remain single, but a crime. A despatch to the Chicago Tribune from that city has the following in reference to the new ordinance by which it is intended to clear Fort Dodge of those who refuse to conform to the law in this respect. The despatch referred to is as follows:—

"Every man in Fort Dodge, between the ages of 25 and 45 years, must become a married man as the result of an ordinance introduced by Mayor Bennett and passed by the City Council yesterday. Any one failing to comply with the law will be fined. The ordinance in part provides:—

"That all able-bodied men between the ages of 25 and 45 years, whose mental and physical propensities and capabilities are normal and who are not now married, shall be required to obtain a license and bride and straightway be exalted to a state of connubial bliss.

"Any person or persons failing to comply with the provisions of this ordinance shall be fined a sum not less than $10 nor more than $100, according to the degree of criminal negligence."

Canada Good Enough For Him, Mr. McKenzie, Thinks

A Scotchman Who Was Left a Fortune and Who Went Home to Live, Returns to Canada, Which He Prefers to the Old Country.

WILL REMAIN HERE NOW

Last fall reference was made in the Examiner to the fortune, which had been left to Mr. James McKenzie, who had been living in the city for some years and was employed at the Little Lake Cemetery, with Mr. Frank Wise. After having been advised of the death of his father and of the fact that by his death he had fallen heir to a considerable fortune Mr. McKenzie decided that he would leave Canada for his native heath among the highlands of Scotland, stating at the time this intention of remaining there the rest of his life and enjoying this competence.

Canada, however, had too many charms for Mr. McKenzie, and with the return of spring he decided to return to the land of his adoption, though on leaving here last fall his intention was to remain there. He arrived in the city last night and this morning went to the Cemetery to see if he could get his job back again. He prove himself a good workman, and Mr. Wise was glad to take him on the staff again.

Mr. McKenzie crossed this time on one of the Donaldson Line of steamers and reports that outside St. John, which city was their destination they encountered what the officers of the boat claim was the worst storm they were ever out in. The steamer was anchored and for twenty-four hours she dragged, the captain not daring to try to make the harbour with the sea that was on. Needless to say all hands were glad when shore was reached, and Mr. McKenzie lost no time in taking the train for Peterborough, which he reached last night, and is now content to remain and make his home here.

In view of the fact that some Old Country men who have been a little unfortunate in Canada are writing to their home papers in disparaging terms of this country it is gratifying to know that a man of Mr. McKenzie's stamp can find it so attractive that even with a fortune which makes it unnecessary for him to work he prefers to live here and earn his living by remaining in Scotland and enjoy in ease the money left him.

Hockey Lovers Saw More Than One Hundred Games

Season Closes at Brock Street Rink This Week—It Was Open 126 Times for Skating During the Season.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

With this week the Brock street rink will close for the season, one of the most successful seasons in the history of the rink. Mr. John Thirnbeck, who has been the superintendent for a number of years, states that during that just closed the rink was open for skating no less than one hundred and twenty-six times, and there were more than one hundred hockey games played druing the season, including those played by the senior team, in the schedule and exhibition, those in the City League, and by local teams, not forgetting that between the Review and Examiner teams.

The season just closed has been a most favourable one for skating, very few days during the whole season has the rink been closed on account of lack of ice. While the season is ending a little earlier than it did last year, there has been considerable more skating because of the fact that it opened much earlier and the ice continued throughout the whole winter without interruption, practically.

Mr. Thirnbeck will be at the rink to-night and for a few days at the beginning of the week to enable those who have skates there to secure them before the rink is closed for the season.

NEW MOTOR CAR WITH A SPEED CAPACITY OF 40 MILES AN HOUR

Motor cars are apparently going to be popular in Peterborough this summer. To-day Mr. F. R. J. This car is a four cylinder equipment, with 18 horse power motor, and a speed capacity up to 40 miles an hour. It will be fitted especially for physicians' use and will have a leather-top, to be used in case of wet weather. The car will be delivered in about two weeks and it is just the first of a number which Mr. MacPherson expects to sell during this summer. It is a significant fact that Mr. MacPherson was the first to own an auto in Peterborough and he has also sold the first car to be disposed of through a local agent.

WILL BUILD NEW WHARF AT TRENT BRIDGE SOON

All the deputations which waited on the Dominion Government this week appear to have been favourably received. It is understood that the deputation from Havelock, consisting of the town council, which went to Ottawa to ask the Government to build a wharf at Trent Bridge, received a favourable response and was given to understand that the request would be granted, and the wharf would be built in the near future. The deputation was introduced by Mr. John Finkly, M.P. for East Peterborough. With the completion of the Trent Canal to its southern outlet, the wharf at the bridge will be required, because it is expected that a heavy freight traffic will be developed between that point and Havelock, from which town it is distant only a few miles.

OMEMEE IN EARNEST AFTER A CHANGE IN STATION LOCATION

Board of Trade Was Organized There Last Night With Large Membership—Will Press Claims for Navigation of Pigeon Creek.

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED.

Examiner Special.

Omemee, March 23. — At a largely attended meeting here last night in the commercial room of the Commercial House an Omemee Board of Trade was fully organized. Those present were very enthusiastic over the prospects and many have already become members. The scheme to form a Board of Trade has been on foot for some time, but it was only recently that the matter was fully considered, with the result mentioned above.

All these gentlemen are energetic and prominent Omemee citizens, so that some improvements of an expected character are expected.

The proposition to have the G. T. R. station removed to a point nearer the village will be among the early considerations. The deputation from here to Ottawa on Wednesday called on the G. T. R. officials there and were given good encouragement. Before the station is removed however there will be a ticket office installed in the village.

The other matter now before the board is the dredging of the weeds from Pigeon Creek to make that stretch of water navigable for steamers.

Reports were presented last night by members of the deputation to Ottawa and these gave the members great encouragement.

TAILORING BUSINESS TRANSFERRED

Mr. George Evans Has a Complete Stock of Best Lines in Men's Suitings

LATEST NEW YORK FASHIONS

As announced in another column, Mr. George Evans has purchased the tailoring business of Mr. Harry Stock, on Hunter street, and will carry on the business on the same popular lines that have made this store the headquarters for men who want their clothes to look right, and to know that they are wearing garments that are correct from the standpoint of fashion.

MR. D. B. TRUE IS POST-MASTER AT SPRINGVILLE

Error Made in Report in Recent Issue—Is Also the Mail Carrier

An error was made in an item appearing in the Examiner the other day in reference to the Springville mail question. It was stated that Mr. F. E. Wilson, was the postmaster at Springville and that he was thoroughly acquainted with the situation. The latter part of the statement was no doubt true but the postmaster at the village is not Mr. Wilson, but Mr. D. B. DISQUALIFIED CRITICS

To be a successful critic, to give criticism worthy of respect, one must be reasonably free of the vices or improprieties he condemns. The failure of certain self-constituted critics, and purveyors of scandals in the Dominion House of Commons, to measure up, only slightly, to such a standard, disqualifies their diatribes from receiving respect. A certain clique in Parliament have made themselves very prominent in exploiting scandals. Messrs. Fowler, Bennet, Lefurgey, Pope, et al., have shamelessly stood up with their own skirts, anything but clean in respect of land deals, and spoken in condemnation of the Government, their whole case being contained in the charge that the Government sell lands at a low price to speculators, who, in turn, sell at a higher. All speculative enterprise, legitimate or otherwise, all commercial operations proceed on the same principle. As a rule, the Government does not sell western lands—they are chiefly given to actual settlers on settlement conditions. But, at times, sales of lands, are made under exceptional conditions. These exceptional conditions apply to the transaction which forms the basis of the outcry of the critical group mentioned. They are loudest in their denunciation of the sales of 200,000 acres of western lands to the Saskatchewan Land Company, and one or two similar sales. This company bought a tract which, in the midst of a fairly well settled country, attracted no settlement, but was avoided. For this reason, arising from the poor quality of the land, and because exacting settlement duties were attached, the company got the land at $1 per acre, and had to make large expenditures to secure settlers. To show that the company got no special favours from the Government, it may be stated that the Qu'Appelle & Long Lake Railway Company sold to this company alternate sections in the same tract at $1.75 per acre, a figure which, as the latter sale carried no settlement conditions, made the two prices about the same. The land had been open to actual settlers for years at nothing per acre, and without takers. The Government gives away, and is glad to give away, millions of acres for actual settlement. That is what will make the country. In selling to the Saskatchewan Valley Land Company, the Government gets what is most wanted—settlers on these debatable lands, and, besides, gets $160 for every quarter section, which they would gladly have given for nothing to get the settler, if the land, in its natural state, had been as good as the Government is giving away by millions every year to actual settlers. In case the company does not fill its land with settlers, it reverts to the Crown. If the company makes money by selling the land to the actual settler at an advance on the cost price, it will have pretty well earned it, and, besides, have conferred a great benefit on the West. This is a "scandal" that Messrs. Fowler, Bennet and the others of the Parliamentary clique, have howled themselves hoarse over, while they had in their pockets the proceeds of a far more condemnable "land grab." What did this syndicate of parliamentary purists do? They bought 200,000 acres of land along the projected route of the Canadian Northern Railway at $3 per acre, and before the deal was cold—if it were not "cold" from the beginning—before they had quite paid a small instalment of the purchase money, they were able to sell the tract at an advance of $1 per acre. In this way, they cleaned up, if one can fairly use this word "clean" in a moral sense, in connection with such a transaction, and circumstances associated with it, the handsome sum of $200,000. The parliamentary syndicate of purists took no risk — they didn't have to place a single settler or do anything in the slightest way benefitting the country. Yet these are the very men who are loud in denouncing as "scandals" the Saskatchewan land purchase and other similar purchases, in which, if the companies concerned made or will make a profit, they had to earn it by fulfilling conditions that promoted the greatest need of this new country, an increase of actual settlers.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL

The Trent Valley Canal enterprise has at length reached what may be regarded as the end of the experimental or debatable stage. For years the scheme has been in a state of flux, with nothing in the form of fixity, settled as to the actual, political, navigatory, or commercial level. Now, it is pretty certain that an eight feet four inches level will be adopted; then the political level has been settled by eliminating the political factor from the situation altogether. There has for, perhaps, a third of a century good reason for the political factor entering into canal construction, firstly, because, perhaps, some public men may have wished it to do so, but, principally, of necessity. For the past generation, canalization of the Trent Waterway has been a debateable question, for many reasons. Public men, parliamentarians, representatives of the people, had doubts, or were possibly persuaded that they had doubts, regarding the feasibility of a canal like the Trent Valley. These, and others with influence, had to be convinced, that the canal was not merely a little local affair — that while of necessity it had to have a localized existence, it was of as much importance and necessity in proportion to its capacity as any other of the canals of the great Canadian system, in relation to Northwest transportation, or as any section of railway west of Winnipeg or Fort William or Port Arthur. Then there was the actual antagonism of great vested interests — railway interests — to be reckoned with. Then Governments themselves had to be convinced. When Sir Charles Tupper made his first ministerial trip over the canal route, he was converted to the canal idea, but he evidently had "a lot of" missionary work to do with his colleagues and supporters, for it was several years before any more important work than the completion of the locks at Burleigh, was done, and time dragged on still longer until the sections now newly completed, were finished. Sir Wilfrid Laurier on his last visit to Peterborough, promised the completion of the Trent Valley Canal by his Government. The question of the southern outlet of the canal, operated as an element of delay for some years. Minute surveys had to be made of three suggested routes. Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, promised that these surveys would be made, when made the route would be decided upon, and, when the route was selected, work on construction would begin, and be carried on to completion as rapidly as possible, both in regard to the southern uncompleted, but also the northern uncompleted, section. This is the first specific promise ever made with the force of concrete assurance and probability. It is perhaps the first time the Government has been justified in making such a promise. The position it takes leads to the inference that the ground has been prepared, that parliamentary opinion has been so educated to a larger view of the transportation problem, and as to the importance of the Trent Valley Canal, in a national transportation scheme, that the Government can count on parliamentary support in completion of the work, and upon its merits, not by appeal to the party loyalty of its followers. These considerations have doubtless justified Hon. Mr. Emmerson, in making the declaration that "the Trent Valley Canal will no longer be the football of politics." With Parliament brought to the point of acquiescence, the Government can speak with confidence—a Minister cannot constitutionally spend a dollar without the consent of Parliament—and since consent in regard to the appropriation of funds can be counted upon, the reasons for delay in canal construction disappear. All the possible political benefit that can arise out of the situation must be earned by doing the work, and such political profit will be of the broad national kind represented by the improvement of the great transportation routes of Canada, and improvement of conditions making this country a desirable home.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Morning Post, of London, Eng., draws fine distinctions. In another discussion of the Imperial Council matter, it says in reference to a letter written by Sir Charles Tupper on the subject, that "the honoured father of Confederation seems in effect to differ from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, not so much in imperial ideas, as in imperial enthusiasm." A delicate distinction, in the abstract, but, concretely followed out, a very wide one. Sir Charles Tupper speaks only with personal responsibility, and can afford to be enthusiastic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier speaks not only with a sense of his personal responsibility, but with the responsibility of representing a great young nation, whose undoubted future greatness and progress will be greatly affected and modified by her imperial relations.

CLOSE CONTRACT FOR MACHINERY

Engine of New Steamer Will Develop Speed of 15 to 17 Miles an Hour—Ready by Victoria Day.

The contract was closed yesterday with the Polson Iron Works Company of Toronto, for the machinery for the new steamer of the Otonabee Navigation Company. The boiler and engines will have a capacity of 300 horse power, which will be three times that of the old City of Peterborough, and the manufacturers of the engine state that it will be sufficient to give the steamer a speed of from 15 to 17 miles an hour.

The machinery will be delivered in about two weeks and the present expectations are that the steamer will be ready for use by May 24th, when a trip may be taken. Already a number of excursions have been booked and the prospects are that the steamer will have a busy season.

THE LATE MR. C. B. RECORD,

FOUNDER OF THE RECORD FOUNDRY.

Reproduced above, is a portrait of the late Mr. C. B. Record, the founder and original head of the Record Foundry & Machine Co., of Moncton, N.B., and Montreal, P.Q.

Previous to Mr. Record going into the manufacture of stoves, those used in Canada were almost wholly of American manufacture. The character of the work turned out by the Record Foundry & Machine Co., at once gave their stoves a standing, and as a result a very large business soon grew up, largely owing to Mr. Record's untiring industry and perseverance against many obstacles.

Although Mr. Record retired from active business as far back as 1879, the solid basis on which he had established the industry, has resulted in its growth from a sturdy pioneer into one of the largest stove manufacturing plants on the northern half of the American continent. With two large plants, one in Moncton and one in Montreal, the Record Foundry & Machine Co. are known from Halifax to Vancouver, and their "Calorific" and "Admiral" furnaces and "Penn Esther" ranges recognized as the standard of Canadian excellence.

MASS MEETING AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Prominent Speakers Engaged for the Gathering To-morrow Afternoon—Special Music Arranged.

Mr. Jos. P. Cleal, who is to be the principal speaker at the service in the Opera House on Sunday at 4 p.m. is a fluent speaker. From the lowest rung of the ladder in factory life, Mr. Cleal has worked his way up, till now he is Canadian Manager of the Dayton firm, "The National Cash Register Company." He gave an interesting address in Peterborough about four months ago, and will receive a most hearty welcome here on Sunday.

The choirs of the Anglican churches will be in attendance to lead the singing, conducted by Mr. Richard J. Davey, of St. John's, assisted by the orchestra and Miss Helen Davies will sing "The Palms," by special request. Mr. George Chandler will sing a selection from the "Elijah," and well known hymns will be used for which printed copies have been specially obtained.

A most hearty invitation is extended to all to attend this service, which has been arranged by the local Assembly of Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt will preside, supported by Canon Davidson and Rev. Wm. Major.

Those having charge of the meeting wish it understood that the ladies are invited as well as the men.

An Explanation

In Thursday's Examiner appeared a paragraph taken from Bradstreets, regarding a writ that had been issued against Mr. J. J. McBain, in British Columbia. As the publication of the paragraph might lead to a misapprehension, without explanation, it is to be remarked that the question is a matter of dispute as to liability, and not a question of suit to recover indebtedness in the usual way.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE

At the Meeting on Tuesday Night Many Questions of Public Interest Will be Discussed.

On Tuesday night next the annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade will be held in the City Council Chamber, when the reports of the officers for the past year will be presented and the officers elected.

In his address at the annual meeting last year Mr. Hughes Charles referred to the necessity for securing new industries for the city if the progress which everyone hoped would be experienced, was to be realized. During the year the Board of Trade has held a number of meetings at which important industrial questions affecting the welfare of the city have been discussed. It is probable that there will be a large attendance of members at the annual meeting on Tuesday.

IN STORMY SEAS.

54 Ships and 199 Lives Lost During the Winter.

Boston, Mass., March 23.—A total of 199 lives and 54 ships have been sacrificed to the storms and treacherous coasts of New England and the Maritime Provinces for the winter just ended, according to the statistics compiled by the Associated Press yesterday. Of the vessels, no account has been taken of the dozens that have been driven ashore, but later refloated, and the figures do not include the loss in Connecticut waters. The long list of dead is swollen out of all proportion to those of many previous years by the sinking of the steamer Larchmont in Block Island Sound the night of Feb. 11, with an estimated loss of 150 lives. This was the one great disaster of the year in these waters, the largest loss of life in any other single wreck occurring in the foundering this month of the Newfoundland schooner Harry Louis, with her entire crew of eight men.

As usual, the Nova Scotia coast has proved the most disastrous to shipping this year, claiming 16 vessels, but Newfoundland was not far behind with 14 craft. The American coastwise fleet was the heaviest loser, with 35 ships and 175 lives, while the British loss was 18 ships and 24 lives.

THE LATEST WAR INVENTION.

New Safety Detonating Fuse Invented After Ten Years' Experimenting.

New York, March 23.—Hudson Maxim, inventor of high explosives, made the dinner tendered by the Canadian Club last night to Sir Percy Sanderson, the retiring British consul-general at this port, the occasion of the first announcement about a new safety detonating fuse which he has invented after ten years' of experimenting.

He declared such a device has been the aim of inventors for years. By means of it, he said, it is at last possible to send an armor-piercing shell through armor and cause it to explode at exactly the distance behind the armor desired by the gunner. It will not matter whether the armor is one-inch or 12 inches in thickness, the inventor asserted.

Mrs. Booth Frees Murderer.

Auburn, N.Y., March 23.—James Flaherty of Brooklyn, who has been in prison since Nov. 28, 1883, serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife, received notice yesterday that he had been granted a special commutation by Governor Hughes. The commutation was secured largely through Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth. Flaherty is 60 years of age.

British Reject Metric System.

London, March 23.—The House of Commons yesterday, by 150 to 118 votes, rejected the bill proposing to introduce the metric system in Great Britain.

Fonthill Merchant Self-Slain.

Fonthill, March 23.—Max Root, a business man, killed himself by shooting yesterday. He was about 24 years of age and leaves a widow and a child.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES ACT.

Amendments In Reference to Horse Racing At Fairs.

Toronto, March 23.—The Legislature made excellent progress yesterday in clearing up the order paper. Several bills received a third reading. Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill respecting colonization roads was advanced through committee, but in deference to Mr. C. N. Smith (Sault Ste. Marie), who is indisposed, will not be completed until the member from the north is given an opportunity to criticise and suggest amendments to certain features of the measure.

The Nipissing Mines Title.

Mr. McMillan secured assent to a motion for an order of the House for a return of copies of all correspondence between the Nipissing Mines Company or any member thereof, relating to the property or title thereto of the said company, or any part or parcel thereof, situate in the Cobalt district, or to any application relating to the same; its title, or to the operation of the mines of the company, made by or on behalf of the company or any of its directors or officers.

Agricultural Societies.

Hon. Mr. Monteith introduced an act amending the agricultural societies act. It gives legal status to the agricultural societies at Mount Forest, Chesley, Peterboro', McKellar township and Forest. It also amends the clauses prohibiting horse racing at fairs by providing that action for infraction of them can only be taken against the offending societies by their members of the then current year and the previous year.

Hon. Mr. Foy introduced the usual sessional measure to amend the statute law. It contained nothing of importance, but may be added to before the session closes.

Junction Terminal Railway.

On motion of Mr. Downey, the bill respecting the Junction Terminal Railway was referred back to the Railway Committee for reconsideration.

The reason explained by the Premier was that persons vitally interested would have been there when the bill was under consideration had they known when it was to be dealt with.

The House went into committee on Mr. Foy's bill respecting the printing and distribution of the statutes. No amendments were made to the measure, and the bill was read a third time.

Mr. Graham called attention to the illness of Mr. C. N. Smith of Sault Ste. Marie, and in compliance with his request Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill respecting colonization roads was not given its final reading, though the House proceeded to deal with it in committee.

Brampton's Problems Kept Apart.

Mr. Smith's bill respecting the town of Brampton and the Brampton Public Library was put through the committee stage.

Mr. Downey moved an amendment, the effect of which is to give the town of Brampton the opportunity of keeping distinct and separate the market and Carnegie library questions.

Some Third Readings.

The following bills were given a third reading:—

To vest certain lands in the rector and church wardens of Trinity Church in the village of Waterford—Mr. Pratt.

To incorporate the Policyholders' Mutual Life Insurance Company—Mr. Pratt.

Respecting the town of North Toronto—Mr. McCowan.

Four Killed By Dynamite.

Helena, Mont., March 23.—Four men were blown to atoms Thursday night in a Northern Pacific tunnel near Lombard, as a result of a careless workman tamping a hole with a steel instrument. The names of the dead were unobtained.

HALF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRH.

"Every family should know the important fact that catarrhal diseases claim many thousands of victims in Canada each year. In spring and summer, catarrh of the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and pelvic organs is most common."

---S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

Neptune Planet, The Subject Of An Interesting Lecture

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, Delighted a Large Audience at Y. M. C. A. Last Night---An Imaginary Journey to the Most Remote Planet---Officers of Local Branch of Society Approved Of.

Neptune, the planet famous for its great distance from the earth and sun, was the subject of a lecture of profit and interest at the Y.M.C.A. last night. The lecturer, was Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, president of the Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society, and the gentleman through whose energy the study of the science of astronomy was introduced into the city. The reverend gentleman gave a very impressive address, dwelling chiefly upon Neptune's enormous distance from the earth and its possibility of being inhabited. The meeting was the first the local branch have held since the formation at the conclusion of Dr. Marsh's lecture some time ago, on "A Night in the Skies," but was merely a preliminary meeting to the one at which the president will make his inaugural speech.

The assembly was presided over last night by Rev. J. G. Potter, B.A., and consisted of a large number of ladies and gentlemen enthusiastic over the prospects of the society. Preceding the lecture, Mr. and Mrs. Greenslade sang a delightful duet, and a violin solo, "The Ash Grove," by Farmer, was rendered by Mr. Gilbert Markle, of the Conservatory of Music. Miss Clarry presided at the piano and played the accompaniments.

Remotest Of Planets

In opening his remarks, Dr. Marsh referred to Neptune as being the most remote of the seven planets belonging to our solar system. It is a planet upon which no unaided eye has ever gazed—one which pursues its lonely course far beyond the vision of mortal man. Only by telescope can the great intervening veil of space be lifted, and then it is only seen as a star of the eighth magnitude. A view of Neptune by the telescope creates a thrill of wonder and awakens transports of solemn joy within the soul which no words can describe.

The speaker then told of the discovery of the singular planet due to the triumph of calculation and the disturbances of Uranus in his orbit. These discrepancies were believed by astronomers to be due to some planet not then discovered and after careful calculations and observations on the part of an eminent young mathematician, the telescope was directed past Uranus in the year 1846, and the presence of this distant world was added to the knowledge of man.

Neptune's Distance Illustrated

To illustrate the enormous distance of Neptune from the earth, Dr. Marsh gave a few figures. A train, he said, travelling at the rate of one mile per minute would occupy 5310 years in reaching the distant planet. A cannon ball travelling at a terrific speed would reach Neptune in about 255 years, and a ray of light which flies through space at the almost incorceivable pace of 186,000 miles a second would reach its destination not before eight hours. Only in imagination, said the speaker, could the journey be taken.

Immense Proportions

The planet Neptune has been found by calculations to be 35,000 miles in diameter, which is more than four times that of our earth. Its volume is about 55 times, and its density one-third that of the earth. It appears a greenish yellow colour, and through the telescope no markings are visible, due to the atmosphere which envelops it. Spectrum analysis have succeeded in ascertaining that certain gases exist in the atmosphere of Neptune not present in the air we breathe.

Astronomers have up to the present been baffled in attempting to determine its rotation, and there face will be discovered.

must yet be a great improvement in optics before markings on its surface

The Orbit Of Neptune

Neptune's satellite or moon, makes a revolution in 6 days. The planet itself is two billion miles from the sun's centre and it travels in an orbit of about 17 billion miles at the rate of 12,460 miles per hour, or 200 miles per minute. A person, said Dr. Marsh, will have lived a lengthy life, and have been dead a hundred years before this wanderer of the sky will have been in one place twice. It occupies about 164 years in making a single revolution around the sun.

About its Habitants

The question as to whether this planet, as well as others, are inhabited, is one difficult to answer. Some say Neptune is too far distant from the sun to obtain light and heat, and that the existence of gasses in the atmosphere makes life impossible. The speaker did not express any opinions on the question, but asked his hearers to consider whether God, who has adopted a plan of variety, but has fashioned the beetle and the worm, and put life into the air we breathe, has or has not populated the planet Neptune, as He has the waters of the ocean.

It is not inconsistent with religion, he believed, to think that it would be impossible for all or some of the planets to be populated, and to have their plains, valleys and mountains teeming with beings who worship the same God as we.

The Officers

Dr. Neal, the secretary of the local branch, presented the report of the committee appointed at the first meeting, which recommended the following officers:

Pres.—Dr. Marsh.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. Pringel.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. D. Walker.
Secretary—Dr. Neal.
Treasurer—Mr. D. Esson.
Committee, Messrs. S. W. Lowry, Collier and Dr. McFall.

Dr. Marsh explained the privileges associated with being a member of the Royal Astronomical Society and stated that already between thirty and forty had placed their names on the membership roll. Members are entitled for an annual fee of $2 to the Canadian Astronomical Handbook containing the predictions for the year, and also a monthly Journal with reports from the various branches in the Dominion, and lectures. He also explained that the members will be in connection with all the great observatories of the world, from which each will be sent direct intelligence of new discoveries.

A WOMEN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Colour.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and failing hair, it is not known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop failing hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE FUNERAL WAS VERY LARGE

Many Gathered to Pay Respects to Late Miss Stewart—A Consistent Member of St. Luke's Congregation.

The large attendance at the funeral of Miss Isabel Stewart yesterday testified to the high esteem in which the deceased lady was held. After a private service at the house, conducted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, the cortege proceeded to St. Luke's Church, where the Church of England burial service was read. As the body was being carried into the church, and while the pastor recited the opening sentences for the burial of the dead, the organist, Mr. J. L. Armstrong played the "Dead March in Saul." Rev. E. A. Langfeldt gave a few words of comfort to the bereaved, based upon the text, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." He spoke, in the course of his remarks, of the faithful life spent by the departed in her relation to God and her fellow-men. He mentioned her quiet and unassuming ways, her sincere faith in her saviour, and her loyalty to her church. She had not put off preparing for death till the last moment, but had always been ready to die. She lived an undemonstrative religious life, a life of reality, of good works, rather than of empty professions. As the body was carried out of church, the congregation sang the 'Nunc Dimittis," "Lord now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace."

Interment took place at the Little Lake Cemetery. Mrs. James Tighe and Mrs. Wm. Tighe, Peterborough, are sisters, and Mr. James Stewart, Peterborough, and Mr. Hugh Stewart, Wisconsin, U. S., are brothers of the deceased.

SLATER SHOES ARE RELIABLY MADE

"Make me some cheap shoes, good lookers, that I can sell for bargains in February or March." This is a usual order order given to the shoe manufacturer, who can make a shoe that looks like a shoe—and that is the best that one can say about it. The dealer uses these shoes-ashamed-of-their-name to sell at a profit to people who are not his regular customers. Ever buy a pair? Then you know them to be as worthless as a shoe that has been through a fire.

The man who knows how to conserve his earned income buys the shoe upon which is stamped the Seal of Certainty, and he likes to see the ladies, too, buy the real Slater shoe. They are made and marked by the Slater Shoe Company.

EVIDENCES OF GOOD WILL SHOWN

Christian Fellowship Shown by Members of St. Luke's and St. John's Churches, Says Rev. J. C. Davidson.

Prefacing his sermon last night in St. Luke's church, Rev. Canon Davidson expressed his warm appreciation of the spirit of Christian fellowship and co-operation which had been shown by the rector and congregation of St. Luke's church, especially in these Lenten services. Christian fellowship he said, was broader than a feeling between the members of one congregation, and this had been effectively shown during the present Lenten services, which had been very largely attended by the members of the two congregations.

CARPENTERS MAKING READY FOR LABOURERS

Initial Work on the New C.G.E. Building Has Been Begun by the Carpenters.

The new building at the C.G.E. is again becoming a centre for work. The iron girders and beams were placed in position last fall and the skeleton of the building has thus been set up. The construction of the walls, etc., is therefore to be done and is the greater part of the work. A few days ago a number of carpenters commenced the operations of getting everything into working order to allow the mechanics and labourers to begin as soon as possible.

It is expected that before long a large number of men will be engaged at this building which is to be completed as soon as possible. There is still a large amount of cement work to be completed in the walls, inside foundations and otherwise. This work, together with the extension to the first building off Park street, which it is understood, will be carried out this summer, will require a large number of men. The company has not been lax in its preparations as many thousands of brick are now in place.

It is evident that if these buildings are commenced as soon as it is hoped they will be, the C.G.E. will engage a large number of labourers, mechanics, tradesmen and assist in making this a banner year for building operations.

SMALL SUPPLY OF BUTTER AND EGGS

The Market Was Not Very Promising This Morning—Everything Sold in About an Hour.

Considering the time of the year, and other existing conditions, this morning's market was not at all favourable, in fact, it was a poor one. The chief cause of complaint was that there were but a few farmers present. The market may be said to have lasted one hour, and that's all. After that the butter was all sold, and the eggs were gone, and as for fowl, there was none. One woman asked 80 cents for a chicken, but, as the song says, it certainly was a rare old bird. It seems strange that the surrounding townships cannot produce more of the staple necessities than they do. Eggs sold at 19 and 20 cents; butter at 27 and 28 cents. From the citizens standpoint this is not much of an improvement.

On the outside prices were somewhat better. Potatoes were down to 85 cents a bag, and there was a good supply on hand. The fresh meat is going out of season, and there was not a heavy market of it. Vegetables were well represented, and sold at reasonable figures. Northern Spy apples sold at $1 per bag.

For those interested in the price of young pigs it might be mentioned that they sold to-day at $7 per pair. On the whole the market was not up to the standard for this season of the year.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and wrinkles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks treatment of this remedy will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

EAST RIDING HOTELMAN HEAVILY FINED

Cost Him $50 for Selling After Hours—Conviction Made by Magistrate Edmison

An hotel keeper in the East Riding was this morning fined $50.00 and costs by Magistrate Edmison. He was charged with selling liquor on March 2nd after hours to which he pleaded guilty and received the above fine. He appeared before the magistrate in the latttar's office this morning.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR COW TESTING ASSOCIATIONS

Mr. N. G. Somerville Will be Here for That Purpose Next Week.

Mr. N. G. Somerville, of Brookville, was in the city last night on his way home from Kinmount. While there he addressed several meetings on Cool Curing and Cow Testing questions and reports that great interest was taken by the dairy men of Galway on these important questions.

Mr. Somerville will return to Peterborough next week when he will visit the places where Cow Testing Associations have been formed to give the preliminary instructions.

Royal Muskoka Hotel

This new, modern, up-to-date hotel was opened for the reception of guests in 1901. It is situated in the centre of the finest summer resort region in America, known as the Muskoka Lakes, within easy reach of the principal points in Canada and the United States. The interior of the hotel is planned to the best advantage for comfort and convenience, special attention being given to ventilation and sanitary arrangements. Its spacious suites with handsome bathrooms, attached, are especially adapted to either large or small families. Cuisine and service are the best. Open for guests about the middle of June. REAL ESTATE SALES ARE MORE ACTIVE

Property of Mr. T. H. G. Denne, Simcoe Street, Sold to A. Low—Mr. Little Buys Dalhousie St. Property

Messrs. A. Brown & Co. recently put through two important real estate deals. The property owned by Mr. T. H. G. Denne, on Simcoe street, extending east from Bethune street to the property of Dr. Greer, and including the warehouse formerly occupied by T. Kinnear & Co. as a grocery warehouse, and a brick terrace, has been disposed of to Mr. A. Low, who will conduct a wholesale junk business in the warehouse. It is understood that the price paid was in the neighbourhood of eight thousand dollars.

Mr. William Little has bought through the same agency a brick terrace from Mr. Carlisle, on Dalhousie street. For this property it is said the price obtained was about $4000. Real estate recently has been moving rapidly and the dealers state that during the next few months a number of big sales will be reported.

CONTRACTORS HAVE PLENTY OF WORK TO DO

Although Extensive Building Operations Have Not Yet Begun

A well-known contractor stated to the Examiner to-day that building operations were again assuming a lively gait. Although no new houses or other buildings have yet been begun on account of excavation work being impossible, owners of houses are making many improvements. Changes are in vogue throughout the city, and the Examiner's informant, as well as many others, have more work ahead of them than can be attended to within a reasonable time.

Violent Form of Itching Piles

Rev. S. A. Duprau, Methodist minister, Belleville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years and they ultimately attained a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed, and I suffered great pain. A single box of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation. The lumps and swellings disappeared and I am now an entirely different man."

PURPLE VIOLETS; A POEM

By Alma Frances McCollum

A sad but sweet and meet coincidence consists in the fact that on March 23, 1902, the Examiner published the following delicate poem, written by the late Miss Alma Frances McCollum, Peterborough's gifted songstress, and that to-day, March 23, is the first anniversary of her burial; deeply lamented not only by those of the dear home circle, but by hosts of friends and admirers of her pure life and sweet, poetic talents. The verses are presented as a fitting memorial tribute:

PURPLE VIOLETS.

Violets in purple mourning,
Plocmed as flakes of driven snow,
Calvary's rugged path adorning,
Ere the Saviour knew its woe.

When the Virgin Mother, holy,
In her bitter anguish passed,
O'er the blossoms white and lowly,
Was her sacred shadow cast;

And the agony of sorrow,
Falling like a purple pall—
Unforgotten with the morrow—
Still doth linger over all,

Purple violets! remind us,
O, reproach us with his pain,
Lest the fleeting days should find us
Crucifying Him again!

ANOTHER YOUNG MAN LEAVING FOR WEST

Mr. Percy Johnston's Friends Say Farewell to Him Last Night.

Mr. Percy Johnston, son of Mrs. Matthew Johnston, North Monaghan, will leave on Tuesday next for the Northwest, and last night a number of his friends gathered to say farewell. A very enjoyable time was spent in dancing and other amusements. A 'bus load of young people drove out from the city, and the time passed most pleasantly.

OBITUARY

MISS MAUD COX

The death took place on Tuesday morning last of Miss Maud Cox, fourth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cox, Sr., after a lingering illness. Deceased was one of the most highly respected and popular ladies in Lakefield, and widespread sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents and family. The funeral which was held on Thursday, was very largely attended, the remains being interred in the Lakefield Cemetery.—Lakefield News.

MARY SMITH

On Tuesday morning in the Allegany Hospital, Pittsburg, the death occurred of Miss Mary Smith, a former resident of this city. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. John Smith who passed away four years ago. The late Miss Smith was born here and lived in the city until three years ago.

The relatives of the deceased are sisters, Miss Nellie Smith, of Johnstown, and Mrs. Moffat, of the same place and a brother, Mr. Thos. Smith er top, to be used in case of wet weather. The funeral took place this morning from McFadden's undertaking establishment to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

CHEMONG SEASON TO BE LONGER

Arrangements are Being Made to Allow Cottagers to Get Out There Early in June—Cottagers' Meeting.

TO PROTECT THE FISH.

It is probable that the season at Chemong will begin earlier this year as a result of the meeting of the Chemong Cottagers' Association, held last night in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. There has been a desire on the part of some of the cottagers for a number of years to get out there earlier in the season, but the fact that there was no means of transportation until July prevented them from doing so, and they were obliged to wait until the first of July. Last night's meeting was called principally to discuss this matter and to see what arrangements could be made with the Auto-car Company. There was a large attendance of the cottagers, including the secretary, Mr. W. J. Hopwood. The president, Mr. Alex. Elliott, occupied the chair.

Mr. I. Eastwood, president of the Peterborough and Chemong Auto-car Co., is willing to do everything in his power to oblige the cottagers and has offered to give special tickets to school children at 15 cents per single ticket, or eight tickets for dollar during the month of June.

A committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. V. Eastwood, Ferguson and H. Hopwood, to see what guarantee could be given to warrant the auto-car beginning to run on the first of June. The prospects are that there will be enough citizens moving out on that date to warrant the machine commencing its trips.

The service will be improved this year, as the company have secured the services of Mr. Ernest Horral who was chauffeur at the latter end of last season and who is known as a competent and careful driver. In case of any extra business, other means of transportation will be provided.

The association last night took up the matter of the illicit killing of fish in Chemong Lake, and decided to affiliate with the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association. They are determined to see that the law is observed, and will have each and every offender punished.

A liberal appropriation was made for trimming the trees to make a better view of the lake, and to clear better view of the lake, and to clean up the park generally. The work will be done this spring, and a committee, composed of Messrs. Alex. Elliott, J. D. Tully and L. M. Hayes, was appointed to supervise the work.

Messrs. A. A. Hollingshead, T. R. Merritt, Milne Hamilton, H. Hopwood and W. S. Davidson were appointed a committee to arrange for the annual regatta, which the association thought, should be held during the first week in August, which is earlier than last year. The committee will consult with the Sturgeon Point and Stony Lake cottagers to get them to choose their dates early, in order to do away with all chance of conflicting.

The annual meeting of the association will be held at the Chemong Yacht Club's clubhouse during the first week in July, when the officers for the year will be elected.

The outlook for the season at Chemong is very bright. Mr. Brown will be cordially welcomed back by the cottagers. He has already got a large number of people booked for the summer at the hotel, and expects a large business.

SHAKESPEARE'S ART DISCOURSED ON

Rev. Father Galvin Gave Interesting Lecture Last Night Under the Auspices of the T. A. S. Literary Society

INTERESTING PROGRAMME

A musical programme of an exceptionally brilliant character and a discourse of a decidedly intellectual nature was that presented to the large and appreciative audience at the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peters' T. A. S. in the Assembly Hall last night.

Rev. Father Galvin was the lecturer of the evening and delighted the audience by his very eloquent and exceedingly interesting discourse on "The Art of Shakespeare," as exemplified in "King Lear." The speaker introduced his subject by first stating the elementary rule for the guidance of speakers —namely—take for granted that the hearers know nothing of the subject under discussion. He also stated the advantages and disadvantages of this rule and then proposed making use of it in the consideration of the very broad subject which he intended discussing.

A general consideration on art then followed, in which the definition and classification of art was clearly given. Art was defined as (a) The result of rational rules about the making of a thing. (b) The expression of the beautiful. The first was shown to be applicable to the mechanical arts or arts of utility and to embrace the trades which require manual labour and skill; the second to be applicable to the aesthetic or fine fine arts, which call forth the exercise of taste and imagination and to embrace painting, sculpture, music and poetry. Poetry, to which dramas belong, is classed as a fine art and is therefore an expression of the beautiful. Shakespeare's plays express the beautiful, both intellectually and morally, and are therefore real works of art. As an exemplification of this fact the lecturer gave a very eloquent discourse on "King Lear," one of Shakespeare's tragedies, showing clearly wherein were exemplified moral and intellectual beauties.

This tragedy was based on a legend of British history, in which Lear, King of Britain, fatigued with the cares of royalty, determined to withdraw from public life and commit the government of his kingdom to his three daughters. The frank sincerity of Cordelia, his youngest daughter, so displeased the infatuated monarch, that he resolved to disinherit her, and divide her [illegible] her two sisters, patrimony between [illegible] entrusted Goneril and Regan, who were [illegible] with the protection of their deposed father. Cordelia, disinherited and disowned by her father, was espoused by the French King and at once left the presence of her father and sisters.

The two daughters no sooner found themselves free from parental control than they subjected the king to a diminution of his retinue and by their cruelty and ingratitude, drove him to an adjoining heath, where he was met by Edgar, in the disguise of a lunatic, assumed in order to elude the indignation of his father, the Earl of Gloucester, whose credulity had been imposed on by the villainous suggestions of Edmund, his natural son.

The mental powers of Lear were overwhelmed by his great sufferings and his mind became unbalanced. In his extremity he was secretly relieved by Gloucester. The treacherous Edmund informed Gonriel and Regan of Gloucester's kindness toward their father and as a punishment for this, his eyes were torn out by Regan's husband. Shortly after this he was met and recognized by his disowned son Edgar, who, unknown to his father, took him under his protection.

Cordelia, hearing of the sad plight in which her father was, induced her husband, the French King, to send a large army to his relief. Owing to the tender assiduities of Cordelia and the skillful treatment received from the doctor in her service, Lear's intellect was partially restored.

A general engagement between Cordelia's troops and the English forces soon after ensued, in which Lear and Cordelia sustained a total defeat and were committed to prison, where orders were received to hang Cordelia. Regan was poisoned by her sister Goneril, who afterwards stabbed herself in despair. Edmund was killed in a combat with his wronged brother Edgar and Lear died of a broken heart. Thus ended one of Shakespeare's most heart-rending tragedies.

The moral beauties which the speaker showed clearly to be exemplified throughout this tragedy were that filial ingratitude is punished even in this world and that guilty consciences are never at rest; also the great moral truths enunciated throughout. Shakespeare so presented the evil characters in the play as to render their vices odious and the good characters in such a way as to elicit sympathy. The intellectual beauties exemplified were those of arrangement and expression, as for example, the easy and connected flow of the dialogues, the forcible terms, the manner of presenting the story, the appropriate figures and the delineation of characters.

This able discourse was characterized throughout by its lucidity of style and conveyed to the audience most accurately the minute details of this tragedy which is deservedly celebrated among Shakespeare's dramas as a work of art.

The musical part of the programme, which preceded the lecture, was especially bright and attractive; those taking part acquitting themselves in a most creditable manner. The various renditions demonstrated remarkable ability on the part of the performers.

The following was the musical programme presented:

Instrumental duet—Misses D. Letellier and B. Picard
Instrumental solo—Miss Irene Clancy
Instrumental duet—Misses E. Connors and W. Fife.
Instrumental solo—Miss Bernice Giroux.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, April 12th, when Miss Vivian Donoghue will read an essay on "The St. Lawrence River and the Thousand Islands."

HELPING MOTHERS

"I always tell my neighbours who have children how good I have found Baby's Own Tablets," says Mrs. L. Reville, Gawas, Ont., Mrs. Reville further says: "I would not be without the Tablets in the house for I know of no medicine that can equal them in curing the ills from which children so often suffer." It is the enthusiastic praise of mothers who have used the Tablets that makes them the most popular childhood medicine in Canada. Any mother using Baby's Own Tablets has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or harmful drug. UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS,—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fife, Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill.

Yours truly,

The "Jolts" and "Jars" of Life

are what use people up.
Most people live pretty well up to the limit of their powers, and so long as everything goes smoothly that is apparently all right; but a "jolt" or a "jar" in the shape of business worries, domestic anxieties, or an attack of La Grippe, Pneumonia, Typhoid, or other wasting disease, suddenly reveals the fact that there is a sad lack of reserve force to meet these contingencies and the result is serious, often fatal. A wise man will see to it that his system is fully fortified against sudden attacks. To attain this result nothing is so sure and effective as

LEARN DRESSMAKING IN TWO WEEKS

We teach you everything from the plainest Shirt Waist to the most elaborate Toilette that can be found in the fashion books. We show you how to put together not only the lining, but all the outer goods in Coats, Skirts, Waists, Wrappers, Sleeves, Collars, Children's Dresses, etc. Why spend months at a Dressmaking shop where you do nothing but hem, overcast, sew on hooks and eyes and then after you have served months there, what do you know about cutting? Absolutely nothing. For you will know no more how to cut out a dress at the end of a year than you did the first day you went there. So why spend your time there when we can teach you in two weeks. You can come and try for a week and see for yourself what it's like, as there is nothing to be paid in advance, you certainly would not lose anything by trying.

We have taught over 2,000 this way within the past 6 years in Western Ontario, and all recommend it very highly.

Charge for full course is only $10, to be paid when course is completed, if satisfied, including one of the most perfect-fitting systems in use, which we give free. We guarantee that the waists made by this chart will not draw or pull out of skirt when raising arm.

An evening class will also be taught. In this class we will teach Shirt Waists, Sleeves and Sacques. This course will be $1.00, and hours from 7 to 9.

We will teach in Peterboro from April 8th to April 20th—Hours for Day Class 9 to 5. All wishing to learn be sure to see us at the Oriental Hotel, on Saturday, April 6th, between 10 and 5 o'clock. This is positively the last class we will teach at Peterboro this year.

LOOKS LIKE ASYLUM FOR THAW

Jerome Doing His Best to Send Him There.

A COMMISSION OF THREE

Delmas Absent From Court—Jury Dismissed Until Wednesday—District Attorney May Appeal If Commission Is Not Appointed—Prisoner Desires to Send Memorial to Judge—Affidavits Filed.

New York, March 23.—A perfunctory session of the Court was held yesterday morning. Judge Fitzgerald excused the jury until 10.30 Wednesday morning, pending his examination of affidavits in the insanity issue.

Harry Thaw came in very nervously, and nodded jerkily to his friends.

His wife was in court, dressed in blue and looking quite refreshed.

Mr. Hartridge appeared for the defence.

Thaw left the court when the jury retired. He was very uneasy during his short appearance.

Delmas Was Away.

Mr. Delmas was not absent yesterday through any disagreement among counsel, but simply owing to the unimportant nature of the proceedings.

Behind the action of District Attorney Jerome in getting on the record at the Thaw trial the statement that the defendant is insane lies a determination on the part of the prosecution to make one of the most bitter legal fights ever known in this country, and have the question of Thaw's sanity settled beyond any and all doubts before his fate shall be placed in the hands of the jury. This means the decision of Judge Fitzgerald will not play such an important part as was generally supposed.

Jerome May Appeal.

An adverse decision on the District Attorney's suggestion that a commission be appointed will not stop Jerome in his efforts to have such action taken. It will simply spur him to greater activity along these lines. Mr. Jerome is thoroughly convinced that Thaw is in such a mental condition at the present time that he should not be on trial, and there is more than one legal road open to him to accomplish his purpose. The easiest and most simple is a direct appeal to the appellate division of the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition to restrain the jury from any further consideration of the case of Thaw until the appellate division has passed on a motion for the appointment of a lunacy commission.

Thaw's Peculiar Desire.

Thaw yesterday, in his cell, is protesting against the naming of a commission in lunacy. He insists that his lawyers permit him to address a memorial to Judge Fitzgerald. They have refused to allow it. They evidently fear that the memorial might prove dangerous to their client.

Lunacy Commission.

If Justice Fitzgerald decides to appoint a Commission in Lunacy it will consist of three members, an alienist, a lawyer, and a layman. The alienist must necessarily be one who has not figured in any way in the case. The Commission, if chosen, will examine Thaw, and report to the court. If it were to find him sane, the trial would be resumed; if otherwise, Justice Fitzgerald would be obliged to order Thaw's confinement in the Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan.

STREET CAR FATALITY.

Four-Year-Old Lad's Head Severed From His Body.

Toronto, March 23.—Ronald Young, the 4-year-old son of Albert Young, was run over and killed by a southbound Dovercourt car in charge of Motorman William Hurst, yesterday afternoon.

The baby's head was severed from its body and the right arm was crushed.

Little Ronald was playing on the sidewalk in front of his home. He wandered down the street and made for the tracks.

The people on the corner did everything to attract Hurst's attention, but to no avail. The car came on and, as Hurst applied the brakes, 60, yards below where the child was struck, the jar threw the baby off the fender under the wheels.

Family Frozen to Death.

Bathurst, N. B., March 23.—On Wednesday afternoon, during a heavy gale, the roof and the upper portion of John Comeau's house was blown down. The family had to leave the house.

Comeau took one child to the nearest house, a quarter of a mile distant, and was returning for the rest of the family when he got lost in the storm.

Reaching the house the following morning, in a very exhausted state, he found his wife and three children in the snow, frozen to death.

Alleged Count Decamps.

St. Catharines, March 23.—John Moreland, an alleged Russian count, who secured a position as a window-dresser and has been cutting a considerable swath in social circles here the past few weeks, is gone. His popularity led him into all kinds of excesses and he "flew high."

Yesterday he hired a team of horses and drove to the Falls. He didn't return and the team was located at the bridge.

Moreland is supposed to be a graduate of a Swedish university.

Transvaal Bars Asiatics.

Pretoria, Transvaal, March 23.—The Upper House of Parliament yesterday passed the "Asiatic ordinance" providing for the exclusion of the Japanese and other Asiatics, who are immigrating to South Africa in increasing numbers.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Cobourg, March 23.—A fatal accident occurred in the woods on the Card farm, in Haldimand Township, when a man named Alcorn of Baltimore was struck by a falling tree and instantly killed. He leaves a family.

INTERCOLONIAL HAS A GOOD SURPLUS

Minister of Railways Presents Magnificent Statement.

CHEAP FREIGHT CARRIER

Net Surplus of $93,000 During Fiscal Year — Large Surplus Already in Hand for Current Year — Money Spent in Improving the Canals —Hopes to Extend Intercolonial From Ocean to Ocean.

Ottawa, March 23.—In making his annual review of the operation in the past year of the Intercolonial Railway Hon. Mr. Emmerson broke new ground yesterday afternoon. Previously he, like other Ministers of Railways and Canals, devoted his "budget speech" to a mere recital of the operations of the Government railways and the outlook for the current year, Mr. Emmerson, however, believes, that the time has arrived when the public should be informed of the fact that the Department of Railways and Canals is more than a mere administration of the Intercolonial Railway, consequently his speech yesterday, which extended over four hours, was an elaborate review of the operation of the whole department and proved to be a remarkable compendium of facts.

Net Surplus of Over $93,000.

The outstanding facts, so far as the Government railways were concerned, were that in the last fiscal year there had been a net surplus of over $93,000 as compared with a deficit of $1,700,000 in the previous year, and that in the first six months of the current year, which means up to Dec. 31 last, there had been a surplus of $370,656. In speaking of the future of the Intercolonial Railway, Mr. Emmerson expressed the hope that before long the Government railway "would be extended to the great city of Toronto." Mr. Haggart followed his usual criticism, finding nothing good in the Minister's statement.

Improving the Waterways.

On motion to go into Supply, Hon. Mr. Emmerson rose to make his annual statement of the operations of the Department of Railways and Canals. Taking up first the canals of Canada, Mr. Emmerson stated that from 1897 to 1906 the expenditure upon the canals had reached a total of $23,879,792.32. At Port Colborne there had been expended over $1,500,000 in addition to the expenditure made by the Department of Public Works. On the Trent Valley Canal there had been expended in the ten years $3,760,000, including the lift lock at Peterboro'.

In reply to Hon. Mr. Haggart, the Minister said that the approximate cost of completing the Trent Valley Canal at an eight-foot level from Lake Simcoe to the Georgian Bay would be about $1,500,000, and from Healy's Falls to Trenton about $3,000,000.

The sum of nearly $24,000,000 had all been spent in improving transportation facilities and making the St. Lawrence route and the port of Montreal greater factors in the progress of the Dominion.

Railway Development.

Mr. Emmerson quoted some interesting figures as to the growth of railways in Canada. In 1906 the total mileage had been increased to 21,518 miles, an increase of 5,131 miles over 1896, while Government aid had grown to $105,734,201, an increase of $15,338,509. After giving the number of employes of the railways at 13,963, he proceeded to deal at length with the progress of the Intercolonial. He recalled the anticipations with which Canada had looked to the Intercolonial when it was completed in 1876, and contended that the results had justified those hopes. The Minister devoted considerable time to a discussion of the car problem. Dishonest diversion of our rolling stock by certain American roads requires the attention of the railway managers, he declared.

Record of the Intercolonial.

Comparing the conditions of the I. C. R. for the years 1896 and 1906, he noted that the length of the road had increased from 1,162 miles to 1,478, an increase of 25 per cent. The amount of capital invested had increased from $56,287,044 to $81,238,738, or 41 per cent.; locomotives had increased 70 per cent.; passenger cars, 55 per cent.; freight cars, 62 per cent.; engine mileage, 99 per cent.; train mileage, 93 per cents., and car mileage, 117 per cent. During the decade the whole line had been relaid with 80-pound rails, replacing the old 62 1-2 pound rails. Nearly the whole length of the line had been reballasted. New terminals had been built at Sydney and Halifax, and many new depots had been constructed. Elevators had been erected at Halifax and St. John, dock accommodation had been given, new and longer sidings built, etc. There had been improvement all along the line in equipment, rolling stock, facilities for handling traffic, etc.

Cheaper Freight Carriers.

He had made a statement on the floor of the House to the effect that the Intercolonial was the cheapest freight carrier in the world, and he was prepared now to give the House figures proving the correctness of his

INFURIATED MEN FIRE HOMES

Serious Fighting In Northern Moldavia.

PEASANTS DRIVE OUT JEWS

Fierce War On Farming Trust—Four Hundred Homes Are Devastated—More Than One Hundred Shot Down By Troops—Austrian Farmers Join Revolutionists—Entire District Up In Arms.

Vienna, March 23.—The seriousness of the situation in northern Moldavia, growing out of the agrarian disorders, has not been exaggerated, according to the latest telegraphic reports reaching here from Czernowitz, on the border.

From the estimates of the damages made last night, it appears that 400 farms in Moldavia have been devastated, 8,000 fugitives have fled over the Russian frontier into Austria, and a total of 10,000 Jews left homeless.

The number of dead and wounded cannot be given accurately, but the reports of yesterday give a total of about 85 men killed and 150 wounded.

The outbreak seemed to have been partially suppressed yesterday. The Roumanian Government is still sending troops into the afflicted district. Practically the entire Province of Moldavia has been involved.

Revolt Against Trust.

The movement is really more agrarian than anti-semitic. The peasants are in revolt against the great farming trust, which has leased half the cultivable land in Moldavia. The absentee landlords who control the trust are Jews, which fact brings the ire of the peasants down upon any and all Jews that they meet, and to this antipathy is added strong racial feeling.

On Thursday 500 peasants tried to invade Michailoni. Despite the fact that there were sufficient Roumanian troops there to stop the rioters, the peasants at first got the upper hand, because the soldiers, acting upon the orders of the prefect of the town, were not permitted to open fire.

In the face of the menaces of the furious peasants, however, some of the soldiers did fire, killing 15 of the rioters and wounding 45, whereupon ...charged the standard rates of other lines, instead of showing a surplus of $100,000 on the operations of the last fiscal year, it would have been able to show a surplus of $2,500,000.

After dinner the following bills received third reading and were passed:

An act respecting the Atlantic, Quebec & Western Railway Co.

An act respecting La Banque Nationale.

Amendments made by the Senate to the bill to incorporate the Manitoba Radial Railway Co. were referred to the Railway Committee.

...the peasants withdrew.

Town Set On Fire.

A more successful attack was made at Vaslui, south of Jessy. Two thousand peasants forced their way into the town. The prefect of Vaslui did not have sufficient troops to stop the onward march of the infuriated countrymen. He stood by a helpless witness while the rioters plundered practically all the buildings on the three principal streets of Vaslui, and then set them on fire, which completed the work of destruction.

The prefect appealed for reinforcements, and the peasants, in ignorance of this step, remained in the town until the soldiers arrived. Then ensued a serious fight up and down the burned streets. The soldiers were victorious, but 20 rioters were killed and many wounded.

The entire Roman district was up in arms. The authorities were powerless and the peasants pillaged, burned and devastated everywhere. All the buildings in the villages of Halancosti, Herlesti, Holeisteni and Ninolusen were demolished.

INDICT SOCIETY WOMEN.

Chicago Labor and Bridge Whist Parties.

Vancouver, March 23.—Claiming that investigation into the labor market shows the supply of labor in the Province equal to the demand; that society women who want the Chinese poll tax reduced want it so that they may have more time to enjoy bridge whist parties, pink teas and other unproductive frivolities; that the importation of cheap workmen is designed to cheapen labor and save employers from the necessity of raising wages to a figure in keeping with the advanced cost of living, that the Provincial Government is controlled by employers, and that the importation of cheap labor will cause industrial troubles and an exodus of Canadian workmen, the Trades and Labor Council passed a series of resolutions condemning the Provincial Government's immigration policy. Copies were sent to Premier Laurier and the Premier of each Province.

THE BRONCHO THINKS HE WILL WIN

His Bout From Pete Barry—Notes of Next Week's Big Attraction

TWENTY FOOT RING BUILT

The boxing bout between Pete Barry of Toronto and Fred Brown, the broncho of Lindsay, billed for Wednesday night next at the smoker to be given at the old opera house, under the direction of Billy Breen, is causing considerable excitement among the sporting fraternity. The broncho has been in actual training for some time and says that he will win without trouble. He has a number of supporters who think the same way and a heavy bet was made yesterday that the Toronto boy would be knocked out.

On the other hand many Peterborough people think that Barry will be too clever for the ex-English champion. The bout will go eight rounds and will be a rattling contest.

Among the wrestling bouts the one that is attracting the most attention is the match between Eugene Hurtubise and Jack Thompson, the well known heavy weight wrestler. The local boy, of course, is the favourite, but word comes from Hamilton that Thompson is in great shape and expects to win.

The management has a surprise for the patrons of the smoker. Some local talent, both in the wrestling and boxing line, have consented to go on and they will certainly surprise somebody. Their identity will remain unknown until the night of the smoker.

Among the other bouts arranged are: Wrestling — Mike O'Toole vs. Harvey Staunton, of Peterborough. Boxing—Bill Wallace, of Peterborough vs. Jack Brown, of Lindsay; Fred Green, of Peterborough vs. Tommy Daley, of Toronto.

Billy Breen and Geo. Lynch will be heard in songs and stories and Joe Guerin will do some step dancing that should bring down the house.

A twenty foot ring has been built in the middle of the hall, around which the seats are arranged. This is a vast improvement over holding the bouts on the stage where they could not be seen to advantage, except to those in the first few seats.

CRICKET CLUB'S NEW OFFICERS

The Honourary Officers Were Named at Well Attended Meeting Held Last Night To Play About May 1st

Last night a meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlours when the honourary officers were elected, as follows:

Honourary President—Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P.

Honourary First Vice-President—Mr. D. Hughes Charles.

Honourary Second Vice-President—Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Patrons and Patronesses—Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton; Mr. and Mrs. Rich. Hall; Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Merritt and Mr. and Mrs. James Kendry.

There was a good attendance of members of the club and those wishing to become identified with it at the meeting last night, which was presided over by the president, Dr. Burnham. It is expected that playing will commence about May 1st, on the Nicholls Oval.

The next meeting of the club will be held two weeks from last night, April 5th.

The season tickets are placed at $2 per year, and may be obtained from any of the following: E. H. Wood, Secretary; C. Hill, E. H. Lovekin, W. Sheffield or C. Moore. The secretary will also be glad to furnish any information concerning the club or its work.

NINE-TENTHS OF THE DEATHS FROM CONSUMPTION COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED

Dr. W. A. Evans, an eminent practitioner of Chicago, in a recent address, emphasized the importance of physicians recognizing the symptoms of tuberculosis in its early stages. Dr. Evans says that nine-tenths of the deaths attributed to consumption could have been prevented if the patients' symptoms had been accurately interpreted when first made manifest.

The only safe method is to assume from the very first that consumption really is present in all cases where there is the slightest reason for suspecting its presence, and to prescribe in accordance with that theory.

Coughs and colds, soreness in the chest or difficulty in breathing should have prompt treatment, as the lungs are then in a peculiarly receptive condition for the tubercular germ.

A noted specialist, whose camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine has attracted great attention, because of his remarkable cures there, advises the use of the following simple formula, which is said to break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable: Take one-half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine and eight ounces of good whiskey. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost, and are easily prepared. The patient should be careful to secure the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) in the original half-ounce vials, put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont., plainly printed thereon. It is always well to remember that the object of an imitator is to deceive. There is no known substitute for Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure).

ANNUAL MEETING OF MIDLAND LEAGUE

Officers Were Elected This Afternoon—Prospects are Bright for a Successful Season This Year.

MR. W. McILROY, PRESIDENT

The annual meeting of the Midland Association Football League was held in the Y.M.C.A. this afternoon at one o'clock, when the officers for 1907

MR. J. E. SULLIVAN,
To-day elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Midland Association Football League were elected and other business transacted. The Cobourg, Keene, Omemee and Peterborough Quaker Clubs were represented in person, and Bowmanville and Oshawa by proxy.

The chair was occupied by Mr. W. McIlroy, the president of the League. Mr. J. E. Sullivan the secretary-treasurer, read his report showing that the League had a balance from last year of 20 cents. During 1907 there were 10 teams in the league—7 in the junior, and 3 in the intermediate. There were 16 games played altogether. The secretary also referred to the unwarranted action of the O.A.F.L. in not giving the Peterborough Quakers a square deal with regard to Ontario championship games.

After some discussion it was decided to have a senior and intermediate series in the league and if enough teams enter to also have a junior series.

Officers Elected

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Hon. President—Hon. J. R. Stratton.
Hon. Vice-President—Dr. Geo. Burnham.
President—W. McIlroy, Peterborough.
1st Vice-President—W. Butters, Cobourg.
2nd Vice-President — Dr. Devitt, Bowmanville.
Secretary-Treasurer—J. E. Sullivan, Peterborough.
Executive Committee—H. Tribe, Cobourg; Dr. McWilliams, Keene; T. J. Wallace, Peterborough.

Mr. J. E. Sullivan, secretary, was appointed representative of the Midland League to the O.A.F.L., which meets on Monday, April 1st. He was given instructions to oppose the amendment regarding the definition of an amateur which gives him the right to play with or against a professional without thereby endangering his status.

Those present at the meeting as representatives, were — Messrs. H. Tribe and S. J. Cotton, Cobourg; W. Pue, Keene; M. Sherin, Omemee, and Rae P. Best and B. T. Huston of the Quakers.

The senior series will consist of Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterborough Quakers and perhaps Bridgenorth, Bowmanville and Port Hope. The intermediate teams have not all notified the secretary as to their intentions.

FOOTBALL

The annual meeting of the Ontario Association Football League will be held at the Walker House, Toronto, on Easter Monday, April 1st, at 10.30 a.m.

In addition to the ordinary business of an annual meeting the proposed amendments to the constitution, laws of the game and competition rules, will come up for consideration.

• • • •

Mr. M. Sherin, of Omemee, was in the city to-day to attend the annual meeting of the Midland League. He states that Omemee will not be represented in the league this year, but that Ida, a village to the south will be represented. Last year's Omemee team contained a number of Ida players, and these will be required there this season, thus preventing the former village from placing a team in the field.

ROLLER SKATING AFTER THE CURLING

Ice Removed From Charlotte Street Rink To-day—A Successful Curling Season

All doubts as to the end of the curling season were set aside this morning when a reporter stepped inside the rink looking for last night's games and found several men at work chopping the ice off the central part of the rink. The curling rink has been open continuously since Dec. 10th and there were very few if any nights passed by without a game at that popular spot.

The ice accumulated is about an inch and a half in thickness and breaks off readily. Mr. S. J. Sheridan, the roller skating man, is superintending the work which will be concluded to-day. He expects to have the rink ready next week and it probably will open for the season on Good Friday.

Mr. Sheridan is having a sand-tapering machine brought down from Toronto to smooth the floor. He expects to have floors placed in the two sections of the rink adjacent to the centre sheet for promenades. This will have the effect of preventing the sand getting into their all bearings on the rollers and injuring them.

Mr. Sheridan who has secured Dey's skating rink in Ottawa, expects also to have it in operation during the next week.

MAPLE SYRUP SUPPLY PROMISES TO BE GOOD

Farmers Are Now Engaged in Boiling and State That Sap is Running Well

The farmers report that the present season promises to be a good one for maple syrup. If the nights will continue to be cold and frosty, the sap will run abundantly. The most of those questioned this morning declared that they made syrup and sugar for their private use and not for sale. However, if the supply is a good one, there will be a fairly large quantity of the "pure thing" sold in the city. Those who have a failing for maple syrup and have been compelled to use the canned variety that was obtained from Maine forests, according to the label, will be glad to have the opportunity of getting some of the real syrup.

Woman's Health

Every woman may be attractive. Bright eyes, pink cheeks and red lips are her nature-given right. A sallow skin, lack of animation, low spirits and weak nerves may be avoided by the use of Beecham's Pills, a remedy that well deserves the confidence of every woman. Again and again they have proved to be invaluable at those recurring times when so many women feel debilitated and suffer from nervousness, headache and depression. It is wonderful the way these pills assist Nature and relieve the suffering.

Panic on Berlin Market Responsible for a Run on That Stock, Which Sold Down to 155.

WHOLE MARKET WAS WEAK

Special to J. E. Helntz & Co.

New York, March 23. — A continuation of the heavy selling movement in C P R was the feature of a very weak stock market today. The selling began in London early this morning on the report of a financial panic in the Berlin market and was continued here throughout the session. The stock opened on running sales from 160 to 158 as compared with the closing prices of 163 last night. The low for the day was 155 with many fluctuations between those points and with a rally to 158 at the close. The attack on this issue was the centre of the bear campaign and it is more successful than in the panic last week. The movement is based entirely on the supposed vulnerable bull account.

In London consols were depressed and the mining department was influenced by a sharp reaction in Rio Tintos. Erie issues were weak here stories circulating, it is thought certain large market interests are making the best of it for stock manipulating reasons.

Regarding the foreign situation representatives of the most important joint stock banks in London and three principal German banking houses, report that they have not been able to trace any financial difficulties in London or

The general list here was weak in sympathy and declined from 2 to 5 points. U P, South Pac, Read, Pa, N Y C, Atch, Copper and the Hill stocks, were heavy with no rallying power. The bank statement was not as good as had been expected and neither added fuel to the bear fires. The market rallied some from the low and closed irregular and uncertain. We will probably have some big moves next week, but there seems little prospect of any substantial improvement and we would sell them on any good rally.

A CHURCH PAPER'S GOOD PROGRESS

St. Luke's Parish Work Enters Upon Its 28th Year of Publication—A Credit to Its Editor.

With the present issue, the Parish Magazine of St. Luke's Church enters upon its twenty-eighth year of publication, and those who have followed the growth and development of that excellent publication will be glad to accord to its present editor, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, the credit due for having brought it to its present high standard of excellence. Few if any church papers can boast a record equalling that enjoyed by this paper, and, after its 27 years, it is still a rigourous and progressive journal, increasing in influence and circulation as the years go by.

The Parish Work carries a good line of advertising, and, from a typographical standpoint, it is a credit, as well as for the excellence of its contents. It is printed on the Examiner presses.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Completion of Goderich Breakwater," will be received at this office until Thursday, April 18, 1907, inclusively, for the completion of Breakwater at Goderich, Huron County, Ontario, according to a plan and specification to be seen at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., Resident Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; H. J. Limb, Esq., Resident Engineer, London, Ont., or application to the Postmaster at Goderich, and at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed form supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

An accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00), must accompany each tender. The cheque will be forfeited if the party tendering decline the contract or fail to complete the work contracted for, and will be returned in case of non-acceptance of tender.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By Order,
FRED. GELINAS,
Secretary.

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

Homestead Duties.—A settler who has been granted an entry for a homestead is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry under the provisions of this Act, resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements of this Act as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

ONE OF THE CITY'S MOST PROSPEROUS INDUSTRIES

The Works of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company---Some Interesting Facts Concerning the Supply and Preparation of Raw Material---Where the Sisal Comes From---Tribute to Enterprise of Men at the Head of the Local Company.

Of the many enterprising industries in Peterborough, none are better or more favourably known, not only in Canada, but also in the United States, than the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited, manufacturers of the Golden Sceptre Brands of Binder Twine and Gold Medal Brands of Rope.

Peterborough people have a more than passing interest in the progress and prosperity of the Canadian Cordage Company, chiefly because of the fact that it was organized by a Peterborough man, and a considerable quantity of the stock is still held by local capitalists. Another fact of which Peterborough people have reason to be proud is that the factory is generally recognized by those who have visited it as the most modern and best equipped of any similar factory in the Dominion. This, with the care exercised in all the details of its operation, is responsible for the recognized high standard of excellence which the product of the factory has reached, and for the increasing demand for it, not only in Canada, but in the United States as well, where a considerable quantity of the goods is disposed of, and where the rope and twine, manufactured by the Canadian Cordage Company, are looked upon as representing the best in their lines.

It is a pleasure to be able to state that the factory is pronounced by experts one of the most complete, modern and up-to-date mills on the continent. It is also highly gratifying to note the hearty endorsation which the products have met with at the hands of intelligent buyers, and to be assured that their makes of binder twine and rope are recognized, not only at home, but also abroad, as pre-eminently the best offered to the trade.

In this conclusion it will be of interest to refer to a booklet recently issued by this company, in which the considerable information of an interesting character is given concerning this very important industry. The publication is exceedingly well edited and printed, the latter having been done in the job rooms of the Examiner, to which it is a credit. In the booklet the writer seeks to show, by progressive steps, the production of the goods, the growing of the different fibres, illustrating same with engravings prepared especially for the company, ending with the finished product; thus endeavouring to impress the fact that the company's facilities for the manufacture of the finest quality of cordage are unsurpassed.

For the production of binder twine and rope various fibres have been used, but the Manila of the Philippines, and the Sisal of Yucatan have proved so much superior that they have practically superseded all others.

Manila

The world is dependent on the Philippine Islands for its supply of Manila hemp, the most valuable of all fibres for cordage. The plant producing this hemp is found in the hilly and mountainous country of most of the islands of this group. By the natives it is known as abaca. In its native region the plant is rudely cultivated solely as a source of fibre. It requires little attention. The natives seldom own the lands, but cultivate the plant and prepare the hemp on shares. They usually work in pairs, caring for about two acres, the usual size of the fields.

When from three to five years old, the plant attains a height of from 10 to 15 or 20 feet. Its leaves run from the roots, wrapping the flower stem until near the top, where they branch out into large waving fans. The plant must be cut before the seed is produced, or the quality of the fibre is injured. When flowers appear on the central stem, it is in the most favourable condition for yielding fibre. The stalk is then cut down and the sheathing leaves torn asunder and reduced to small strips. These strips in their fresh succulent condition are drawn between a sharp knife-edged instrument and a hard wooden block to which it is fixed, and by repeated scraping in this way the soft cellular matter which surrounds the fibre, is removed, and the fibre, so cleaned, has only to be hung up in the open air to dry, when, without further treatment, it is ready for use. Each stalk yields, on an average, a little under one pound of fibre, and two natives, cutting down plants and separating fibre, will prepare not more than 25 pounds per day. The fibre yielded by the outer layer of leaf stalks, is hard, fully developed and strong, but the produce of the inner stocks is increasingly thin, fine and weak. The finer fibre is used by the natives for making exceedingly fine, light, yet comparatively strong textures, which they use as articles of dress and ornament.

From each tree about one pound of fibre will be produced thus taking from two hundred and seventy-five to three hundred trees to furnish one bale of hemp. Two men can make a bale of hemp in about two weeks.

The trades sort it into different grades, and when they have a boat load it is sent to one of the exporting cities, usually Manila, Cebu, or Iloile, where it is inspected, graded and baled.

The illustrations will show the simple made machine with which the native separates and cleans the fibre from the pulpy substance in which it is developed. Under a knife, fastened to a hinged block, with an attachment which allows him to regulate the pressure with his foot, the strips are passed, and by dextrous handling the pulp is scraped off, leaving the fibre clean and free from extraneous matter. The greater the pressure upon the knife the better the quality of the hemp, but the harder the work and the slower the process. If the native is lazy the hemp is dark and coarse. For this reason the fine white hemp is scarce and high priced.

Sisal

The successful cultivation of the sisal plant has thus far been confined to the State of Yucatan in Mexico, where it has been found embedded in the ornamental stucco figures of the buildings lately uncovered in the prehistoric ruins of Yucatan, showing its use from the earliest times. But a small part of the state is suitable to its cultivation so that the output of the fibre is limited. The plants are propagated by suckers planted in rows, about from 10 to 12 feet apart, which begin to produce fibre in from 5 to 6 years.

They continue to produce fibre for ten to fifteen years when the plant sends up a flower stock, which indicates that its usefulness is ended and it is then cut down. When the leaves are ready to cut they extend at right angles from the trunk. A healthy vigorous plant will yield from eighteen to twenty leaves, and each leaf about one ounce of clean, dry fibre. The leaves are cut by the natives as shown in the illustration; they usually begin work very early in the morning in order to avoid the intense heat of the midday sun. An expert workman will cut and strip from 1500 to 2000 leaves a day for which he is paid 50 cents Mexican or 25 cents in United States currency.

The heat is so intense that only the native Indians can endure the field work. All attempts to import foreign labour have failed, none have been able to endure the burning sun. When the leaves have been cut and stripped offf their thorns, they are tied in bundles and conveyed to the cleaner over portable railways, which are removed from place to place in the field as necessary. Formerly the fibre was separated by the most crude and primitive methods but as the demand outgrew the supply machinery was called into service. The machine now commonly used consists of a large toothed wheel which scrapes the pulp from the leaves leaving the fibre free from all other substances. Its simplicity fits it for use by the native labour.

Phormium is a cream coloured fibre with a fine silky gloss. It is used principally as a cordage fibre, and in tensile strength is second only to Manila.

Formerly much of this hemp was unfit for twine making purposes, but in recent years the New Zealand Government has introduced legislation governing the inspection of this hemp with the result that what comes to the market now is fully up to the standard quality.

The fibre is prepared for market in a manner similar to sisal. Only the best and most carefully selected is fit to use if good twine is to be produced.

In many respects the fibre closely resembles Manila.

African Fibre

It is only within the last few years that this fibre has been brought into use by cordage manufacturers. The plant producing this fibre is to be found in the German Possessions of Africa. The stock, which contains fibre, shoots up from a rhizome to a height of from 12 to 20 feet; the stalks are about three inches at the bottom, tapering gradually to the top. In many respects they resemble the bamboo, but there are no knots on the stem. The stalks are cut into 6 and 8 feet lengths and put through a break. The fibre is of fine white silky appearance, in many respects resembling sisal.

The plantations are operated by a company, in which it is understood that Kaiser William takes a deep interest. They control the whole of the output and only a limited number of tons can be obtained. In a few years this fibre will no doubt be largely used in the manufacture of cordage.

Progress is said to have been made near Port Shepstone, Natal, in the cultivation of sisal hemp, and banana fibre, a company having been formed under the style of South African Industries, Limited, for the development of the industry. Other ventures are spoken of as being started at Delagoa Bay, as well as in Rhodesia and the Transvaal, for growing hemp, ramie and other fibres.

The Finished Product

Great experience and constant vigilance are required in order to produce a smooth, even, uniform twine and, as all Canadian twines are manufactured under strict Government inspection, the penalties for any infringement of the act being very severe, (see below,) consumers can always depend upon getting the full length of Twine. Every ball of Canadian Cordage Twine is sold under the positive guarantee of being the best that skill and machinery can produce.

The following is the section from the Act referred to:—

"Upon, or attached to, every ball of binder twine offered for sale in Canada, there shall be a stamp with the name of the manufacturer, importer or dealer, stating the number of feet of twine per pound in each ball.

"Every manufacturer, importer or dealer, who neglects to comply with the provisions of this section shall on summary conviction be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty cents per ball, and every manufacturer, importer or dealer of binder twine, which is not of the length per pound which is stamped upon the ball shall, on summary conviction be liable to a penalty of not less than one dollar and not more than twenty-five dollars per ball, and all such twine deficient in quantity shall be confiscated."

Rope

A rope is composed of a certain number of strands, the strand being itself made up of many yarns. Three strands laid or twisted together form a Hawser Laid Rope, and three such Hausers similarly laid, make a Cable Laid Rope or Cable. A Shroud Laid Rope consists of four strands laid around a central strand or core.

Fibre is twisted or spun to the right hand to form yarn; the required number of yarns receive a left hand twist to make a strand; three strands twisted to the right make a Hawser, and three Hawsers twisted to the left yield a cable. Thus the twist in each successive operation is in a different direction from the preceding, and this alternation of direction serves to some extent to preserve the parallelism of the fibre.

The earliest practical attempt to introduce machine rope-spinning was made by Cartwright, the famous inventor of the power loom, who, in 1792, obtained a patent for a machine called by him a Cordelier. Cartwright's Cordelier, as improved in 1803 by Captain Huddard, became the basis of modern laying and forming machines. Numerous modifications and improved combinations have since been introduced, but the principles on which they are worked are essentially the same.

Although the name of the first rope maker, and that of the land in which he practised his art, have both been lost to history, Egyptian sculptures prove that the art was practiced at least 3,000 years before the time of Christ.

Ropes made of various fibres are of very ancient date. Ropes made of palm have been found in Egypt in the tombs of Beni Hassan, and on the walls of these tombs is also shown the process of preparing hemp.

At Nimrod, Assyria, a carved slab, showing the Siege of a Castle, was found, on which a soldier was represented in the act of cutting a rope to which a bucket for drawing water from a well outside the castle was attached.

A visit to the works of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company is sufficient to impress one with the fact that the factory is modern in every respect, and it is a visit attended with considerable pleasure and interest, the process of manufacture being one which cannot fail to interest those who are fortunate enough to see it.

About two hundred hands are employed in the works, which are run continuously the year round, so that it will be readily seen that an industry of this character is an important factor in the success and progress of a city.

The manufacturing operations of the company are in capable hands, proof of which is furnished by the fact that the goods turned out from the works are rapidly attaining a reputation in the markets not only of this country but of the United States as well, for first class quality, which indicates that so long as the twine made here is of the standard of excellence already established there should be no question of the reception it will be given with the consumers.

Not only, however, is the manufacturing end being well looked after, but, what is equally important, the sales department is capably managed. More attention in the large manufacturing concerns of the country is being paid to the sales end of the business, which is recognized as a science as much as the manufacturing end. Mr. Torrance Peak is the sales manager of the company, and has brought to that department considerable energy and executive ability, the result of which is seen in the growing sales of the company.

A GLOWING REPORT ON "SILVER BIRD"

Cobalt, March 22.—The engineer's report recently made on the Silver Bird Mine by Mr. E. C. Kingswell, the well known consulting and mining engineer, has caused an increased demand for Silver Bird stock in the camp. In his report Mr. Kingswell fully endorses the manner in which the Silver Bird mine is being worked, and he says that many a well known miner here can get a good lesson on how to timber a shaft. The shaft is a double compartment one and is now down 104 feet. After sinking another 16 feet it is their intention to drift north and south from that level. The machinery consists of two 25 h.c. boilers, steam drill and steam hoist, and it is the intention of the management to instal a compressor plant at once. Near the north end of the property a diamond drill cut two veins of silver and cobalt. The Silver Bird management will later take up the development of this end of the property. Sixteen men are working day and night and more will be put on when drifting is started. The Silver Bird Mine is being watched with great interest here, as it is so well located, being only 1,400 feet from the Colonial and 1,700 feet from the O'Brien.

SOME REAL ESTATE DEALS MADE

Messrs. R. A. Elliott and Company are Bringing Desirable People into the City.

NEW FURNITURE FACTORY

R. A. Elliott & Co., the well known Water street real estate men, are putting through a number of big deals these days and are turning over a large amount of property. It is a significant fact that many of those who are purchasing land from the firm are from outside points, which indicates that Messrs. Elliott & Co. are doing a great deal to help build up the city by bringing in a desirable class of citizens.

As already mentioned in the Examiner the firm have disposed of the property of Mr. Rich Dawson, in East City, to Mr. T. W. Oke, of Cobourg, who will erect a furniture factory upon it. He proposes to put up a two storey building, 60 by 36 feet, and built of Sandstone brick, where he will manfacture furniture and carry on a planing business as well. Mr. Oke will take up residence in this city.

Messrs. Elliott & Co. have also disposed of the residence of Mr. J. B. McWilliams, at the corner of Water and London streets, to Mr. Robt. Hairstone, of Warkworth, who is coming to Peterborough to reside. In addition to these the firm has recently sold a residence to Mr. Williamson, formerly of Port Perry, another new comer to the city, and a lot on Bolivar street to Mr. Henderson, of Omemee, who intends a build a house thereon this spring.

The firm have other deals on hand, one of them in connection with a manufacturing institution which is thinking of coming to Peterborough and for which an option has been secured on what is thought to be desirable property.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributed the bad temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more miserable or more gloomy and discouraged than liver complaint, and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

The Area In Which Sewer Connection Is Compulsory

Board of Health Recommended That the Council Should Pass a By-law---Sanitary Inspector's Report.

A REPORT ON THE HARVEY STREET SEWER PRESENTED

"That the council be asked to pass a bylaw to compel all property in the area from the eastern limit of lot 1, east of Water street, to Aylmer street, and from Charlotte street to Brock street, in front of which there is, or may hereafter be, a sewer, to be connected with the sewer system, and to have all privy vaults, etc., in that area, removed, and that the council be asked to give this matter immediate attention."

The above resolution was the most important feature of the meeting of the Board of Health this morning, at which considerable business was taken up. The matter has been before the Board for some time, and had been recommended to the city council. The City Solicitor, however, decided that the Board would have to name a certain area, and so the matter was referred back to the Board to deal with. It is the intention of the Board to have everything in this section put in sanitary condition, and to gradually extend the area until the whole city is covered.

There were present Messrs. Wm. Eyres, chairman; Mayor McWilliams, George Schneider, R. Neill, Medical Health Officer, Dr. Burnham, and Sanitary Inspector George Ball,

Harvey Street Drainage

The following report was read from the City Engineer:

As requested, I have examined into the possibility of draining that part of Harvey street between Antrim and Smith streets, and find that by keeping the sewer close to the surface (not more than four feet deep) on Antrim street it will be practicable to drain this section, and a part of Smith street east and west of Harvey street.

T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

It was decided to recommend to the council that the sewer should be built.

Dickson Company's Request

In reference to the Dickson Company's request for sewer connection with their property on Waterford street, the Engineer reported as follows:

The nearest approach of the sewer system to the land mentioned is on McDonel street, at Waterford, and on London street 175 feet east of Harvey street, and on Water street at the intersection of Dublin and Water streets.

The company's land on the north side of London street, and west of Waterford, can be connected to the London street sewer only at the west side of lot, as London street falls rapidly from the east end of sewer.

The land on the east side of Waterford street, both north and south of London street, is too low to allow connection with any part of the system.

The same difficulty exists with the property on Harvey street, between London and Dublin, and on Dublin street, east of centre of block between Water and Harvey.

The property owners in this locality have been desirous of having sewer connection. Prior to the construction of the sewer on Dublin street between George and Aylmer streets, levels were taken to ascertain the possibility of laying that sewer low enough to allow of draining the lots on Harvey street, north of London, but it was found that it would necessitate a depth of excavation of 20 feet for the greater part of the distance and the cost would be excessive, the fall very slight, and the area served so small that it was not considered practicable, and would not relieve Waterford, which is lower still than Harvey street. This section of the city will require a separate outlet and entail additional expense for septic tank.

At some future time it may be joined to the 12-inch sewer pipe laid in 1901 by the American Cereal Co., on Quaker street, by extending that sewer to London street. At present that sewer reaches to the elevator and discharges through a septic tank into the river, a little above the bridge. The extension of this sewer to London street will depend upon the filling in of the north end of the raceway, as otherwise it would be difficult and costly to pass through or under the power house flumes and the head gates on London street.

T. A. S. HAY,
City Engineer.

It was decided to appoint a committee composed of the chairman, and Messrs. Parker and Neill, to take up the matter with the city council.

Milk Inspection

A letter was read from Dr. John A. Amyot, Provincial Bacteriologist, stating that he could examine 12 samples of milk every day except Saturdays. The sanitary inspector was authorized to send two or more samples of milk from each vendor in the city, and to report to the board when this has been done.

The Sewer Area

The sanitary inspector reported that he had visited 161 premises in the district between the eastern limit of lot 1, east of Water street and from Charlotte street to Brock street, and had found the sanitary arrangements as follows:

Water closets, 108.
Boxes, 25.
Pits, 29.
No connections, 23.

The resolution at the head of this article was passed, without discussion, at the conclusion of the report.

It was decided to recommend to the council that a sewer be constructed on Chambers street.

The sanitary inspector was instructed to take proceedings against any person depositing offensive matter in the river or creek within the city limits.

The Board adjourned to meet again on Monday morning next.

Lindsay Gets Industry; Peterborough Missed It

Tower Oiled Clothing Company, of Toronto, Locating a Branch Factory in That Town—To Employ Twenty Girls.

A PROMISING INDUSTRY.

Lindsay has secured an industry, which this city has missed. The Post in its issue of Saturday tells how it came to be located there, in the following story:

On Friday last the Tower Canadian Oiled Clothing Company, Limited, Toronto, the largest manufacturers of that class of goods in Canada, advertised in the Evening Post that their representative would be at the office of the Post next day to engage help to run power sewing machines. One insertion of a small "Want" advt. brought response from no fewer than sixty young women. As the company wanted the help for their Toronto factory they were able to secure only a few operatives. It was suggested by the Post man that they should open a branch in Lindsay, and two large steam heated and well lighted rooms in the Post's new building were offered them. Their representative was so favourably impressed with the proposition and the premises that the proposition was practically closed by telephone from the head office at a late hour on Saturday evening.

The machinery for the new industry arrived from the city on Friday, and is not installed, ready for the commencement of operations on Monday morning. The company will begin with a force of about twenty young women who will be paid from four to six dollars per week, according to their ability. It is expected the company will increase their plant in Lindsay within a short time.

Mr. Oliver Milburn Buys Splendid Motor Boat

A New and Speedy Boat Manufactured at Works of Peterborough Canoe Company—She Will Have Speed of 12 Miles an Hour.

TO RUN ON MUSKOKA LAKES

The largest and best motor boat ever manufactured in this city is one which the Peterborough Canoe Company is now making Mr. Oliver Milburn, of W. A. Sanderson & Co. The hull will be 31 feet over all, with a seven foot beam, and fitted with a three quarter cabin. She will be equipped with a fifteen h. p. four cylinder cycle Buffalo gasoline engine, and she will develop a speed of about twelve miles an hour.

The boat, with the exception of the engine, will be finished here, and it is expected that the engine will be installed in Toronto, where the boat will be sent, about May 1st. The cost of the hull and fittings will be about $700, while the completed craft will cost about $2,000. From Toronto she will be sent to Muskoka, where she will be operated this summer by Mr. T. B. Milburn, head of the wholesale drug firm of T. Milburn & Co., Toronto. The boat will be lit with electric light, a plant for developing energy for which is also being installed. All the conveniences possible in a boat of her size will be provided and altogether the boat will be one of the most complete and modern ever launched on Canadian waters.

TO COMMENCE WORK IN EARLY SPRING ON CHURCH

Work will be commenced on the new Roman Catholic Church in the south end of the city as soon as possible in the spring, and it is expected that about a year will be occupied in its erection. It will have a seating capacity of one thousand persons, and will be built of either pressed brick or stone, this detail not having been decided on as yet. The response for funds to help build the church has been most encouraging, and a building which will be a credit to the city will be erected.

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECK AT MYRTLE DELAYED THE EXPRESS

A wreck which occurred this morning about ten o'clock at a siding between Myrtle and Burketon Junction, on the C.P.R., delayed traffic on the main line for several hours, and prevented the arrival of the noon express until late in the afternoon. It appears that a freight train from the west was taking a siding, under orders to wait until the express had passed, and jumped the track at the frog, throwing several cars into the ditch.

The auxiliary at Havelock was sent for and, in the meantime, the express was held at Myrtle until the line could be cleared. No one was injured, the only damage being that to the rolling stock.

INDIVIDUAL TICKETS MAY BE TRANSFERRED

In order that there may be no misapprehension about the use of the course tickets for Rev. Dr. Symonds' lecture on Tennyson, the Examiner has been requested to state that the individual tickets are transferable, and might be used by several parties attending even one lecture.

The present population of Lyons, the third city of France, is about half a million.

PETERBOROUGH LUMBER CO. EXTENDING

Many Improvements Underway or Contemplated Before Operations Begin.

The Peterborough Lumber Co. are making many improvements to their mill and its surroundings on Burnham Point. The large mill is being widened six feet to permit of extra space being brought into use. A new saw, larger than the old one, is being installed, and the carriage in connection with this will henceforth be operated by the gun shot feed system.

In view of the latter mentioned improvement, the company is also having installed a new engine with a 70 horse power capacity, to assist the present one. A new edger will also replace the old one. A large open building will also be erected on the north side of the mill, in which to place the lumber when it leaves the saw.

The company also contemplate having another C.P.R. siding constructed to their mill to supplement the three already installed. They expect a much larger amount of work this year than last, and have found these extra additions necessary to keep them in line with their advancing trade. They will also have a couple of extra camps built in their northern limits for next winter's work.

The local mills will begin operations as soon as the Little Lake is clear of ice.

TRUE CANADIANS

There is a three-fold significance in the action of the Quebec Legislature in voting an annuity to the mother of Miss Maxwell, the teacher who so heroically sacrificed her life in the rescue of the pupils, in her charge, from death at the Hochelaign school fire recently. In the first place it is both a recognition of the most laudable act of self sacrifice a mortal is capable of, and it is a reparation for the loss sustained by the heroine's surviving relatives. In the third place the action of the Legislature of Quebec constitutes an example of practical patriotism and broadness of spirit, in view of a united Canadian citizenship of a most encouraging character. It is to be understood that Miss Maxwell was a Protestant teacher in a Protestant Separate School, which bears the same relation to the prevailing schools of Quebec in a numerical sense, that the Separate Schools of Ontario to to the Public Schools of Ontario. It is to be remembered that the overwhelming majority of the Quebec Legislature who voted Miss Maxwell, a Protestant, a recognition and to her mother an annuity, are Roman Catholics. In this action they have set an example of liberality and broadness of mind, and oneness of our Canadian citizenship, which it is not altogether safe to assume could be duplicated in the Province of Ontario under similar circumstances and conditions. It is to be feared that if it were proposed to vote an annuity to a Roman Catholic Separate School teacher who had shown self sacrifice and heroism, like those displayed by Miss Maxwell, there would be a howl of protest and condemnation on the part of a certain class of the community. After the example of Quebec it is possible, but, perhaps, not extremely probable, that such a vote would pass the Legislature. No doubt there there is a certain class of rabid partizans in Quebec who denounce the action of the Legislature and raise an outcry against such a concession to generous impulse and recognition of the minority, but it is doubtful if the outcry is as loud or insistent or unreasonable as would be the corresponding outcry in the Province of Ontario under similar circumstances. The Legislature of Quebec have shown themselves to be true Canadians.

MANITOBA ELECTION METHODS

Kingston Whig.

In connection with the recent election in Manitoba there was some work which should be judiciously inquired into. In two divisions of St. Boniface there were irregularities. In one poll there were eleven more ballots cast than there were voters who exercised the franchise. Ten of them were initialled improperly and marked for the Liberal candidate. One spoiled by the initials, representing the deputy returning officer, was marked for the Government candidate. At the other poll there were three extra ballots in the box, initialled, and marked for the Liberal.

The Government press—the papers which endorse the Roblin Government and all its acts—charge that there was ballot stuffing, but in the interest of the Liberals. The weakness of the allegation is that the polls were manned by Conservative officials. These had the custody of all the election machinery, and it would have been impossible for the Liberals to do any wrong without their connivance. The Liberal papers intimate that the rascality was perpetrated in the interest of the Government, and that the forgeries and frauds are susceptible of an explanation.

The Winnipeg Free Press demands an investigation, and holds that the deputy returning officers owe it to themselves to insist that all suspicion be lifted from them.

"The Attorney-General's Department," says the Free Press, "should turn over the prosecution of this investigation to a lawyer of the highest standing, who is not identified with either of the political parties. The inquiry should be held before a judge. All the electors who voted in the subdivision in question could be subpoenaed; and their declaration upon oath as to how they voted would show which one of the two hypotheses set forth is the false hypothesis."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Where is Hon. Mr. Beck's Niagara power scheme now? It does not appear to have much electrical touch and go about it. Hon. Mr. Whitney says he is standing with his "back to the wall." What wall? This attitude argues a position—the last refuge—against some form of assault. Whence is the opposition? Let the Government bring its power legislation into the light and let the people see what they mean to do.

NEW STEAMER IS THE "OTONABEE"

Vernon R. Craig is the Winner of Otonabee Navigation Co's Prize.

Vernon R. Craig, son of Mr. J. J. D. Craig, furniture dealer, is the winner of the prize offered by the Otonabee Navigation Company for the person selecting the name chosen by the company for the palatial new steamer which is being built by that company. The name chosen was "The Otonabee," a particularly appropriate name, inasmuch as it is euphonious, and suggests not only the water upon which it plys, but also the name of the company.

Over three hundred names were submitted, the greatest interest being taken in the competition. The name "Otonabee" was sent in four times but Mr. Craig was the first to submit it. The prize is a family season ticket good on any of the company's steamers.

Among the names which met with the most favour with the company, besides the one chosen, were Hiawatha, Kenora, Hepburn and Canada.

GALWAY MINES ARE MAKING GOOD SHOWING

Number of Men Working in Shaft 75 Feet Deep—Has Gold, Silver and Lead

Examiner Special

Mount Irwin, March 25.—The snow is fast disappearing. It is expected that the season will be a successful one for maple sugar.

The young men who have been employed in the shanties during the winter are returning home.

The Galway mmine, situated about four miles south of Mount Irwin, is said to be making a good showing, where a gang of men have been working all winter the shaft having been sunk about seventy-five feet. There are indications of gold, silver and lead.

Mrs. Maurice Murphy, who has been visiting friends in Kinmount is about to return to the West.

GEORGE STREET PEOPLE DELAYED BY C.P.R. FREIGHT

Charge Against the Company That Train Blocked the Street for More Than Five Minutes.

Mr. W. S. Dodds, local station agent for the C. P. R., appeared at the police court this morning to answer to a charge of having obstructed George street, on March 21st, with cars belonging to the company. Mr. Moore appeared for the defendant, and pleaded not guilty.

It seems that engine No. 618, with the way freight, blockaded the street for eight minutes, according to the time taken by P. C. Newhall, who was on one of the street cars which was delayed for that length of time. It occurred about 8 a.m. and many people working up town were also unable to pass. The complaint was made by Officer Newhall. Mr. Dodd was not to blame for the delay but those in charge of the freight were responsible.

The case was enlarged until to-morrow morning when those in charge of the train will be present.

INTERESTING ADDRESS TO MEN YESTERDAY

Rev. A. H. Brace Spoke at Men's Meeting at the Y. M. C. A.—Subject Was "The Race; How to Win."

There was a fair attendance at the evangelistic meeting for men at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at four o'clock. One of the most stirring and convincing addresses of the season was given by Rev. A. H. Brace who spoke on the subject "The Race—How to Win."

He spoke of the course, the runner and the conditions of success. He concluded with a most earnest appeal to unsaved men to take Jesus Christ. Messrs. Thornton and Callendar sang a duett which added much to the impressiveness of the meeting.

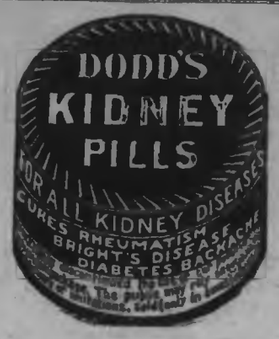
WILL BE HANDSOME OFFICE FOR NEW BANK

Great Progress Being Made With the Dominion Bank's New Premises.

The wooden walls which have for the last few weeks enclosed the Dominion Bank's new premises, at the corner of George and Simcoe street, were removed to-day, and the public was able to form some idea of the magnificence of the building.

The brick work has been removed, and the wall built up of white Ohio stone, the first used in Peterborough, and the exterior of the building will have a very handsome appearance.

The contractor is John R. Webbb, of Toronto.



House Work

Need Not Wear Her Out

The drudgery of house work seems never ending to tired-out, dispirited women who suffer from female complaints or irregularities. Inflammation and ulceration cause fearful bearing-down pains which are aggravated by much standing on the feet, and lifting necessary in house work.

But let no woman despair of relief from this torture. That famous tonic reconstructor of diseased or disordered female organism.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

has cured more than one million American women, and it will cure you. When troubled with painful irregularities, when backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring back health, strength, and happiness.

It Made Me a Well Woman

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than doctors or medicines. I suffered for four months with suppression of monthly periods. Headaches were a daily occurrence. Pains in my back and limbs made it hard for me to attend to my domestic duties.

The medicines I had taken did not help me, and I was in misery and despair until one day I read an account of your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and I thank God that I did so, for it not only regulated my monthly periods, but made me a well woman.

MADAME CAROLINE MARTINEAU, 23 La Chapelle St., Quebec, Que.

Do not let disease make headway. Write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and will contain information of great value to you. Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures Where Others Fail

You have No Reason for Not Using

Zutoo

Some people think that all headache cures are alike—that they all undermine the health, even if not perceived at the time of taking them.

Well, we'll admit that the drug cures do this, but that is no reason why you should not take Zutoo.

Zutoo is a harmless vegetable remedy. One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda that our grandmothers used to take to settle the stomach, when they had sick headache. And there is nothing better.

The principal ingredient—the one that stops the headache, is a vegetable ingredient, imported for us from Japan. It wont hurt you any more than will the soda.

There is absolutely no reason why you should not use Zutoo.

If you suffer from headache there is every reason why you should.

Taken in time, two tablets will ward off a headache. Taken later, they will stop it in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling good every time.

If you are using a drug remedy, why not discard it?

Zutoo will cure just as quickly and will save you the penalty, that all must sometime pay, who take the drugs which these cures contain.

If you will give Zutoo one trial, you will never take any other headache remedy again.

Queen Zephra
The two repeat performances of this beautiful spectacle on April 3rd and 4th, are to be given as a benefit performance for those participating in Queen Zephra. It is the intention of the Company to engage a suitable hall and tender a reception and dance to all those who assisted in making Zephra such a great success. Mr. Booth will arrange the entire programme, and will act as master of ceremonies on that occasion. The smaller children will be entertained in the afternoon, and the adults in the evening. A full rehearsal will be held on Tuesday, April 2nd, at Y. M.C.A. 1d71

New Grocery Opened
This week a full line of groceries will be added to Porter's "Delicatessain" Store, and Mr. A. W. Lockhart, late of R. Dutton's store, will have full charge of that department. It is fair to assume that Mr. Lockhart with his past experience with E. F. Mason & Co., and Mr. R. A. Dutton, will be able to satisfy his patrons in quality and price. Nothing but fresh and first-class goods will be carried in this store. Mr. Lockhart will be glad to meet all his friends in his new undertaking.

Coughed All Night, Could Get No Sleep
COLDS ON THE CHEST WOULD YIELD TO NO TREATMENT UNTIL WE USED
DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE
Overwhelming evidence from the people of Canada attests that there is no treatment so effective in the cure of bronchitis and cold on the chest as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.
This is positively proven in two ways. First, by the extraordinary increase in sales and secondly by hundreds of such letters as this which follows:—
Mr. James F. Thompson, Yonge Mills Leeds Co., Ont., writes:—"Last winter my two boys were so bad with colds on the chest that they coughed all night and we could get no sleep or rest. Several cough remedies were tried to no avail until I was told about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and this treatment soon cured them. It is invaluable as a cure for colds on the lungs and bronchitis."
Parents who make a practice of keeping Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house have at hand the most certain means of curing coughs, colds, croup and bronchitis, and positively, preventing more serious disease. It is sometimes forgotten that few ailments possess more possibilities of danger than a common cold.
Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine was especially prepared for the children by one of the most skilled and conscientious doctors that has ever practised medicine.
Experience taught Dr. Chase that some of the simple products of the vegetable kingdom possessed most extraordinary curative properties, and he succeeded in so combining these in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as to make a medicine that is at once pleasant to the taste and wonderfully effective.
Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every bottle.

MASS MEETING WAS A SUCCESS

Gathering Arranged by Brotherhood of St. Andrew Was a Large One.

MR. J. CLEAL'S ADDRESS.

The mass meeting held in the Grand opera house yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the three city Chapters of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, was attended by one of the largest crowds present at a religious service in Peterborough. The spacious auditorium was crowded to the doors, and all denominations were represented. The crowd took part in the services heartily and the meeting cannot fail to be productive of good results.

Mr. Joseph P. Cleal of Toronto, was the principal speaker and delivered a very earnest and helpful address. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, acted as chairman, while Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's, and Rev. William Major, of All Saints', also took part in the services. A large choir, composed of the members of the three local Anglican choirs, occupied seats on the stage, and lead in the singing of several familiar hymns. The service was a simple but impressive one.

After prayers had been made by Rev. Mr. Major, Rev. Canon Davidson gave a short address in which he referred to the fact that there were many who needed a helping hand and to them he gave the advice to look around them and they would find many who would be willing to aid them in their trouble. He spoke of the pleasure it afforded one to help others. If they thought that their fellow-men were unable to help them he advised them to come to the church of God. "Come to the church, people, not only to the clergy, but to the laity, those of you who need money or clothes," he said, "and we will help you."

Mr. Cleal followed with the chief address of the afternoon, which was clothed in simple, eloquent language, with an earnestness which went straight to the hearts of his hearers and a logic that appealed to their reasoning. There was nothing of a sensational nature in his statements, he appeared to persuade his audience rather than to frighten them; his address was such that it could not fail to do good to those who heard it, and in its simplicity it was easily understood by the youngest child present.

In beginning Mr. Cleal said that he wanted to ask a question which had been asked hundreds of years ago by Pontius Pilate, "What shall I do with Jesus, which is called Christ?" People might call Pontius Pilate a coward and a poltroon—but this question must be answered by them. They stand in the same position as did Pilate. They might wash their hands of the subject if they wished, but the question would have to be answered by humanity, not as humanity, but as individuals.

Too many people stood in the place of Pontius Pilate. They were not willing to answer the question, but it comes up every day and must be settled. It might be asked, Why was this so? The answer was because of the life of Jesus Christ. He is in the world to-day in the life of every man. "I saw some boys on the corner as I came down here this afternoon," said the speaker; "they were idling and loafing there, but the image of Christ is on each one of them."

The speaker remarked that the audience were patriotic Canadians, and asked them if they ever stopped to think what makes the Anglo-Saxon race the foremost people in the world, and why they lead now, when in the years gone by other nations were in the van. The answer was not the wealth of their lands, but rather their manhood. Some people said that it was because the other nations were falling away, but this was not so. Every country was better now than in days gone by. The triumph of the Anglo-Saxon race was due to its manhood, the manhood of the Lord Jesus Christ, enthused by His spirit.

"Whatever you make here in Peterborough," said Mr. Cleal, "whether it is electric supplies, machinery or what it is, make it as good as you can, put in one hundred cents on the dollar, stamp it 'Made in Peterborough,' and send it out and it will prove a great advertisement, but a million times better ones are the boys you are bringing up."

The world was calling for men in every walk of life, but they must be good men, men with a purpose. The speaker referred to the words of a boy in a boy's game, "Follow your leader or get out of the game." The speaker said that there was a sermon in that sentence. He advised his hearers to get into the game. "The man on the fence is no good," he said. He should get into the game one way or another. The man that was fighting on the wrong side had more chance than the man that was not in the fight at all. He might be beaten and then there was a chance of his getting on the right side. "The man with an earnest purpose is ten times better than the man without a purpose at all."

He advised his hearers to become good and consistent church goers. It was only a beginning but they should begin there. Everytime they walked straight from their house to church they were preaching a sermon to someone else.

People should not wait until they were old before giving themselves to God. "Don't wait until you are old and decrepit before you give in, and merely give Him the last of an ill-spent life." He would accept it in His mercy, but the speaker doubted if any of his hearers would do it if they were in His place. Jesus expected that whom He gave one talent to one man the two would return it, and the same if the were given ten talents.

Producing a counterfeit twenty-five cent piece from his pocket, the speaker said that too many people resembled that coin. They had the image and superscription of their Maker stamped on them, but they did not have the right ring.

During the service sacred solos were rendered in good voice by Miss Helen Davies and Mr Geo. Chandler. Both were heard to great advantage.

The service was one that will surely have good results and the Brotherhood of St. Andrew are to be commended upon the arrangements which were so successfully carried out.

A collection was taken up at the door to defray expenses, which were very heavy. J. J. Turner and sons very kindly gave the opera house free of charge and assumed all expenses. Thus the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, under whose auspices the meeting was held, feel very much indebted to Mr. Turner for his generosity.

IMPOSSIBLE TO STOOP OR BEND

SEVERAL DOCTORS COULD DO NO GOOD.

PAIN IN BACK AND KIDNEYS.

People often say, "How are we to know when the kidneys are out of order?"

The location of the kidneys, close as it is to the small of the back, which is not affected materially by other organs, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter.

The note of warning comes from the back. Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble. The danger lies in delay. A few doses of taken in time, often saves years of suffering, and in many cases life itself.

They stimulate the action of the kidneys, enabling them to perform their duty perfectly.

Miss S. C. Fye, Econs Secum, N.S., writes: "For the past three years I have been troubled with a very bad pain in my back and kidneys. It was so bad it was impossible for me to stoop or bend. I had several doctors attend me, but found no relief until I picked up one of your Egyptian Dream Books, and found out about your remarkable remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured two boxes and their action surprised me, for they completely cured me. I don't think they have an equal for kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.

Why Beauty Fades

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. Just as soon as the blood gets thin and watery and the nerves become exhausted beauty fades, wrinkles show themselves, the glow of health disappears and beauty curves give place to leanness and wrinkles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, is woman's greatest blessing from youth to old age. A few weeks treatment of this remedy will do wonders for any woman who is pale, thin, weak and nervous.

Rochester Car Ferry To Carry 1500 Passengers

Big Steamer Which Will Cross Lake Ontario During Entire Year—Ready for Operation by June 1st

OTHER STEAMERS CHANGED

Peterborough people who visit in Rochester will be interested in learning that the car ferry to be operated on Lake Ontario by the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg and the Grand Trunk Railways, expected to be opened April 1st, will not be opened till May, and possibly not till June. The reason is that there have been delays in completing the boat and in preparing the landing slip on the Canadian side.

As the boat will carry 1500 passengers in addition to its cargo of loaded freight cars, it is probable that changes in the operation of other passenger steamboats on the lake will be made. It is the intention to operate the ferry the year round in which event the passenger season on the lake will be open every month of the year, instead of between May and the close of September. With dutiable freight being shipped from and received at Charlotte the branch customs house there will be kept open the year round, instead of between April and December.

Brockville the Probable Objective Point In 1907

It Is Likely That the 57th Regiment Will Spend Two Days in That City This Year—A Popular Trip.

DOMINION DAY OUTING.

The probabilities are that this year the 57th Regiment's trip will be to Brockville. It is understood that the city regiment of that city have signified that they would be glad to entertain the officers and men of the 57th for a few days, and since Brockville is a city to which this regiment has never gone, it is believed that a visit there would prove interesting and pleasant. Brockville, in the summer, is one of the most interesting places in Canada to visit, affording, as it does, a trip through the Thousand Islands, which would, no doubt, be a part of the programme during the stay of the regiment in the city.

The custom in the past has been to take the trip on July 1, and it is expected that this will be adhered to this year. Dominion Day, falling on Monday, it is probable that the regiment will leave here on Saturday night, and this would give them two full days in Brockville, and would afford the men an opportunity of taking the Thousand Island trip on Sunday, which is a practice quite common among those who live along the shores of the St. Lawrence.

The matter has not been fully decided yet, but it is considered probable that it will be taken up by the officers of the regiment in a short time, and a definite conclusion arrived at. That such a trip would prove popular with the men there is little doubt, and it is considered equally certain that in the shape the regiment will be in this summer, the people of Brockville will be pleased with their visit.

DEDICATED A NEW MARBLE FONT SUNDAY

Junior Girls' Auxiliary Presented it to All Saints Church—Dedicatory Service Yesterday.

A new font presented to All Saints church by the Junior Girls' Auxiliary was dedicated yesterday by the rector, Rev. Wm. Major. The font, which is of white marble, bears the following inscription, "To the Glory of God, this font was erected and presented to All Saints' church by the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, Easter, 1907." The practical dedication, in the form of two baptisms followed the dedicatory service.

GUM BOX DISAPPEARED FROM THE STORE DOOR

Mr. Jno. Cocks, of Water Street, the Loser—No Trace of the Slot Machine.

On Friday night, between the hours of 8 and 8 o'clock, the gum box at the door of Mr. Jno. Cocks' grocery store, corner of Water and McDonel streets, mysteriously disappeared. It contained a quantity of gum and coppers and, it is supposed, was stolen by some boys. The police have been notified of the theft, but no trace of the missing property has yet been found.

Mr. Cocks always takes the box in when he closes his store for the night, but before this opportunity was afforded him on Friday night it was gone.

"PALM SUNDAY" MUSIC AT CHARLOTTE STREET

Unusually Attractive Musical Service Was Rendered by the Choir in That Church Yesterday.

Palm Sunday was characterized by special music, appropriate to the day, in the Charlotte street Methodist church yesterday. In the morning the anthem was "The Palms," by Faure, arranged for choir, solos being taken by Miss Belleghem and Mr. Jas. Browne.

At the evening service, "Jerusalem," by Parker, was the anthem, the solos in which were also taken by Miss Belleghem and Mr. Browne. After the sermon in the evening Miss Olive Howell sang "Only a Little While."

THE ANNUAL VESTRY MEETING AT ST. MARK'S

Will be Held on Wednesday, April 3rd—Other Meetings Connected With This Church.

In St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, next Sunday (Easter Sunday) the Holy Communion will be administered. The members of the church are reminded of the law of the church to communicate on Easter Day.

The annual vestry meeting of St. Mark's will be held on Wednesday, April 3, at 8 o'clock. Matters of great importance will be discussed, such as the engaging of a curate, therefore all members, both men and women, are requested to be present.

OTONABEE RIVER IS NOW RISING RAPIDLY

Stop Logs at Locks Bridge Removed—Lake Channel Almost Open.

The spirit of spring seems to be permeating the Otonabee River and its numerous stributaries by the way the water is moving these days. Mr. Wm. Collins, lock-master at the locks bridge, this morning found it expedient to remove a number of stop logs there to give the water more freedom. Within the last couple of days the water in the Otonabee has risen considerably and necessitated this action.

The steamboat channel through Little Lake is now almost completely opened. A small bridge of ice at the cemetery point, about 100 yards in length, still blocks the channel, but otherwise it is open to the bridge and some distance below.

REMAINS OF LATE MRS. CONNORS LAID IN THE GRAVE

Funeral Largely Attended by Friends and Acquaintances of the Family

The funeral of the late Mrs. Martin Connors was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and was attended by a large number of the friends of the deceased. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, where the last rites of the church were celebrated. The remains were then taken to the Roman Catholic Cemetery, where Rev. Father Gairin officiated.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Wm. Rodkins, Harry Phelan, Rich. Sheehy, Frank Farrin, P. Grady and John Carter.

The floral offerings were beautiful and showed to some extent the esteem in which the deceased was held by those who were acquainted with her.

Don't forget The Charlotte St. Methodist Church Ladies Aid Society's Annual Bazaar and Entertainment, to be held on Easter Thursday, April 4th.

MANY LEAVING FOR THE WEST TO-MORRRW

LAKEFIELD AFTER THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY

Propose to Have That Village Connected With Peterborough.

A prominent Lakefield resident in the city to-day intimated to an Examiner representative that the village to the north would in a very short time be connected with Peterborough by street railway. If a Peterborough company did not take the matter up, he stated that Lakefield would, as they were determined up there to have an electric railway and to have one in the near future.

This is a question which has been under consideration for some time, but nothing definite has yet been done. In the event of an electric railway running from Peterborough to Lakefield, however, there is every possibility that it will be extended to the village of Young's Point to connect with Stony Lake steamers. Those who have purchased lots along the shore of Clear Lake in the vicinity of Sandy Point hope that the railway will extend along a line to the rear of these, to the new park which is proposed.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"His Wife's Family," an uproariously funny farce comedy, with musical interruptions, was the attraction at the Grand on Saturday, and was presented to two large houses, who were thoroughly satisfied with the production. The plot was a decidedly funny one, a "baby" being mixed up with a "piano," with a series of amusing results. A number of pleasing musical and vaudeville numbers were introduced, which greatly pleased the audience. John McDowell in the chief comedy role was irresistibly funny, and the other members of the cast were excellent. Some of the song hits were "So Long Mary," and "Maybe you Will.

ALLEN DOONE IN "KERRY GOW"

"Kerry oGw," famous for its blacksmith shop and carrier pigeons, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Friday, March 29, matinee and night. It will be presented here by Allen Doone and the Joseph Murphy Company, and a special production, including two race horses. There is not a play on the road that has enjoyed as much general prosperity as has "Kerry Gow." For over thirty years Joseph Murphy has played it in every part of the United States and Canada. He retired two seasons ago probably with more money at his command than any actor now living, and, in turning the play over to Mr. Doone, he has bestowed upon this young man not only an opportunity to become famous, but to acquire wealth as well, for the play, since Mr. Murphy's retirement, continues as in days of old, and there is little question to doubt but what it will play to a full house when here.

KENNEDY'S SPECIAL EASTER DISPLAY

Preparations for Supplying Finest Meats for Easter—Special Tea Demonstration.

Attention is directed to the extra Easter announcement of Kennedy's special meat display. Housekeepers will be particularly interested in this splendid exhibit of prime meats and reliable provisions, which is slated considerably earlier this year than usual, viz. — Wednesday and Thursday, March 27 and 28. Preparations have been going on for some weeks to provide a bill-of-fare for the citizens of Peterborough, which, it is claimed, will be unexcelled anywhere in the Province. The selections of well-favoured cattle, specially picked, fed and nourished for Easter, will, of course, be the brand to be seen on the hooks at Kennedy's. Selected poultry, fancy cooked meats, reliable canned goods, fruits, relishes and vegetables, will add spice and variety to the meat display. Another attraction during these two days will be an interesting tea demonstration, to be given in the store in the afternoons, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Hooper. Kennedy's special blends of teas have already had a remarkable sale, and this event is to give ladies who have not yet sampled its refreshing qualities, a practical demonstration of its superiority.

BUILDING BY-LAW ONCE AGAIN

Will be Taken Up by the Property Committee at Meeting To-night.

The Property Committee will meet to-night to re-consider the building permit bylaw which was referred back to the Council when it came up before the Committee of the Whole Council. There are objections to the bylaw as proposed by the Property Committee on the ground that it does not go far enough. The original proposal was to divide the city into three zones, the centre one to be composed of the present fire limits. In each of the zones the building conditions would be different. In the first zone the walls would have to be of a certain condition of brick, in the second nine inch brick walls and the best quality of veneer would be used and in the third it might be permitted to build the ordinary veneer clap board or rough-cast house.

The objection made to the bylaw proposed by the Property Committee is that it would not prevent irregularity in building. A shack might be erected along side a valuable house with the possibility of damaging its value.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Property Committee said to-day that he would be opposed to making the terms of the bylaw any wider on the ground that it would be decidedly unfair from the standpoint of the poor man who might be compelled by such legislation to put up a better class of house than he could possibly afford. The matter will be taken up by the committee at to-night's meeting but what action will be taken is hard to say just now. Meanwhile the result will be awaited with interest.

MRS. OTTO, MOTHER OF MRS. GLIDDON, DEAD

Passed Away in Toronto on Saturday Evening—Full Details Not Received

News of the death of Mrs. Otto, mother of Mrs. R. Gliddon, Peterborough, was received in the city on Saturday night from Toronto. The death occurred sometime on Saturday evening, but full particulars have not been heard here. Mrs. Gliddon left on Friday night for Toronto and was at the bedside of her mother when she passed away. Mr. Gliddon went to Toronto this morning to atttend the funeral.

CATHOLIC ORDER OF FORESTERS AT CHURCH

Attended St. Peter's Cathedral in a Body Yesterday at Early Mass—Two Hundred Strong.

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning the Catholic Order of Foresters received Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass. Two hundred of the members attended, and it was an imposing sight as they took their places in the body of the church, which had been set apart for them. They assembled in their hall on Hunter street and marched to the church, returning at the close of the service.

Mr. Thos. Lane acted as marshal, assisted by Messrs. Jos. Kelly and Con. Gainey.

CONSUMPTION

Mainly Caused By Chronic Colds and Hanging-on Coughs.

McDermid and Jury, our well-known druggists have given a good deal of time to the study of consumption and find that comparatively few cases are hereditary.

Mostly all are caused by neglected coughs and colds which gradually weaken the whole pulmonary system, and before people realize it, there is a diseased spot in one lung; spitting blood soon follows and eventually a collapse.

Such an unnecessary end, such a pity, for all could have been so different. We know of hundreds of cases where our wonderful cod liver preparation, Vinol, has saved a young and valuable life, which without it, would have been sacrificed. We have letters from people who were given up to die and who positively state that Vinol, and Vinol alone, saved their lives, when all else had failed to help them.

Vinol is able to cure hanging on colds and stubborn coughs, because it is the most perfect preparation of cod liver oil ever compounded; it contains no oil or grease to upset the delicate stomach, yet it does contain every one of the fifty odd medicinal curative elements, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, and we freely and publicly state that we will supply all the Vinol we think necessary to cure any case of chronic coughs, colds, hanging on colds or weak and debilitated conditions of Peterborough people, and pay for the medicine ourselves if it fails to give satisfactory results.

How can we express our faith in Vinol more emphatically? McDermid & Jury, Druggists. Vinol is also sold at the Market Drug Store, The Ormond and Walsh old stand.

YOUNG'S POINT BRIDGE ALMOST INSTALLED

Will be Put Into Commission in a Short Time—Situation Much Improved.

The work of installation of the new steel bridge over the lock at Young's Point, is almost at an end, and by the end of the week the bridge will probably be put into commission. The bridge is installed a short distance above the old one, so that steamboats may lie in the lock while the bridge is closed. This will prevent the long delays which vehicle owners were subjected to in the past and will remove what they considered a nuisance.

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONY

The Tate Optical Co., Peterborough:

DEAR SIRS—During the last three or four years (prior to May last) my eyesight had failed to such an extent that I was unable to read or see anything at close range and could get no Glasses that would help me. I tried two different Opticians in Toronto and was told by both that they could do nothing for me, and that my sight would never be better. A statement of my case was sent to Montreal by a Hastings optician and several pairs of Glasses sent me, but with the same result my vision could not be improved. Last May, while looking at a Pair of Glasses you made for Mr. John Fits. Keene, and talking with him he advised me to consult your Mr. Babcock, and I am pleased to say that the Pair of Glasses he made for me have given me entire satisfaction and I can do now what I have not done for years past—read any ordinary print and see distinctly at close range. I feel very grateful, not only for the interest you have taken in my case, but particularly so for the blessing of good eyesight. Thanks to your knowledge and skill,

Yours truly.

OVER-HEATED PIPES CAUSE FIRE

S. J. Davis' House in Havelock Damaged by Fire—Annual Meeting of Electric Light Company Shareholders.

OTHER HAVELOCK NEWS.

Examiner Special.

Havelock, March 25. — The "Daughters of the King," met at Miss Lancaster's on Tuesday night, only three members being present. The minutes were read and approved. "Lenten subject" was then taken up, papers being read by Misses Lancaster, Heashall and Bryans. The meeting closed with prayer.

Lenten service was held in St. John's church Thursday night. Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's, Peterborough, addressed the people.

The annual meeting of the Havelock Electric Light and Power Co., was held on Monday night in the council chamber. The report was read to the shareholders, and the officers of last year were all re-elected for another year. The following are the officers:

Pres.—Wm. Fairman.
Manager—Dr. Holdcroft.
Secretary—A. Rose.
Directors—George Young and W. Webb.

The company's receipts last year were in excess of any previous year, and the prospects for the coming year appear even brighter.

It is reported that the C. P. R. intend running an extra train on the Havelock-Toronto division, commencing on May 1st. The train will leave Havelock early in the afternoon, and returning the following day about 11 a.m. This will no doubt prove a great convenience to Havelock people because it will enable those going to Peterborough or Toronto to reach those cities early in the afternoon and thus do their business before the stores and offices close.

Miss Black of the school staff has sent in her resignation to the school board to take effect at Easter. It is reported that other changes may also be looked for before the Easter holidays.

Dr. Holdcroft had a very narrow escape from death recently. On Monday while he was crossing Belmont Lake with a horse and cutter the ice gave way and all went into the icy water. After a time of great exertion the doctor managed to get out on some hard ice, and also succeeded in saving the horse.

A fire caused by over-heated pipes broke out in Mr. S. J. Davis' house at the west end of the town on Wednesday morning. Before the flames could be extinguished damage was done to the amount of about $50.00. It is said that the insurance will cover the loss.

The spring display of millinery will take place this week — Miss Timmerman's on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 26th and 27th, and Miss McWilliams on Wednesday and Thursday, 27th and 28th. A most cordial invitation is extended to all to come and view the exhibits of the lastest styles in headgear.

Mr. T. A. Symington, a student of Knox college, Toronto, has been appointed as assistant to Rev. A. E. Camp, of town, for the summer season.

A moving picture show, illustrating "Peck's Bad Boy," and other comic views, will be held in the opera house on Tuesday night.

Mrs. (Dr.) Holdcroft's illness has become so serious that it was thought best to remove her to the hospital in Toronto, to which place she was taken last week.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. Sam Leeson of Old Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. McGuire of Lanark, are the guests of their son, Mr. A. E. McGuire of town.

Miss Mary Dineen spent a few days in Peterborough last week.

Miss Mary McNicholl of Campbellford, is spending a few days with her cousin, Miss Maye McNicholl of town.

Mr. Elmore Haig, has been engaged on the staff of McMaster & Oliver.

Mr. Derme of Prince Edward, formerly of town, spent Tuesday and Wednesday in town shaking the hand of his old friends.

Mr. Charles Devlin, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. S. O'Hara for the past week, returned to her home in Haileybury last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Weymark, and daughter, returned from spending a few days at the latter's sister, Mrs. Worboy, Peterborough.

Miss Jackson of Cordova, is in the town, the guest of Mrs. Matt. Riley.

Mr. James E. Fowler of town, was in Toronto on business on Thursday.

Miss Ada Holcombe spent Sunday with friends in Norwood.

Mr. Gordon McIntosh was tendered a farewell by the members of the Presbyterian choir, of which he was a member, on Monday night, at Mrs. Jas. Martin's, before leaving for Kenora. In a few well chosen words they expressed their regret at his departure and to show their appreciation of his services in the choir, during his stay in our little town, presented him with a pair of beautiful cuff buttons. Gordon was completely taken by surprise but in a few well chosen words he thanked one and all. Luncheon was then served by "Mine Hostess" Mrs. Martin, after which Mr. McIntosh bade his choir friends a farewell.

GREAT INTEREST IN THE BOUTS

Barry and Brown are Both Confident of Winning Out on Wednesday Night.

THE BIG WRESTLING BOUT.

Will Pete Barry be able to put away Brown, the ex-English champion, now residing in Lindsay? That is the question that is exciting Peterborough's sporting fraternity just now. The two will come together at the big smoker under the direction of Billie Breen, at the old opera house on Wednesday night. The Broncho as the erstwhile English boxer is known, is confident of winning out without trouble, but local people who have seen Barry in action are equal certain that the Toronto boy will win. At any rate the bout which will go eight rounds should be a dandy.

Bill Wallace of Peterborough and Jack Brown, of Lindsay, will meet in a six round go. Brown is a brother of the Broncho and his sparring partner, and is said to be as fast and clever as his brother. The Peterborough youngster has come on fast lately and will give Brown a hard battle.

Tom Daly of Toronto, always a favourite here will be seen in a four round bout with Fred Green, a local dark horse, who will prove a surprise to the talent.

Great interest is being taken in the wrestling match between Eugene Hurtubise, Peterborough's big wrestler, and Jack Thompson, the well known Hamilton mat artist. Both men are in good shape and confident of winning.

Mike O'Toole and Harvey Stanbon will also meet in a wrestling bout at 118 pounds and as both boys are clever and strong a lively contest should follow.

Chris Graham as been agreed upon by all parties as referee of both wrestling and boxing matches.

Joe Guerin, Billie Breen and Geo. Lynch will all take part in the musical portion of the programme. The tickets are going fast and those who want to get near the ring side should look after their tickets at once.

MANY AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION

Those Which Will be Considered at the Annual Meeting of the C. L. A. on Good Friday.

At the annual meeting of the C. L.A., which will be held on Good Friday in Toronto, a number of proposed amendments to the constitution will be considered, among them being the following:

O. S. Eby, Hespeler—To provide for residence clause in intermediate series.

Harry O'Loughlin, St. Catharines—To collect 10 per cent. of gross gate receipts in all tie and protested games played over.

Harry O'Loughlin, St. Catharines—In case there is no competition in any of the series, the holders of the championship trophies may hold them for the following year by giving bonds and producing them at the annual meeting.

Harry O'Loughlin, St. Catharines—To amend rule 5, so that field captains may act.

Harry O'Loughlin, St. Catharines—To provide a large gong, to be placed under control of the referee's timekeeper, in senior championship games.

C. A. Irvine, Brampton—To raise the age limit in junior series from 20 to 22 years.

C. A. Irvine, Brampton—In case a Toronto team is playing off, no Toronto grounds should be considered neutral, and no game should be played there, unless the opposing team consents.

J. F. Timmons, St. Catharines—That winners of the intermediate series be not entitled to senior standing.

J. F. Timmons, St. Catharines—That the senior committee of management, already in existence, be given power to govern its own affairs.

J. F. Timmons, St. Catharines—That the fee of $50 in connection with the senior series be abolished.

President Miller proposes to abolish the privilege accorded to the winner of the Toronto Lacrosse League of being recognized as a district winner in the C.L.A.

F. C. Waghorne—To make the junior age limit 21.

BASKETBALL GAMES FOR WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Two More of the Spring League Games Will be Played.

On Wednesday night two more basketball games of the newly formed series will be run off at the Y.M.C.A. These contests are attracting considerable attention from basketball lovers and speculation is rife as to which of the four teams will come out on top. The first of the two games will be played at 8 o'clock between the teams captained by Rae Best and Richardson. At 9 o'clock Dobbin's five will meet Laing's quintette. In these teams are some of the best basketball players of the city and as they are evenly matched a high class of ball is predicted.

FOOTBALL CITY LEAGUE IS PROPOSED

More Players Needed to Supplement Intermediate and Senior Ranks.

A movement is on foot to organize an Association Football City League, in Peterborough. The question is being considered by a number of the prominent lovers of the game and from the present prospects either a City League or School League will be formed. The suggestion was made at the Midland League annual meeting on Saturday by Mr. T. J. Wallace and was favourably received. Mr. J. E. Sullivan and Mr. C. E. Sisson have also talked the matter over and it is probable something will be done in this respect.

The benefits of a City League are easily seen. Players are needed each year to fill the ranks of the "has beens" or those who retire from the game or leave the city. This has been found rather difficult in the past, and on many occasions satisfactory players could not be found. Unlike many other sports, to be a successful football player one must begin early in life. The most finished are those who learned how to kick the pigskin at the early age of 8 or 10 years.

It is quite possible that a school league will be formed, embracing teams from the various public and separate schools in the city. Four or five juvenile teams would be available and some interesting games during the coming summer could be played. The idea is an excellent one and if put into practise will no doubt be successful.

BROKEN SLEEP
MORNING TIREDNESS

Unable to sleep indicates starved nerves and weak blood. You'll never be well till the system is better nourished—that's sure.

What you need is a nutritive tonic like FERROZONE, which vitalizes and enriches the blood, fortifies the nerves, instills new energy into worn-out organs. At once you feel better. Your spirits improve, and day by day you gain in strength and power.

FERROZONE

ALWAYS CURES.

No remedy removes that gone, exhausted feeling like FERROZONE. In every case it completely cures the cause of sleeplessness and restores the sufferer to robust health in a short time.

Use FERROZONE and your sleep will be as restful and sound as an infant's. In the morning you'll feel capable and ready for the day's toil. Don't lose the sound, vigorous health FERROZONE is sure to bring you. Get FERROZONE to-day and beware of substitutes.

Ferrozone is sold only in 50c boxes, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FOR SEASON

Important Meeting of Golf and Country Club on Saturday—Good Season is Anticipated.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club held on Saturday night, the committees for the year were appointed and arrangements for the season were made. It was announced that Mr. William Bell, the professional engaged by the club last season, would be here again this season, commencing his duties on April 1st, when he will start work on the preparation of the grounds. The coming season promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the club and a large increase in membership is looked for.

The committees appointed at the meeting on Saturday night held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, are as follows:

House. — Mr. Matthews, chairman; Mrs. Sherwood, Mrs. Ritchie.

Greens. — Mr. Neill, chairman; Mr. Ritchie, Mr. F. Merritt.

Tennis and Boating. — Mr. Bradburn, chairman; Mr. Kerr, Mr. Munro, Mr. Cluxton, Mr. Goodwill.

Handicapping. — Mr. A. H. Stratton, captain; Messrs. S. Ray and C. Hill.

Ladies' Captain. — Mrs. R. R. Hall.

Membership. — Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. Matthews, Miss Halliday; and Messrs. P. Campbell, Munro, Saunders.

The executive committee for the year is composed of the following: Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, R. Neill, T. F. Matthews, P. Campbell, W. H. Bradburn.

The secretary is Mr. W. R. Morris.

BASEBALL

The annual meeting of the Midland Baseball League will be held on Good Friday and as yet nothing has been done in reference to re-organizing the local Club. There is plenty of material in the city for a good team and steps should be taken at once to get the club under way at once if anything is to be done this season in the baseball line at all. Basebal has always been popular here and a winning team would be a paying proposition.

LACROSSE

To-night, a meeting will be held in the Oriental Hotel for the reorganization of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club and for considering the advisability of placing a team in the junior series of the C.L.A. again this year. The team last year made a good showing, and it is considered probable that this year will again see a junior team representing this city.

BOWLING

The bowling teams preparing for the tournament in Toronto from April 1 to 6 are rounding into good shape. Mr. Clain Gutterson, of the C. G. E., on Saturday bowled 243 in one game, which is considered very creditable. He now holds the record for the local Water street bowling alley.

GOOD CROWDS AT PRAK STREET CHURCH

Evidences of the Recent Revival Were Apparent—The Week's Programme.

The large and interested congregation on Sunday night at the Park Street Baptist Church bore evident marks of the two weeks' revival. The pastor preached from, "Come, thou and all thy house, into the ark"; Genesis 7, 1.

Committees were formed for the examination of candidates for baptism.

The B.Y.P.U. will meet to-night, and an address will be delivered by Mr. P. W. Doone, of England.

On Tuesday afternoon the Ladies' Aid meets at the residence of Mrs. Deacon Hunt, Wescott street.

On Wednesday, public service will be held in the church, the pastor presiding. It will take the form of praise and thanksgiving, in which the young converts will take part.

A song service and baptismal service will be held on Sunday next.

HEAD STRUCK AGAINST THE CEILING

Otonabee Farmer Experiences Difficulty in Getting Load of Hay Through Driveway.

Some trouble was experienced this morning by Mr. Shaw, of Otonabee, in getting a load of hay through the drive way at the western side of the American Hotel on Hunter street. The horses managed to advance about a quarter of the length of the driveway when the load caught against the sides and brought everything to a standstill.

The front end of the wagon rack tipped up, knocking the driver's head against the hard ceiling. He was somewhat stunned for a moment, or two, but soon recovered. The end of the binding pole also tipped up against the ceiling and assisted in holding the hay fast.

After much manoeuvring accompanied by "sound" advice from a dozen or more bystanders the load in part, was pulled through. The remainder was carried in with forks.

FIVE HOURS PREPARING FOR A PICTURE

City Photographer Has Unique Experience With Rural Subjects.

A gentleman, his wife and family, from the rural districts, dropped into the city the other day to have their photographs taken. They wanted a family group that could be placed on the mantel shelf of the old homestead, upon which future generations might refer with pride. The parents were, therefore, more than usually particular about the poses of their offspring—and well they might be—for upon this depended the success of a picture upon which hundreds of critical eyes would gaze.

The family arrived at a Hunter street photo gallery at exactly 20 minutes to one. After a most careful consideration of the adjustment of clothing, they stepped before the canvas at half past three.

Here other difficulties were experienced, and, after one or two changes of position, the photographer squeezed the rubber at just 10 minutes after five o'clock. Even then they were not satisfied. They had spent almost five hours in preparation, which the work of a second undone, and they left for home disgusted with the "picture man," because they couldn't take their photos with them.

For a life-boat for service on the south coast of England, $5,000 has been given anonymously by a Liverpool lady.

Wednesday and Thursday March 27th and 28th.

We have made SPECIAL preparations this year for OUR DISPLAY of EASTER MEATS, having secured the CHOICEST STEERS and HEIFERS from some of the best farmers in this district, besides we have secured a shipment of Choice Cattle from Western Ontario.

We have also arranged for the BEST VEAL CALVES and SPRING LAMBS that money can buy.

In our PROVISION DEPARTMENT SPECIAL PREPARATIONS have also been made, and in connection with this year's Display we wish to draw Special attentions to the SUPERIOR QUALITY of KENNEDY'S TEA.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. Thos. Hooper to serve Tea to the Ladies each afternoon from 3 to 6, and Thursday Night from 8 to 10.

INVITATION TO TEA DEMONSTRATION

Dear Madam:

We cordially invite you to attend a Demonstration of Kennedy's Teas, to be given in our store on the afternoons of Wednesday and Thursday, March 27th and 28th.

Tea and light refreshment will be served from 3 to 6, each day and Thursday evening from 8 to 10, under direction of Mr. Thomas Hooper.

We will esteem it a favor, if you, accompanied by friends, can make it convenient to attend.

OMEMEE MAN WHO WAS IMPOSED ON

Gave Money to Two Women Who Were "Marked"—was Relieved of 75 Cents And is a Wiser Man.

The Omemee Mirror last week said:—Two shabbily dressed women, one blind, the other lame, were asking for "alms" on the streets of Omemee one day last week. They were quite successful in their quest, receiving 50c. from one, 25c. from another. One gentleman, whose charitableness is well known, gave 50c. to them, and kindly assisted them down his steps. Joe has certainly a bigger heart than most men, and of course his reward was great when he found to his chagrin, that he had been imposed on by "marked" women; however, Joe never yet has been guilty of letting anyone in need go from his door empty handed.

PETERBORO' RADIATOR WORKS TO BE COMPLETED

Peterborough Company's Factory in Hastings Will be Completed as Soon as Possible

A gentleman from Hastings, who was in the city on Saturday, made a few references to the Peterborough Radiator Company, which last fall decided to locate in the village on the Trent. The building was commenced last year, but the winter season prevented its completion. Last week however the work was commenced and will be pushed on as rapidly as possible. The people of Hastings are looking forward to its early completion. It will rank with their other mercantile houses and will be a decided addition to the manufacturing prospects of the village.

THE MICROSCOPE

Proves That Parasites Cause hair Loss.

Nine-tenths of the diseases of the scalp and hair are caused by parasitic germs. The importance of this discovery by Prof. Unna, of the Charity Hospital, Hamburg, Germany, can not be over-estimated. It explains why ordinary hair preparations, even of the most expensive character, fail to cure dandruff; because they do not and they cannot kill the dandruff germ. The only hair preparation in the world that positively destroys the dandruff parasites that burrow up the scalp into scales called scurf or dandruff, is Newbro's Herpicide. In addition to its destroying the dandruff germ, Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

HAS POOR OPINION OF US CANADIANS

Lakefield Man Says We Have No More Idea of Politeness Than South Sea Islanders

The Globe on Saturday, published the following letter from an English resident of Lakefield, which explains itself:

To the Editor of the Globe: Your request for an idea of an Englishman's feelings towards Canadian manners and customs, prompts me to say that in my opinion the average man or woman in Ontario has no idea of politeness. They are not in it with South Sea Islanders.

Arthur Bants, late Tottenham Ct. Road, England.

WILL TREAT THE CITY'S DELEGATES WELL

Brantford City Council Will do Their Best in Return for Treatment Accorded Them Here.

The Brantford Expositor of Saturday said: A delegation from the Peterborough City Council will shortly visit this city with a view to investigating Brantford's method for the collection of garbage and other matters pertaining to the welfare of the city. At the council meeting last night Mayor Bowlby stated that the representatives ought to be well looked after in view of the courteous treatment that had been accorded Brantford's representatives to that city last year.

CAVENDISH COMPANY HAD A GOOD SEASON

More Than Twenty Million Feet of Timber Cut in the Woods During This Winter for the Company.

Mr. W. Moore, of Bobcaygeon, scaler for the Cavendish Lumber Company, was in the city on Saturday and reports that the winter's operations of this company in the woods are completed, and the total cut will exceedt wenty million feet of lumber, which, as soon as the spring opens will be driven to the mills. Five camps were working for this company during the past winter, and the favourable weather conditions have been conducive to expeditious and satisfactory work. The last of the timber was hauled to the water's edge on Tuesday, and if the weather is favourable the drives will start in a short time.

BIBLE CLUB SPENT A SOCIAL EVENING

Interesting Programme Was Given at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday Night—An Enterprising Club.

The Saturday Bible Club held a very enjoyable hour of good fellowship after the lesson on Saturday evening. It was the first social of the season under the auspices of the up-to-date Bible Club.

Mr. Berry presided at the piano and gave several excellent selections, besides playing accompaniments for those who sang.

Messrs. Lane, Seddon, MacLaren and W. Coleman rendered well selected songs which were heartily applauded. Mr. A. Airries recited and Mr. Williamson read an account of "How the Wages Spent Labour Day." All the numbers were much enjoyed.

Later refreshments were served, the evening being brought to a close with God Save the King.

The officers of the Bible Club are President, W. Shiner; Secretary, Wm. MacLaren; Leader of study, Mr. J. O. Snook. The Club has an enrol of 35.

PASTOR'S CALL WILL BE DEALT WITH

At Regular Meeting of Peterborough Presbytery to be Held in St. Andrew's Church To-morrow

To-morrow morning the regular meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery will be held in St. Andrew's church, in this city. It is expected that a number of important matters will be considered by this body at this session. One of them will be the call of Rev. H. J. Keith to the pastorate of Knox church. It is expected that the call will be approved by Presbytery, and that in a short time Mr. Keith will be inducted as pastor of this church.

MR. ENGLE LEAVES NEXT MONTH FOR EDMONTON

Has Secured Position as Wine Clerk in Large Hotel There.

Mr. Percy Engle, wine clerk at the National Hotel, leaves about the 15th of April for Edmonton, Alt., where he has secured a similar position. He He leaves the National at the end of the week but before going west, accompanied by his wife, he will visit friends at Marmora and Campbellford.

Mr. Engle has been in Peterborough for four years. For two years he held the position of wine clerk at the Snowden House, after which he became a clerk in the office at the National, where he has also spent about two years. His many friends in the city will wish him every success in his new field of labour.

NEW MANAGER FOR GROCERY DEPARTMENT

Mr. T. Lancaster, of Hastings, Enters Employ of Mr. R. A. Dutton to Take Charge of Grocery Department.

Mr. T. Lancaster, of Hastings has been engaged by Mr. R. A. Dutton to take charge of the grocery department of his business in place of A. W. Lockhart, the late manager who has entered into business on his own account. Mr. Dutton is, indeed, fortunate in securing the services of so experienced and efficient a manager. Mr. Lancaster's reliability, qualifications and experience, especially fitting for the discharge of his new duties are shown by the fact that he has been engaged in a responsible capacity with Mr. J J English, merchant, Hastings, for an unbroken period of sixteen years. Mr. Thomas Walmsley, city, has been added to the grocery department staff of Mr. Dutton's business.

TO BE DYSPEPTIC IS TO BE MISERABLE

Hopeless, Confused and Depressed in Mind. Forgetful, Irresolute, Drowsy, Languid and Useless.

This disease assumes so many forms that there is scarcely a complaint which it may not resemble in one way or another. Among the most prominent symptoms are constipation, sour stomach, variable appetite, heartburn, water-brash, gas in the stomach and bowels, distress after eating, etc.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

is a positive cure for dyspepsia, and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels or blood. It stimulates secretion of the saliva and gastric juices to facilitate digestion, removes acidity, purifies the blood and tones the entire system to full health and vigor.

Mrs. M. A. McNeil, Brook Village, N.S., writes: "I suffered from dyspepsia, loss of appetite and bad blood. I tried everything I could get but to no purpose; then finally started to use Burdock Blood Bitters. From the first day I felt the good effects of the medicine. I can eat anything now without any ill after effects and am strong and well again."

Price $1.00 per bottle or 6 bottles for $5.00.

Big Demand For Farm Help In This District

Mr. George H. Howson Reports Applications for About Fifty Men—Many Enquiries, Too, for Domestic Help.

MANY GOOD OPENINGS HERE

There is, according to Mr. Geo. H. Howson, the Government Immigration Agent for this district, a good demand for farm help, and he has at present on file applications for well on to fifty men for this class of work. The first parties are now leaving England, and Mr. Howson expects the first consignment of men in a few days. There is, however, a much greater demand than there is supply, and farmers are offering good wages for good men. From $15 to $25 a month with board, of course, are the ruling wages, with the majority nearer the latter figure.

From the prospects at the present time there will be a greater demand for farm help summer than ever before. The demand for men in the west has taken a great many of those who formerly worked on the farms of Ontario, and the result is a great shortage in the older provinces. The conditions here are very similar to those in England, and those coming from the Old Country will find Ontario much more to their liking than the comparatively unsettled conditions in the west.

From fifty to one hundred men could be placed in this district this season on farms, and the majority of them at good wages. There is also a big demand for domestics in the city, and, while so far Mr. Howson has not received word of any girls having been sent here, he is hoping that in a short time they will be coming. A large number of good domestics could be placed here at once, if they were available.

While Mr. Howson's instructions from the Government are relating only to farm help and domestics he has received applications from several employers of tradesmen in the city and should any of them arrive there he will place them with those making application. He has been asked by Curtis Brothers for brick-makers and other tradesmen, including bakers, etc., have been asked for, and it is probable that some of the applications will be filled.

The Dominion Government has about 1,200 agents in the British Isles, and these agents have been furnished with the names of the agents in Canada, and when an immigrant buys a ticket for a place in Canada in which there is an agent, the latter is notified, and is on the look out for him, and sees that he is placed to advantage.

THE WEEK'S SERVICES IN ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Men's Guild Will Meet To-night—Other Announcements for This Week in This Church.

The following meetings and services will take place at St. Luke's during this week:

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew will meet on Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the infant class.

The monthly meeting of the W. A. will be held on Thursday at 2.30 p.m.

The weekly Lenten services will be held on Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

On Good Friday morning prayer will be said at 10 a.m. From 12—3 the "Three Hours Suffering of our Redeemer upon the Cross" will be commemorated, and addresses on the "Seven Words from the Cross" will be given by the rector. The collection on Good Friday is for the evangelization of the Jews. Those who do not wish to remain in the church for the "Three Hours" may come and go while the hymns are being sung.

There will be no Mission Band meeting on Friday.

The Holy Sacrament of Baptism will be observed on Easter Eve and Easter morning at 10 o'clock.

The rector asked for contributions of flowers for the decoration of the church.

Sunday night Mr. J. P. Cleal, manager of the National Cash Register Co., gave a soul-stirring address at St. Luke's on "Daniel." A large congregation was present. Miss Lilian Moore gave a most excellent rendition of "The Palms."

The chancel of St. Luke's church was decorated with palms, emblematic of the significance of the day.

CONDEMNED DRAMA ON GOOD FRIDAY

"Truth" Writes Letter in Which He Criticises Action of Local Clergy and Opera House Management.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—On Sunday, March 24, a mass meeting was held in the Grand Opera House under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew for the purpose of bringing our blessed Lord to the notice of those who otherwise do not attend and regular place of worship. A very worthy idea, for which the management are being patted on the back by our local clergy, and are told how good and generous they are. One naturally asks, "What price the clergy are paying for this opportunity of spreading the gospel." Are our clergy so degenerate, or are they so cowardly, that they dare not condemn what, to every Christian, is open sacrilege, that on the anniversary of our blessed Lord's death, the day that, above all others, should be kept sacred, this same opera house should be used for a play of the lowest type. I think that every true Christian will join with me in saying that Good Friday should be kept more sacred than even Sunday, and should do all in their power to condemn such blasphemy as holding public theatricals for gain on that day.

Thanking you for inserting this in your valuable paper, I remain,

"TRUTH."

OBITUARY

WILLIAM O'BRIEN

There passed away, at the age of 62 years, in Douro, yesterday afternoon, William O'Brien, one of the most respected farmers of that community. His death occurred from cancer in the mouth, with which disease he had been afflicted for about a year. The deceased was clerk of the township for 31 years until a year and a half ago, and was considered by all who knew him, an estimable man of unusual intelligence and weight of character. He was also at one time a county auditor.

Besides a widow, he leaves to mourn his loss five sons and daughters, two by his first wife, and three by his third. By his first wife are, Mrs. P. G. Towns, Douro, and Mr. Charles Edward O'Brien, British Columbia, and by his third are Minnie and William, at home, and Katie, who attends the Collegiate Institute in Peterborough.

SERVICES FOR HOLY WEEK AT THE CATHEDRAL

Fitting Close to the Holy Season of Lent —Services From Thursday to Easter Sunday.

This is Holy Week, and as such will be appropriately celebrated at the Cathedral. The services will be as follows:

THURSDAY—A holy day; at 8 a.m. a Pontifical High Mass, celebrated by His Lordship the Bishop. During the mass the holy oils, which are used during the year, will be blessed. At the conclusion, the blessed sacrament will be carried in procession to the vestry, where a repository will be magnificently decorated with flowers. It will remain here until Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

Thursday evening, prayer will be said in the vestry, beginning at 7 o'clock.

FRIDAY—At 9 a.m. the mass of the pre-sanctified will be sung. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, "The Way of the Cross." Service will begin in the evening at 7.30, at which Rev. Father Galvin will deliver a sermon on "The Passion."

SATURDAY—At 7 a.m., the baptismal water will be blessed, also the paschal candles. Following this a high mass will be commenced about 8 o'clock.

EASTER SUNDAY — Masses will be as usual at 8, 9.15 and 10.30 a.m. The last mass will be a Pontifical High Mass celebrated by the Bishop, at which the Papal Benediction will be given. Rev. Father McColl will preach a sermon on the "Passion." At 7.30 in the evening Pontifical Vespers will be sung by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor.

LATEST TICKS FRESH FROM THE WIRES

The Italian police have been told that assassins, chosen by lot to kill the King of Italy, have left the United States, and will land at Naples.

The body of Arthur Herbert, the King's messenger, who was one of the victims of the steamer Berlin, which was wrecked at the Hook of Holland, has been recovered.

M. Osiris, France's richest man, who died recently, left vast sums to charity and art projects. One of the legacies is for a statue of William Tell, to be erected in Lucerne.

At Paris, Mme. Blancod Roanne, while caressing her pet parrot, had one of her fingers bitten by the bird. Blood poison set in, and she died, notwithstanding heroic efforts to save her life.

Edward Launt, a farm hand, is under arrest at Windsor, Mass., charged with murdering his employer by putting rat poison in a jug of cider, from which the latter was in the habit of drinking.

In recognition of the work of the Church Army in taking paupers out of the workhouse and turning them into ratepayers, the Paddington, Eng., Board of Guardians, has sent a donation of ten guineas.

The Oceanic Steamship Company has withdrawn its Australian service from San Francisco, and is sending all its passengers via Vancouver on the Union steamship line running in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The strike of the Stevedores at Nantes, France, resulted Saturday in violent rioting, in which a spectator of the disorder was shot dead. A mob stormed gendarmes and police, who were forced to disperse the crowd with drawn sabers.

The total appropriations voted by the United States Congress during the session just ended were under a thousand million dollars, and there will be a surplus of $20,000,000 in the treasury at the end of 1908, instead of a deficit, as had been feared.

DEFENCE FILE AFFIDAVITS

Jerome Will Present New Facts In Support of Insanity Theory—Homicidal Mania Might Return Says Prosecution — Strange Letters Put In—Evelyn Nesbit Visits Husband—Dissension Denied

New York, March 25.—Harry K. Thaw last night made public another statement, this time denying a rumor, which he believes is current, that there is a dissension among his counsel. He also refers to the affidavits filed with Justice Fitzgerald by his attorneys, opposing the appointment of a lunacy commission to examine him.

The monotony of Thaw's Sunday at the Tombs was broken by an unexpected visit from his wife. This was the first time since his detention that the prisoner was allowed to receive callers other than his counsel on Sunday.

Mrs. Thaw had come to the Tombs with a message for her husband, and was agreeably surprised when told that she might visit him. The two were together for a half hour, and when Mrs. Thaw left she said:

In Excellent Health.

"Harry is in excellent health, and is sure everything will come out in his favor."

During the afternoon, which he devoted chiefly to correspondence, Thaw received a note from Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly, explaining that none of the legal staff would call during the day, and that Mr. Hartridge and the writer were busily engaged in preparing briefs to be presented to Justice Fitzgerald to-day.

Twelve Affidavits.

District Attorney Jerome for about two hours dictated to a corps of stenographers a long statement to be used in rebutting the statements sworn to by Thaw's mother, his lawyers and his alienists, and contained in the twelve affidavits filed by the defence Saturday.

It was reported, but not confirmed, that Mr. Jerome intends to present, not only facts refuting the affidavits presented by the defence, but to submit to Judge Fitzgerald new and corroborative facts supporting the affidavits on which he originally made his suggestion to the court that Thaw's present sanity should be enquired into.

Letters to Lyon.

In his attempt to show that Thaw is insane, District Attorney Jerome filed with his affidavits a number of letters written by Thaw to J. Denison Lyon, his banker in Pittsburg. Some were written prior to White's death, and some subsequent to it, from the Tombs. They were made public Saturday night through Assistant District Attorney Garvan.

Ill-Spelled, But Sane.

The letters are odd specimens of correspondence, being, in the main, disconnected sentences, with not a few misspelled words, yet they apparently show an appreciation of the practical matters of the life the young Pittsburg man was leading before he was locked up in the Tombs for shooting White, and his plight when he was imprisoned. The contention of Mr. Jerome is, however, that their incoherence and other characteristics, show that the writer is not sane.

Might Seek Other Victims.

The view is taken by prosecution experts that if Thaw were allowed to go free, he would likely have a recurrence of his paranoiac rage and kill some one else. Neither his wife nor Mrs. Holman would be safe. Even Jerome, who has angered the prisoner on several occasions, might be the victim of one of his delusions.

FATAL RAILWAY SMASH.

Six Killed and Seventeen Injured In Crash With Limited.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—A special train on the Santa Fe Railway, carrying scores of students home from an intercollegiate field meet at Claremont, collided head-on with the outbound limited train while both were moving at a rapid rate within the city limits last night.

Six persons were killed and seventeen injured, several of them probably fatally.

Prisoners Should Eat Together.

Kingston, March 25.—The clause in the grand jury's report this week calling attention to the practice of handing each prisoner in the penitentiary his food and then marching him off to his cell, where he must eat it in solitude, without knife or fork, has very properly evoked a protest, both silent and printed. It is held to be no valid excuse for this inhuman practice that some time ago a few unruly men, when 500 of their fellow-convicts were at dinner in one room, attempted to use their knives and forks on a guard.

Picton Liberals Meet.

Picton, March 25.—The Reform Association of Prince Edward County Saturday elected the following officers: President, David Burlingham; vice-president, Dr. W. Branscombe; second vice-president, H. R. Barton; secretary, M. R. Allison; treasurer, C. B. Allison.

Shaken Again.

Kingston, Jamaica, March 25.—A violent earthquake shock occurred here at 6.40 Saturday evening. The people were panic-stricken. A number of walls damaged in the previous quakes were thrown down. So far as known nobody was hurt. The tourists on the steamship Bluecher just missed the experience, as she sailed shortly before the shock was felt.

Hot In Washington.

Washington, March 25.—All previous records for hot weather in Washington for March were broken yesterday, when, according to the officials of the weather bureau, the thermometer at 2.40 o'clock registered 92 degrees.

SEQUEL TO YORK LOAN FUNDS

Joseph Phillips Sent to Penitentiary For Five Years.

AFTER TWO YEARS DELAY

Entered Plea of Guilty In Expectation of Judicial Leniency—Plea of Restitution Availed Him Nothing—Two Other Charges Not Pressed—Sentenced for Making False Statements—Judge's Remarks

Toronto, March 25.—To the surprise of even Crown Attorney Drayton, Joseph Phillips, former head of the York County Loan and Savings Co., pleaded guilty in the Sessions on Saturday to a charge of making a false return.

Phillips was indicted for publishing a false statement, viz., the annual statement of the year ending Dec. 31, 1904, in which the company's mortgages on land were overstated by $6,465.20, and the liabilities to shareholders were understated to the extent of at least $1,000,000.

Five years in the penitentiary was the sentence.

How He Took It.

Although his gaze only dropped to the floor when it was pronounced,

JOSEPH PHILLIPS.

Joseph Phillips received the sentence of five years in Kingston penitentiary as a blow.

The former president and manager of the York County Loan and Savings Co. had expected a better fate; a lighter sentence. He argued that his services rendered to the National Trust Co., liquidators of the concern he wrecked, his turning over to them the shares of the Toronto Life Co., aggregating $58,000, would count for him. Instead, at the end of a long address delivered to the shifting Phillips, as the latter stood, cap in his heavy overcoat, in front of the prisoner's dock, Judge Winchester handed out the maximum penalty for the offence to which Phillips had, a few moments before, pleaded guilty.

122,000 Victims.

In passing sentence Judge Winchester said in part: "There are about 122,000 poor people, servant girls, widows and others, who put their savings into this company and have been disappointed. Had you taken them into your confidence and asked them to wind up the company when the Government took away your lapses, you would have escaped these charges.

"The evidence shows you were using the funds of the company and the shareholders could not have reached them if you had succeeded.

Must Punish Fraud.

"All these frauds must be punished if the public is to be protected.

"The charge is a most serious one. Our national institutions must be carried on with all honor and honesty. In this you have failed.

"I will only pass sentence on the false statement to which you have pleaded guilty, but I have considered all the others and the fullest penalty of the law should be inflicted. You will be imprisoned in the penitentiary for five years."

The other charges were dropped by the crown attorney.

Suicides In Lodging House.

Toronto, March 25.—A most deliberate suicide came to light on Saturday night at a York street lodging house, when an unidentified man, who had applied for a room Friday night, was found dead in bed.

One end of a piece of tubing was in his mouth, the other being fastened to the gas jet. Every mark of identification had been carefully obliterated.

Being Square With The World

If You Would Give and Get Full Value Here's A Suggestion.

Are you getting full value out of life? And is the world getting full value out of you? In matters of business and in our relations, man to man, we owe it to ourselves and to the world to do our best,—to make ourselves of full value. Do this and, in turn, you will get full value out of life.

You can't do full justice to anything unless you feel right. And you can't feel right unless you live right. Eating right is essential to living right.

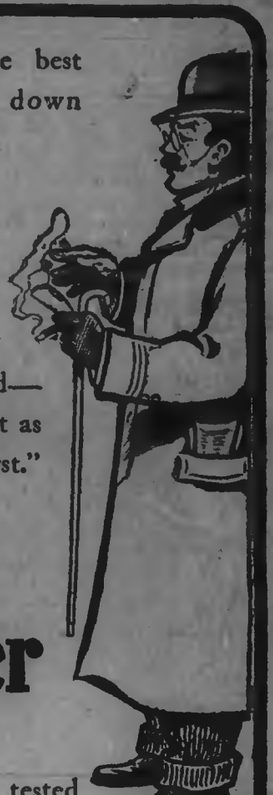
Eat the right kind of food and you will not suffer. The right kind of food for you and your family, the weak and the strong, the sick and the well, the grown folks and the little folks, is Malta-Vita, that delicious, crisp, wholewheat food.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, and it's just as good three times a day. Being a pure grain product, without any foreign sweetening agent or other adulterative, Malta-Vita is rich in food elements—every nutritious element of the best white wheat and pure barley malt extract—intensely vitalizing.

Try Malta-Vita with cream or fruit. There is no other food "just as good." None that can take its place. And it's always ready to eat. No cooking. No inconvenience. All grocers, now 10 cents.

"Well, if your wife told you to get the best Baking Powder in my shop, I'll put you down for a can of ST. GEORGE'S."

"It is made of 99.90% pure Cream of Tartar, which retains its raising qualities better than anything else. It is prepared in such a way that the excellent keeping properties of the Cream of Tartar are increased—the last spoonful in the tin will make just as light and tasty Cakes and Biscuits as the first."



St. George's Baking Powder

Keeps Its Strength

It is the result of scientific study, and has been tested by professional cooks, who acknowledge its superiority over all others.

Try it to-day. A good grocer will not try to influence you to take something else NOT "just as good." There is NO other baking powder NEARLY as good.

POISONING MYSTERY.

Old Soldiers Eat Tainted Meat—One Man Dead.

Leavenworth, Kan., March 25.—One death resulted yesterday among the 900 old soldiers at the National Soldiers' Home here who were poisoned Saturday by eating tainted hash.

The victim was William J. Cook, 64 years of age, a member of the 4th Missouri Cavalry. He leaves a widow at Mexico, Missouri.

About seventy-five of the veterans are still in a serious condition, but it is not thought any of these will die. The majority of the others made ill have recovered.

A report that some of those affected were missing was emphatically denied at the home last night. The Government physician said only those who were already suffering from disabilities and were in a weakened condition were seriously affected.

The Government physicians and nurses at the home have worked to the utmost since noon Saturday, and probably have succeeded in saving a score of men who were in a dying condition when found.

The infection worked slowly, nearly four hours having elapsed between the eating of the meat at breakfast and the development of the symptoms.

Then men began to drop off by scores. Ambulances and stretchers were in demand, and many old men lay for hours without the possibility of attention.

MAN'S HEARTLESS ACT.

Father Destroys His Child to Save His Own Life.

Budapest, March 24.—Johann Horvath, a peasant of Kapi, yesterday threw his 8-year-old son to wolves to save his own life.

He was driving home from Eperies with the boy, when four wolves got on the track of his two-horse cart and overhauled it, the road being in bad condition owing to the melting snow.

Horvath was unarmed, and as the wolves were about to attack him he seized his boy and threw him into the road, when the wolves tore him to pieces.

Horvath escaped, and on reaching Kapi told how the horrible sight of the wolves devouring his child had so fascinated him that he kept looking back until they were out of sight.

A village council was summoned to discuss his conduct, and it was decided to lynch him by clubbing him to death in Hungarian fashion.

His life was saved by the appearance of the police, who had been informed of what was happenings, and Horvath was arrested.

KIDNAPPED AGAIN.

Millionaire's Grandchild, Once Stolen By Mother, Disappears.

Berlin, March 25.—A despatch from Hanover says that "Eddy" Krieger, 12 years of age, son of George Krieger of Chicago, who married the daughter of Dr. Bart, a millionaire, has been kidnapped by two masked persons.

The boy's father, after securing a divorce from his wife in America, secretly brought the boy to Germany and entrusted him to a friend in Hanover, where he was educated.

The mother, who has since married a Dr. MacDonald, came to Germany, obtained possession of the boy and took him with great secrecy to Hamburg, from which place he has mysteriously disappeared.

Two Dead In Fire.

Catskill, N. Y., March 25.—A hut on the mountain side of Cairo, in which resided the brothers, Henry and Rufus Denton, and their sister, all over 70 years old, was burned to the ground before daybreak yesterday. Henry and the sister perished in the flames, and Rufus, who was removed to the county alms house, is badly burned about the head and body.

MADE PLUCKY FIGHT.

Two Men Won In a Battle With Infuriated Bruin.

Vancouver, March 25.—To be suddenly attacked in dense timber by an enraged she-bear in defence of her two cubs, and without any firearms to defend themselves, was the thrilling and unpleasant experience of Mr. G. Young and Mr. E. T. Barnum at Lake Coquitlam.

Messrs. Young and Barnum are timber cruisers, and had nothing but a small handaxe and a hastily improvised club. A couple of crashing leaps through the underbrush brought the bear within a couple of feet of Mr. Barnum, who was slightly in advance. The animal reared on its hind legs and attempted to close with the man. Mr. Barnum, who had nothing but a stout stick in his hand, dealt the bear a desperate blow on the snout. This sent her head down for a moment and allowed Mr. Young to get busy with the axe which he was carrying. The two little cubs came to their mother's aid, and blow followed blow, few of them seeming to have any effect as the two men were at too close quarters to defend themselves effectively. Finally, Mr. Barnum sidestepped and distracted the bear's attention for a moment, which allowed Mr. Young to land a knockout blow just behind the ear with his axe. But the animal was game, and even in her death struggles clawed and bit savagely at the two men.

Clinton, March 25.—A severe electrical storm passed over this section on Saturday night. The barn of Mr. Wiltse, on the London road, was struck by lightning and burned, 29 head of cattle being cremated. Another barn on the Huron road was destroyed.
